CHP Setting Up Traffic Checkpoints

POLICE READY FOR NEW YEAR'S EVE

By WILLIAM JONES

A small army of more than 2,000 uniformed sheriff's deputies, local policemen and highway patrolmen will be called out for duty on New Year's Eve in hope of preventing a traffic bloodbath on Southland roads.

Beginning at 10 a.m. Monday, mobile units of the California Highway Patrol will set up traffic checks at 20 different locations in Los Angeles, Ventura and Orange counties.

It is expected that more than 10,000 motorists will be funneled through the checkpoints at the undisclosed sites. Generally, patrolmen will operate the checkpoints for two hours at one location and then move on to another.

Main target of these roadblocks: the drunk driver.

With leave time canceled, the Highway Patrol will put 500 officers in the field on New Year's Eve to man the checkpoints and for regular patrol duty.

A force of 750 deputies will be on full-time duty in Los Angeles County, including "contract cities" such as Lakewood, Bellflower, Paramount, Artesia and Dairy Valley, according to Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess.

Orange County will field 50 deputies, concentrated generally in the "contract cities" of Fountain Valley, Villa Park and San Juan Capistrano.

Most cities in the two counties, including Long Beach, will summon extra policemen to augment their regular forces during the midweek holiday period.

Despite this, safety officials Saturday were pessimistic about the traffic accident outlook.

Forecasts of traffic deaths in the state during the holiday ranged from 18 to 23.

The Long Beach Chapter of the National Safety Council pointed out that the early national prediction of 250 traffic deaths for both the Christmas and New Year's holidays already had been surpassed Friday with 316 dead.

Clifford Boutin, president of the Long Beach chapter, said the "holiday danger in the fight for life" had increased because of extra traffic caused by workers given extra days off by local businesses. This stemmed from the midweek observance of the two holidays, he said.

POPE MEETS ORTHODOX CHURCH ENVOY

Pope Paul VI (left) stands with Metropolitan Athenagoras of Thiatiron, envoy of Orthodox Church Patriarch Athenagoras I of Constantinople during audience in the Vatican Saturday. LBJ Decree Made Rapid Budget Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) —An unpublicized decree by President Johnson, demanding a "voluntary" trimming of agency budget requests, produced over $730 million worth of cuts in 48 hours, government sources said Saturday.

The cost-cutting drive apparently has become Johnson's uppermost concern, administration aides reported, and has become the biggest headache of his cabinet officers.

But even though the President pounded on the cabinet table at a recent session to underscore his demand for savings, officials indicated there is little hope of a fiscal 1965 budget below $101 billion.

THAT WOULD be about $2 billion greater than the spending estimate for fiscal 1964, ending next June 30. But the budget message still is full of blanks and question marks, officials said, and only these facts seem fairly solid:

—It will go to Congress Jan. 21, remaining open for revision until almost the last moment.

—It will show reduced outlays for some of the heaviest spending agencies, including the Defense Department, Agriculture Department, Atomic Energy Commission, Post Office and Veterans Administration.

—It will propose increases for some others, including the Labor Department, the Department of Welfare, the Peace Corps and the housing agencies.

—It will wind up in red ink again, although the deficit is expected to be smaller—by several hundred million dollars—than the estimated fiscal 1964 deficit of $9.2 billion.

The President made a brief reference to his econ-

ANYBODY FOR A BEER?

The new Miss Rheingold, Celeste Yarnall, a native of Long Beach, strolls Saturday through New York's Central Park.

L.B. Girl's Title Worth $50,000

By ANDY PARK

A 19-year-old Long Beach Girl is $50,000 richer and on her way to being the most well-known young lady in New York as a result of a brewery beauty contest she won this month.

Celeste Yarnall, an actress-hopeful born here in 1944, is the reigning beauty of Manhattan and environs (and, up that way, they consider most of the East Coast "environs.").

Celeste, with a name that means "heavenly," is Miss Rheingold of 1964. In New York City, that's the next best thing to being the Statue of Liberty.

RHEINGOLD, a pleasant potable purveyed in Gotham and the New England states, annually elects a "Miss" and bestows upon her $50,000 in cash, a $10,000 wardrobe, $400 monthly expenses, and sends her around their marketing territory to smile on TV, chat on radio, pose for pictures and grace the thousands of billboards at various levels on the skyline of New York.

In the process, the company sells a lot of beer and makes a famous person out of its Miss.

Celeste, a free-lance actress from Hollywood, was born in Long Beach July 26, 1944 at Seaside Memorial Hospital, when her father, F. E. Yarnall, was a Navy commander stationed here.

"WE LIVED there for a while," Celeste recalls, "but I don't remember exactly where. But Long Beach is my birthplace and I've always been glad."

The Leibman Breweries of New York is also glad—

Tariff View Brighter, He Tells LBJ

JOHNSON CITY (UPI)— President Johnson opened summit talks with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard at the LBJ Ranch Saturday and Erhard told him efforts to resolve East-West tensions had "not been very encouraging," particularly in terms of a divided Germany.

A spokesman for the chancellor emphasized that despite his "realistic and sober" assessment of the last year, Erhard fully supports continued efforts to resolve differences between the Allies and the Soviet bloc.

JOHNSON and Erhard conferred in the living room of the Johnson ranch house and in a car driving over the ranchland.

The chancellor was more optimistic about U.S. concern over European trade barriers to American farm products during two sessions that opened the two-day meeting.

Erhard, whose nation is a member of the Common Market, sought to ease U.S. worry over European tariff barriers.

CHANCES looked "improved" for American-European tariff talks next year, Erhard told the President.

Johnson did not reply to Erhard's comments about East-West relations, which stressed events of the past "year or so." He cited delays of U.S. troops on the highway to West Berlin by the Reds.

The White House said Johnson made no reply since he was simply listening to a rundown by his guest. The Germans said the summary was a "realistic assessment" of the East-West situation.

The atmosphere of the talks was very relaxed.

50 FIRMS NAMED

Report Charges Utilities Discriminate Against Jews

NEW YORK (AP)—Fifty of the nation's giant utility firms were accused Saturday of discriminating against Jews and other minority groups in selecting executive personnel.

The accusation was made by A. M. Sonnabend, president of the American Jewish Committee and a Boston industrialist.

He said very few of the utilities practice discrimination as a specific policy. Nevertheless, he said, they "maintain a personnel practices climate that discourages Jewish candidates and members of other religious and ethnic minority groups."

THE JEWISH committee has been sponsoring and cooperating with three major studies under way for the past two years at Harvard, the University of Michigan and the University of California at Los Angeles.

The studies are designed to probe barriers on the executive level both at recruitment points and within the industries.

Sonnabend minced no words in a statement issued through the American Jewish Committee headquarters here.

"There seems to be a built - in discriminatory screen which has a much finer mesh for Jews than for other candidates," he said.

"Jewish personnel traditionally must do better than others either to stay in the same place, or to move up on the higher managerial ladder."

SONNABEND named the 50 concerns he accused of discriminatory practices. They included American Telephone & Telegraph Co., Consolidated Edison of New York and Western Union Telegraph.

These three quickly asserted through spokesmen that they knew of no discrimination of the type charged by Sonnabend within their own organizations. They withheld comment pending study of his remarks.

Another denial came from a West Coast firm named by Sonnabend, Pacific Gas & Electric.

"We have no records on percentages, simply because we don't hire that way and so we don't keep them," a spokesman said, "I've been told subsequent to employment that persons had Jewish blood. That has never made any difference to us. It is not a matter of consideration.

"Frankly I don't understand Mr. Sonnabend's charges."

SONNABEND contended discriminary barriers exist both in recruiting and promotion.

At the top level, he said, Jews hold less than one-percent of the executive positions in the firms.

On the other hand, Sonnabend asserted, about 8 to 10 percent of the college-trained population in this

Gunshot Fatal to Broker

Owen T. Masters, 65, investment broker and one-time Long Beach automobile dealer, died in his Virginia Country Club home Saturday night from a gunshot wound through the heart.

Police theorized the self-inflicted wound was accidental.

Masters, 65, was showing his wife, Patricia, how to use a handgun, officers learned. A number of burglaries have occurred recently in the area.

As he turned a .38-caliber revolver, it discharged, striking him in the chest and killing him instantly.

INVESTIGATING Officers A. E. Sturgeon and P. A. Chastain said that when they arrived shortly before 9:30 p.m., they found the pajama-clad body in a second-floor bedroom.

At his feet was the revolver, with one bullet fired, they said. Under his legs was a .22-caliber automatic pistol he also had been demonstrating for Mrs. Masters. The automatic was fully loaded.

The childless couple lived alone in the 12-room house.

Masters, a native Virginian, came to California in 1919 and operated several automobile dealerships in the north. He moved to Long Beach in 1942 and founded Masters Pontiac agency, since sold to another dealer.

Hottest Spot Again Today

If you feel hot under the collar today, you will have good reason. Long Beach may well be the hottest place in the 50 American states with a predicted high of 85.

Long Beach, Los Alamitos, San Gabriel and some other places in the neighborhood set a national record Saturday with 86 degrees recorded. By contrast, International Falls, Minn., was the coldest place with 23 below.

Beer Manned, Wits Canned

SWANSEA, Wales (UPI) —Two men arrested for drunkenness on Christmas Eve were fined $14 each Saturday by Chief Magistrate Percy Morris.

He ordered them to repeat this verse: "When beer is in the can, wits are in the man. When beer is in the man, wits are in the can."

Hoffa Trial Site Changed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— U.S. District Judge Frank W. Wilson Saturday night ordered the jury-tampering trial of Teamsters Union president James R. Hoffa and six other defendants transferred from Nashville to Chattanooga.

MOSLEMS RIOT

HAIR OF PROPHET STOLEN

SRINAGAR, Kashmir (AP)—Riots touched off by the disappearance of a hair believed to be from the head of the prophet Mohammed raged in this Himalayan city Saturday.

Moslem mobs set fire to two movie theaters, a hotel and a police station. Police fired over the heads of the crowds trying to control them.

The Moslem shops closed and Moslem workers went on a "hartal"—work stoppage.

The Indian government, which controls this part of disputed Kashmir, dispatched a top intelligence agent to help in the search for the hair.

Processions of Moslems carrying black flags in sign of sorrow and anger marched to the Bazrat-bal Mosque, where the hair had been enshrined.

Religion is an explosive issue in this state which was fought over after partition created Pakistan as a Moslem state and India as a predominantly Hindu one.

L.A.C. Says:

1968 No Longer Candidates' Targets

Some Republican candidates had been reluctant to enter next year's race because they figured President Kennedy had a big edge for re-election in 1964. They were looking forward to 1968 when the race would be wide open since President Kennedy—if re-elected in 1964—could not succeed himself. Now they must look forward to 1972 before this succession would be denied to President Johnson. The two-term limitation does not apply unless the candidate has served at least two full years as President.

It is the reason for reappraisal of their programs by all GOP candidates. Only Gov. Rockefeller has announced his candidacy. If he is the only candidate who files on the March New Hampshire ticket, the result there will have little psychological effect. But if Goldwater, Nixon or Scranton decides to challenge Rockefeller in that campaign it may well decide their political fate. The victor would get a big lift throughout the nation. The losers would have a tough failure to overcome.

The big question before the candidates is what kind of campaign they will carry out. The kind of attack they would have used against the Kennedy regime may fall flat against Johnson. Many people who think of themselves as middle of the road conservatives may find Johnson much more acceptable than they did Mr. Kennedy. Many of these voters are Democrats who disagreed with the Kennedy programs and the people around him. But they will probably vote the Democratic ticket under the leadership of President Johnson.

The big problem is that voters will probably not know what President Johnson actually stands for until after the election next year. He has a tremendous advantage in being in office and following the late President. His past record is one of being a strong supporter of the New Deal and of the Kennedy program. But he is also thought of as being fundamentally conservative in his views. Whether or not he is will not be known until Congress meets in January—and probably not until after the election.

Actually the issues which caused so much dissension under President Kennedy are still the same issues. President Johnson has endorsed them. But it may be he will accept amendments to make them more palatable to the people and to Congress. Only time will tell this. But, as of now, the tax program without adequate reductions in spending are the same. The civil-rights bill still has provisions that will destroy states' rights and those of individuals, going far beyond the protection of Negro rights to education, voting and job security. And foreign aid continues to be a major cause of our balance-of-payments deficit, and the federal debt will rise again because of large deficit spending. Mr. Johnson has not directly touched on these issues—and the economy programs he has discussed are minor by comparison, but in the right direction.

These are issues that are as crucial today as they were when Mr. Kennedy was fighting for them. If Mr. Johnson insists on them as presented by his predecessor they should be opposed with equal vigor. The Republicans have a lot of lost ground to recover. The tragic death of President Kennedy released an emotionalism that placed political and economic issues in the background. It was no time for attacks on these issues. But this meant the GOP was silent and inert while the Democratic candidates have had all the advantages.

It is now time for the Republicans to pick up the issues and fight on them. If President Johnson continues to support the over-all Kennedy program, the issues should again be dominant. If they were wrong before, they are wrong now. The fact that Mr. Johnson may be more adroit in maneuvering them through Congress does not change this factor. The successful GOP candidate will be the one who carries on the fight on this basis. Sen. Goldwater has been the most outspoken opponent of these programs. If the President fights for them as they are now written this would make the Arizona Senator the outstanding spokesman for such opposition. If the President modifies his position it would nullify much of the Goldwater support.—L.A.C.

New Phone Company Projects Begin Despite 10-Week Strike

By CHARLES SUTTON

General Telephone Co. is showing renewed signs of life in its heavy construction program—a part of its operational anatomy that was struck a near-paralyzing blow by the walkout of the company's nearly 9,000 workers Oct. 19.

As recently as five weeks ago, company spokesmen concede, none but the most urgent jobs could be undertaken.

Now, in addition to meeting its top-priority commitments at defense and space installations, such as Douglas Aircraft Company's new space center at Huntington Beach, the company is tackling other jobs, as well. It is laying new cables, relocating telephone poles in line with street improvement projects and installing heavy-duty central office equipment to meet the demand for new phones.

ROBERT WELLMAN, assistant director of public relations for the strike-bound firm, says General also is meeting most of its commitments for phone installations at new housing tracts in some of the 170 communities it serves throughout Central and Southern California.

Wellman admits the company's recovery in heavy construction is far from complete, but he and other company officials are frankly "encouraged by the progress being made."

He also admits the company—or rather, its non-striking workers—are paying a price for that recovery. Most of them are working six days a week, 12 hours a day.

And officials of the striking Communications Workers of America are watching closely to see just how long they can go on under such a gruelling schedule.

BIGGEST factor in the recovery, says Wellman, is the almost 900 new craftsmen hired by the company since the strike began. They make up the bulk of the 1,510 installers, cable men and splicers now engaged in heavy construction work for the company. The rest include striking craftsmen who returned to work or who refused to hit the bricks in the first place.

While there's no denying the company's strengthened position as a result of the improvement in its heavy construction program, a clear-cut assessment of that strength is difficult to make, partly because company officials have not translated the comeback into percentage figures. However, some indication of the company's position may be gleaned from the fact that the 1,150 men currently engaged in heavy construction constitute almost a third of the normal complement of men assigned to that field.

THE UNION — not unnaturally, perhaps — is inclined to pooh pooh the development. "It'll solidify the company's position to some extent," says a spokesman, "but not appreciably."

CWA officials also cling to the belief that the firm's automated equipment is headed for trouble. Sooner or later, they say, it will start breaking down.

Company officials, on the other hand, think the union men are whistling in the dark. "The equipment is holding up well, and we expect it to continue holding up well," says Wellman.

Wellman claims management and supervisory personnel have been doing a yeoman job of maintaining the equipment, and he sees no reason to believe that they won't go on doing so. Besides, he adds, "the equipment is designed to last. It's pretty rugged machinery."

JUDGING from company and union statements, the men and women on either side of the dispute are made of equally rugged stuff, since both sides are claiming morale is high among the troops.

And if either side has any intention of throwing in the towel, it certainly isn't telling anyone—least of all the federal mediators who have been trying to bring the two parties to the bargaining table for another round of negotiations.

The mediators threw a compromise proposal out for consideration Dec. 20, but neither side made a move to accept it. So the strike appears to be as hopelessly deadlocked today as when it started 10 weeks ago. Moreover, with no more mediation sessions scheduled for the time being, both sides agree that it looks like a long, hard winter ahead.

Four Grants of Yule-Seal Money Made

Four new research grants totaling more than $17,000 in Christmas Seal contributions have been awarded, it was announced today by Jack L. Orbit, president of the Long Beach Tuberculosis and Health Association.

One of the grants, for more than $6,000, went to a local medical investigator, Dr. Jack Lieberman of Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

Dr. Lieberman is working with a new drug that thins mucous secretions. If it proves out, it will be a significant contribution to the treatment of various respiratory disorders.

THE OTHER three awards went to researchers in Los Angeles, Riverside and San Francisco.

With the new awards, more than $124,000 has been spent this year in California for research and medical education, Dr. Orbitt said.

Five percent of local Christmas Seal contributions are earmarked for a special research fund administered by the TB and Health Association of California.

Boys Flee Tijuana Police, Run Border, Jailed in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Four Los Angeles-area youths were arrested Saturday after a high-speed chase which began, police said, when they ran a U.S.-Mexico border check station at San Ysidro.

Officers said three police cars and a U.S. Border Patrol car chased the youths 10 miles at speeds exceeding 100 miles per hour. Booked on suspicion of robbery in San Diego City Jail were Jack Leslie Stokes, 19, of Los Angeles; Donald Guddal, 18, of Maywood; Johnny Jarvis, 18, of Pico Rivera, and David Contreras, 18, of Montebello.

The youths told police they were fleeing from Mexican police after becoming involved in an argument in a Tijuana bar.

Rose Parade Girls From Royal Families

Political scientists don't need to worry, but the Great American Tradition against royalty is suffering a blow in the annual Tournament of Roses in Pasadena New Year's Day.

At least two Long Beach girls who will participate in the parade come from "royal families," a distinction earned by virtue of the fact their mothers preceded them in regal splendor down Colorado Boulevard in the annual festival.

* * * *

PERT, dark-haired Carolyn Crowell, a 19-year-old Whittier College sophomore, will reign as queen on the Whittier-area float in the Jan. 1 parade.

Carolyn's mother, Mrs. Annabelle Weih Crowell, of 1615 Obispo Ave., Long Beach, graced the 1940 Long Beach float in the Tournament of Roses Parade.

Lauren McColloch, of 4533 Hazelbrook, Long Beach, a student at Long Beach City College, also will be following in the royal footsteps when she steps forth on the line of march.

Lauren's mother, the former Peggy Schuck, rode the first float ever entered by the City of San Marino in 1928.

* * * *

ANOTHER local girl, Rosemary Dysel, of 43½ 58th Place, a Long Beach State College student, will be in the 1964 parade.

Mrs. Crowell was the Far Western majorette champion in her teen days and her ability with the baton was passed on to Carolyn "one summer when I was in high school and I 'forced' mother to give me some lessons," says the daughter.

Carolyn was freshman and senior class princess during her days at the Wilson High School and was homecoming princess for her freshman class at Whittier.

The LBCC entry on the Long Beach float, Lauren McColloch, was homecoming queen in 1962 and teaches swimming and life guard service during summer months for the Long Beach recreation department. She also won the 1963 Bank of America award for art at LBCC.

MRS. ANNABELLE CROWELL . . . Beauty Queen in 1940

* * * *

MISS DYSEL, another damsel on the Long Beach float, is a senior at LBSC, majoring in social science. Rosemary is an excellent student with a high scholastic record and served as a chaperon last summer for the American Field Service, conducting 36 foreign students across the United States.

The royal New Year's line may continue, for all three girls hope to "marry and have children."

ROSE PARADE PARTICIPANTS will include Lauren McColloch, left, Long Beach City College, and Rosemary Dysel, Long Beach State College. Lauren's mother, as Peggy Schuck, rode the first float entered by San Marino in 1928.

CHANCELLOR ERHARD EXPOUNDS

Johnson drove his guest from the ranch to the nearby Granite Knob Ranch, in which he has an interest. They talked on the way.

* * * *

THE PRESIDENT and the chancellor, the two newest leaders of the Western world, voiced "new hope" for peace and freedom in the world and plunged right to work with a private two-hour meeting in Johnson's ranch house living room.

At a formal afternoon session with advisers, Johnson packed Erhard, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder into an automobile. They continued their discussions for an hour while riding round the ranch, looking at deer.

Independent, Press-Telegram publisher Herman H. Ridder and Mrs. Ridder arrived in Austin, Tex., Saturday at the invitation of President Johnson to attend a "Texas-style" barbecue for German Chancellor Erhard today.

A dinner for 30 guests concluded the activities of the first day in the two-day conference that was giving Johnson and Erhard a chance to size each other up. They vowed to carry on the "great heritage" of President Kennedy and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer whom they succeeded.

Discussing East-West problems, particularly the question of divided Germany, Erhard told the President that "the whole picture taken together, the Western efforts and the Eastern response, is not very encouraging."

This statement was provided by the German press secretary in a summary of the day's work.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the afternoon session lasted two hours. He said it covered, "a lengthy discussion of economic subjects," as well as a review of the multilateral-force idea to have the navies of the West join together, and Erhard's "attitudes and feelings on the future of East-West relations."

* * * *

THE TWO chief executives probed deeply into proposals for strengthening the Atlantic Alliance in the sessions that also served to get the two men better acquainted.

Erhard's press secretary, Karl-Gunther von Hase, reported Erhard's misgivings over East-West tensions as he joined Salinger in a briefing of the day's discussions.

Erhard expressed again his nation's sorrow over the assassination of President Kennedy. Johnson, in a lunch toast, referred to the "sorrow because of a great loss." Both leaders stressed their desire to plunge into the "great tasks" of the future.

Utilities Accused of Anti-Jewish Bias

country is Jewish and managerial staffs are recruited almost completely from the ranks of college graduates.

The problem really begins at the recruitment level when company representatives visit the colleges and graduate schools throughout the nation," he said.

Sonnabend said potential Jewish candidates for jobs in utilities management are presented with "a negative and discouraging picture of their potential and possibilities."

* * * *

HE ACCUSED utilities management of conforming to "a sterotyped image of what they believe the executive should be." And very often, he added, top executives are unaware of discriminatory practices on subordinate levels.

Sonnabend said discriminatory barrier not only are old-fashioned and un-American but are making the progress of the companies concerned as well as hampering full development of the national economy.

He urged utilities to initiate programs aimed at making their personnel aware of the harmful effects of discriminatory practices.

Police Out in Force for New Year's Eve

partment and the local chapter of the California Dining and Beverage Association are sponsoring huge billboard signs, tavern posters and a program warning motorists: "If you think before you drink, you will be alive after you drive."

Long Beach Police Chief William Mooney advised motorists "to look—and live."

"The reason is evident," he said. "Since the first of the year, through last Thursday, nearly 2,500 persons had been injured in local traffic accidents.

"The average was 18 accidents a day and 6½ injuries a day.

"Many people seem to take the problem of traffic and safety too lightly. We all know accidents don't just happen. They are caused — and, usually, because of carelessness, speed and just too much carefree holiday spirit."

Concerning the roadblocks, the Highway Patrol said cars will be funneled into traffic patterns to slow down for checks, "but not all will be stopped."

"We're going to be out to apprehend the intoxicated driver, not to delay the flow of traffic unnecessarily," said John Wagner, patrol information officer.

Generally, the CHP mans a checkpoint with 16 officers and a motor sergeant. Fourteen work on the roadblock, while two others are on motorcycles to chase down the drivers who make obvious turns to avoid going through the inspection point.

Moving slowly between officers, the car is visually checked for defects by officers assigned to look for such things as broken windshields or burned-out headlights. A third officer is close enough to observe the driver and catch any whiff of alcohol on his breath.

Drivers under suspicion are motioned to the side for closer examination while the rest of the cars move on through the line. Suspected drunk drivers are given the Romberg Test by the CHP. It consists of physical movements such as walking a line to test conrdination. However, the driver may request a blood test.

Churches Group for Housing Initiative

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The American Council of Christian Churches says it will support the California Real Estate Association in its proposed initiative to repeal the Rumford Fair Housing Act.

Dr. Robert E. Kofahl, first vice president of the group, said, "To pit so-called 'human rights' against property rights as if the former override the latter is a specious and misleading argument. If property rights go, all rights go."

Ultimatum Got Quick Budget Cut

omy edict during an impromptu news conference Friday at Johnson City, Tex. He said it had resulted in recommendations "to the budget that reduced it $731 million and eliminated more than 10,000 jobs" for fiscal 1965.

* * * *

OTHER sources provided details.

Johnson jarred his cabinet officers, at their meeting Dec. 11, by hammering his fist on the table, declaring he knew more money could be wrung from their budget proposals.

After the session broke up, Johnson had Budget Director Kermit Gordon dispatch a letter to all agency heads, including those not at the cabinet session, spelling out exactly what the President had in mind.

Gordon's letters went out late Wednesday, calling for written replies by 6 p.m. two days later. Each agency chief was instructed to review his budget plans, curtail them, and report on what specific items could be trimmed and how much.

* * * *

THE 48-HOUR ultimatum — quickly dubbed the "Black Friday Edict" because it was returnable on Friday the 13th—dismayed some officials who felt their budgets already had been pinched unreasonably.

Some worked all night with their budget officers and controllers. Virtually all the reports, when they piled up on Gordon's desk two days later, showed savings.

The Black Friday cuts came along after agency requests already had been trimmed by billions of dollars.

DMV Opens Offices on Saturdays

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Department of Motor Vehicles will open its local offices on Saturdays starting Jan. 4 to help handle registration renewals.

The department said that the offices would be open for five Saturdays, from 8 a.m. to noon. Registration renewals for 1964 may be paid through Feb. 4 without penalty.

MORE THAN LUCK L.B. ALERTED ON NAVY YARD CUTBACKS

Hosmer Consulted With City Officials, Business and Labor Groups to Warn of Difficulties, Dangers

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY

It is "more than a little bit of luck" that Long Beach is alert to the possibility that a number of Naval shipyards may be closed within a year.

Before the recent public furore over the shipyards, Rep. Craig Hosmer (R-Calif.) met in Long Beach with Mayor Wade; representatives of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard's Employes Association; the Independent Businessmen's Association; and the Chamber of Commerce. Hosmer spoke frankly of the problems and the dangers.

He made two basic recommendations: That the Navy designate Long Beach as a pilot yard to show how costs may be cut in repair and conversion. He recommended that the L.B. Navy Shipyard Employes Association spearhead and coordinate their own pilot program by minimizing in every possible way direct labor costs on all work in the yard. It is believed Hosmer's recommendations will be adopted.

* * * *

REP. HOSMER is the senior Republican from the House of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy which is one of the most responsible and powerful Congressional committees.

On Dec. 21, the JCAE issued a unanimous report which was unique in its condemnation of a Cabinet officer (Secretary McNamara). Their criticism was directed at him for his decision against building a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier. In blunt language, the committee questioned Secretary McNamara's judgment, his figures, his ability to plan and estimate, his military philosophy and it cast doubts on the accuracy of the information provided him by his advisers.

By showing Johnson Administration officials and the American people that Secretary McNamara's judgment may not always be perfect, real help will be given to beleaguered Naval shipyards.

* * * *

THE JCAE report castigated Secretary McNamara for his original idea "cost effectiveness" approach which "could create an intolerable peril to national security." The report said his approach would prevent military forces from having the best and most modern technological weapons that can be produced.

The report was prepared after three days of closed hearings at which witnesses were heard from the Defense Department, the Navy, and the Atomic Energy Commission. JCAE Chairman, Senator Pastore (D-R.I.) stated that McNamara was the only witness who testified against the atomic-powered carrier.

Calling McNamara "misinformed," the report charged that he had cited cost figures for the first three nuclear-powered ships: the cruiser Long Beach, the carrier Enterprise, and the frigate Bainbridge which were more costly than the facts revealed.

The JCAE report also charged that when McNamara estimated a nuclear-powered carrier would cost $163 million more than the conventionally powered ship, he had added an estimated $32 million for the initial nuclear fuel load but he omitted to mention the cost for seven years of fuel oil for a conventional ship.

Secretary McNamara has ordered a special Board of Defense Department and Navy officials to conduct a new study of Naval shipyards.

COMMANDER

Harold H. Penhale will be installed commander of Long Beach Commandery 40, Knights Templar, at 7:30 p. m. Saturday at Palos Verdes Masonic Temple, 5155 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

40 States Enter 1964 IBC Meet

International Beauty Congress sponsors for 40 states have already been signed, assuring at least that number of girls in the Miss United States contest here, Wayne Dallard, executive producer, announced this week.

"We have been working to make the contests in the various states more uniform," Dallard said. "And I think we have accomplished a great deal."

Dallard, who recently made trips through the East, South and Middle West lining up sponsors, is enthusiastic about the United States portion of the IBC pageant for 1964.

A STRONG effort is being made, Dallard added, to make the state contests duplicate as much as possible the contest here in order to give the girls more information on what to expect after they arrive here and to improve the caliber of the entrants.

"In the past many of the contests in the individual states have been conducted in a pretty willy-nilly manner," the executive producer said. "We think we will be able to change most of that this year and all of it next year."

Emphasis is being placed on making the judging standards used in all the contests conform to the requirements observed here. Even the entry blanks are expected to be the same.

Scheduling of the contests will be coordinated by the IBC here so that there will be no conflict in neighboring states. Dallard says he hopes to be in telephone contact with all of the sponsors on a weekly basis from late spring until the pageant opens here Aug. 5.

THE MOST recent states to be lined up are Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado where state chapters of National Association of Press Photographers will conduct the contests.

EVERYBODY'S EXPECTING

Jayne Mansfield is expecting a child soon. Andy Anderson, left, and Mickey Levine, chairman and producer of the International Auto Show, expect her to be queen of the event, Jan. 17 through 26 in the Long Beach Arena. Miss Mansfield says the stork has priority, but if all goes well, she'll attend the show here, too.

Boy, 15, Stabs Girl, 18, Fatally, Tries to Burn Body, He Admits

PALMYRA, N.J., (UPI) — A quiet teen-age boy, described by neighbors as "always such a good boy," admitted Saturday he stabbed his sister's 18-year-old girl friend with a hunting knife and then burned the body in an incinerator.

Police Chief Payton I. Flournoy said Thomas Busby Jr., 15, "readily admitted" killing amateur artist Maureen Drummy Friday night but couldn't remember why he did it.

"The boy didn't remember how many times he stabbed her or any reasons for the act," said Flournoy.

Young Busby was placed in the juvenile detention quarters of the Burlington city jail pending a hearing before a juvenile court judge Monday.

* * * *

OFFICERS found the charred body of the Drummy girl in a 55-gallon incinerator can near the back door of the Busby home Saturday after receiving a telephone call from the boy's father, Thomas Sr., operator of an automobile-repair shop in nearby Cinnaminson Township.

"I think the missing girl is out back in the incinerator," he told police.

Maureen, an avid artist who was working as a secretary in Philadelphia to earn enough money to enter art school, was reported missing early Saturday by her parents who told police she left Friday night with the family car.

Police said the Busbys and the Drummys were close friends and it wasn't unusual for either of the families to drop in on the other. Maureen and Thomas' sister, Helen, 17, were described as girl friends.

Chief Flournoy said the boy recalled watching television from 9:15 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. Friday while his mother and sister were out shopping. His father still was at his shop.

The chief quoted the boy as saying he stabbed the girl with a four-inch hunting knife on the second floor of his home, then carried her body to the backyard. After rolling the large incinerator can to the body, the boy stuffed the victim inside head first, poured gasoline over her body and set it ablaze, Flournoy said.

Before his parents arrived, the boy said, he wiped blood from the second-floor hall and hid his bloodstained shirt. He also recalled placing the girl's pocketbook in a municipal trash truck parked nearby.

"Come in the house, my son has admitted doing this," the elder Busby told officers when they arrived at his home.

Residents of this quiet, suburban community of 6,000 in southern New Jersey were shocked at news of the slaying.

* * * *

THE NEXT-DOOR neighbor of the Busbys, Mrs. Eugene Frazer, said, "I just can't believe it."

"Tommy was always such a good boy," she said. "Whenever he saw Mr. Frazer or myself he always went out of his way to say 'Good morning' or 'Good evening.' "

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Historic Papal Meeting Assured

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The first meeting in five centuries between leaders of the Roman Catholic and Orthodox churches became a virtual certainty Saturday as Pope Paul VI conferred—and likely prayed—with an emissary from the Patriarch of Constantinople.

Both the Roman Catholic pontiff and Patriarch Athenagoras I of Constantinople (Istanbul) appeared committed to a summit encounter in the Holy Land. Pope Paul begins his three-day pilgrimage there next Saturday.

The meeting here between the Pope and the Patriarch's envoy, Metropolitan Athenagoras of Thiatiron, was in itself historic. It marked the first visit to Rome by an official representative of the Patriarchate of Constantinople since the schism between Orthodox and Roman Catholicism in 1472.

A Vatican communique said the metropolitan had established "contact with the Holy Father (the Pope) and his collaborators for a possible Holy Land meeting between the pontiff and Patriarch Athenagoras."

British Cabinet Officer in Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—British Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys arrived here Saturday on an emergency peace mission sparked by reports a Turkish invasion fleet had been sailing toward Cyprus.

Turkey officially denied the British Royal Air Force reports and said the fleet 20 miles off the northern coast was on NATO maneuvers. But scattered shots and thunderous roar of three jet fighters buzzing Nicosia at rooftop level just after dawn sent a shiver of fear through the tense city.

Sandys, who arrived with a contingent of British troop reinforcements, made the emergency flight from London after conferring by telephone with Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home in Scotland. It was reported prompted by fears the strife between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in this former colony might lead to a conflict between two NATO allies, Greece and Turkey.

Planners Predict Tax-Cut Benefit

WASHINGTON (AP) — If taxes are cut promptly, the national output will rise by $26 billion next year to a record total of about $610 billion, the National Planning Association predicted Saturday.

The forecast of a 4½-percent rise, compared to a 3½-percent increase from 1962 to 1963, was made by Gerhard Colm, NPA's chief economist and the former senior economist of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Colm emphasized that the estimate assumes enactment of a tax bill early in 1964, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Cuba Charges CIA Blasted Boat

HAVANA (UPI) — The Cuban government charged Saturday that U.S. Central Intelligence agency "saboteurs" blew up a Soviet-built PT boat last Sunday, killing three Cuban sailors and wounding 18 in the first act of aggression by the Johnson administration.

A government communique said a mine blew up the PT boat last Sunday in Siguanea Bay of the Isle of Pines and that an investigation showed the explosive came from a U.S. Navy submarine.

Plan to Keep Berlin Wall Open

BERLIN (AP)—German officials in both parts of this divided city voiced readiness Saturday to discuss extending past the Jan. 5 deadline the agreement permitting West Berliners to visit behind the Communist-built wall.

Both sides expressed the hope they could keep open the holes in the wall which allowed hundreds of thousands of separated Berliners their first Christmas family reunion in two years.

So far, 250,000 West Berliners have visited relatives in East Berlin, the official East German news agency, ADN, reported. Altogether 840,000 permits for one-day visits have been issued, the agency said.

Jayne Will Arrive If Stork Does

Jayne Mansfield was named Saturday as queen of the International Auto Show, Jan. 17-26 in the Long Beach Arena.

The sponsoring Long Beach Motor Car Dealers' Association promptly crossed its fingers.

It's a question of which comes first, they admitted, the show or the stork.

If Miss Mansfield, who is expecting, expects on time, she will attend the show, they reported. If she has her first appointment on time, she will attend the second on time.

Meanwhile Miss Mansfield sent show chairman Andy L. Anderson an encouraging word Saturday.

"It looks like I'll be at the show," she said via the telephone.

Prelate Urges Youth to Emulate Mrs. JFK

MIAMI (UPI) — Richard Cardinal Cushing arrived here Saturday night for a Memorial today to the assissinated President and described Mrs. John F. Kenney as "the most extraordinary woman I have ever met."

The Catholic cardinal said teen-agers should look up to Mrs. Kennedy as their "ideal" instead of movie stars.

Cushing, who will speak at a memorial to the late President in Miami's Bayfront Park today, will spend the night at the Palm Beach home of former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and will hold a special Mass for Mrs. Kennedy and the elder Kennedy's.

* * * *

"I WISH I could say to young girls of the future that I think instead of looking to motion-picture actresses for their ideals, they look to Jacqueline Kennedy," the cardinal said.

"She is the most extraordinary woman I have ever met," he added.

Cushing said he had two documents he planned to take to Mrs. Kennedy, who has been spending the Christmas holidays at the Palm Beach home of C. Michael Paul.

* * * *

ONE WAS a telegram from the Pope "conveying a special Christmas message to the family," and the other was from the National Catholic Welfare Conference, which voted Mrs. Kennedy "Woman of the Year."

The cardinal, a longtime friend of the Kennedy's, married the couple and baptized their children.

Vocal-Cord Surgery Teaches Soft-Sell Lesson

SILENT SALESMAN OF REALTY SETS RECORDS

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

Sell real estate without talking?

"Impossible," said the company president.

Get listings without the hard sell and some yak-yak?

"Can't be done," said the vice president.

But Enzo Barbati, a European import with charming Italian accent (when he talks), proved them both wrong.

In a six-weeks period he broke his own record and that of most coworkers by selling a staggering $150,000 worth of property and getting $182,000 in listings . . .

* * * *

The doctor was firm. Barbati was shattered.

"You can't utter a word for six weeks," said the doctor. "If you do, the surgery will be for naught."

"Yea, and my income will be for ought—as in zero," thought Barbati. In no condition to talk back, however, he took the problem in hand.

After all, talking with your hands is an old Italian custom. "Besides, I still can write," thought Barbati. The idea wasn't too foreign, anyway, because he's had communication problems before. (When he arrived in California three years ago, Barbati couldn't speak English.)

So . . . off to the office went Barbati. "Let me work . . . at least, to keep up my contacts," he scribbled to company president Bob Westmyer.

—Staff Photo

SALESMAN Enzo Barbati demonstrates scribble-sales technique he used while unable to talk.

"But you can't sell houses without talking!" said Westmyer.

"Let me try," wrote Barboti.

"Go to it," said Westmyer.

* * * *

WITH THAT go-ahead, Barbati demonstrated how to succeed in business without really talking.

His method: When he called on a lead, he rapped at the door, clamped his mouth tight and flashed his business card.

It carried a different-from-usual inscription: "I am sorry. Because of surgery on my vocal cords, I cannot speak."

Barbati reports potential clients immediately took over the situation, did the talking—and very often talked themselves into buying or selling the property.

To consummate the deals, Barbati used up more than a hundred writing-paper tablets and went home every night with writer's cramp.

But he came to one conclusion: Salesmen talk too much.

"People don't want to be high-pressured," he concluded. "They like to make up their own minds."

* * * *

WHEN THE Rex Hodges Co. hands out awards to salesmen at its annual dinner Monday night in the Petroleum Club, Barbati will be honored for his half-million-dollars' worth of business done the past year.

But his $175,000-sales, $182,000-listing performance without speaking a word will also come in for some extra recognition. (The average real estate performance per salesman per month is $25,000 in sales, $40,000 in listings.)

And when Barbati gets that special award, it should be a gold one . . .

Proving the old adage that silence is, indeed, golden!

Long, Flexible Glass-Fiber Speculum to Aid Doctors

CLEVELAND (AP) — A potentially revolutionary "magic lantern" that might make possible the diagnosis and even treatment of cancer and other ills in areas of the human body inaccessible to direct observation was described Saturday.

It consists of thin long, bundles of flexible glass fibres that can be threaded down the throat to the lungs, the stomach and the intestines — and then illuminate these areas with light transmitted along the fibres. At the same time, radiant energy, packing power "far in excess of that of the sun" can likewise be transmitted through the fibres to the target area.

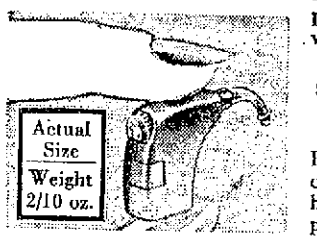

Dr. N. S. Kapany of Optics Technology Inc., Belmont, Calif., told about it in a report to the 130th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He stressed that the device so far had been used only in animals.

New Year's Eve Hangover Cures

Going to get stewed New Year's Eve?

Well then, it's almost a sure bet you'll wake up New Year's Day with a hangover.

Not so sure is what to do about it.

Popular remedies range from a large serving of yogurt to a pint of ice cream. Some patients have been known to get worse.

* * * *

OTHERS REST UP for the inevitable treatment by drinking more alcohol. Experts say this "hair-of-the-dog-that-bit-you" cure merely postpones the agony.

Basic cause of the hangover, scientists say, is lack of oxygen in the brain. And the cause of this is generally not the alcohol itself, but the impurities in it.

The sorry thing about this is that the older and more expensive whisky you drink, the more impurities — called fusel oil — you are getting. A vicious circle.

Eating before drinking, especially fatty foods, will delay entrance of the alcohol into the bloodstream. But, eventually, it will get there.

* * * *

SO IF YOU have dinner before imbibing, you will have to drink twice as much to get high — and suffer a hangover the next day twice as bad.

Drinking water the next day doesn't help. Your body still has the same amount as before, but now it's unbalanced, thus your "thirst." Only time will take care of that.

Food does help. Milk will soothe the stomach lining. Salt and sugar help the body readjust its proper balance. Fresh air and rest help.

In old San Francisco, waterfront workers swore stale beer did the trick. Some bartenders recommend a Bloody Mary as "full of vitamins and dog-hair revitalizing." Another drink suggested has been a stinger.

* * * *

THE DOCTORS have a positive cure, adrenal cortical extract (ACE). The trouble here is getting a doctor to make a house call on New Year's Day.

Miami Beach bartender Johnny Brooks suggests in his book, "My Thirty-five Years Behind Bars," a pint of ice cream.

His prescription: A cold shower, next the ice cream, a breakfast of eggs, toast and coffee and finally a long, long walk.

But, perhaps, Dr. Leon A. Greenberg of the Yale Center of Alcohol Studies has the best advice:

Drink sensibly.

Researchers Find Cattle Like Booze

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Twenty-four steers at the University of Arizona have been taken off the bottle—liquor bottle, that is.

They received cocktails during an experiment conducted by agricultural scientists.

The object was to see whether liquor would increase their appetites.

There was a two-point conclusion:

1. Cattle like booze.
2. Cattle get tipsy when they drink alcohol.

Bruce R. Taylor, head of the school's animal science department, and William H. Hale, professor of animal science, watched over the experiment.

They used 48 steers. For 160 days they spiked the drinking water of 24 of them, while keeping the others on the wagon.

The boozers each consumed 10 gallons of alcohol, or the equivalent of about 16 ounces of whiskey a day.

The weight gained by the imbibers wasn't considered significant.

Weather Causes 21 Italy Deaths

ROME (UPI) — Snow, ice and cold weather was blamed Saturday for at least 21 deaths in Italy.

Most of the deaths occurred in traffic accidents on icy roads. A skier was killed in an avalanche near Trento in northern Italy.

FREE! MINIATURES OF FAMOUS PAINTINGS

Community brings the world's most famous masterpieces into your home. These are beautiful miniatures of paintings by Renoir, Utrillo, Van Gogh, Matisse, Degas, Cezanne, Buffet, Dufy, Lautrec and Gauguin. Each is printed in faithful colors by master craftsmen in France, then mounted on a stand-up easel. Place them on your bookshelves, piano and knick knack ledges. Watch the conversation they create! Miniatures are available January 2 through 10, one to a person, limited to supply on hand.

We're showing modern artists too. You're invited to preview

"CONTEMPORARY LANDSCAPES"

an outstanding collection of original paintings by leading European and American artists.

AT COMPTON Landscapes of Mexico and Spain by Richard Kozlow. Kozlow is Detroit's foremost painter and his landscapes are the essence of nature.

AT LONG BEACH Landscapes of the Paris countryside by Pierre Barat. Winner of many awards, the critics proclaim him an artist of great talent.

AT PARAMOUNT Landscapes of California by Ron Blumberg. Charged with emotion, Blumberg's paintings are rendered in subdued but striking color combinations.

Record Toll Taken by U.S. Traffic

CHICAGO (AP)—Traffic fatalities for the first 11 months this year and for November established new highs, the National Safety Council said Saturday.

The November total of 4,107 traffic deaths pushed the 11-month total for 1963 to 39,280 — up six percent from the record 1962 figure.

During the first 11 months of 1962, 37,120 persons died in traffic accidents.

* * * *

THE NOVEMBER toll was 11 percent over the 3,700 in November 1962. The total also eclipsed the 4,048 record established in November 1936.

The fatality rate during the first 11 months of 1963 climbed to 5.4 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles, a 2 percent increase over a comparable period last year, when the percentage was 5.3 per 100 million vehicle miles.

During the first 11 months this year, 1.4 million persons suffered disabling injuries and another 1.4 million received minor injuries.

Two of the five U.S. cities with more than one million population reduced traffic deaths during the 11-month period.

* * * *

LOS ANGELES remained in first place with the lowest vehicle-death rate. Chicago, Philadelphia, New York City and Detroit followed in that order.

Traffic accidents claimed 32 lives in Los Angeles during November and 324 in the first 11 months, compared with 34 and 373 in the corresponding periods last year.

Chicago had 24 November deaths and 272 in the 11-month period, as opposed to 28 and 218 a year ago.

In Philadelphia, 19 persons lost their lives in November both this year and last year. The 11 month total decreased from 172 to 160.

* * * *

NEW YORK traffic fatalities increased in both statistical periods in 1963. November totals went from 49 last year to 92 in 1963, and from 587 to 606 in the 11 months.

Detroit had 27 deaths in November and 188 in the first 11 months of this year, compared with 19 and 166 a year ago.

Houston maintained its first-place standing with the lowest vehicle-death rate among cities in the 750,000 to 1 million population range. St. Louis and Cleveland followed.

The Texas city had 14 deaths in November and 113 in the first 11 months. A year ago the figures were 4 and 97.

Traffic deaths in Cleveland went down one—from 7 to 6—during the November periods, but increased from 60 to 76 for the 11-month period.

* * * *

ST. LOUIS had 15 deaths in November and 83 in the 11 months of 1963, compared with 10 and 59 last year.

In the 500,000 to 750,000 bracket, Buffalo had the best traffic record, followed by Milwaukee and Seattle. However all three cities reported more deaths so far this year.

Buffalo went from 2 deaths in November to 5 and from 31 during the 11 months last year to 48 in 1963.

Milwaukee recorded 6 November deaths and 51 in the 11 months this year, compared with 1 and 45 a year ago.

Seattle dropped from 5 to 4 November fatalities, but increased from 53 to 63 during the 11-month period.

Scots' Way With Whisky Still Secret

LONDON, England (UPI)—Scientists the world over have been unable to figure out how the Scots make their whisky ,a British biochemist said in the weekly journal "New Scientist."

"The production of whisky is undoubtedly an art, and all attempts to produce it by a scientific approach have proved futile. Nobody has been able to reproduce it outside of Scotland," Dr. Eustace Barton-Wright said.

Leper Colony at Molokai

GRAVE OF Father Damien, Catholic priest who devoted his life to lepers, is at colony.

By JAMES LAGIER

KALAUPAPA, Molokai, Hawaii (AP) — Sixty miles from Honolulu is a settlement of 208 people who live in self-imposed exile with no desire to join the society that once ostracized them.

Locked away from the world by sheer mountain cliffs and the sea, the village of Kalaupapa on Molokai Island is almost as remote today as it must have been nearly a century ago to the first group of lepers cast on its shores to die.

Located on a tongue-shaped area of land on the island's northern coast, the village is cut off from the rest of the island by a cliff that rises 1,800 feet.

* * * *

FROM HONOLULU, Kalaupapa can be reached only by airplane and a steamer which goes into the community three times a year.

But, except for the bane of Hansen's disease, life goes on in the colony as in any normal community.

The patients — 72 of them active cases and the remainder controlled — have automobiles, television sets and electric toothbrushes.

FATHER GUSTAVE
Kalaupapa Priest

They have full civil rights, subject only to the mild jurisdiction of the colony's resident superintendent, Edward Burlem, a former construction foreman who took over there 10 years ago.

* * * *

KALAUPAPA, which means "leafy plain" in Hawaii, is administered by the state through the Department of Health and by Dr. Ira Hirschy, chief of the communicable disease branch of the department.

Patients are provided homes, food ration tickets worth $10 a week, $10 every three months for spending money, and $40 every six months for clothing. Many of them work in the colony for about $170 a month.

Medical care is free. They pay no state or federal taxes, except for the few who have civil service status. Most are more than 40 years old.

Six Roman Catholic sisters — four of them nurses, a priest, four State Health Department nurses, and a physician comprise the medical staff. The sisters are paid a nominal salary by the state.

* * * *

PATIENTS are free to marry, but no children are allowed in the village. When a baby is expected, the pregnant mother is taken to Honolulu for her confinement. The baby is placed in a nursery of a private hospital where it is cared for until sent to a relative's or foster home.

The absence of children brings the biggest void to Kalaupapa. Scores of stray dogs which apparently belong to everybody only emphasize Kalaupapa's emptiness of youth.

Medical evidence has proven, Dr. Hirschy said, that the disease is not hereditary. None of the members of the medical and nursing staffs, the administrative staff, maintenance men, cooks and service personnel — 62 of them — need fear contagion as long as they take proper precautions and use a common sense program of hygiene.

* * * *

THE NORMAL activities of the group is testimony to the intelligent and humanitarian care in handling Hansen's disease. But it was not always this way.

In 1866, during the reign of King Kamehameha V, a segregation act was passed requiring lepers to be sent to the remote outpost.

In 1873, the first Caucasian to enter the settlement, the Belgian priest Father Joseph Damien de Veuster, went to the village and labored as priest, carpenter, doctor, and gravedigger until Hansen's disease claimed his life in 1889.

"Father is our hero her," one patient said. His death is celebrated each year with a Mass and a picnic.

* * * *

WHEN FATHER Damien first arrived, there were 816 patients, all on their way to death with almost no care, less sympathy, and perhaps no understanding at all.

The toll is made plain in Father Damien's own thin handwriting now in the safe of the rectory of the present priest, Father Gustave.

This entry was made seven years after Father Damien's arrival:

"Fourteenth February 1880—of the 342 Christians remain only 32. Rest in peace."

Masonic Club to Install New Officers

Carleton H. Peters will be installed president of the Long Beach Masonic Club at the noon Thursday meeting of the group in the Lafayette Hotel.

Mayor Edwin Wade, past president of the club, will be installing officer and speaker for the day.

Others to be installed are: J. W. Punt, vice president; Percy Palmer, secretary-treasurer and board members Albert Cruse, Harry Wade, Salvation Army Major Kenneth Anderson, Marion C. Houser, Lee Preuninger, Melvin Berbower, Morris Holmquist and Fred Capouch, immediate past president.

Membership in the club is open to any Master Mason in good standing.

Shocked Police Charge Man

LONDON (UPI)—Peter Hicks "wired" his car so that when a traffic policeman tried to put a parking ticket on it he was shocked.

The police charged Hicks with assault but they failed to prosecute him.

The reason, a lawyers' journal said, might be a legal precedent set in a case in which a husband won his appeal against a conviction for running a wire from the kitchen light to the handle of some French windows, to keep his wife out.

Name Young to Zoo Post

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Wesley A. Young, supervisor of Griffith Park Zoo since 1958, will be director of the new Greater Los Angeles Zoo, scheduled to open in 1965.

Young was veterinarian for Chicago's Lincoln Park Zoo for 14 years.

Nu-Pike to Hold Penny Scramble

An ancient tradition will be revived New Year's Eve when the Nu-Pike holds a penny scramble, Clyde F. Seek, Amusement Company general manager, said.

Over 10,000 pennies will be thrown for grabs from a truck that will tour the eight-block family amusement zone at 9:30 p.m., Seek declared.

Seek said the amusement company had received many requests to revive the old custom.

All the rides and games will be open New Year's Eve as they are every day in the year, Seek said.

Red China Buys Mexican Cotton

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Communist China has placed a $28 million order for 200,000 bales of Mexican cotton for delivery during 1964.

The announcement was made by Chang Kuan-Tau, head of a Chinese economic and commercial exposition, after a visit to President Lopez Mateos.

QUEENHILL, England (UPI)—A 69-year-old city employe who lives in public housing won $25,200 in a Christmas football pool. But his life won't be complete, he said, unless his wife who left him 17 years ago comes back to him.

"The money . . . will be no good to me unless Nellie returns to enjoy it as well," Leonard Parker said. "I still love her and I want her back very much."

Omarr Reads the Stars

By SYDNEY OMARR

FORECAST FOR TODAY

ARIES (Mar. 21—Apr. 19): Be aware of need for change. Make adjustments where necessary. Face issues as they exist, but go slowly—be diplomatic. Exercise particular caution if you are traveling.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): There is pressure indicated. Instead of trying to shake it off—make it an exciting challenge. You should obtain time to yourself. There is need for reflection and for spiritual guidance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): Be willing to fulfill obligations. But don't overextend yourself. Remember value of timing, pacing. Don't wear yourself down. Holiday spirit fine, but don't neglect common sense!

CANCER (June 22-July 21): Cycle high. Stress originality, independence. Associate may confide financial problem. Offer advice, but hold on to purse strings! Don't be too quick to be borrower OR lender.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 21): Key is balance. Avoid going to extremes. Resist tendency to be moody by maintaining realistic outlook, avoiding unnecessary worry. Strive for added knowledge. Base emotions on facts.

VIRGO (Aug. 22-Sept. 23): Spotlight abilities. Time now to assert beliefs. Actions should be sweeping, not petty. If you do something, be "grand" about it. But be clear—specific.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23): Your ability to perceive future trends comes to fore. Be sure before reaching conclusions. Weigh various possibilities. Don't be bogged down with only one method.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23): Check details. Realize patience will be required. Don't go into "isolation." Communicate. Stress reasonable attitude. Attend church of choice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22—Dec. 21): Be analytical. Discover reasons. Find out the WHY of things. Reaffirm faith in loved one. Finances spotlighted—forget "quick profits" for long-range considerations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20): Family requirements are of paramount importance. Being "snappish" accomplishes nothing. Highlight maturity. Financial pressure due to ease. Make creative resolutions. Have faith!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19): Realize time is on your side. Impatience your greatest enemy. Appreciate potential, beauty, love of family members. Romance possibilities strong. Stress warmth, sincerity.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20): Favorable lunar aspect spotlights exciting SELF-DISCOVERY. Strive for truth. Above all, avoid self-deception. Facing facts as they exist is strongly advisable.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are capable of appreciating art, beauty. You can be dramatic, but also practical.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Leo, Virgo, Libra. Special word to Aquarius: Fatigue may cause you to make rash statements. Don't be too proud to apologize!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Full Moon emphasizes decisions in family matters, need for planning. Look ahead. Try to perceive outcome of attitudes, actions. Be perceptive, sensitive, aware.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Travel or communication highlighted by Full Moon. Desire is strong to be heard, appreciated. Personality level high . . . you can do remarkable work with children today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): Think of ways to streamline tasks, includes job and everyday affairs. Important that you stress original methods. Break from old or traditional ways—if they retard you.

CANCER (June 22-July 21): Full Moon spotlights personality, public contacts. Prepare for celebration. Time when you could offend by getting dates mixed up. Double check!

LEO (July 22-Aug. 21): How about those resolutions? Have they been determined? Bring to fore your wonderful qualities of understanding, sympathy. Make the most of your talents.

VIRGO (Aug. 22-Sept. 22): Relax and enjoy yourself. Full Moon points up your charm, ability to win new friends, be "life of party." Avoid details which might depress you. For once, be kind to YOU.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Full Moon highlights honors, home, security, chance to make loved ones happy. Banner day if you give of yourself. Your abilities much appreciated. Get sufficient rest tonight!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You do yourself an injustice if you are impatient. You may be required to perform routine task. Shake off feeling of resentment. Display of good cheer works wonders.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Key is being perceptive. Read between the lines—check sources. Avoid misunderstandings. Be sure to get address, telephone numbers right. Then you can relax tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20): Read Aries message. Realize petty disturbances must not be blown up out of proportion. You now can impress person important to you. But this will require charm, humor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19): Important to highlight considerations includes budget, proper rest. Spread influence. Be good listener. Exhibit your delightful curiosity. Taurus message also applies.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20): Personal magnetism rating high. You are able to bring forth compelling, winning character traits. Key is self-expression. Show appreciation to those who aided you in past year.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you possess remarkable sense of humor, and sense of timing.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Cancer, Leo, Virgo. Special word to Pisces: Romantic interests highlighted. But don't wear heart on sleeve!

Aid Battle May Have Cost LBJ Later GOP Support

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Johnson won a major foreign aid battle with Congress last week, but also may have forfeited Republican support for crucial programs in the coming election year.

This will be spelled out after the second session of the Democratic - controlled 88th Congress begins Jan. 7. The President must have GOP support to win passage of his top priority bills — civil rights and an $11.1 billion pump-priming tax cut.

* * * *

FOCAL POINT of the fight was a GOP-sponsored amendment to the $3 billion aid bill. It would have prevented the U.S. from underwriting credit for commercial sales of surplus wheat to Russia, $40 millions of which the Commerce Department has licensed.

A well-disciplined House Republican bloc directed by GOP leader Charles A. Halleck, Ind., took advantage of Democratic absenteeism to twice force adoption of the amendment. Before that the GOP had boycotted the House Rules Committee to try and keep the proviso from coming to the floor.

White House aides — speaking for the President — exploded wrathfully, charging Midwest isolationists had ganged up with Halleck to try and pre-empt Johnson's constitutional right to dictate foreign policy and thus make him appear as a weak leader to foreign powers.

* * * *

HOUSE Democratic leaders, failing to reckon with defections from their own ranks, were caught off base. They echoed the White House charges and accused the GOP of waging a sit-down strike against the Rules Committee.

Johnson delayed his departure for a Christmas vacation in Texas and personally began cracking the whip over absentee Democrats. By the time the House reconvened at the extraordinary hour of 7 a.m. Tuesday, enough were on hand to beat the amendment, pass the bill, and go back home.

The Senate, caught in the middle and made impotent by absenteeism in both parties, had to postpone passage of the measure until next Monday at which time Congress will adjourn for the year.

* * * *

THE PRESIDENT and Mrs. Johnson threw a big Christmas dinner for relatives on their LBJ ranch near Johnson City, Texas. Then the chief executive plunged once again into his federal economy drive in hopes of keeping his impending budget to Congress within bounds.

He slapped a freeze on government jobs and ordered agency heads to cut below current personnel levels. More than 2,534,000 civilians are on the federal payroll. Johnson said he was convinced that "we are not getting the maximum possible output per employe." He said he wanted the reductions achieved "through tighter management, redeployment, and stripping work to essentials."

Still another economy target was the controversial foreign aid program. The chief executive named a seven-man, high-level committee to report to him within three weeks on how waste, red tape and other deficiencies can be ended.

* * * *

ONE OF HIS goals is to encourage more self - help by recipient countries. Another is to persuade other developed nations to help carry the burden.

The President previously had ordered all federal departments to make sharp economies, with emphasis on needless domestic defenses bases. He hopes that booming business, plus the tax cut Congress is expected to pass this spring, will help take up any unemployment slack.

The Department of Commerce reported meantime that the national economy is expected to show "a fair-size gain" this year despite a slowdown following the Kennedy assassination. It said "the upward momentum has resumed, reflecting basic underlying strength." At the same time the Labor Department reported the cost of living hit an all-time high in November due to increases in costs of food and shelter.

The assassination continued to make headlines. President Johnson disclosed that right after President Kennedy was shot he ordered news of his death withheld temporarily on the chance the slaying was part of a plot to kill all officials in line for the presidency. As a security measure, Johnson felt that he should get back to the presidential plane before the tragic news was released.

* * * *

THE LATE President's will, leaving the bulk of a big estate to his widow, Jacqueline, and their two children, Caroline, 6, and John Jr., 3, was filed for probate in Boston a day after the 30-day mourning period for Kennedy ended. The total value was not disclosed since no bond was required for the three executors—Mrs. Kennedy and the Kennedy brothers, Atty. Gen. Robert F., and Sen. Edward M.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children were in Palm Beach, Fla., when the mourning period ended and later spent much of Christmas with the late President's parents.

On the political front the Republican presidential outlook became still more uncertain as former President Dwight D. Eisenhower urged several well - known men to throw their hats into the ring.

* * * *

THESE included Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, who hinted he may be an active candidate, and former Minnesota Gov. Harold E. Stassen who was Eisenhower's disarmament adviser. Stassen said that if he did become a candidate he would make "a vigorous fight of it."

Eisenhower also recently suggested to former Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Mass., now U. S. ambassador to turbulent South Viet Nam, that he seek the nomination. Soon thereafter he conferred with former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who looms ever larger as the potential nominee.

GOP leaders believe Eisenhower is cool toward Sen. Barry Goldwater, Ariz., although he has pledged himself to support who ever is nominated. This could include New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller who is preparing to relaunch his own campaign, now that the political moratorium stemming from Kennedy's death has ended.

Some Republican leaders are viewing Scranton as a sort of "Republican Kennedy," a millionaire with charm and tested appeal.

* * * *

ON THE Democratic side, U. N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson left the door open for his possible candidacy as Johnson's vice presidential running mate. The choice, however, will be up to Johnson. Stevenson said he would run if the President asked him to and if he felt it was compatible with his health.

In other news spheres, West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard flew to the President's Texas ranch for high level talks, particularly about the European Common Market in which the United States has a huge trade stake. Other topics were general East West negotiations, especially as they affect Berlin and West Germany.

A Navy doctor, Lt. Cmdr. Lewis H. Seaton, revealed that the nuclear - powered aircraft carrier Enterprise was contaminated by fallout from Russian atmospheric nuclear tests in 1961, but that "there was no real danger to health." He did not say where the Enterprise was cruising at the time.

Pope Paul VI, in his first Christmas message to the world, said his pilgrimage to the Holy Land Jan. 4-5 will be "a journey of search and of hope for peace, Christian unity, and the fight against hunger."

In Vienna, Ivan - Assen Hristov Georgiev, 56, former Bulgarian U. N. diplomat and international lawyer, faced possible execution after allegedly confessing he voluntarily spied for the United States. He was accused of spying for seven years and collecting $200,000.

* * * *

AS AN aftermath of the affair, 500 Bulgarians staged a violent demonstration at the U. S. legation in Sofia, smashing windows and overturning automobiles. The State Department protested sharply and demanded damages.

President Johnson directed five federal agencies to cooperate in a program to aid several thousand workers idled when the Studebaker auto plant at South Bend, Ind., shut down.

Two Saved as Boat Hits Flotsam, Sinks

An 18-foot outboard motorboat carrying two men struck an obstacle and sank Saturday as it was "speeding along close to the shore" near Long Point, Catalina Island, the Coast Guard reported.

John Moore, of 13740 Utica St., Whittier, and Robert Cash, of 12170 Aegean St., Norwalk, both 23, were taken to Little Company of Mary Hospital, Torrance, in a Coast Guard helicopter. Moore was treated for bruised ribs and Cash refused medical care.

Cash said he was sitting on the bow "looking for mountain goats" as the boat raced along about five feet from shoreline rocks with Moore at the helm, the Coast Guard reported. Cash said the craft, the Cathy O., hit what he believed to be a plank.

The pair was picked up by a passing boat which radioed for assistance.

Negroes Chosen for Training as U.S. Diplomats

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A State Department official said in testimony made public Saturday that a new training program is being developed in hopes of bringing more Negroes into the career foreign service.

William J. Crockett, deputy undersecretary of State for administration, said that 25 students, "principally Negroes," are being selected from various colleges for the special training program sponsored by the Ford Foundation.

If it works satisfactorily, he said, "hopefully we will start getting an input of minority groups at the entrance level in the foreign service."

Economist Becomes Viet Envoy to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vu Van Thai, an economist who left the government of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem two years ago, is slated to be South Viet Nam's new ambassador to the United States.

The Viet Nam Embassy announced Friday that President Johnson had approved the appointment of Thai. This was a preliminary to his formal selection by the new military government of South Viet Nam.

Liebling, Critic of Press, Dies

NEW YORK, (AP) — A. J. Liebling, a writer for the New Yorker magazine best known for his criticisms of "The Wayward Press," died of pneumonia Saturday in Mount Sinai Hospital. He was 59.

Liebling, whose friends called him "Joe," worked on several New England newspapers before joining the New Yorker. He was the author of more than a dozen books, including a recent one about Earl Long's last years as governor of Louisiana.

* * * *

AS A correspondent for the New Yorker in Europe during World War II he witnessed a raid of a U.S. fighter base in Tunisia, and was on a "beachhead correspondent's committee" which dealt with press problems during the Normandy invasion.

Liebling had a gourmet's taste for food, but was otherwise conspicuously unpretentious. He was known as one of the best prose stylists and wits in American journalism.

Born in New York, he attended Dartmouth College, Columbia University and the Sorbonne in Paris. He first joined the New Yorker staff in 1935. Besides his articles on the press he wrote profiles and book reviews for the magazine.

His wartime experiences, for which France awarded him the Legion of Honor, were recorded in his book, "The Road Back to Paris," published in 1944. In "Normandy Revisited," published in 1958, he wrote about what had happened to France in the intervening years.

* * * *

BEFORE joining the New Yorker he worked for the New York Times for eight months, then spent four years with the Providence, (R.I.) Journal and Evening Bulletin.

He is survived by his widow, Jean Stafford Liebling, an author, and a sister, Mrs. Harold Stonehill of New York.

Funeral will be Monday.

Funeral Monday for Rev. Briggs' Widow, Mertie

Graveside service will be Monday at 11 a.m., in Sunnyside Memorial Park for Mrs. Mertie Briggs, 89, widow of a former Long Beach Baptist pastor, the Rev. John G. Briggs.

Mrs. Briggs died Thursday in Claremont. Surviving in Long Beach is daughter, Mrs. Keith Fawcett.

Friends may call Sunday, noon to 6 p.m., Todd Memorial Chapel, Pomona.

JUNGLE JAMEY BOOSTS SUNDODGERS

Gate-Crasher Plans to See Huskies Rout Bowl Rivals

- Staff Photo

POSING PROUDLY atop his battered buggy parked on a Long Beach street Saturday, is Jungle Jamey, world-renowned gate crasher. In his left hand is "manuscript" of book he hopes to publish next year detailing plans for feeding the world.

Jungle Jamey, world traveler, sports fan extraordinary, ambassador of goodwill and world-renowned gate-crasher, announced in Long Beach Saturday that he will attend the Rose Bowl game in Pasadena on New Year's Day.

But seeing as how he doesn't have a ticket, he refused to disclose how he plans to do it.

He would say only that he has no intention of letting down his 50,000 fans throughout the world.

* * * *

TO JAMEY, no sporting event is too big to crash. Two years ago, for example, the red-bearded itinerant sports fan took 100 kids over the fence with him to watch the Grey Cup (professional championship) game of the Canadian Football League.

And in 1955, he said, he entered Yankee Stadium in New York—sans tickets, of course—to see the Marciano-Moore fight, another championship event.

But it would be grossly unfair to Jamey to regard him strictly as a gate-crasher, even though he is, as he says, the greatest crasher of sporting events since One-Eyed Connolly, who died in 1953.

James Joseph Peter Bacceltieri—that's his real name—is also a man of some repute in the world of sports.

He numbers among his friends some of the greatest names in sports and, in fact, is being groomed in some quarters as the Clown Prince of Pro Football—he said.

He has traveled widely and intends to be in Tokyo sometime next year—"unless I decide to attend the world champion soccer match at Wimbledon, near London."

* * * *

RECENTLY, Jamey decided to embark on still another career—a literary one. He plans to publish a book entitled "How to Feed the World in 1964 to the End of Man."

For the nonce, however, his sights are set on Pasadena.

Jamey — yes, he's a prognostigator, too — predicts Washington over Illinois by 21 points! 35 to 14, to be exact.

Louisiana Expects to Own 'Mudlumps'

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A Louisiana congressman said Saturday the state's claim to some 125,000 oil-and-gas rich acres of so-called "mudlumps"—land formed at the mouth of the Mississippi River—will be validated by the federal government.

Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., in an announcement from his New Orleans office, said Interior Secretary Udall will issue a ruling Monday favorable to Louisiana.

* * * *

THE ACTION is "a victory for Louisiana more vital to its interest than any matter pending with the federal government except the tidelands issue," Boggs said.

The tidelands issue involves a state-federal dispute over ownership of offshore lands in the Gulf of Mexico.

Interior Department officials available in Washington said they could not confirm Boggs' announcement.

A spokesman noted that the case had been pending in the Justice Department and the question simply was who owned the lands—the state or the federal government—and thus who would receive the revenue from granting leases for gas and oil rights.

* * * *

THE "MUDLUMPS" — or made lands — controversy, Boggs said, involve ownership of all naturally formed lands that have been built up on Louisiana's coast since it came into the union in 1812.

"Thousands upon thousands of acres — more than 125,000—were so formed in the lower delta region of the Mississippi River," Boggs said, "where some of our most important oil and gas fields are located.

"It is my understanding that similar, but smaller, buildups occurred in other regions along the coast of the state, particularly at the mouths of the Calcasieu and Sabine rivers."

Prince Hunts Birds

KINGS LYNN, England (UPI) — Prince Philip led a party of British royalty Saturday on a bird hunt at Sandringham, Queen Elizabeth's country estate. The group included his son, Prince Charles, the Duke of Kent, and Antony-Armstrong Jones, Princess Margaret's husband.

TRAPPED IN SINKING

Divers Can't Find Boatman's Body

Five scuba divers from the Los Angeles County lifeguard service searched vainly Saturday for the body of Richard Marshall, 16, carried to his death when the commercial fishing boat Grace L. sank Friday night three miles off the San Pedro breakwater.

The diving team, working from a Coast Guard cutter and a fathometer-equipped fishing vessel, probed the 90-foot depths for more than five hours without locating the sunken wreck.

Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Marshall, of 2961 Adriatic Ave., apparently was trapped in a forward compartment when the Grace L. plunged suddenly beneath the surface.

* * * *

WITNESS to the sinking from a following fishing boat, the San Silverio, was the victim's half-brother, Donald Shuler, 37, of 776 Freeman Ave., who immediately radioed the Coast Guard for help.

William I. Adams, of 1434 S. Towner St., Santa Ana, owner of the Grace L., tried to save the missing boy, but was forced back by flooding waters.

Shuler also leaped aboard in a rescue attempt, but he and Adams were both driven off the Grace L. by the rush of water and swam back to the San Silverio, manned by another crewmember, Rudy Sanchez.

Lifeguard Lt. Don St. Hill said no further diving is planned unless there are further clues to the position of the Grace L., such as wreckage floating to the surface.

A few pieces of the boat, including a bait tank, were found on the surface Saturday. Cause of the sinking was unknown, but it was speculated the boat dove under after her hull was ripped by a submerged object.

600 Play in Bridge Contests

Six hundred persons played Saturday in the second day of the Long Beach Holiday Championships of the American Contract Bridge League at the Lafayette Hotel.

The breakdown of the participation, by events: mixed pairs championship, 156 pairs; one session, side game, Venus Pairs, 118 pairs; and the Evergreen Junior Pairs, 26 pairs.

The winners:

Mixed Pairs—Robert Chatkin, Los Angeles, Jean Williams, Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hoffman, Los Angeles; Joe Murphy, Lynwood, Dorothy Brewer, Pasadena.

Venus Pairs—Robert Rock, Los Angeles, Allan Mandelin, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Juan Adrover, Pomona; Olavi Vare, Long Beach; Jim Thompson, Los Angeles.

1963 U.S. Birth Rate Declines

NEW YORK (UPI) — The birth rate in the United States is declining, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company said.

The company said the number of births in the nation decreased in 1963 and was expected to be somewhat below the 1957 record of 4,300,000. It said this year will see only 4,100,000 births by Dec. 31.

S.D. Official Dies

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — City Attorney Alan Firestone, 48, died of an apparent heart attack Saturday while playing golf at the Mission Bay Golf Course.

glad Celeste decided to try out for the competition.

"She's a real beauty," says Gregory P. Fitzpatrick, advertising director for the firm. "And since we don't sell our beer out there, you know I'm not just saying that for promotional purposes."

Literally hundreds of thousands of East Coast beer drinkers agree.

* * * *

"I CAME here about six months ago to enter the contest," Celeste told the Independent, Press-Telegram Saturday.

"I was selected one of the six finalists and then we went on a seven-week campaign tour. We toured taverns, delicatessens, stores and markets — wherever they sell beer — and asked people to vote for us.

"You can vote as many times as you want to. All you had to do was fill out a ballot and turn it in.

Did she ever vote for herself? "I'm too young to drink beer!"

Fitzpatrick said "millions" of ballots are received each year in the contest. The company doesn't even bother to count them . . . it just weighs them.

And pert, brown-haired Celeste weighed out best.

* * * *

THEY CALLED her in Los Angeles Nov. 19 and told her to pack her suitcase and catch a plane east.

She left the Actors Theater Workshop, where she had been studying under Rudy Solari, and went to New York to claim her beer-cap crown.

"They announced the selection a week ago," Celeste said, "and I've been on the go ever since. And I guess it'll be this way for the next year, but I'm awfully glad. It will help my career a lot."

Space Engineer Held for Hiring Wife-Killer

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (UPI)— Brevard County sheriff's officers Saturday arrested a Cape Kennedy engineer accused of plotting to have his wife killed for $3,000.

Sheriff Lee Wilson said Vaughn Dobalian, 40, Satellite Beach, was arrested in a Cocoa Beach motel room as he handed an advance payment of $200 to an undercover agent who was to have killed the woman, mother of four.

The sheriff said his office, acting on a tip received a month ago that Dobalian wanted to have his wife killed, stationed the agent in Jacksonville. The agent called Dobalian and allegedly made the deal to kill Mrs. Dobalian by any method.

Wilson said Dobalian, an engineer working at the nearby space center, "even gave the undercover agent a diagram of the house" to aid the planned crime. Wilson said Dobalian admitted the plot.

The sheriff said a motive had not been determined but that divorce proceedings were under way.

"He may have wanted to avoid alimony," the sheriff said.

Dobalian was charged with conspiracy to commit a capital offense, a felony which could carry a seven-year prison term. He is expected to be arraigned Friday.

DID you ever wonder how kids must size up the grownups when they see those lurid girlie ads marked "For Adults Only?" Obviously, it must mean the old folks have gone off their rockers on sex.

One reader sent me a clipping of an adv. with the growl: "Couldn't they make it read; 'For SOME Adults Only?' "

POSSIBLY the most exicting Christmas dinner experience in town went to the Martin Konnight family, 2260 Easy Ave.

Right in the middle of the holiday dining a riderless motorcycle came banging through the Konnight door. It broke the door open, cracked the doorframe, and did other damage. Fortunately the door stopped the wild machine or it might have busted up the dining table.

The cycle took off across the Konnight's front yard after its rider fell into the street. Police said he lost control when the accelerator stuck.

RESIDENTS indignant about Christmas display bulb snatching (I'm still hearing from them) will be interested to learn there's something worse.

E. J. Flint had an American Flag hung on his porch, at half-staff in memory of the late President Kennedy. The other day somebody stole it. The Flag was too high for a child to reach, but not too high for a snake.

FOR a long time various acquaintances of mine have been jaywalking across Pine Ave. between Sixth and Seventh Sts. A few have been cited into court and many, no doubt, have a slightly guilty feeling when they do it.

It may not and probably should not be any comfort to these scofflaws (or should I say us scofflaws) but I must report that Friday noon two men of the cloth (gentlemen in black suits with collars turned around) were observed hiking the familiar route.

In fact, I met them right in the middle of the street.

PEOPLE who hang out outstanding lighting displays have ample evidence of the appreciation of the public.

John Paap, for instance, saw 600 automobiles per hour for four hours pass the fine display on the Paap residence at 231 Roycroft. And at one time after a picture of the display appeared in the paper, he counted 100 people on his lawn, going close for a look at the display.

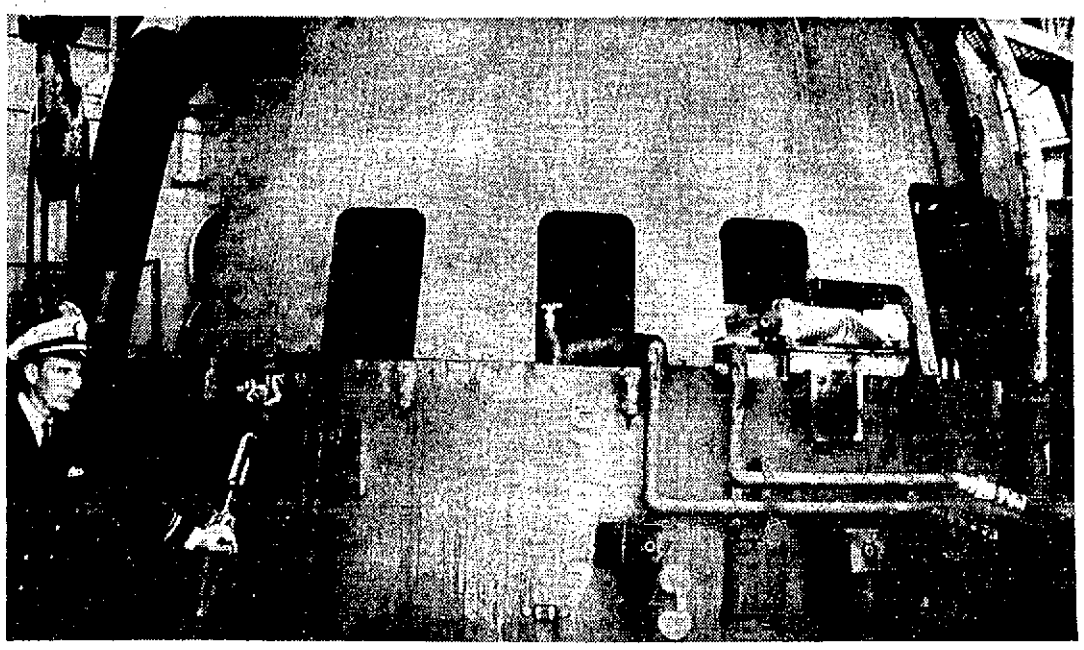

And on the subject of Yuletide lights, a Belmont Shore resident sends a note suggesting mention here of the Christmas Display on Alamitos Bay — the 12 lighted trees placed on the bay from the Second St. bridge to the Appian Way bridge.

These trees and their reflections in the water, together with fine lighting on homes along the shores, presented a great picture.

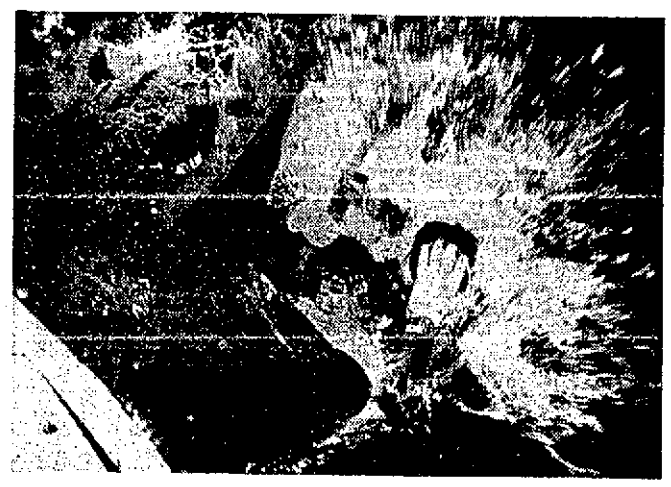

AND an early American Christmas display will be open for several weeks for visitors to Rancho Los Cerritos, the city's historical museum on Virginia Rd. north of San Antonio (just beyond the Virginia Country Club gate.) The Rancho is open to the public without charge, Wednesday through Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m.

Outstanding feature is a majestic pine touching the beamed ceiling of the old ranch. Dozens of yards of strung popcorn garland the wide symmetrical branches, holding dowel tapers and cheesecloth bags of candy, antique candles and other oldtime ornaments. Under the tree are quaint chinahead dolls and priceless iron and wooden toys as well as children's books of the Victorian era.

Some of the best — and worst — underwater diving in the world is being done at a small cove at San Clemente Island, 60 miles off Long Beach.

It's the best because some of the best divers in the world are doing it. It's the worst because it's difficult to conceive more trying conditions than those under which it is done.

The men are the Navy divers assigned to the Naval Ordnance Test Station (NOTS) with headquarters in Pasadena. All are graduates of the Navy's diving schools and many are master divers.

Their work is installing, maintaining and repairing the unique equipment used to test such sophisticated weapons systems as ASROC (anti-submarine rocket) and SUBROC (submarine rocket).

THESE SYSTEMS — ASROC designed to be fired from surface vessels to hunt down and destroy submerged submarines, and SUBROC designed to be fired from a submerged submarine to destroy another one — are among the most complicated in the world.

Testing these weapons under actual underwater conditions is no simple task. The equipment they use is, necessarily, as complicated in most cases as the weapons themselves.

And most important to the testing are the men who have to work on this equipment at depths up to 200 feet.

A few miles south of the NOTS headquarters at Wilson Cove on the land side of the island is what is known as the 'Pop Up Range."

It is here that the testing takes place.

It is here that the 29 divers, ranging in age from a "young" 29 to an "ancient" 43, which veteran Mike Lamar claims, do their difficult and dangerous work.

THEY ARE UNDER the leadership of a blond, 35-year-old personable officer in charge, Lt. j.g. James C. McDole, of 35221 Kempton Drive, Los Alamitos, a master diver himself.

Lt. McDole talks about diving the way the early pilots spoke of flying. It's more than a job; it's an art.

"In this business, you have to be more than just a good diver," he says.

And he's right. In addition to diving to extreme depths, Lt. McDole's men must be able to pour cement, install gigantic eye-bolts and other heavy gear, fit massive pieces of equipment into place with very small tolerances, and operate welding and burning torches, jackhammers and other construction equipment.

"Anything construction workers can do on the surface my men have to be able to do in deep water," he says. "They have to be good."

AN EXCELLENT EXAMPLE of the type of work they do was the construction last fall of a 90-ton, 60-foot-high piece of equipment called a translator, used to test the underwater firing of the Polaris missile.

After a 36-foot-diameter caison had been lowered to the bottom and filled with concrete, Lt. McDole's divers had to go down and set the translator into place, then bolt it tight and weld it so that it was securely anchored to the bottom.

All this in 176 feet of water, measured at low mean tide.

The reason the translator had to be so firmly anchored was that the 14-ton Polaris was fired from it.

Why they called it a translator is a deep Navy secret, but apparently it translates the movement of a submerged submarine.

"This was one of our toughest assignments," says Lt. McDole. "But we may get an even tougher one tomorrow."

New Civic Spirit at Work in L.B. Promises Change

(Editor's Note: Each year since 1960 Harry J. Krusz, executive vice president of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, has taken "an objective" look at the city. In a detailed 43-page report, Mr. Krusz has taken another such look at Long Beach. Following are a few excerpts from his newest report.

By HARRY J. KRUSZ

There is a wholly new spirit abroad — a higher plateau of action and interest — among business, professional, government, organization, labor groups and citizens generally, indicating continued growth and progress.

We recognize the continuing struggle between those who want to move forward and those favoring the status quo.

Ben Clawson, a former chairman of the Chamber's Area Development Committee, put it this way:

"The strongest single impediment to progress is the dead weight of tradition, the habit of doing things the way they have always been done."

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT: Every economic gauge gives clear evidence of the diversity and stability of the economy of Long Beach. It has soft spots, but, by and large, is well balanced between manufacturing, distribution and transportation. We must remain alert to pressures on our City Council and Planning Commission to alter land use contrary to our best economic interests and alert against too much accent on defense projects.

NEW INDUSTRY: Overcoming the subsidence problem and establishment of Douglas Aircraft manufacturing headquarters here with the DC9 development have given our industrial picture great impetus.

A stronger Chamber Area Development (Industrial) Department with well coordinated aid from city departments and the Board of Realtors is conducting an aggressive plan for new industry with some excellent results but feels it has only scratched the surface.

RETAIL TRADE: Good the past five years, especially promising the past year. It can improve. We must recognize the interdependent values of both the downtown shopping center and outlying shopping areas. One supports the other. Investment—in substantial amounts at times—in store and store front improvements, for bond issues, promotions, street and highway improvement, downtown improvement, shoreline improvement, etc., pays dividends.

DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENT: Not too much progress here since the last survey. Without a great show of courage and vision we can deteriorate and stagnate in spite of all the other favorable factors.

Among downtown liabilities: a widely scattered shopping area, some very narrow streets, special problems in the Pike area, many vacant stores, broken sidewalks, a host of unsavory bars and nightspots of doubtful character.

On the positive side: excellent major stores, fine variety stores, beautiful specialty shops, a promising redevelopment plan for the West Beach area and the rebuilding of the Wise Building.

What is the need?

First, a really workable master plan for street widening, malls, abundant offstreet parking, transportation between areas, demolition, perhaps, of several blocks in useless, overbuilt areas. The plan must be tied in to the urban redevelopment program, relocation of the Pike area, completion of shoreline improvement, a new City Hall and Public Library and completion of the Civic Center.

Much of old downtown is worn out, outmoded, obsolete. Investment here will pay for itself over and over again in increased property values, trade, tax revenue to the city.

TRANSPORTATION: The rapid transit problem is very big, involving millions in finances, requiring the cooperation of existing carriers, all traffic movement agencies as well as government and business interests. All the good effects of staging a World's Fair—only three years away—will be lost if we fail in adequate plans for 40 million visitors in the two-year period of the fair.

We are exceedingly pleased with resolution of the local bus situation but disturbed by the shortsighted approach to the problem of automobile movement. The recent report and recommendations of the city traffic engineer merit serious consideration.

Passenger traffic service here is far from satisfactory. Advent of the San Diego Freeway cuts travel time to Los Angeles Airport. Western and Pacific Airlines offer some service but nothing direct to the East or Southeast and nothing to the Middle West.

HOUSING: An intelligent housing survey is most needed, a joint responsibility, in our opinion, of the Board of Realtors, the Chamber and the city Planning Department. It should include urban development and redevelopment.

BANKING AND FINANCE: We are in good shape in providing for financial needs for business, residential structures and improvements. Long Beach has great need for leadership from banking people to establish themselves in the forefront of all community endeavor.

PORT OF LONG BEACH: Port progress, with increasing operations of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, is probably the greatest spark of economic progress. Spending about a million dollars each month on port improvement, together with the economic and efficient handling of the oil development program by the city and Harbor Department, the building of Pier J, erection of the new Harbor Administration Building, its intelligent programs with state officials, oil companies and others is an operation deserving admiration and support. Commissioners, serving without pay, do a magnificent job.

CIVIC DEVELOPMENT: Business is generous, progressive and intelligent in spending substantial sums for new machinery, buildings and advertising or for employe benefits, but almost invariably takes a reverse attitude in support of various institutions that successfully handle the community relations or civic aspects of its business. There is a growing awareness however that civic, governmental, educational and cultural matters have a terrific impact on the economic picture.

CITY PLANNING: Final adoption of the master plan is a signal development in strengthening our long-range

Let's Simplify State Tax Report

AS HE DRUDGES THROUGH separate federal and state income tax calculations next year, the California taxpayer may well envy his Alaskan cousin.

In Alaska, the taxpayer, having figured his federal income tax, merely makes an extra copy of the return, files the copy as his state return, pays the state a percentage (5.75 percent) of the federal tax figure, and goes fishing.

California legislators have been talking about this plan for years, but nothing comes of the talk; the idea of figuring income tax once rather than twice is apparently too simple a concept for California government.

THE ADVANTAGES TO STATE taxpayers apparently are too great. Duplicate tax returns, for example, would save Californians the trouble of maintaining separate books and worrying over second returns. Such a system would also eliminate a large part of the $10 million annual expense of the Franchise Tax Board.

This possibility sends a cold chill along the spines of state bureaucrats who protest that the carbon-copy income tax plan would hand the operation of California's tax system to the federal government.

A moment's reflection will show anyone the shallowness of the protest. If the state sets its own tax amount, eliminates substantial costs of tax administration, and eases the tax calculation burden for the citizen, who cares about the dubious prestige of being able to say we have a separate income tax form? The proposal is not designed to reduce the amount of revenue collected by the state in income taxes, but it would reduce the cost and the difficulties of collection and payment. What's the matter with that?

A CALIFORNIA LEGISLATIVE subcommittee undertook a study of the state's personal tax system in 1957 with the aim of patterning that system after the federal plan. The chairman of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee at that time expressed the hope that one day the California taxpayer would be able to fill out his federal form and send a duplicate to the state. History came full circle the other day when the same idea was once again presented at an interim meeting of the same committee.

Without a show of interest by taxpayers, there is little hope that this simple, practical, and worthy plan will even get a trial.

Democrats' Whip System Crumbles

I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The final 10 days of activity in the House of Representatives witnessed the almost complete breakdown of the Democratic Party's Whip system. The new administration's legislative program will be in deep trouble unless order can be restored, because the Republican forces in the House operate under Prussian discipline.

Two cases serve to illustrate the chaos in Democratic ranks. On the Monday morning the House was to take up the foreign aid authorization bill, Democratic leaders still had not communicated to the Whips what the party position would be on amendments or efforts to restore cuts made in committee. One assistant Whip called Majority Leader Carl Albert's office for instructions, and he failed to get any. Later, during the furious maneuvering on the aid bill conference report, the Whip system in one member's words "just went dead." There were no phone calls urging attendance on the floor, no advance soundings of members positions taken, no "nose counts" to give floor leaders an idea of what to expect.

The Whip system serves as the eyes and ears and voice of the leadership. When it broke down last week, Democrats sustained a grievous defeat which required President Johnson to put his total prestige on the line to salvage the bill.

Republicans were quick to take advantage of the Democratic lapse. "If they (the Democrats) want a civil rights bill, if they want a foreign aid bill, if they want a bill to paint the Capitol bright green, they've got the votes," said GOP National Chairman Bill Miller, "and it's their responsibility if their members jump ship or leave town, not ours."

HAVING GAINED FIRM control of the reins of government, President Lyndon Johnson has now put on his hat as leader of the Democratic Party to take a look at the Democratic National Committee. Cliff Carter, a personable ex-football star and long-time Johnson aide, has been positioned by the President as the White House link with the committee. That automatically makes Carter one of the major strategists for next year's political campaign as well as traffic control center for patronage.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK (from Gerhard Van Arkel of the National Committee for an Effective Congress): "I suppose that with a name like ours and a Congress like the present one, the thing our organization should do is disband."

The National Committee for an Effective Congress is a non-partisan organization devoted to helping elect congressmen who evidence strong commitment to internationalism and civil rights.

IF GOVERNMENT WERE like baseball, the Most Improved Player award probably would go to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. In 1963, NASA went to the missile launch pad 15 times and succeeded in 14 attempts, a batting average of .933. Five years ago, the fledgling agency racked up a far more discouraging performance—one success in five tries.

U.S. System of Government Shows Its Lack of Maturity

WASHINGTON—The American system of government is relatively young — not even two centuries old— but it has rarely shown so conspicuously its lack of maturity as it does today. To realize how little progress has been made in the field of responsible government, all one needs to do is to read about the prospective candidates for the presidency being brought forward to serve, if elected, in the highest office in the land.

LAWRENCE

Take, for example, the different men being talked about for the Republican presidential nomination. For months, attention centered on two or three possible candidates. Then, as if these men had suddenly become politically ineligible, the search turned to persons relatively unknown—as if it would be easier to elect someone who hasn't become identified with any particular issues or controversial questions in the national field. The fact that such newly discovered persons of prominence have not had any experience in a position of leadership or major responsibility in either the executive or the legislative branch of the federal government is regarded as of no importance by their political sponsors. All that seems to count is that the prospective candidate performs well on television or appears to be a man of congenial and pleasing personality. The quest is apparently for someone with no political liabilities. This is not unusual.

Our Presidents have not always been the ablest of public servants. Often they have had little background but lots of courage. Once a man is endowed with presidential power, he feels a sense of responsibility to be honest and fair. Mistakes usually come, however, as a result of the special prejudices of anonymous advisers who have no direct responsibility to the people.

How many of the men elected to the highest office in the land have turned out really to be great men? Adulation and eulogy afterwards are often emotional, but in the perspective of time the praise is, in fact, for the sincerity of effort and devotion to duty rather than for actual achievement. There is, of course, little time in a four-year term in which to do a good job, when the first few years have to be spent in learning the ropes. The record in a second term is often better than in a first term because a President has acquired experience on the job.

But, it will be asked, what difference does it make since the people elect and re-elect — it's their responsibility. Throughout history, however, some citizens have sought to improve the ways of free and representative government. There is no convincing reason, for instance why candidates for the presidency should not be selected only from those men who have had substantial experience in leadership posts in either the executive or legislative branch of the government. The Constitution can be amended at any time to require this.

It isn't sufficient that a prospective nominee should have merely been a governor or even a member of Congress or the cabinet. He should have risen to the top rank through his work in either the executive or legislative branch of the national government. He will not necessarily make a good president because he has been elected to some office in a state or city or because he is impressive on the stump. Making speeches is one thing but executing policies is quite another.

What America needs is a system that will insure the selection of a competent President of experience and not just a candidate with personal appeal but without prior training in the national government. These are days when wrong decisions can mean war or national bankruptcy or other catastrophe to the American people.

As the population increases, the problem of government becomes more complex. Can one man be expected to rule effectively in the presidency? Wouldn't it be better to pick from the most capable men inside government the presidential nominees of their respective parties and to put alongside of them—to be chosen in the same election—a cabinet of 10 men also well qualified in national governmental problems? Wouldn't it be better to organize in this way an elected presidential council?

Some change is long overdue, and the stories about the process of selecting a Republican presidential candidate emphasize the weakness in the present system. Often the people vote for an incumbent administration because the alternative is no better. This is a reflection on the quality of men brought to the fore under the system that prevails today.

State and National Polls Show GOP Needs New Team

I, P-T Political Editor

PRESIDENT Lyndon B. Johnson beats all Republican opposition according to a statewide poll this month by the Independent, Press-Telegram. A significant finding of the poll is that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller runs slightly stronger against LBJ than does Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Goldwater's decline has been noted in national polls within the last three days. Polling among his own party members showed his lead in two categories — the "strongest candidate" and the "most likely to be nominated"—slashed in half.

HOUSER

California Republicans, before President Kennedy's death, gave Goldwater more than 50 per cent of their vote in a test poll as against about one-third for Rockefeller. Since the assassination, Goldwater's tally has dropped by more than 10 percentage points to less than half the vote. The early poll gave Goldwater some 30 percentage points over Rockefeller while the post-assassination tally cut the margin to about 8 points.

Richard Nixon, as a native son, runs expectedly strong in California but Rockefeller is gaining. LBJ tops Nixon in the balloting among all voters with Nixon polling about the same percentage as he did against Governor Brown in losing his governorship bid by some 300,000 votes.

THE DRAMATIC recession of Goldwater's prospects is increasingly significant in that his residual strength persists in the deep South. (All 41 Alabama GOP poll respondents stayed with him, as did 12 in Mississippi.) But Goldwater's stronghold of the South, Midwest and West showed considerable erosion outside this hard core and in the region where Johnson can expect to run strong.

Political experts hold it highly unlikely that a seasoned concertmaster like LBJ will play any notes false enough to fault a majority allegiance from his beloved South and West. This sure hand is just as likely to extend to his selection of a 1964 running mate—a fairly liberal type, probably close to the Kennedy establishment, with accents on youth and possibly the East for regional balance.

This combination would be keenly calculated against the obvious—Goldwater and Nixon—foreclosing obvious routes of opportunity for either or both of them.

THUS, the GOP gambit would seem to clarify. One Southern poll respondent put it in sum and focus: He was willing to test the strength of ultraconservatism with Barry Goldwater in a clear-cut choice experiment versus JFK, implying that it was unlikely Kennedy could be defeated anyway and it would be a noble exercise. But now he feels there is a real chance for the Republican party and "We can't afford to experiment."

So who else but its moving men should the GOP turn to? Strangely the GOP gives its current confidence vote to a batch of reluctant or undeclared or hesitant noncandidates. Certainly Rockefeller, as the only officially declared and running candidate of either party, stands to pick up credits soon from the all-out campaign he'll launch within days. Incidentally, Rocky's efforts, we're informed, will include probable twice-monthly visits to California aiming to our June 2 primary.

Also moving is Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton. Henry Cabot Lodge, South Viet Nam ambassador and Nixon's 1960 running mate, is a late and strong contender by virtue of a now third rank in last week's poll and apparent recipient of former President Eisenhower's urgings to get in among his other friends to give Republicans a broad choice.

MICHIGAN Gov. George Romney has faded, but perhaps not beyond recall in the context of a national election as opposed to the parochial setbacks in his Michigan administration. There also is the handsome and skillful Sen. Thruston Morton of Kentucky with warm and powerful credentials he earned as a hard-working national chairman.

It seems Republicans do have a clear-cut choice, intra-party, if their hankering is for winning the office rather than mounting a do or die philosophical crusade. And the choice would clearly seem to lie outside its receding or defeated champions.

Rumford Act Curbs Freedom

EDITOR:

I chuckle when I read a lot of ridiculous propaganda in support of the Rumford Act suggesting that is is unconstitutional to oppose it.

In the first place, this civil rights act (to end civil rights) tells a property owner what not to say in advertising property for sale or lease. That is purely and definitely against our Bill of Rights. Did anyone ever hear of free speech? Only dogs allow themselves to be muzzled without a fight to the end.

In the second place, to allow your property to be controlled in any way while the impression (false) is created that you still own it, is submitting to fascism, which is just another form of socialism. Hitler and Mussolini, those great do-good welfare state liberals were national socialists. Are we becoming a mixture of two forms of socialism which are just branches of totalitarianism?

Isolation of Leftists Urged

EDITOR:

Our government has asked its citizens to fight against communism. Yet they let Paul Robeson and other Communist sympathizers in our country. Robeson admitted that he likes Communism.

When a person has an infectious disease, they isolate that person to keep the disease from spreading. To me communism is an infectious disease. I think all pro-Communists should be isolated to keep communism from spreading in our country.

Local ACLU Backs Rumford Act

EDITOR:

The executive committee of the Long Beach Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union at its meeting on Dec. 15, 1963, unanimously resolved to support the Rumford Fair Housing Act and to urge all citizens to oppose the initiative petition now being circulated by some realtors. The Rumford Fair Housing Act was passed by the lawmaking bodies of California and should be given the test of practice before conclusions are drawn. The Executive Committee of the Long Beach ACLU wished to add its voices which have supported the Rumford Fair Housing Act throughout California.

Two Wrongs Don't Make a Right

EDITOR:

R. Greengard makes an excellent case for the CREA stand on the Rumford and Unruh Acts. He intended otherwise.

Realtors could add many more "You Can'ts" to the list of Greengard. That is the cause of their concern. Greengard reasons that since many rights have been taken from owners of real property, the proper thing is to take the rest of them.

Realtors are not interested in the color of Greengard's skin. Should he be inspired to take his capital, buy some high priced land, obtain financing, construct a multiple-dwelling thereby giving employment to many, and this improvement to his community, Realtors believe he should be permitted to manage that property to the best dictates of the conscience which moved him to build it in the first place.

The freedom of non-owners of real property to swing their fist should indeed stop where it meets the nose of the fellow who is building up his community.

Wheat State Congressman Tries to Block Sale to Reds

WASHINGTON — Congressman Bill Avery, a down-to-earth Kansas Republican, hid out in the Capitol the other day when the Johnson administration was trying to get a quorum inside the House Rules Committee. Avery is a member of the Rules Committee but did not go to the meeting. He was in the Capitol building just a few hundred feet from the committee chamber, but made himself very scarce.

PEARSON

This was part of the Republican strategy to pin the Communist label on Lyndon Johnson for selling wheat to Russia. Charlie Halleck of Indiana and other right-wing Republican leaders figured they could both embarrass Johnson and get headlines by blocking the foreign aid bill, unless it contained a proviso which would have banned the wheat deal.

"I am not particularly interested in staying here to help finance the Russians and the Communists," proclaimed Halleck, ignoring the fact that the Russians proposed the same wheat terms to us as to Canada—namely, cash within 18 months.

Ironical fact about Bill Avery, however, is that he represents the great wheat-growing state of Kansas, and the Great Plains Wheat Assn., of which Kansas farmers are important members, has done a magnificent job in winning friends abroad with wheat. In some cases, Kansas wheat has been sold under Public Law 480 which means payment in local currencies. In some cases wheat has been given away—to both Communist and non-Communist countries.

The Soviet Union, on the other hand, proposes to pay for its wheat with one cash payment down, plus other payments spread over 18 months. U. S. banks which handle the transaction can get their paper underwritten by the Export-Import Bank, which is the normal procedure in foreign export sales of this magnitude.

In contrast, here is how free wheat is being used in other countries, as described by El Mercurio, the No. 1 newspaper of Chile. On Dec. 9 it published an editorial praising the Great Plains Wheat Assn. and Harlan Parkinson, its representative, for initiating a school lunchroom in the slum, "German Riesco," in Santiago. The lunchroom has been named Abraham Lincoln.

"The construction of the large school lunch building was paid for by the donation of Great Plains Wheat," commented the newspaper, "an association of approximately 300,000 North American wheat farmers who use their earnings in collaboration with Food for Peace and the Alliance for Progress.

"Harlan Parkinson, Latin American director of the wheat farmers, asked only for the voluntary cooperation of the parents of the children. In this way work squads were formed, and working in their spare hours and even at night they finished the main part of the building in less than three months. Groups of the mothers of these same children daily prepare the meals under the guidance of nutrition experts.

"In our opinion, the work carried out by Great Plains Wheat is a palpable demonstration of what it would mean to our country if the programs of the Alliance for Progress and Food for Peace were speeded up."

Chile, of course, is not a Communist nation though it has a very powerful Communist party and could conceivably go Communist after the next election. But whatever the form of government, food can be one of the great ambassadors in winning friends, as the American people demonstrated when they fed their enemies after World War I and World War II.

PRICES, HAPPILY, A LITTLE BELOW LAST YEAR'S

L.B.-Area Cafes Book Gay New Year's Fetes

BY TEDD THOMEY

Good fellowship, gay comedy, dancing, the poppety-pop of champagne corks and the sentimental strains of "Auld Lang Syne" will mingle as Long Beach's nightclubs and restaurants greet 1964 with special parties New Year's Eve.

Celebrators should be pleased to note that the price ceiling here will be slightly lower than last year, with the top tab hitting $15 per person. Top prices in nearby cities will be a bit higher in some places.

Most niteries report that reservations have been coming in briskly, with throngs anticipated.

New Year's parties will be held for the first time in two of Long Beach's newest showplace spots — Jim Stockman's Edgewater Inn and the Sans Souci and Cafe Lafayette party rooms at the Lafayette Hotel. Facilities at both hotels were constructed this year.

THE LAFAYETTE'S DINNER party, $15 per person, will include a continental-champagne dinner in the Cafe Lafayette, plus a reservation for midnight in the Sans Souci room, where there will be dancing and Las Vegas-style entertainment. The headliners will be DuPont and Yumi, who offer sophisticated humor, and the Greenwood Brothers, producers of Hootenany 1964 routines. There will be a $5 charge for persons attending only the Sans Souci party.

The glamorous, large Parisian Room at the Edgewater will feature a full-course gourmet dinner, dancing and entertainment for $10 per person. The Parisian opens into the adjacent Sabre Room where smooth trombonist Kent Larsen and his band will entertain. Comic Joe Cetani will supply happy patter and songs.

BUSH

Dancing to two bands will be featured at Mr. C's, 5305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., one of the largest and most spectacularly beautiful tropical-Oriental restaurants in Southern California. Eddie Bush and his tropical dancers will stage floor shows in the Ming Room, while La Voy Halle and Rubin Quintero entertain in the Lanai Room. A full-course Mandarin or steak dinner, including a bottle of champagne, will be $20 per couple.

ACE BANJOIST WES TAYLOR and the Burlap Sisters will entertain at the party in the Gay 90s restaurant, 2500 Palm Dr., Signal Hill. The $15-per-couple tab will include a steak dinner, champagne, hats, horns, dancing and community singing.

The elegant Stuft Shirt Restaurant, 2241 W. Coast Hwy., Newport Beach, will feature dancing to Jimmy Lane's orchestra. Complete dinners will be $5.50 to $7.50.

Cocoanut Grove band leader Dick Stabile and his orchestra will play at the party in the large Jamboree Hall at the Newporter Inn, 1107 Jamboree Road, Newport Beach. The tab for dinner and dancing will be $17.50 each.

AMSTERDAM

One of show business' outstanding personalities, comic Morey Amsterdam, will top the show in the Anaheim Bowl's huge Chario Room, 1925 W. Lincoln Ave., Anaheim. Amsterdam, who stars on the Dick Dyke TV show, will be backed by big Tiny Little and his group, plus George and his Musicmakers. The tab for dinner and dancing will be $14.85 per person, including tax. Cocktail reservations will be $9.35 each, incdluding tax.

Cute Sandy Sanders, a delightful vocalist pianist, will entertain, along with a trio, at the continental Chandelier restaurant, 4205 Atlantic. There will be dancing, favors, and a special champagne dinner, $10 per person.

THERE WILL BE DANCING, music by The Deuces and comedy by George the Great at the party at Cherie's Can Can, South Street at Paramount Boulevard. The tab for dinner and entertainment will be $7.50 each.

KAINAPAU

SANDY

Parties featuring colorful floor shows, but no dancing by the patrons, will be held at these restaurants:

The Hawaiian, 4645 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., will serve a special holiday menu and have spectacular entertainment by fire dancer Chief Satini, golden-voice singer George Kainapau, comic dancer Kuulei, music by the Islanders and additional dancing by hula girls and athletic knife-dancer Kemo Mansfield.

JavaLanes' East Indies Room, an ultramodern spot at 3800 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., will have a hilarious New Year's Eve show by lightning-fast comic Arthur Walsh and his company, cofeaturing Long Beach singer Jeannie Sterling. The multicourse dinner will be $10 per person; cocktails only, $2 admission.

Dinners with entertainment, plus party favors, will be featured at these outstanding restaurants:

Apple Valley Steak House, 733 E. Broadway, large dinners from 4 p.m. to 1 a.m., with lively melodies by pianists Don Mason and Tommy Hazelton and droll greetings by manager Charlie Dodd.

MASON

King Arthur's Steak House, Spring Street near Bellflower Boulevard, a special holiday menu, plus entertainment by popular, gifted organist Bob Moreau and special musical guests.

Hoefly's, 4911 E. Second St., special holiday menu, and entertainment by pianist Key Howard, an unusual musician who has appeared on TV with such stars as Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby, Dinah Shore and the late Ernie Kovacs.

Lyle Williams' Silver Saddle Inn, 7339 E. Florence Ave., Downey, will serve a special holiday menu and have entertainment by artistic organist Pomping Vila.

Frank X. O'Neil's gaily decorated Rig Restaurant, 2951 Cherry, Signal Hill, will be closed New Year's Day but will have New York steak, filet mignon and lobster-steak-combination dinners on New Year's Eve.

Country music stars Eddie Dean, Tommy Duncan, Bobby Williamson, Lee Ross and the Golden West Orchestra will entertain at the party at the huge new Golden West Auditorium, 12400 Studebaker Rd., Norwalk. The $7.50 price will include champagne and favors. The auditorium seats 2,200.

Currie's Santa Fe, 1735 W. Pacific Coast Hwy., will serve dinners New Year's Eve from 4 p.m. on, featuring steak, duck and turkey and fancy hats for the late evening guests.

Jones Dining Room and Cafeteria, 120 E. Fifth St., will not be open late New Year's Eve, but will be open New Year's Day, serving large, many-course dinners, with a variety of entrees.

Clifton's, a huge modern cafeteria in Lakewood Center, will feature an eight-course feast for $1.77 on New Year's Day, serving hundreds of guests from its efficient double counter.

The New Year's Eve dinner at the new Americana restaurant, Bellflower Boulevard and Carson Street, will include champagne at no increase over the regular menu prices. Dick Post will entertain.

Rinkytink pianist Dorothy Conners and banjoist Les Merrill will entertain New Year's Eve at Me N Ed's pizza parlor, Paramount Boulevard at Carson.

Lulu's Chuck Wagon, 730 E. Broadway, will serve its large $2.50 prime rib dinner New Year's Eve from 4 to midnight. The price will include other entrees if desired.

Organist Jimmie Means will entertain at the New Year's Eve party at Sam's Sea Food in Surfside. Guests will receive party favors. Sam's regular menu will be served New Year's Day as well.

Restaurant Alfred, 700 E. 45th St., near Atlantic, will include its bountiful hors d'oeuvres tray with its large dinners New Year's day at regular prices.

DINING OUT NEW YEARS DAY

NEW YEAR ONCE BEGAN MARCH 25

Much Tampering With Calendar Before Modern Version Evolved

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was a pain in the neck. New Year's Eve falling on March 24.

At least, according to documentation on file at World's Fair Time Center's Swiss pavilion, as recently as 1751, New Year's Day was celebrated March 25.

But that was before the makers of calendars fiddled with time in unision to give us the calendar we use today.

The contemporary calendar is only the latest of many. One early calendar was developed by Romulus, founder of Rome, who started his calendar at the vernal equinox, March 25, and ended it on Jan. 24.

This calendar had just 10 months and missed 60-some days. The names of the month, as per the Romulus calendar: Martius, Aprilis, Maius, Junuis, Quintilis, Sextilis, Septembris, Octobris, Novembris and Decembris.

* * * *

A FEW years later, the Roman Emperor Numa thought it awkward to be missing months. He added three. January became the first month, Februarius became the last and Mercedonius was thrown in every other year. Otherwise, things just didn't come out right.

The first dependable calendar came in 532 A.D. but came to hard times 1200 years later. Roman Emperor Dionysius figured the solar year is 365.25 days long. He was wrong, say the Swiss time authorities. It is 365.2422 days long.

Seems like a trivial error. But it amounted to one day in 128 years.

By 1582, Easter was falling in the winter and the Council of Trent decided to authorize the Pope to repair the situation. He did and the world's calendar jumped from Thursday, Oct. 4, 1582, to Friday, Oct. 15 —everywhere but in England and her colonies.

Brittania and her American colonies finally got around to the change in 1752—and at the same time changed New Year's Day to Jan. 1.

As recently as 1940, Russia changed its calendar to conform to that of the rest of the world. In 1929, Stalin had decreed the month would consist of six weeks of five days each — with four days of work and one of rest. The extra five or six days at the end of the year were holidays.

Hutton L.B. Office Has New Chief

CHARLES BARRINGTON

WILLIAM FERGUSON

Appointment of Charles "Tod" Barrington as manager of the Long Beach office of E. F. Hutton & Co., Inc., has been announced by Murray Ward, Hutton senior vice president, at his Spring Street, Los Angeles, headquarters.

Barrington succeeds William C. Ferguson, who retires at the end of this year after 30 years of service with the New York Stock Exchange member firm. "Fergy" will remain on for the month of January as a registered representative, winding up his business affairs and assisting the new manager in the takeover of duties.

Barrington previously was manager of the firm's Wilshire Boulevard office. He started with the firm in 1945 as a registered representative. Barrington and his wife have a daughter, Susan B. Hunter, and a son, William.

Donald E. Leedom will continue as assistant manager of the Long Beach office, Ward stated.

Deane Named to Builder Group's Top Committee

William Blackfield, Honolulu, new president of the National Association of Home Builders, has invited Ben. C. Deane, Huntington Beach home builder, to serve on the NAHB executive committee.

Announcement of the selection was made by Robert A. Olin, president of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties, of which Deane is a past president and a director.

The formal invitation to become a member of the NAHB top committee was made at the NAHB annual convention-exposition just concluded in Chicago.

Deane has been active in home building in Southern California for 30 years. He was president of the HBA in 1958, first vice president in 1957, has been director since 1955, and has served on its regular and special committees.

Videosonic Exec Named at Hughes

FULLERTON—William R. Deutsch of Santa Ana has been appointed education and research director for the Vidcosonic Systems division, Hughes Aircraft Co., C. H. Brubaker, Hughes vice president and group executive, has announced here.

Deutsch formerly was head of automated teaching research and development for Rheem Manufacturing and Corrigan Communications. He also was associated with Douglas Aircraft Co. for more than seven years developing automated training concepts.

Compton Firm Adds Engineer to Staff

COMPTON—Concrete Tie, Compton, has added Stephen G. Shewak to its engineering staff.

Shewak has been active in the engineering and construction field since 1954. His previous California assignment was at Huntington Harbour, $200 million residential marina, where he was the assistant project engineer.

His Huntington Harbour assignment involved work under project engineers Moffett and Nichol of Long Beach.

Community Savings Offices to Show Art

The New Year will be ushered in with a "contemporary landscapes" art exhibit at all Community Savings offices, Jan. 2 through 10, according to Roger E. Dunn, president.

The collection has been selected from the works of three leading European and American artists who have one thing in common — the landscape.

There will be landscapes of Mexico and Spain by Richard Kozlow. Pierre Barat's brush will give strong feeling of the Paris countryside. The exceptional, highly imaginative feeling on canvas is brought to the exhibits by Ron Blumberg.

"The public is invited to attend these unusual showings at our Compton branch, 477 E. Compton Blvd.; in Paramount at 15359 Paramount Blvd., and in Long Beach at 3901 Atlantic. All paintings are exhibited through courtesy of the Raymond Burr Galleries of Beverly Hills," Dunn commented.

Coffee and refreshments will be served each day during opening hours and a free "master in miniature," set on its own easel, will be presented to each attendant.

Profit-Sharing Brings Bonuses at Realty Firm

A new profit-sharing program has brought added sparkle to Christmas at the office of Crabtree Corners, Inc., Realtors, at 2069 E. Pacific Coast Highway, Long Beach.

Glenn E. Crabtree, president, announced distribution of $3,864.93 in bonuses at a staff Christmas party. Sharing in this were Madrid Richards, general manager; Ray Fogle, Ralph Spencer, Barbara Johnson, Vince Parke and Crabtree. Only those with the firm at least eight months are eligible for the bonus.

Crabtree said the firm had topped $4 million in sales the past year, which saw doubling of office space at the Coast Highway address. He expects the sales force will have doubled by February.

Crabtree said 1963 was the company's best year for business since it was started 18 years ago.

49 Awards Made by Hodges Co.

Awards for outstanding sales of residential real estate were presented to 49 associates of the Rex L. Hodges Co., at the Christmas dinner-dance Dec. 23, according to Robert C. Westmyer, company president.

Recognition for sales of more than one million dollars went to C. L. Bevington and Ric Owen.

Winners in the over one-half million category were: Kenneth Moffatt, Walter Richman, Enzo Barbati, Jack Saxon, Helen Williams, Robert Hendon, Marge LaBranch and Madalyne Ursano.

Five of the 14 local offices of the Hodges Co. received recognition for home sales of more than two million dollars, including the Downtown, Wrigley, Bellflower Boulevard, Uptown Atlantic and Carson Street offices.

Bonuses and gifts to sales and office personnel exceeded $23,000, an all-time high for the company, Westmyer said.

Citrus Co-op Sales Tally at $222 Million

Total delivered value of sales by Sunkist Growers, world famous California-Arizona citrus marketing cooperative, during its 70th year ending Oct. 31, 1963, was $222 million, comprised of $177 million fresh fruit and $45 million products, F.R. Wilcox, general manager, reported to the Sunkist board of directors at the recent annual meeting in Los Angeles.

"This was an increase of $29 million over sales for the previous year," Wilcox said, "on a volume of business of 43⅓ million cartons or 9% more than that of the 1961-62 season, despite crippling losses to navel oranges particularly during the cold weather of last January."

Fresh Sunkist citrus shipments, including those moving over-water in export channels, were made up of 27.3 million cartons of oranges; 13.8 million cartons of lemons; 2.1 million cartons of grapefruit and 143,000 standard cartons of tangerines. A total of 366,000 tons of all varieties was processed by the two Sunkist products plants.

Cortese's Leisure World Concept of Living Accepted by Thousands

The New Year will find nearly 11,000 retired-age citizens living "the way of life" of Rossmoor Leisure World at Seal Beach.

Ross W. Cortese's first self-contained retirement community was a phenomenal success during 1963, so much so that the happiness and security found at the Seal Beach community will be duplicated for thousands more at two new Leisure Worlds which have become a reality at the turn of the New York.

The second Leisure World has completed the initial phase of construction at Laguna Hills.

On the same construction schedule is Cortese's third Leisure World at Walnut Creek, 15 minutes driving time from Oakland.

* * * *

FOR THE past two weekends, during the current pre-sales preview, nearly 3000 visitors each weekend have inspected five acres of elegantly furnished models at Leisure World in Laguna Hills, reports William G. Grangham, national sales manager. The public also is shown the first of seven luxurious clubhouses costing $850,000 and the handsome administration building, which contains a branch of the United California Bank and a furnishings studio.

The public pre-sales preview continues at the Laguna Hills Leisure World, located adjacent to the Santa Ana Freeway at the El Toro Blvd. off-ramp near fabled Laguna Beach art colony.

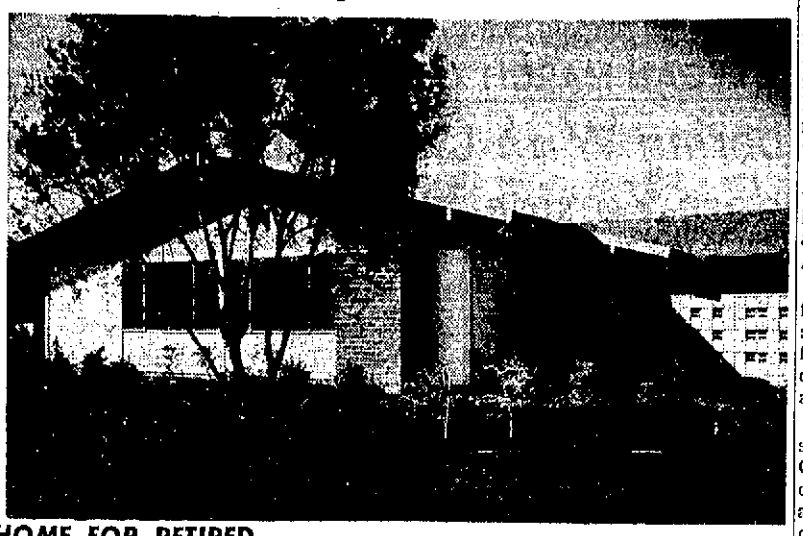

* * * *

THIS $500 MILLION retirement community will have 18,000 luxury share-ownership manors upon completion, and house more than 30,000 persons.

Walnut Creek's $250 million community will contain 10,000 luxury manors upon completion, and will house nearly 18,000 persons.

Soon there will be Leisure Worlds at Olney, Md., in the greater New York area, in Illinois, Hawaii and two in Europe.

It is, indeed, a happy New Year for Ross W. Cortese's, Leisure World concept.

Apartment Units Due to Replace Del Mar Hotel

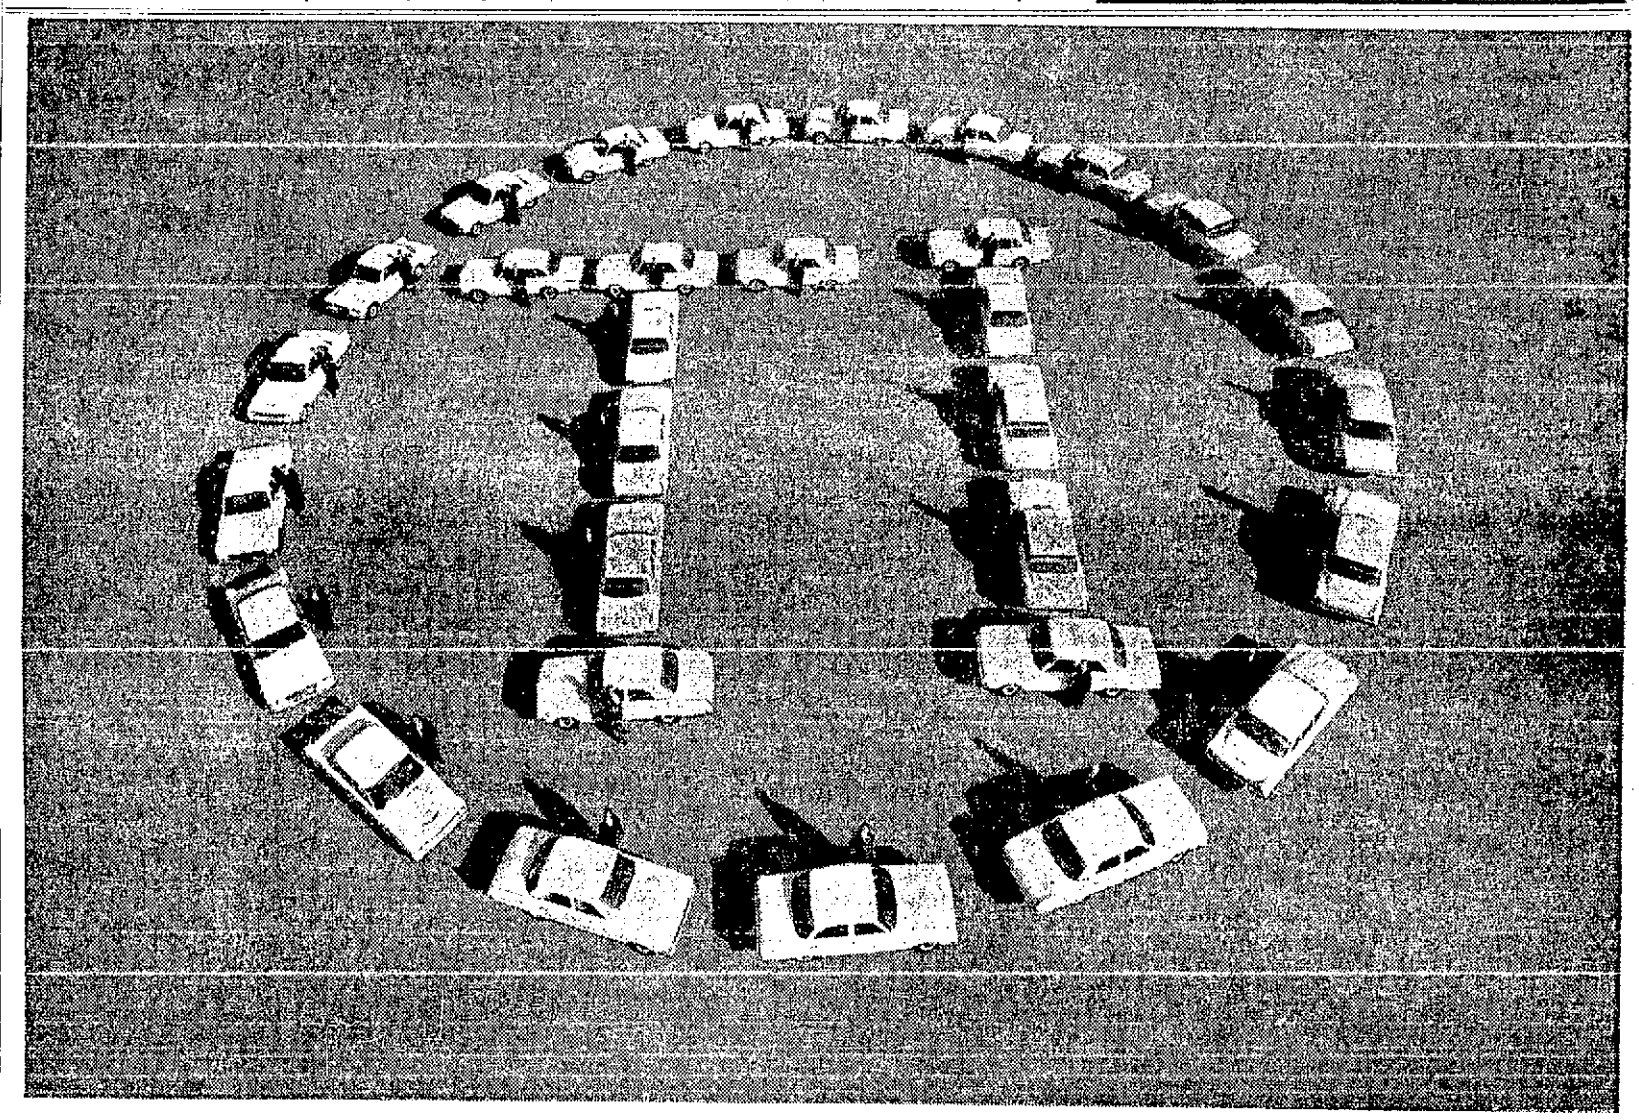

DEL MAR (UPI) — City Council approval was the final hurdle faced by developers today who plan to demolish the historic Del Mar Hotel and construct a $10 million apartment complex on the site.

The Planning Commission voted 3-1 in favor of granting a permit to Moote, Kempa & Galloway, Inc., of Santa Ana.

Guy Greene, land planner for the firm, said during a six-hour hearing that the firm plans a four-building complex containing up to 420 apartments.

Greene said that with speedy approval of the City Council, the hotel would be demolished in nine months and construction would start on at least one building. The council is to act Monday on the commission's recommendation.

Only one title company is just minutes from every Los Angeles County escrow officer.

Title Insurance and Trust Company.

A fleet of 35 radio-controlled cars makes it possible.

For your escrow officer, there's a johnny-on-the-spot messenger or customer relations representative. And all he has to do is phone the T.I. customer car dispatcher or his T.I. title officer.

For you, there's faster and more efficient service whenever your title order needs immediate attention.

T.I. is fast when it comes to searching your title, too. That's because, of all title companies, only T.I. combines complete land records of Los Angeles County and high-speed data processing of tax information.

But you get much more than fast service when you specify T.I.

You get reliable service. Every T.I. policy is backed by California's longest established title firm and a staff that knows what it's doing.

And you get personal service—the kind that prompts customers to come back to T.I. time and again. The kind that has made T.I. America's largest title company.

Your T.I. title policy has a lot working for it. Yet it costs you no more.

Broadway to Enlarge Long Beach Store

A MAJOR EXPANSION PROGRAM that will increase the selling area by 50 per cent has been announced for the Broadway-Long Beach Store in Los Altos Center. The new floor, as shown on this rendering, will have an arched roof extending five feet beyond the building. More than $1,000,000 will be spent on refurbishing the present store, which has two stories and a basement. Plans for the expansion were revealed by Robert Graham, vice president of Westgate-California Corp.

IN LOS ALTOS SHOPPING CENTER

Broadway Store Will Add Floor

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

A multi-million dollar expansion and remodeling program for the Broadway-Long Beach Store in Los Altos Shopping Center was announced Saturday. Work will begin at once.

The announcement came in a joint statement from C. Arnholt Smith, chairman of the board of Westgate California Corp., owners of the big shopping center at Bellflower Boulevard and Stearns Street, and from Dorothy Marshall, vice president of the Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., and general manager of Broadway-Southern California.

THE BROADWAY STORE expansion, which may run well over $4 million when complete, is one of several major expansions planned for the coming year in the Los Altos Center, Robert Graham, Westgate vice president, revealed.

When the Broadway Store expansion is completed the store will have approximately 50 per cent more selling area, including a complete new third floor, expanded interior areas and a $100,000 auto facility.

"A year after Westgate acquired the center, we undertook a survey of the general Long Beach-Lakewood-West Orange County area," Graham said.

"We wanted to determine how well our center was serving the areas, and, most important, what part Los Altos should play in the future of the area.

"WHEN THE PRELIMINARY results of the survey were disclosed 18 months ago, we immediately discussed with some of the center tenants, including the Broadway, the potential trade of the area.

"Both Broadway and Westgate felt enthusiastically that plans should be made at once for an expanded center. Since the survey we have experimented with prototype areas and all have met with amazing success for the future of the center."

The present Broadway Store in Los Altos Center has a full basement and two floors.

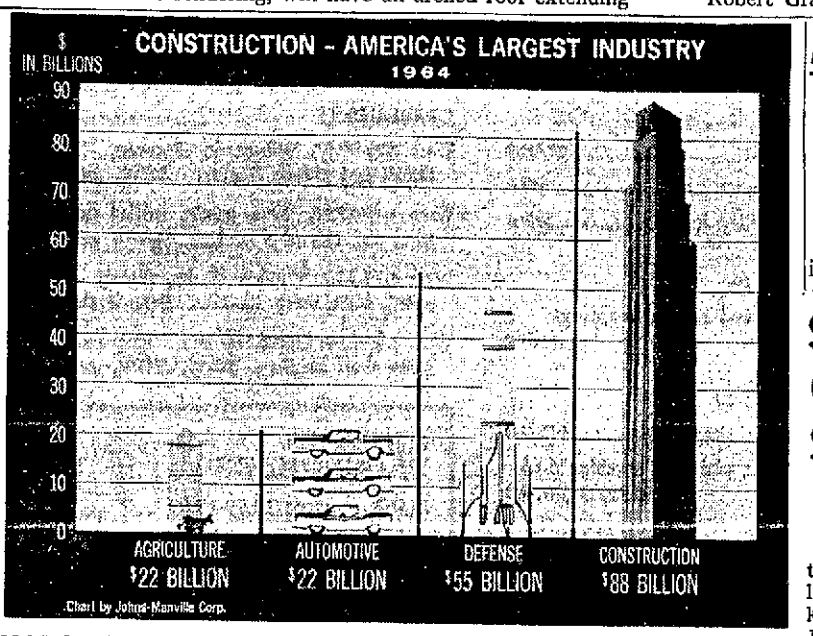

The new third floor is of unusual design. It features massive arches at the building top, extending the roof five feet beyond the walls, and is so designed that it will blend with the current architecture of the center as well as that planned in the immediate future. The rear of the present store will be given a new face and entrance. Welton Becket & Associates is the architect firm.

PLANS CALL FOR the complete refurbishing of the store interior at a cost of $1 million. The ground floor level and the second floor are to be modernized from floor to ceiling. Generous use of wood paneling, carpeting and terrazo is planned.

Additional lines of merchandise, not available in the past because of size limitations, will be stocked by Broadway-Long Beach. These will include furniture, home furnishings and expanded areas of fashion. Charles Luckman & Associates will coordinate the interior design and fixtures.

Construction is expected to be completed in about one year. The store will remain open during the construction.

HOW TOP INDUSTRIES COMPARE
Chart shows how construction industry leads in outlook for 1964, exceeding runner-up defense industry by $33 billion.

IN FIVE YEARS . . .

Orange Co. Gains 1,453 Businesses

In five years, 1,453 more businesses have opened in fast-growing Orange County, an increase of 23.1% to 7,746 businesses.

James L. Gravlee, regional manager of the Los Angeles office of Dun and Bradstreet, which keeps tabs on the state of the state's financial health, said that the finding was incident to compilation of a reference book due off the presses next month.

He said the reference book's listings showing the increases consider only those manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers who seek and grant commercial credit.

Naturally, he said, the total list of business enterprises will be much larger, since many operate on a cash basis and neither seek nor grant credit.

* * * *

SANTA ANA, with 1,350 such enterprises, has the largest number but showed gain of only 2.9 per cent in five years. Anaheim, with 1,157 places, reporting, showed a gain of 31.8 per cent, and is second numerically.

Costa Mesa showed a spectacular 42.8 per cent gain, with 709 businesses today as compared to 495 five years ago. Garden Grove has 605, a gain of 16.5 per cent.

Westminster, with 138 businesses in this category, has the same number reporting five years ago.

$88 Billions Construction Seen in 1964

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Americans are reported getting ready to spend $88 billion on construction of all kinds in the election year of 1964, an amount equal to one-seventh of the $615 billion Gross National Product forecast for the same period.

This would establish a new, all-time record high and place the construction industry, already a mainstay of the American economy, very close to equalling in GNP dollar value the next three largest industries combined—national defense, the automotive industry and agriculture.

* * * *

AN EARLY ANALYSIS of the 1964 construction market by Johns-Manville Corp., a world-wide manufacturer and distributor of building materials and products for industrial construction and operation, estimates that new building of all kinds is headed toward a $67 billion record in 1964, of which $47.6 billion will go for private building and $19.3 billion for public new construction.

New public and private housing together will get $21.8 billion in 1964, up 5.8% compared with $20.6 billion in 1963.

* * * *

OUTLAYS for new construction in 1964, according to the J-M market analysis just made public, will be augmented by additional expenditures of around $21 billion for building materials and supplies used in remodeling, repairs and maintenance of existing structures — adding up to an $88 billion construction year, compared with about $86 billion in 1963.

Except for 1958, maintenance, repair and remodeling expenditures have increased steadily for the past 13 years.

* * * *

INDUSTRY now seems likely to spend up to $43 billion in 1964 for continuing widespread plant expansion needed to keep up with the growing American economy.

A new, high level in capital expeditures now seems assured for 1964.

The outlook today is good for prospective home buyers who want to borrow, and all indications are that this favorable situation will hold well into 1964.

New Bank Planned at Bellflower

BELLFLOWER — Application for a new financial institution to be known as "The Bank of Bellflower" has been filed with the California Banking Department, according to the agency's weekly bulletin.

Mac Frankel, local public accountant for the past 23 years, is spearheading the organizational work with the aid of E. D. Mitchell, owner of Centerwood Plaza, shopping center located at Lakewood and Alondra Boulevards.

* * * *

FRANKEL indicated that other community leaders involved in the proposed formation of the bank included Mayor Norman Murray, realtor; Joe Hartstein, jewelry store owner; Jack Fishman of the Bellflower Credit Bureau; George J. Elkouri, automotive dealer, and Larry Bonzer, Long Beach manufacturer of electronic components. He said numerous other local merchants and professional people had been invited to associate.

"The Bank of Bellflower application proposes a capitalization of $1.5 million. As of the present time we are in the preliminary stages of organization and all determinations, including whether we receive a charter are within the discretion of the superintendent of the State Banking Department," Frankel said.

COAST COLLEGE 'HOME WORK'

Students Learn by Constructing House

By BOB GEIVET

It isn't much like a classroom, this Polynesian product. But for Orange Coast College's construction technology students it's a "learn-by-doing" project.

The house the boys are building is of six rooms, a "true" Polynesian style. It is ultra-modern, however, and will be fully-equipped with electrical devices, wall-to-wall carpeting and lush appointments.

It's to have a shake roof; but inside the living room there will be a tiki roof to carry out the motif of the design, it was explained by Robert Simonds, instructor of the college's building trades.

* * * *

IN HIS WORDS, Coast "has the most comprehensive and practical course in construction of any college in the nation."

The Polynesian house is a case in point. Students help design it, make the blueprints, then interpret them into lumber and finishing materials. They do almost every job incident to the construction, and their work must pass city inspection just as any other house.

That's because the college will market the building after it's finished in 1965. It will be moved off campus, and put up to bid. Money realized from the sale goes to buy more lumber and materials—and tools.

* * * *

FIVE DAYS a week, the construction technology students learn in the lecture room. They hear about framing, finishing, field layout, roof framing, cabinet making and new techniques.

Then, in the other hours, they build.

Simonds said that his boys get a comprehensive review of their studies and experiences on the job. It winds up the two-year course in the final six weeks, and prepares them for the California building contractors' license examination.

Building is the No. 1 dollar-volume industry in Orange County today, and Simonds said it will continue that way for at least the next 20 years. His boys, he said, will be in there working—and drawing big pay—because their time in Coast counts on their journeyman time.

List Purex on Exchange

Purex Corp., Ltd., of Lakewood, manufacturer of household and industrial cleaning products and drugs and toiletries, is now listed on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange, it has been announced by Thomas P. Phelan, Exchange president.

The issue was listed simultaneously on the New York Stock Exchange. The stock, which formerly was traded over-the-counter, was assigned the ticker symbol PRX.

2 Industrial Projects Set

LA MIRADA — Construction of two manufacturing plants containing 20,000 square feet of floor space will get under way shortly after Jan. 1, officials of Central Manufacturing District, owners of the 5,000-acre La Mirada Industrial Park, announced.

William Beaver, sales manager for CMD, said the H. B. Fuller Corp., manufacturers of industrial adhesives, will build on a two-acre site near Alondra Boulevard and Valley View Avenue.

The Elcen Metals Co. of Chicago, producers of metal products for the plastering trade, will build a warehouse on a 1.3-acre site in the same vicinity.

Bellflower Women Realtors Install

BELLFLOWER — Realtor Frankie Harrell was installed as 1964 president of the Bellflower Chapter, Women's Council, Bellflower District Board of Realtors, at the December luncheon of the group held at Hody's Restaurant, Lakewood.

Installed as officers with Mrs. Harrell before 71 members and guests were: Frances Parker, vice president; Gladys Leahy, secretary; and Carolyn Frlan, treasurer.

President-elect Isabel Mitchell, Southeast Board of Realtors, was installing officer.

Mrs. Mitchell has served as president of the National Women's Council, of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and has long been prominent in Board and Women's Council work.

Outgoing officers for the local council are President Lena Jenkins, Frankie Harrell, vice president; Mary Festa, secretary; Carolyn Frlan, treasurer.

'GOLDEN' EGG FEARED

Heat on Huskies, Illini

By JEROME HALL

Over the past half century the football contest that is played annually on New Year's Day at Pasadena has built a reputation as the best football game of them all.

Those who would dilute our language call it the "granddaddy of the bowl games." It has, more often than not in recent decades, amounted to the national championship playoff.

An emotional climax to a day of world-recognized pageantry, that's what the Rose Bowl game has been.

But what of the 1964 renewal, now only hours away?

This is the golden anniversary of the Rose Bowl. With 50 years of history, this is the one the Tournament of Roses Assn. was hoping would be at least as good as the 49th, which likely will be remembered forevermore as the best Rose Bowl game, one of the most exciting football games ever watched anywhere.

But what does the Rose Bowl get this time? A team from the West with almost as many defeats as victories. A team from the Midwest that is, at best, an ordinary club which scraped through on top in the worst season the Big 10 has known since it acquired the reputation as the strongest conference in the country.

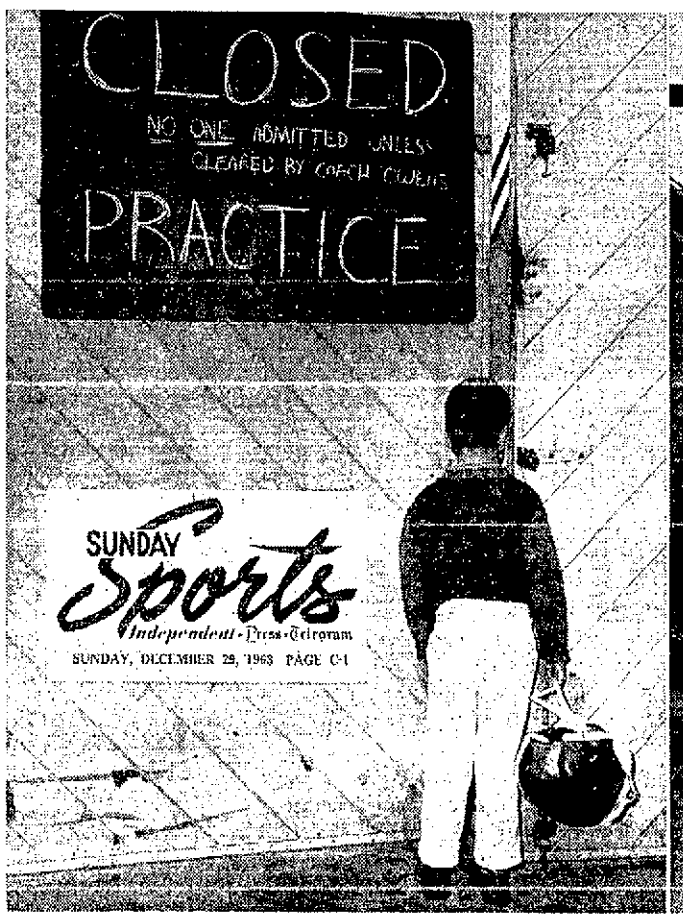

Last year the Rose Bowl had the No. 1 team and the No. 2 team in the nation. This year the West's representative is unranked. The Midwest's was ranked because there were no good teams this year.

What all this means is that Wednesday's game will be played for football fans. Not for those who attend a game merely because they had a friend who could get tickets.

The latter types will be among the 100,000 at the famed stadium Wednesday, but they'll be disappointed.

There is nothing spectacular about either

WHEN A FELLA NEEDS A FRIEND

When you're 5 years old and a football fan, too, and a Rose Bowl team training in your home-town closes the gates to its practice field . . . well, Matt Baker finds it just too tough to take.

SORRY, SON, WE ONLY WORK HERE

Washington players Ron Medved (left) and Bill Douglas aren't much help in surmounting the barrier to Veterans Stadium. "All right, then," says Matt, "where can I find this guy Owens?"

SEE, HE AIN'T SO TOUGH!

"No, sir, I'm not an Illinois spy . . . Yes, sir, I promise to root real hard for you Wednesday . . . How'd I like to play football in Seattle someday? . . . Gee, I'd have to ask my mom!"

BROWN SCORES ONLY WEST TD

East, West in Standoff

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "That line play in the Shrine game was the strongest I've ever seen," said Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian Saturday after the East and West battled to a 6-6 deadlock.

"There was a lot of head-knocking both ways. But Carl Eller (Minnesota), Mike Reilly (Iowa) and Dave Ellison (Purdue) all did great jobs for the team."

That was about the story of the game which ended 6-6 — mostly rugged tackling, vicious blocking, hard-nosed but head coach Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue and the East thought the honor should have gone to Paul Warfeld of Ohio State.

	West	East
First downs	14	16
Rushing yardage	65	144
Passing yardage	175	162
Passes	18-36	11-34
Passes intercepted by	5	1
Punts	6-39.0	5-36.2
Fumbles lost	1	2
Yards penalized	26	14

Both sides claimed they could have won the game.

Jerry Richardson of West Texas and the West team said he trapped Sherman Lewis of Michigan State behind his own goal line—but the officials ruled it was on the one-foot line.

If Richardson was right, then it would have been two extra points on a safety for the West.

But Mollenkopf said a mix-up in signals cost the East a touchdown just before the half.

"We had third down and a foot to go," said Mollenkopf. "Our quarterback thought we had made a first down. On

WILLIE'S IN ON THEM ALL

Willie Brown (26) of USC, voted outstanding player of the East-West Shrine game Saturday, couldn't quite cope with this pass interception by Paul Warfield in first quarter, but Willie came back to intercept two of his own and score touchdown which eventually enabled West to tie East, 6-6.

Giants, Bears Collide for Title Today

New York Close Pick at Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Y. A. Tittle and the pass-minded New York Giants will slug it out with the Chicago Bears' alert defense and ball control offense today for the championship of the National Football League.

The NFL title game at Wrigley Field shapes up as a fine match of slugger against boxer. Tittle is primed with the long ball bomb, trying for the quick kayo. The Bears figure to be bobbing and weaving, picking off Tittle's best efforts and then grinding it out with Bill Wade's short tosses and the running of Willie Galimore, Ron Bull and Joe Marconi.

Weather is a most important factor in this sixth title game between these old rivals, who played the first championship game in 1933. Slim odds favoring the Giants are based on no blizzard or gale winds to dull Tittle's accuracy. In the last two championship tests, the old bald eagle of the Giants was below par on frozen fields.

* * * *

AT LAST reports the footing was good at Wrigley Field, where hot air blowers have been used under the tarpaulin.

Both the Bears and the Giants said Saturday that the turf appeared soft enough to permit them to wear regular football cleats.

The Bears worked out for about 45 minutes and the Giants for slightly more than

UCLA Snares Classic Title

By JEROME HALL

The UCLA Bruins won the championship of the fifth annual Los Angeles Basketball Classic Saturday night, but they didn't play like champions.

By a score of 83-79 the Bruins squeezed past the University of Illinois, which was an underdog given little chance of making it a contest.

But a contest it was. And it wasn't settled until Bruins guard Gail Goodrich pushed through a short shot as the buzzer sounded.

During the previous two minutes the Big 10 team was on the verge of regaining the lead it had held for so much of the first half.

* * * *

BUT THE Bruins hung on though their margin was sliced to one point with 45 seconds remaining and the Illini turned the tables on the usually nifty UCLA boys by stealing the ball time after time while the Bruins were trying to stall out the clock.

It was the second year in a row the Bruins have won the L.A. Classic. Attendance at the L.A. Sports Arena was 13,050.

UCLA, which the night before had been magnificent in overwhelming the No. 2 ranked Michigan Wolverines, never did play up to the quality it displayed in blitzing through eight previous opponents this year on the way to a No. 4 position in the polls.

The narrow victory cost UCLA the No. 1 spot in this week's rankings. Kentucky will be on top.

Goodrich led the Bruins' attack with 21 points and was chosen outstanding player in the tournament. Teammate Walt Hazzard also was voted a place on the all-tournament team. Others selected were Illini center Skip Thoren, NYU forward Hal (Happy) Hairston and Pittsburgh forward Brian Generalovich.

The Bruins dropped behind by 6-0 and 9-2 scores before they realized the warm-ups were over. They showed the effects of over-confidence and a lazy attitude after their big victory Friday night that was billed as the actual championship elimination. The Illini were supposed to fall over dead.

It still was 24-21 for Illinois after 11 minutes but the Bruins were beginning to get their fast-breaking, hard-pressing attack into working order.

The height of Illini center Skip Thoren, who is only 6-8½, but who plays like a seven-footer, kept the Bruins in trouble. He gave the defending Big Ten champions ball control and he also gave them 15 points in the first half.

UCLA finally caught up at 28-all after 13 minutes of the coldest play they have suffered through this season. The Bruins still were not running on all cylinders but they were beginning to look like the racehorse team which had blitzed through eight opponents in a row to earn a high national ranking.

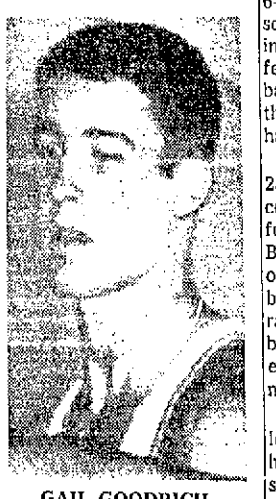

The Bruins didn't get the lead until nearly 14 minutes had been played. Reserve sophomore Dough McIntosh, sent in to give the team some spark, connected for a 30-29 score.

* * * *

THEN IN the space of three minutes near the end of the first half the Bruins moved in from a deficit to a commanding position. They grabbed a 13-point lead.

Michigan, which came into the tournament with the No. 2 national ranking and suf-

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

The Sunday Sermon

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . Our recent statement that the sports magazine man who declared the NFL champion would blast the AFL champion by 50 points, was a bit daffy, prompted a few letters to this department. Then, Jerry Wynn's comment that the NFL Rams would rout the AFL's Oakland Raiders by 35 points touched off another written barrage. Some of the missives were particularly amusing.

. . . "That Jerry Hall is a nut," wrote a fellow named Wes Bronson, who must have mistaken our two Jerrys, Hall and Wynn. "Oakland and San Diego score more points than any of those so-called great teams in the National League. The Chicago Bears would be mincemeat for either Oakland or San Diego." (Whoa, Wes. Better lay off that Yuletide egg nog.)

. . . "Sid Gillman's Chargers are 50 points worse than the pathetic Rams he coached when he got fired," snorted Phil J. McCauley . . . "The Bears, Packers and Giants, among others, could play just 11 men an entire game and whip the shorts off anything in the AFL," indicated Tom McInerney . . . "The AFL scoring would have the NFL team dizzy after one quarter," countered Irv Levine.

. . . And so it went. I think a woman named Bess Swearingen summed the situation the way I might: "Spot the AFL champion 21 points and you'd have a great game." Three touchdowns is about the difference between the two leagues right now. That's an improvement for the AFL, too. A few years ago that 50-point spread would have been most appropriate.

. . . Not from a Chicago writer: "Billy Wade, your ex-Ram, is the most misunderstood player ever to pull on a Chicago Bear uniform. This can be attributed to a Bear defense that has overshadowed the offense directed by Wade. Even though Wade has a fine passing record himself, he still is battling for recognition of Chicago fans. Wade is in the strange role of being a hero still waiting for cheers from the crowd." (Wade was misunderstood when with the Rams, too, but for a different reason. He got slaughtered because of an offensive line that was as porous as a sifting pan.)

JOHNNY MORRIS, the ex-Poly tadpole who had his biggest season with the Bears in '63 (and may be one of the big factors in any Bear victory today), was paid another compliment recently by a Detroit Lion opponent after the final game of the season. Detroit's Tom Hall was filling-in for Night Train Lane in a defensive corner position in the finale because Lane's wife (Dinah Washington) died the day before the contest. Said Hall: "I was unfamiliar with the position, but that Morris taught me a few lessons that should help me next year. On one obvious pass play, I thought I had Johnny covered all the way. The next second, the little guy faked me into the stands, I slipped on my buttocks and he scored a touchdown. That corner position is real tough to play, but Morris gave me some good lessons."

. . . The Dallas Cowboys' Lynn Hoyem, one of Long Beach State's alltime greats, is looking for a job in this city. He'll be waiting at the telephone (FR 5-4316) in a relative's residence at 1661 Via Arriba, Palos Verdes Estates, for any prospective bosses' calls. Lynn wants to work here . . . and we want him here.

. . . Ex-St. Anthony cager Bob McConnell, now on the frosh club at Arizona State, is in town for the holidays with a greeting from his school: A Christmas card flooded with 'Devils surrounding a Yule candle. The Sun Devil cager designed the very unique cards himself.

RON MAURY special delivered a note from Hawaii, where he's holidaying, that Long Beach Surf Club has been doing great in the Makaha International Surfing Championships. He expects half the 15-member team to be in this weekend's finals. Already Mike Doyle and Corky Carroll have nabbed trial titles. Other members enjoying 80-degree weather are Candy Calhoun, Robin Calhoun, Linda Merrill, Marge Calhoun, Nancy Nelson, John Peck, Chuck Linnen, Mike Haley, Bill Neary, Kemp Ackberg, pus a few more Ron neglected to mention.

. . . Barney Boring of Long Beach State has subscribed to Amateur Wrestling News for us "in hopes of getting coverage on this most athletic of athletic events." I'm sold, Barney, especially after noting that article, "Wrestlers Excel at Football." Most notable example is Air Force's fine quarterback Terry Isaacson, who also is an all-America wrestler. His assistant coach (under Ben Martin), explains Isaacson's success this way: "It's because a wrestler looks his man in the eye and they have at it. They have to have that footwork and hand action and be ready for most anything."

. . . Note to Jim Owens: Maybe you should utilize wrestling, instead of karate, next time you meet the Air Force. Isaacson looked mighty fine in the opener against your Purple Gang.

A COUPLE pro footballers who have returned to local haunts after their autumn wars opine that the Rams made "a heckuva move" in shifting Marlin McKeever from defense to tight end. "McKeever may be the best tight end in football next season, even better than Ditka (Mike) and Kramer (Ron)," they all claim. (Fellas, the move was accidental. Marlin simply worked out as an offensive end while recuperating from injuries and ACCIDENTALLY opened everyone's eyes.)

. . . And to those readers who have wondered why I've already tabbed Washington to whip Illinois in the Rose Bowl event (with or without Coffey), I'll reply: I think both clubs are about on a par, but I think Jim Owens will outfox Pete Elliott. (And remember, I've been right about the Huskies both times before!)

Frigid Lakers Bow in Tangle

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Red-haired Johnny Kerr celebrated his crowning as the National Basketball Association's new iron man by spearheading the Philadelphia 76ers to a 114-110 triumph over the Los Angeles Lakers Saturday.

The contest marked the 707th consecutive game for Kerr since he entered the NBA in 1954. He topped the old standard of 76 created by the current 76ers coach Dolph Schayes between 1952 and 1961. At halftime, Kerr received several gifts in honor of his achievement, including one from Schayes.

The game was marked by several injuries, including a mild concussion suffered by referee Mendy Rudolph with four minutes elapsed in the third period. The referee collided with Rudy LaRusso, Los Angeles forward, and both fell to the floor stunned. Rudolph was taken to the Philadelphia General Hospital and the other referee, John Vanak, had to finish the rest of the game alone. LaRusso was able to continue.

In the first period, Al Bianchi, 76ers guard, suffered a cut over his eye which necessitated two stitches.

Kerr's 23 points and 19 rebounds were instrumental in the 76ers' third straight victory. The game was close until 79-all late in the third quarter.

Hal Greer, the eventual high scorer for the 76ers with 24 points, and Kerr played leading roles as the home team spurted to a 98-89 lead early in the final quarter. The Lakers never were able to cut that margin appreciably.

Jerry West was tops for Los Angeles with 29 points.

COTTON NASH scored 33 points to lead Kentucky, shooting for the No. 1 national ranking, to a 101-81 victory over Notre Dame.

BENNIE LENOX fired in 53 points to break the All-College Tournament record in leading Texas A & M to a 99-87 win over Wyoming.

FRED CRAWFORD sank a 25-foot set shot in the final seconds to give St. Bonaventure a 64-62 victory over Drake, the Bonnies' seventh victory in a row.

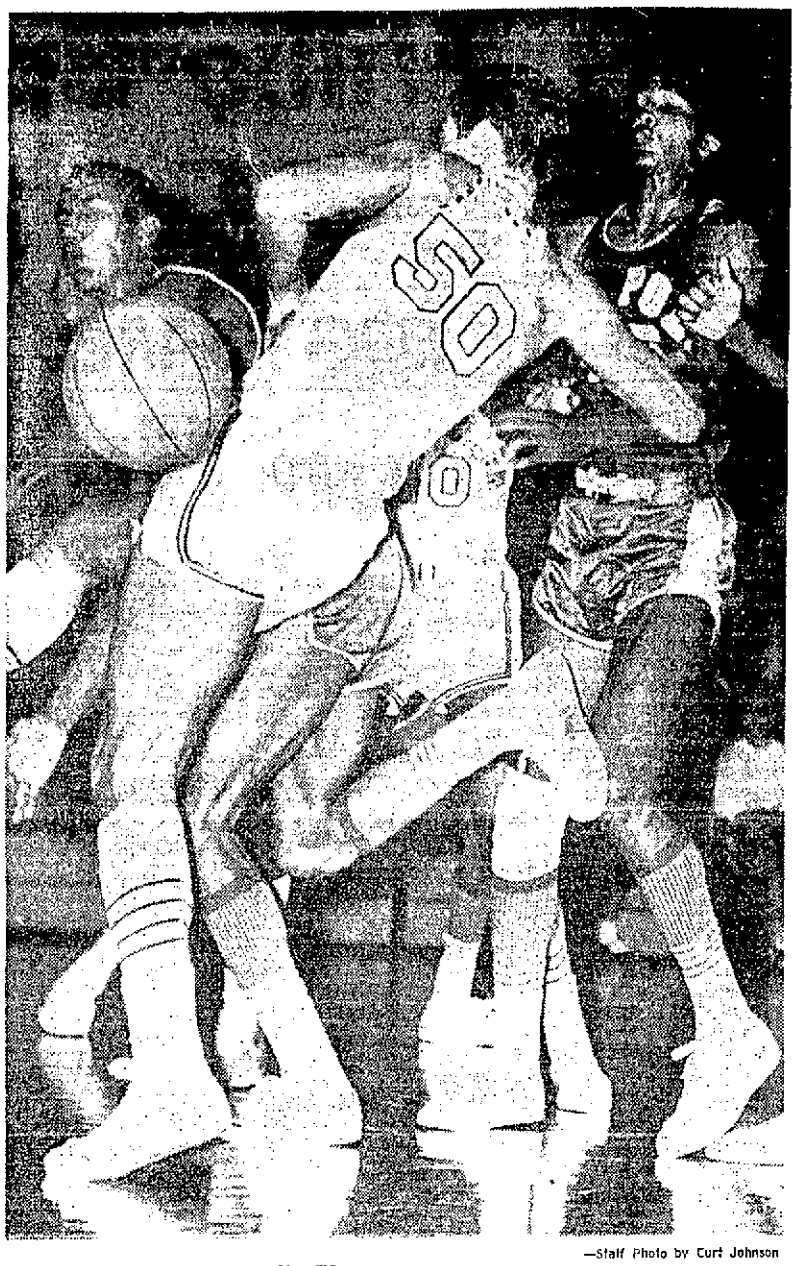

BOB YAHNE got the last four points for UC Santa Barbara as the Gauchos edged St. Mary's, 73-70.

LOYOLA of Chicago, its 22-game victory streak broken by Georgetown Friday night, bounced back on the clutch shooting of Ron Miller and Les Hunter to defeat Northwestern 88-82.

L. A. CITY rivals Loyola and Pepperdine collided in the West Coast Athletic Conference journey with the Lions scoring a 76-70 victory. In the same event, Ollie Johnson scored 27 points to pace USF to a 77-67 decision over Pacific.

WISCONSIN won the Milwaukee Classic for the second year in a row, clipping Georgia Tech, 102-84.

DENVER UPS LEAD

Blades Clipped in Overtime, 2-1

By AL LARSON
L. P-T Staff Writer

DENVER—The Denver Invaders continued their home ice success story by edging the L.A. Blades, 2-1, in sudden death overtime Saturday night before 5,374 fans at the Coliseum.

Defense man Bruce Draper's goal with only 25 seconds left in the extra 10-minute period capped Denver's 14th successive victory here and hiked their Western Hockey League advantage to 13 points over their nearest rival.

Denver scored first when Larry Keenan slapped in a 10-foot goal with 1:28 remaining in the first period.

Denver goalie Al Millar again was nearly letter perfect. The WHL's leading net-tender, with a 2.33 average for 34 games, lost his shutout when Leo LaBine deflected Bob Solinger's shot into the goal with 10:29 elapsed in the third period.

Rookie Jack Norris, equally as sharp in the goal, had to do nearly twice the work of Millar. Norris batted away 39 shots while Millar had to make but 21 saves.

* * * *

THE BLADES, who turned in a lackluster performance in losing 9-1 Friday, were a different club Saturday after a severe dressing down from Alf Pike earlier in the day.

L.A. plugged its defensive holes with tight checking. So rough was the first 20 minutes of play that three fights broke out and 24 minutes of penalties were assessed.

The first bout pitted Red Bownass and Denver's Rudy Migay with the game 3:28 along. Then Mo Oftebro and John Sleaver of the Invaders went at it, and before this fight was quelled another broke out between Connie Madigan of the Blades and Fred Hucul.

The game was L.A.'s eighth in overtime play and their record now stands 2-3-3.

L.A. plays its third game in less than 72 hours when they travel to San Francisco this morning and face the Seals in a 2:30 TV encounter.

First period — 1, Denver, Keenan (Draper) 18:32. Penalties—Bownass (LA), Migay (D) 3:28; Arnett (LA) 4:24; Collins (D) 10:19; Oftebro (LA), F. Hucul (D), Madigan (LA) and Sleaver (D) 12:09; Madigan (LA) 19:28.

Second period—None. Penalties—O'Ree (LA) 18:49.

Third period—2, Los Angeles, LaBine (Solinger, Johnson) 10:29. Penalties—Keenan (D) :14; Howe (D) 19:48.

Overtime—3, Denver, Draper (Collins, F. Hucul) 9:25.

Hot Poly Breezes to Title

Poly High's prolific shooting Rabbits raced to an 18-point halftime lead and never looked back as it routed Redlands, 78-52, to win the San Bernardino basketball tourney Saturday night.

The victory was the Hares' 11th in 12 tries this season and the second consecutive year they've won this classic. The 78 points kept Poly's season average near the 80 mark, tops in the CIF.

Center Mel Reed, soph forward Chuck Moore and senior guard Billy Richard made the 10-man all-tourney. This same trio won all-tourney honors recently at Dominguez.

Another soph, Trent Gaines, enjoyed a fine four games as did reserve center Bob Wiswell. Gaines was instrumental in Poly's pressing defense Saturday and Wiswell contributed 13 points.

POLY spurted away to a 13-5 lead with only four minutes gone and the decision was never in doubt. The Hares led by 22 at one stretch, then settled for a 44-26 intermission bulge. Moore had 12 and Reed 11 at halftime.

San Bernardino won third place by whipping Burbank, while Pat Watt's 28 points led Anaheim to a fifth-place finish.

Hoop Heroes

COTTON NASH scored 33 points to lead Kentucky, shooting for the No. 1 national ranking, to a 101-81 victory over Notre Dame.

BENNIE LENOX fired in 53 points to break the All-College Tournament record in leading Texas A & M to a 99-87 win over Wyoming.

FRED CRAWFORD sank a 25-foot set shot in the final seconds to give St. Bonaventure a 64-62 victory over Drake, the Bonnies' seventh victory in a row.

BOB YAHNE got the last four points for UC Santa Barbara as the Gauchos edged St. Mary's, 73-70.

LOYOLA of Chicago, its 22-game victory streak broken by Georgetown Friday night, bounced back on the clutch shooting of Ron Miller and Les Hunter to defeat Northwestern 88-82.

L. A. CITY rivals Loyola and Pepperdine collided in the West Coast Athletic Conference journey with the Lions scoring a 76-70 victory. In the same event, Ollie Johnson scored 27 points to pace USF to a 77-67 decision over Pacific.

WISCONSIN won the Milwaukee Classic for the second year in a row, clipping Georgia Tech, 102-84.

ROBERT MURRAY'S jump shot in the final second gave Syracuse an 86-85 overtime victory over Miami and the championship of the Hurricane Tournament.

Russell, Bellamy Top NBA Choices

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Russell of Boston and Walt Bellamy of Baltimore were the only unanimous selections Saturday for the National Basketball Association All-Star game.

Russell was one of three Celtics picked for the East squad while Bellamy was chosen along with teammate Terry Dischinger for the West. The 14th annual contest is scheduled Jan. 14 at Boston Garden.

Eight men were picked for each team by sports writers and sporiscasters who cover NBA games. The league's coaches will select two more players for each team next week.

* * * *

THE REMAINDER of the squads:

East: Boston—Tom Heinsohn, Sam Jones; Cincinnati —Oscar Robertson, Jerry Lucas, Wayne Embry; Philadelphia — Hal Greer; New York—Len Chappell.

West: Los Angeles — Jerry West, Elgin Baylor; St. Louis—Bob Pettit, Len Wilkens; San Francisco—Wilt Chamberlain, Guy Rodgers.

Detroit is the only team which did not place a player on the team. Thus, one of the West's last two players must come from the Pistons.

Cal Poly Scuttles 49er '5'

Long Beach State's final tune-up for its CCAA debut was in the key of A-flat Saturday night as Cal Poly of Pomona handed the 49ers a 108-83 trouncing.

A second-half combination of Bronco marksmanship and erratic 49er floor play turned what had been a nip-and-tuck affair into a rout and the seventh straight defeat for Long Beach.

It was the fifth in a row for the winners who are now 6-2.

* * * *

DURING one eight-minute stretch after intermission, the victors scored 25 points to Long Beach's six as the Broncos came up with a sparkling 58 shooting percentage in the second half.

Lyn Hodge led Long Beach with 18 points and reserve forward Ken Ammann did a good job with 12. Reserve guard Chuck Reich led Cal Poly with 18 and guard Lewis Smith was right behind with 16.

The Cal Poly JVs made it an all Pomona night by beating the 49er junior varsity 83-75 in the prelim.

Rams Bow, Pius X Rolls On

By BRUCE YOUNG

Glendale High grabbed off twice as many rebounds as Millikan Saturday night and knocked the Rams out of the Covina invitational basketball tourney with a 65-57 victory.

Millikan stayed close, thanks mainly to Bill Johnston's 21 points and timely outside shooting by Harold Timboe, from start to finish, but never led after midway in the second period.

The loss was only Millikan's third in 10 games. Glendale has a 10-4 record.

Pius X, with Dean Donnellon, Dick Zembal and Jim LaCour combining for 55 points, smashed West Covina, 73-56, for its 11th consecutive win, also in a championship bracket game.

Covina and Crawford were the others to advance to Monday night's semi-finals.

Jordan Thrashed by Dons

By RALPH OLMO

Dominguez High weathered a late Jordan rally Saturday night to score a 64-52 win over the Panthers in the finals of the Newport Harbor basketball tourney.

Jordan, now 6-2, fell behind early but made a big challenge with 7:14 left as it cut the Dons' margin to 49-45. Then Dominguez ran off eight consecutive points and the Panthers were finished.

Herb Hargate gathered four of those eight key points and wound up with 21. He, teammate Bob Miller, Jordan's Frank Savage and Walt Weller and Newport's Jack Ferguson made the all-tourney team. Savage had 14 points, Weller 15 Saturday night.

Newport, led by Ferguson, clobbered Huntington Beach to win third place.

WYNN

Man to Man

BUTKUS

BY JERRY WYNN

From the tippy-toes of his blacksmith's body to the burr-cut on top of a face locked in a "try me, I'm tough" scowl of defiance, Dick Butkus is all football player.

Just how good a player is the 6-3, 237-pound middle linebacker of Illinois can be gleaned from 1963 achievements which include 144 unassisted tackles, a barrage of "most valuable player" in the Big 10 and this comment from a Ram scout:

"If Butkus had been available for the draft this year, he would have been No. 1 on almost every club's list. He can't miss as a pro."

Just how good a player is Butkus may well hold the key to Illinois hopes of defeating Washington in the Rose Bowl Game.

How are you enjoying life in Southern California, Dick?

"Real nice . . . The weather was 12 below zero when we left Champaign so it's been fun to sit around the pool at the hotel in our shirt sleeves. We're just waiting for the game to begin. That's why we're here."

As a 60-minute player, do you have a preference between center and middle linebacker?

"I like defense best. It's more fun because you are in the action all the time. As middle linebacker, I have to watch up the middle but I also have to follow each play regardless where it goes."

You were credited with forcing seven fumbles this season. What is the secret?

"I don't have any. I use sort of a bear hug on tackles when I meet somebody head on or from the side. If I come up from behind to tackle, I kind of strip them down."

How did Illinois put a clamp on Sherman Lewis, Michigan State's great back?

"We just had good pursuit and made sure he didn't cut back. In other games, he let men come at him and then cut back by them. We were looking for this and he didn't hurt us."

Who was the best back you faced this season?

"No one in particular. DiGravio of Purdue was hard to catch on passes. Warfield of Ohio State was a good runner. The best back I ever played against was George Saimes of Michigan State last year."

Do you have a favorite among pro middle linebackers?

"No. I like to watch the pros play and hope to play pro ball after I graduate, but I've never patterned myself after anyone. They're all different. I've met Ray Nitschke of the Packers, who used to play at Illinois. He's a good guy."

Coming from Chicago, do you root for the Bears?

"They're all right but I don't root for them. I don't know which team I'll play for so I have to like them all. When I was a kid, I always rooted for the winners. I liked the Rams when they were good and had that real good fullback, Towler. I liked the Colts when they were champs."

Do you think the Bears will beat the Giants today?

"I think so. I know the Bears really want it. They have a real good pass defense, and if they can stop Tittle, they'll win. What I don't like about the Bears is their fans. They're always booing the players."

Is Illinois going to beat Washington in the Rose Bowl?

"I hope so. We had to win all our big games to get here. And this is the biggest of them all. We're going after this one."

Keep your eye on Illinois' big No. 50 Wednesday. Dick Butkus is all football player.

Texas-Navy Best Bowl Match

330,000 to See New Year's Day Classics

By the Associated Press

Texas, Navy and Illinois-college football's big three-and four others rated among the top eight in the final 1963 rankings will swing into action New Year's Day in four major post-season bowl games.

Approximately 330,000 spectators are expected to be on hand from Miami to Pasadena to watch the athletes, including five All-Americas. And virtually everyone who has the slightest interest in college football likely will be somewhere near a television set tuned to one of the games.

Based on the records, the headline attraction should be the Cotton Bowl game which sends Texas, the undefeated national champion, against an exciting Navy team which still is not convinced that it should be only No. 2. A crowd of 75,000 is expected to jam the big Dallas stadium for this one.

As a preliminary to the New Year's action, Southern Methodist and Oregon will meet in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., Dec. 31.

Here is the New Year's Day line-up:

COTTON BOWL — Texas (10-0, ranked No. 1) vs. Navy (9-1, No. 2).

ROSE BOWL — Illinois (7-1-1, No. 3) vs. Washington (6-4, unranked).

ORANGE BOWL — Auburn (9-1, No. 5) vs. Nebraska (9-1, No. 6).

SUGAR BOWL — Mississippi (7-0-2, No. 7) vs. Alabama (8-2, No. 8).

All four games will be televised nationally.

The Texas-Navy game is intriguing not only because it pairs the first and second ranked teams and two outstanding individuals — Roger Staubach and Scott Appleton — but because the teams have playing styles diametrically opposed.

The Texas Longhorns are a rugged, battering, ball-control team who have lost only two of their last 37 games and who will be playing their sixth bowl game in seven years. Of 10 victories this season, five were by margins of a touchdown or less. That's a sort of tribute to the rugged Texas defense that dares its opponents to try to score.

Navy plays an open, opportunist offense that is keyed to the skills of quarterback Staubach.

Auburn sends its fine option runner, Jimmy Sidle, against another standout quarterback, Nebraska's Dennis Claridge. That duel alone should make the game interesting.

When Alabama's disciplinarian-coach, Paul (Bear) Bryant, suspended star quarterback Joe Namath for violating training rules before the season's last game, Bama's hopes apparently fumbled. But Jack Hurlbut directed the Crimson Tide to a victory over Miami.

South Wins Civil Grid War, 21-14!

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Larry Rakestraw of Georgia put on story book aerial demonstrations Saturday, and with that advantage, the South won the Blue-Gray football game 21-14.

Rakestraw, the Southeastern Conference's leading passer and runnerup in total offense, found the target on two touchdown tosses and accounted for most of the distance on another scoring drive which traveled for 98 yards.

A partisan crowd of 20,000, watching the game under bright sun with the temperature in the mid 50s, saw the Rebels go out in front 14-0 in the first period, then held its breath as the never give up Yanks came storming back to tie the score.

Rakestraw, a 195-pound quarterback drafted by the Chicago Bears and the Houston Oilers, began clicking with his overhead shots in the final quarter and fired a 10-yard scoring pass to halfback Mallon Faircloth of Tennessee for the tiebreaker.

Faircloth previously had gone 44 yards on another touchdown pass.

Sports writers chose the Georgia passer as the game's outstanding player.

Pressure On in 50th Rose Bowl

have him for this game, but it seems certain he will not be able to run over the likes of Illinois while operating on a broken foot.

Junior Coffey ran for the first time at practice Saturday. He did not participate in any of the drills but merely jogged around the field.

Owens repeated his statement of Friday, "He doesn't figure in our game plans."

So this leaves only one game plan. If Washington upsets the six-points odds against it, Washington will do it with trickery.

Last time Jim Owens brought a team to the Rose Bowl it went against national champion Minnesota and won 17-7. Washington won with trickery.

THE IDEA will be to trick Dick Butkus, Illinois' all-America linebacker. There is some thought that Washington will attempt an old piece of strategy—cause great suffering to the opponents' best lineman with a two- and three-man blocking attack. It worked in the 1960 game when Wisconsin's all-America middle lineman Dan Lanphear was reduced to inactivity in the space of two quarters. He was described the next day as "a real dud."

It happened again in the '61 game when the Huskies took aim at all-America linebacker Tom Brown.

But the Husky coaches are optimistic about making it three wins in five years. It's difficult to see why, but they are.

competing team now that Washington's fullback has been hurt.

But both teams represent solidity of effort. The Illinois boys won the Big 10 championship by standing shoulder to shoulder and daring the opposition to knock them down. The opposition tried. The Illini line held.

Washington is a team that won by expediency. When it had its big fullback it used him to knock people down. When it didn't have him, Washington didn't win.

It isn't certain today whether Washington will have a half-hour on an uncovered half of the field.

Phil Wrigley's baseball park will be jammed to its capacity of 46,091 and three arena locations in Chicago expect to pack in 25,500 more for the first title game showing on closed circuit television. The Chicago area will be blacked out but the rest of the nation will see the show on network television.

Chicago elbowed Green Bay out of the way, stopping the Packers bid for a third straight Western title, by beating the Packers twice and rolling to an 11-1-2 season. George Halas, 68-year-old pro football pioneer who has been around the sport since 1920, earned the Coach of the Year award for his fine comeback in the Bears' first conference title season since 1956.

Blending Wade's short passing game with a ground offense that used Galimore, Bull and Marconi as its main weapons, the Bears finished 10th in total offense. But they were first in defense.

The Bears also led the league in interceptions, 36, with 144. The deep four of Bennie McRae, Dave Whitsell, Roosevelt Taylor and Richie Petitbon ruined many an afternoon for rival quarterbacks. The linebacker trio of Joe Fortunato, Bill George and Larry Morris has been called the best in the league.

The Giants made their big noise on offense with 57 touchdowns, and led the league with 448 points en route to an 11-3 record. They scored 39 of their TDs by passing and Tittle hit for a record 36. Tittle's accomplishments during the season gave him all-time NFL career records for most completions and most TD passes. However, the Giants also boast a solid defense that has intercepted 34 passes.

Both teams fell back on the field goal with regularity.

Giants, Bears Settle NFL Title at Chicago Today

and fewest points allowed, Don Chandler, who also punts for the Giants, made good on 18 of 29 tries and topped the league in scoring with 106 points. Roger Leclerc of the Bears hit on 13 of 23 field goals attempts.

Both teams pride themselves on their rugged defense. In fact, there have been a few bitter incidents in the regular season game they played last year and an exhibition game at Ithaca, N. Y., in August, won by the Bears 17-7. Ed O'Bradovich of the Bears threw a punch at Phil King of the Giants last December. In the summer game at Cornell, it was Erich Barnes, an ex-Bear, vs. Roger Davis and Andy Robustelli vs. the Bears' Ted Karras in two outbursts of extra curricular activity.

* * * * *

THE GIANTS, beaten the last two years by Green Bay, 16-7 and 37-0, are not proud of their 3-10 playoff record. They are 2-3 against the Bears and never have won a championship on the road, where their record is 0-6.

Chicago hadn't won a conference title since 1956, when the Giants clobbered them 47-7 at Yankee Stadium. They used to win a lot in the old days, but there had been a 10-year gap from 1946 before they won it in '56. Their over-all title record is 5-4.

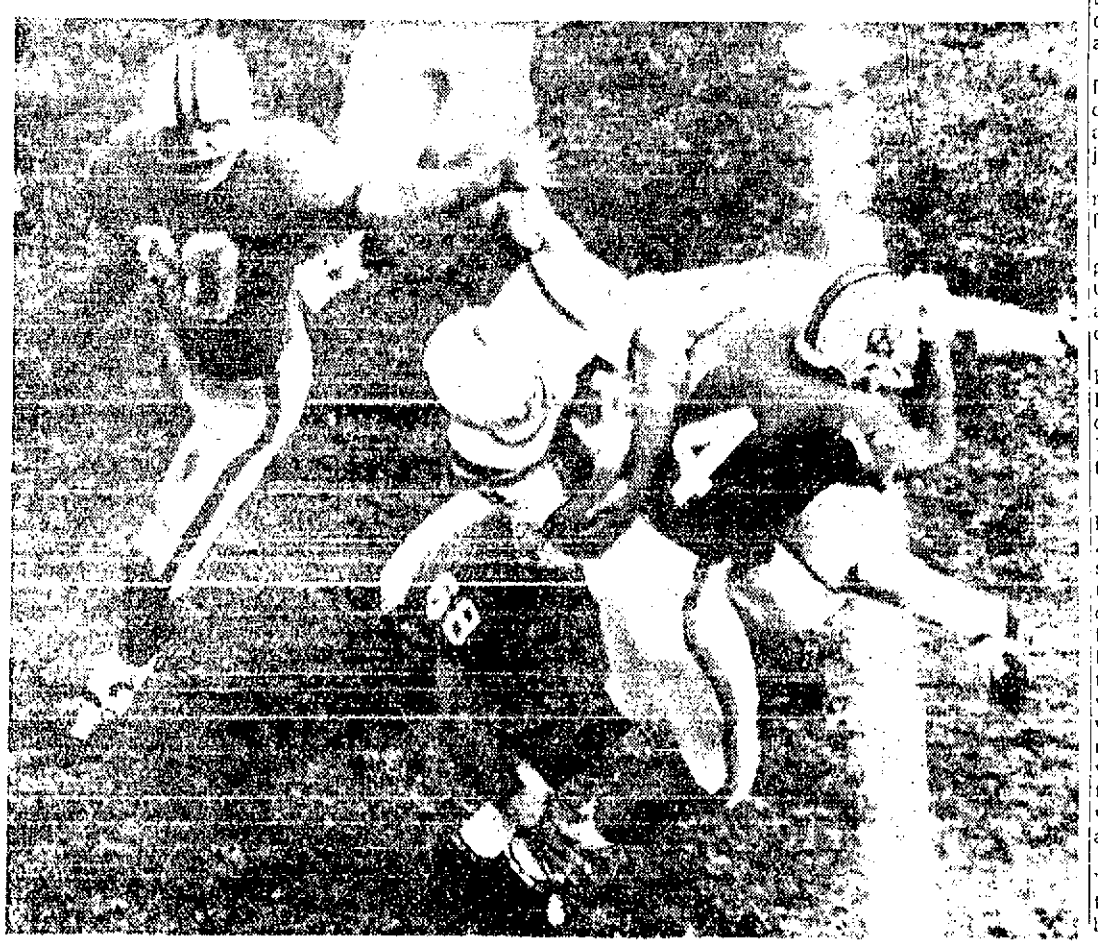

There is no danger of any tie game, like the five that threatened to decide the races during the regular season. If this game is tied, there will be a sudden death playoff, as in 1958, until somebody scores a safety, field goal or touchdown.

AIR FORCE PILOT GROUNDED

Air Force quarterback Terry Isaacson is viciously upended by North Carolina quarterback Junior Edge after picking up first down in first quarter of Gator Bowl contest. Richard Zarro rushes to Edge's aid.

Tar Heels' Blast Rocks Air Force

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Coach Jim Hickey, whose exuberant North Carolina football team carried him onto the field three seconds before the game ended, refused Saturday to call the Tar Heels' 35-0 victory over Air Force their best game of the year.

"We played like that all year," he said in the dressing room amid pandemonium. "We had a great season."

HICKEY SAID he couldn't single out any player as outstanding. "They were all good," he said.

Hickey said there was no secret to the Tar Heels' defense against Air Force triple-threat star Terry Isaacson.

"We played a lot of passers as good as he is this season," he said. "That's not to take away from him, but we played good passers all season."

Tackle and team co-captain Gene Sigmon said Carolina stopped Isaacson on the ground by spreading the for Lacey at the North Carolina bench as the game ended. Lacey, sitting on the bench using his helmet as a writing base, signed the contract.

"The ends contained him and ran him in toward the tackles," Sigmon said.

Powerful halfback Ken Willard, who scored the first touchdown, said "This was the greatest team effort we ever made. We had a great team this season."

Air Force coach Ben Martin said his team had turned in "our poorest effort of the season. We've had a long season and we came flat for this one."

Martin surveyed the somber dressing room and said, "I know my boys and what you saw today was not our team — not the same team I coached all year. They had a hot day and we were just flat."

Martin called Willard "as good a power runner as we've seen this year."

Isaacson echoed Martin's sentiments. "North Carolina did everything right and we couldn't contain them."

Willard tore through the Air Force defense as if it were tissue, and he had help from senior quarterback Junior Edge. Willard and Edge each scored but once, but they were instrumental in each of the Carolinians' drives.

Vikings Sign Gator Bowl Star

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—The Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League Saturday signed North Carolina end Bob Lacey, the team's sixth draft choice.

Lacey signed right after his team blasted the Air Force Academy, 35-0, in the Gator Bowl.

Viking coach Norm Van Brocklin and general manager Bert Rose were waiting in the Carolinians' dressing room after the game to sign the All-America end.

Giants to Try Ground, Halas Told

A story out of Chicago states that George Halas' celebrated "spy system" has discovered the New York Giants are planning to carry the attack to the Bears on the ground rather than through the air lanes in today's "Battle of the Century" for the NFL championship.

The Giants allegedly will concentrate on running plays with only occasional passing on the part of their ace thrower Y. A. Tittle, to combat the Bears' tremendous pass defense.

Coach Allie Sherman is said to believe the best way to beat the Bears is on the ground . . . that their most vulnerable point is defense against running plays.

That may be so, but while running is always important in football . . . professional titles usually are won in the air.

Y. A. TITTLE
Hoping to Control Ball

And while the Giants may strive for ball control through running . . . pro football men expect that in the end, it will be old "YAT" trying to pierce the Chicago secondary with his passing.

The Giants' alleged game plan of running may stem from the fact that Tittle doesn't seem to be up to his customary marksmanship when the weather is as frigid as it likely will be today in Chicago. Most optimistic forecasts place the temperature in the low 20s . . . which at least is a big improvement over the below-zero weather.

Two years ago in Green Bay with the field ringed with snow, the Giants' offense fell apart in the title game and the Packers won 37-0. Last winter, the cold wind whipped through Yankee Stadium with numbing force and, although the score was a more respective 16-7, the Giants lost to the Packers. However, New York's only score resulted from a blocked kick recovered in the end zone . . . not from its own offensive efforts.

SO NOW THE GIANTS AND TITTLE WILL FACE the Bears who have allowed the fewest completions of any team this season . . . 164 in 14 games.

A running attack will carry you only so far in pro football, so under normal conditions Tittle ultimately will have to take to the air, and that's when spotlight will be on the Bears' sensational deep secondary foursome of Roosevelt Taylor, Richie Petitbon, Bennie McRae and Dave Whitsell.

Taylor intercepted nine passes this season, Petitbon eight and Whitsell and McRae six each for the bulk of the Bears' league-leading total of 36 thefts.

All four are shorter and lighter than the majority of receivers they have had to cover. But they have tremendous straightaway speed . . . plus catlike moves and reactions.

TAYLOR, WHO IS IN HIS THIRD YEAR in the league, is only 5-11 and weighs 185 pounds. He was signed by the Bears as a free agent almost as an afterthought when defensive coach George Allen went down to Grambling College in Louisiana to try and sign Ernie Ladd, 300-pound tackle.

However, Ladd signed with the San Diego Chargers . . . and Allen returned to Chicago with Taylor. Pro football men say he plays roving safety with such reckless abandon that just begs for trouble. But he has great spring in his legs and his diving interceptions have been compared to some of Willie Mays' more fabulous catches in baseball.

McRae, 6-1 and 178, is only a second-year player but he's much like Taylor as he guards the left corner. He was Big Ten hurdle champion at Michigan and beat out the great J. C. Caroline for the job.

THEN THERE'S THE VETERAN PETITBON, an offensive quarterback star at Tulane who was said to be too brittle to make it in pro ball. However, he's been a defensive standout from the day he joined the professionals.

Whitsell is a special story in himself . . . a man who will have a little added incentive to beat the Giants today for he was once a member of the New Yok squad so briefly that he never got a chance to be fitted for a uniform.

It will be Whitsell's important job to cover Del Shofner, Tittle's favorite receiver.

Whitsell came to the Bears in a weird series of trades. In 1961, the Giants sent Mel Triplett, Bob Schmidt and Bob Schnelker to the newly-created Minnesota club for Zeke Smith and Whitsell.

Whitsell had been Detroit's contribution to the Vikings in the special "draft" to stock the new club.

THE GIANTS TOOK WHITSELL IN TRADE in order to complete another deal for Jim Podoley and Bob Walton of the Redskins. However, Dave refused to report.

In his place, Washington said it would accept a placekicker, but the Giants had none to spare. Thus, they sent Lee Riley to the Bears for kicker Joe Aveni.

Now it was Riley's turn to refuse to go to Chicago. However, Whitsell said he would report to the Bears . . . and the complicated deal finally was consummated with Chicago adding another vital cog to its great defensive machine.

A machine that will get its ultimate test today.

Patriots Wait for Chargers After Victory

'Babe's Best Day' as Bills Bow, 26-8

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Head coach Mike Holovak of the Boston Patriots, whose strong men had just crushed the Buffalo Bills, 26-8, in the American Football League's Eastern Division playoff game, summed it up this way:

"We're No. 1 in this league," Holovak said again and again. His blue shirt was spattered with soft drink as four or five of his Patriots waved bottles over his head.

"It was Babe's best day," Holovak said. His quarterback, Babe Parilli, hit on 14 of 35 passes for 292 yards against the Bill defenders. "He was just great, they all were — especially that defense," Holovak added.

Boston's defensive line held the Bills to a slim seven yards rushing and six of those came in the first half.

Parilli threw two touchdown passes and league scoring champion Gino Cappelletti kicked four field goals and two conversions for the triumph.

With Parilli hitting fullback Larry Garron with both scoring passes, the Patriots completely dominated the game, first division playoff in the AFL's four-year history, in snow-covered War Memorial Stadium before a crowd of 33,044.

Boston will meet the Western Division champion Chargers in San Diego, Jan. 5, for the AFL crown.

Parilli redeemed himself after a disappointing regular season by his touchdown passes of 59 and 17 yards to Garron while Boston's top-ranked defense held Buffalo to just seven yards rushing.

Bills quarterbacks Jack Kemp and rookie Daryle Lamonica both were treated roughly. Kemp left late in the first half with the Bills trailing, 16-0, and Lamonica, the former Notre Dame star, did not have much luck until firing a 93-yard scoring pass to Elbert Dubenion with 1:31 left in the third period to avert a shutout.

Lamonica hit John Tracey with a two-point conversion pass.

Parilli's 17-yarder to Garron and Cappelletti's field goal, from 36 yards, wound up the scoring in the final quarter.

YES, VIRGINIA, THOSE WERE PROS
Yes, Virginia Country Club, those were pros on your fairways Saturday. Billy Maxwell and Bobby Nichols follow path of Mike Souchak's iron shot during pro-amateur event.

67 Nets 2-Stroke Victory

George Knudson, a slim, bespectacled swinger from Winnipeg, Manitoba, stroked a sensational 67 Saturday afternoon to walk away with individual honors at the pro-member tournament at Virginia Country Club.

Each of the competing pros was paired with three club members and the field was divided into three flights.

Knudson edged out Terry Dill by one stroke. Tommy Jacobs, Bob Harrison, Jimmy Clark and Mike Souchak were tied for third at 69.

* * * *

THE TEAMS of Jacobs-John Walter, Claude Harmon-Sol Deeble and Knudson-Ray Spawr deadlocked for first place in the A flight of the pro-amateur.

Knudson, a touring pro of five years, and partner Bob Sprague shared the class B title along with Harmon and Bob Cree while Skee Riegel and Fred Yeager took C division honors.

The tournament was a tuneup for the play-for-pay boys, who begin competition in the Los Angeles Open at Rancho Friday.

Pro flight—George Knudson, 67; Terry Dill, 68; tie among Tommy Jacobs, Bob Harrison, Jimmy Clark and Mike Souchak, 69. the next play, he called an end sweep and we lost three yards. It may have cost us a touchdown."

Coach Jim Sutherland of the West admitted he may have sacrificed some offensive strength to keep the defense strong.

But he said a defensive setup on a field goal and conversion attempt saved the day for his team.

"We put an extra man out at the end of the line and he raced across to block the kick fortunately both times, said the coach.

Brown said he had not decided yet whether he'd play pro football or baseball.

"I thought I liked football best after the 1962 season," he said. "Then I hit .360 last spring for the NCAA champion baseball team at USC and I'm going to play baseball again in the spring. I'll see after that. Then it will be a matter of money."

This was one of the greatest defensive battles ever waged in the annual Shrine affair before a sellout crowd at Kezar Stadium.

There was no scoring until late in the third period when Brown caught a pass from Don Trull of Baylor and scooted 25 yards for the touchdown.

* * * *

IT APPEARED as if the West had the game in the bag until the waning moments when little Lewis, the Spartans' all-America, scooted around end for a touchdown to tie it. The kick failed and that was it.

Trull played quarterback for all of the game for the West except for the final four minutes when Bill Munson of Utah State took over.

An East drive in the final minute was stopped when Brown intercepted a pass—his second of the game—on the three-yard line.

On total yardage, the East outgained the West by a big margin on the ground but had a deficit in the passing department.

Another USC player, Pete Beathard, who quarterbacked the Trojans throughout the 1963 season, played a tremendous game on defense.

QUALIFYING STARTS MONDAY

Palmer, Boros to Play in L.A. Tee Open Friday

By JERRY WYNN

Arnold Palmer and Julius Boros will play in the 38th Los Angeles Open; Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player won't, and 295 other golfers aren't sure today whether they will or they won't.

They are the unfortunate who face a stiff qualifying test Monday to gain admittance into the $55,000 tournament at Rancho Friday through next Monday.

A field of 164 pros will compete for 34 berths—a ratio of one spot for 5½ players—at Los Coyotes, Yorba Linda, Riviera and Los Angeles county clubs.

Aspirants include such well-known pros as Stan Leonard, Bill Collins, Jim Ferree and Marty Furgol. Long Beach area hopefuls are Pinky Stevenson, Jack Doss, Monty Blodgett, Dick Carmody, Gerald Zar, Wayne Otis and Bob Marshall.

Amateurs will play by themselves this year at Brentwood and Wilshire, and there will be 131 of them battling for only nine places—a ratio of one spot for 14½ players! Long Beach area braves are Bill McCormick, Mike Fedderly, Roger Cleveland, Jim Ferrie, Jack Gates, Ernie Combs, Bob Bouchier and city champion Jim Kline.

Qualifying survivors will join 115 exempt pros and one exempt amateur—1963 winner Larry Bouchey—to form the field of 159 which will tee off Friday morning.

FORTY-FOUR of the top 50 money winners of 1963 will tangle for the $9,000 first-place purse which Palmer won this year and used as a springboard to an all-time dollar haul of $128,230.

Among Arnold's awesome adversaries are Boros, Gene Littler, Billy Casper, Doug Sanders, Art Wall, Doug Ford, Jay Hebert, Tommy Bolt, Tony Lema Dow Finsterwald, Mike Souchak and Phil Rodgers.

Practice rounds are scheduled at Rancho starting Monday and a $5,000 Pro-Celebrity event will be held Thursday. Season tickets, priced at $7.50, are on sale at all Southland courses.

Sharon's Naked Reverse Tangerine Smasheroo

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Sharon Miller (male quarterback) passed for two touchdowns and ran for another to lead Western Kentucky to a 27-0 victory over the Coast Guard Academy in the 18th annual Tangerine Bowl football game Saturday night.

Miller connected for only two passes during the game, but both went for scores.

The 5-11, 160-pounder scooted around his own left end midway through the second period on a naked reverse for 14 yards and a touchdown. Sam Clark kicked the extra point.

While Miller supplied the offensive show, the defensive unit of Western Kentucky was outstanding. The Coast Guard was held to a net rushing total of five yards for the game.

Boston Draws Gillman Praise

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Head coach Sid Gillman of the Western Division champion San Diego Chargers had high praise for the Boston Patriots who nailed down the Eastern Division AFL title today against Buffalo.

The two teams will meet here next Sunday for the league championship.

"Just how well the Chargers will do next Sunday against the league's best defensive club remains to be seen," Gillman said.

K.C.'s Best Offer Nixed by Finley

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City offered Charles O. Finley a new deal Saturday for use of Municipal Stadium by his American League baseball Athletics and Finley promptly turned it down.

"I don't consider this an offer," Finley said in Chicago. "Actually there is nothing new about this offer. That was one-half of our proposal."

Mayor Ilus W. Davis had said the offer was the best in organized baseball.

The Athletics' lease for the stadium expires Dec. 31 but the city said the club could keep its office and equipment there until Jan. 10 without rent or penalty.

* * * *

THE CITY offered Finley a five-year contract with no options or escape clauses. The city would receive 5 per cent of paid attendance and 7½ per cent of revenue from concessions but would take only $50,000 a year until Finley had been repaid $300,000 he spent on stadium improvements.

"That was one-half of our proposals," Finley said. "The other half was four 4-year options whereby we would pay no rent unless the paid attendance amounted to 900,000. Then we'd pay 5 per cent of the entire gate retroactive to the first paid admission."

Ham, Mulloy Duos Advance

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Ham Richardson and Cliff Rickey won their quarter-finals doubles match in the Sugar Bowl Tennis Tournament Saturday.

The Dallas duo bested Lee Fentress and Jim Beste, both of Baton Rouge, La., 6-3, 6-4.

In another quarter-final match, Gardnar Mulloy of Miami and Chuck Pasarell of Puerto Rico scored a three-set victory over Crawford Henry and Ned Neely, both of Atlanta.

Favor Oregon in Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Southern Methodist, which stopped two of the nation's highly ranked football teams by checking their outstanding quarterbacks, gets another chance Tuesday against Oregon and its talented Bob Berry in the 29th annual Sun Bowl.

Southern Methodist, a four-point underdog, has the poorest record of any team in a bowl game this year, 4-6. Two of these victories, however, came against bowl-bound Navy, 32-28, and Air Force, 10-0.

Oregon coach Len Casanova wasn't talking about the Mustangs' record, but about SMU tailbacks Billy Gannon and John Roderick.

"They scare you with all their speed," he said. "They've got one of the fastest teams we've seen or heard about. Those two guys can get one step on the defense and cross the goal line."

Casanova was impressed with his own team, too—so much so that he called off two-a-day scrimmages after Friday's controlled scrimmage. Oregon had been able to work out just three times during December because of exams.

Berry, a 190-pound junior, completed 101 of 171 attempts for 1,675 yards and 16 touchdowns.

SHOULDERED U.S. LOAD

Champagne for U.S. Cuppers

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) —There is nothing in the world like a champagne rinse for your hair—especially if it is applied by a United States ambassador just after you have won the Davis Cup.

That was the opinion of Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., and Chuck McKinley of St. Ann., Mo., Saturday after they captured the international tennis trophy for America for the first time since 1958.

McKinley, the sturdy acrobat, clinched the cup with a 10-12, 6-2, 9-7, 6-2 victory over 19-year-old John Newcombe in the decisive fifth match. Earlier, Roy Emerson had squared the series with a 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 conquest of Ralston.

The triumphant youngsters had hardly reached their dressing rooms when the huge silver trophy was brought in.

While the athletes stood around the cup for photographers, the U. S. ambassador to Australia, William C. Battle, poured champagne over the heads of the two American stars.

"You will get pneumonia," someone yelled.

"I don't care. It's worth it," Ralston replied.

The ambassador served as a messenger boy when fans at the door asked for players' autographs.

"Hey, matey, get McKinley's autograph for me," one Australian yelled.

"Certainly, just a minute," Battle said. Soon he was running back and forth from the front door to the dressing room getting autographs upon request.

McKinley said the Davis Cup victory provided him with particular satisfaction.

"I hope we have shown many of these people that we are not what some people have said we were," he said. "We have proved we are not a bunch of stinkers."

McKinley was a member of the 1960 team which was accused of smashing up a dressing room in Perth after losing to the Italians and then causing a commotion on an airplane.

Also recently a Sydney newspaper called the Americans "a bunch of stinkers" and "the poorest sportsmen the game has known."

Bob Kelleher, the soft-spoken lawyer from Los Angeles who captained the team, said Saturday's triumph was his swan song.

"I'm through. I'm finished," he sighed, indicating that the only reason for stepping down was the strain. He has been with the team almost constantly for the past six months.

"I think we beat a great Australian team. I wonder if anybody ever has played better tennis than Roy Emerson here. Or if anyone ever stood up better in his initiation than John Newcombe. But our kids beat them."

430 Surf Stars Get Acclaim

By DAVE TAYLOR

A record field of more than 430 crack Southland surf stars completed Santa Monica's second Milwinter Surfing Championship event Saturday to mark the largest competition in U.S. Surfing Assn. history.

The surfers finished three days of competition with their final elimination events in excellent surf Saturday.

Staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the surfing championships got TV coverage over five local and national network channels.

The Midwinter, which last year attracted only 184 contestants, included a unique new feature for surfing competition — the first National Skate Board Championships.

* * * *

IT WAS the first contest on record to include an official event for skate boards on which young prospective surfers often learn the fundamentals of balance and movement for surfing by riding the small boards on the wet sand at waters edge even before they have learned how to swim.

Final winners in the various Midwinter events who received trophies at a special Surf-Fair at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium Saturday night were:

Boys (17 years and under)—(1) John Baxter, Venice; (2) Alf Laws, Hermosa Beach; (3) Mark Martinson, Long Beach.
Skim Board Championships — (1) Chris DeLance, Long Beach; (2) Pat Moriarty, Los Angeles; (3) Bruce Laserna, N. Hollywood.
Men's Open—(1) Skipper "Fats" Harwood, Los Angeles; (2) Bob Moore, Palos Verdes; (3) Johnny Fain, Malibu.
Men's Open Body Surfing — (1) Jim Graham, Santa Monica; (2) Jon Price, Pacific Palasades; (3) Warner Nelson, Venice.
Women's Open Body Surfing — (1) Charlene Price; (2) Joselle Lepardere; (3) Mary Lou McGinnis.
Men's Surfboard Sprint Race — (1) Bob Moore, Palos Verdes; (2) Bill Bragg, Redondo Beach; (3) Roy Seaman, Malibu.
Women's Surfboard Sprint Race — (1) Gail Yarbrough; (2) Duline McGough, Long Beach; (3) Robin Leedy.
National Skate Board Championship—(1) Squeak Blanck, Playa del Rey; (2) Johnny Frels, Brentwood; (3) Tommy Ryan, San Diego.

Smarting Rockets Face Angels at Blair

By FRANK WHITNEY

With the bitter taste of defeat still lingering from last week's loss to the Los Angeles Eagles and with the hot breath of the Huntington Park Dodgers on the backs of their necks, the Long Beach Rockets take on the always dangerous Los Angeles Angels today at Blair Field at 1:30.

The Rockets had their eight-game winning streak stopped last week and at the same time had their league-leading lead shaved to only a half-game over Huntington Park. Long Beach is 8-1 with three games left and the Dodgers are 8-2 with two games remaining.

Terry Richards is the probable starting pitcher for the Rockets.

Exciting News About Lake Mohave

J. C. Morse, former trucking contractor here and a former president of the Long Beach Sportsman's Club but now retired and enjoying life at Cottonwood Cove, Lake Mohave, rolled into town yesterday with some great news about Cottonwood Cove and the lake.

He brought along several trout in the one- and two-pound range and this writer had a good sample of those rainbows that are being planted by the Nevada Fish and Game Department.

Strangely enough, those trout were not caught in the Colorado River below Davis Dam, the mighty empoundment that holds back the waters of Mohave Lake, but right out in front of the Cottonwood Cove resort which is 29 miles uplake from the dam.

For those unfamiliar with the lakes on the Colorado River, Hoover Dam backs up the tremendous Lake Mead, famous for its bass fishing, boating and water-skiing. Below Hoover Dam, the Colorado River flows onward, sometimes at fast speed and feeds the lake called Mohave.

Davis Dam is almost 200 miles from Hoover Dam and a great portion of the lake is backed up toward Willow Beach, a resort long famous for its trout fishing.

Below Davis Dam, the Colorado flows freely again until it starts forming Lake Havasu behind the mighty Parker Dam.

NOW, LET'S TAKE A LOOK at what is happening to Cottonwood Cove, probably the most famous resort on that lake. Gordon Colton, manager of a syndicate, has just bought the resort and plans a number of improvements.

There will be new docks, a new marina (the government is planning to dredge a large area), boat houses, an air-conditioned motel and 100 additional units for trailer parking. Also, a new launching ramp is being planned.

Even now, the Cottonwood Cove Corporation, as the syndicate is known, will launch anybody's craft for $1.50.

Coming on top of the news that several Long Beach men had bought the lease and physical properties at Temple Bar, Lake Mead, it begins to look as though there will be real competition between the Colorado River lakes.

One of the natural advantages of Cottonwood Cove is the presence of rainbow trout as well as bass. Trout are rare in Lake Mead, but its bass fishing can not be excelled anywhere in the west.

Another advantage of Cottonwood Cove is that it is only 288 miles from Long Beach, almost 100 miles shorter than the distance to Temple Bar. There are closer marinas on Mead, but the fishing is not as good as it is at Temple Bar and beyond.

THE BEST WAY TO REACH Cottonwood Cove is through Baker. Continue along the Las Vegas highway until you reach Wheaton Springs, where a sign points to Cottonwood. Until just recently that section of the route was a dusty country road through Tipton. It has now been paved all the way to the cove.

Morse makes the flat prediction that Mohave will be the greatest trout-fishing lake in the west within a few years. And he has some authority for his statement. The Nevada DFG feels the same way.

That state's DFG, having few places to stock trout, is dumping tons of rainbows into Mohave. The water remains cold even in the terrific hot months of July and August and the trout merely find another level. There is no dieoff.

Also Nevada's DFG has planted great quantities of shad for forage fish and has found that the reproduction in Mohave is tremendous.

Morse says that the F7 and X4 flatfish have been the outstanding lures with the trollers. Super-Dupers also have had a part in the fish catches. Morse's largest fish has been a 7½-pounder.

His grandson, Bill Ingram, who plays trumpet in the Wilson High School band, has had his share of luck at Cottonwood, taking two weekly jackpots through the summer period. Morse and his wife live in a large trailer at Cottonwood the year 'round.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Boy Scouts of the entire South Bay-Long Beach area will compete against each other next Saturday at the Long Beach Casting Club pool in Recreation to determine the winners who will appear at the Sports, Vacation and Travel Show at Shrine Exposition Hall, Los Angeles.

The three top casters in the Cub, Scout and Explorer divisions will be chosen after the tournament here. The winners each will receive Zebco fishing outfits and will compete again in Boy Scout Council finals on Jan. 26, the closing night of the show.

The Casting Club here is anticipating more adult entries in the same show this year. Women and juniors will have special divisions. Those wishing more information on the show and the tournament should communicate with Earle Thomas or O. T. Rosecrans. Thomas is handling details of the Scouts' competition next Saturday.

Not all sportsmen will be sitting in the TV room watching parades and games on New Year Day. Some of them will be taking part in the hunters' field shoot and the trapshooters' classic, 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Long Beach-Dominguez Gun Club.

This is the third year that Bob Davidson, LBDGC owner, has staged this shoot and it has become very popular.

Hard 1st, Moffitt 2nd in Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Darlene Hard of Los Angeles, continued her domination of women's tennis in the United States when she was named today as the No. 1 player for the fourth straight year.

Despite a somewhat disappointing year in which she again failed to win the Wimbledon crown and was eliminated in the quarter-finals of the U.S. nationals, Miss Hard was considered the best of her sex by the women's ranking committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

* * * *

BILLIE JEAN Moffitt of Long Beach, who seems to perform best overseas, was moved into the No. 2 spot, her highest ranking ever. Billie Jean advanced to the Wimbledon finals this year before losing to Margaret Smith of Australia.

Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., was ranked third and completing the top 10 were Carole Saldwell of Santa Monica, Gwyneth Thomas of Shaker Heights, Ohio; Judy Alvarez of Tampa, Fla.; Carol Hanks of St. Louis, Mo.; Tory Fretz of Harrisburg, Pa.; Mrs. Donno Floyd Fales of Arlington, Va., and Julie Heldman of New York.

Miss Caldwell and Miss Moffitt were ranked No. 1 in women's doubles.

L.B. Girl in Surfing Lead

HONOLULU (AP) — Defending champion Nancy Nelson of Long Beach and Hawaii's Anona Naone, the 1961 women's champion, led 12 qualifiers into the senior women's finals of the international surfing championships as a crowd estimated at 5,000 braved rainy weather at Makaha Beach Saturday.

Miss Nelson, 17, lives in Long Beach but is a member of the host Waikiki Surf Club. She was one of seven Californians to qualify for the women's finals.

Others included a mother and daughter team, Marge and Candy Calhoun from Long Beach Surf Club.

Megaton Wins in Malibu

Hill Rise and Nearco Blue emerged Saturday as early Western Derby contenders by each winning $50,112 divisions of the split California Breeders' Championship Stakes while More Megaton captured the $30,000 Malibu on Santa Anita's triple stakes program.

For Hill Rise and Nearco Blue, both late-developing colts, it was their fourth straight win each and both did the job by margins of around three lengths over a dozen rivals who represented the top juveniles in the West.

But More Megaton had to unleash an explosive charge in the stretch to score a head victory in the Malibu as the favored B. Major finished a well-beaten eighth.

* * * *

ALL THREE races were at the same distance of seven furlongs and Hill Rise and More Megaton won their battles in the identical time of 1:23 flat. Nearco Blue's time was two-fifths of a second slower.

In the first division of the Breeders' Stakes, raced as the sixth race on the program, jockey Don Pierce was forced to come wide off the turn while making his move. But Hill Rise responded quickly and pulled away from Real Good Deal, who finished second while Count Charles was third.

Off his Northern races, Hill Rise was installed the favorite of the crowd of 43,897 fans and he returned $4.40, $2.80 and $2.60. Real Good Deal paid $3.80 and $3.20. Count Charlese paid $5.00 to show.

The Malibu Stakes for 3-year-olds was the next race and More Megaton, a frequently-raced Western sophomore, did not appear to have any part of it in the early stages.

But when the field of 13 came off the turn into the stretch, jockey Ray York found a hole on the rail and the colt quickly moved from fifth to challenge the pace-setting Legation in the final sixteenth. Under a hard drive More Megaton finally got his head out in front at the wire. More Megaton returned $17.40, $7.40 and $5.00 across the board.

* * * *

THE SECOND division of the Breeders Championship looked for a time like it might be a runaway for the only filly in the race, Leisurely Kin. But Nearco Blue caught her in the stretch and with Manuel Ycaza driving the colt hard he came on to win by three lengths.

More Megaton was appearing for the 33rd time this year and it climaxed a big year in which he went from Agua Caliente to California and then achieved his biggest win Saturday.

ORANGE BOWL MEET MONDAY

Pennel Returns to Record Miami Launching Pad--Eyes 17-6 Vault

MIAMI (UPI)—John Pennel comes back to the scene of the highest pole vault in history on Monday night hoping to raise his world's record to a fantastic 17 feet, six inches.

The cloudbuster from Northeast Louisiana State College set the current mark of 17 feet, ¾ inch at the University of Miami track where he will feature an Orange Bowl Invitation track meet by attempting to smash his own stratospheric standard.

The fact that he "almost" cleared 17-6 twice in practice — each time knocking off the bar with his hand after he was all but over— led to expectations that he might break the record under meet conditions.

Two other world champions will be in action as more than 50 athletes compete from Furman, Grambling, Nebraska, Harvard, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, New York University, Houston, Auburn, Florida, Miami and Florida State.

Bob Hayes, holder of the world 100-yard dash mark of 9.1, heads the sprint field while Gary Gubner of NYU, who owns the world shot put mark of 62 feet, five inches, leads the whales into action.

Hayes, from Florida A&M, will square off against a field which includes Dave Styron of Northeast Louisiana State College, world record holder in the 60-yard dash, and Dick Stebbins of Grambling, who has done 9.3 in practice. Hayes also features the entries for the 220-yard dash.

The 440-yard dash pits Nebraska's Big Eight champion, Gill Gebo, against a field which includes Styron. The latter has done 46 flat in practice while Gego has shaded 47 seconds.

Pole vaulter C. K. Yang and miler Tom O'Hara are stars in a field of some 70 athletes competing in the 30th annual Sugar Bowl track meet today.

The weatherman expects temperatures in the high 50s for the eight-event outdoor games.

fered its first defeat the night before by 18 points at the hands of UCLA, broke out of a slow start and defeated Pittsburgh, 95-80, Saturday night. The Wolverines finished third in the tournament standings.

USC, FINISHING in sixth place, did better than expected. The Trojans missed fifth place by the narrowest of margins. They were beaten by NYU, which entered the tournament ranked No. 10 in the nation, by a 70-69 score Saturday afternoon.

The Trojans led all the way against NYU until the final 16 seconds.

To Yale went the dubious distinction of finishing last in the eight-team three-day affair. The Ivy Leaguers were beaten 69-66 Saturday afternoon by West Virginia.

'AUTO' BE EXCITING
Tight action like this will be in store for stock car fans this afternoon when NASCAR stages a 50-lap Grand Prix at Ascot Park.

GRELLE TO DEFEND INDOOR MILE TITLE

Jim Grelle of the Los Angeles Track Club, sixth fastest miler of all-time, will compete in the L. A. Invitational meet in the L. A. Sports Arena, Jan. 18, meet director Herschel Smith said Saturday.

Grelle, 1960 Olympian, has a best career time of 3:56.1. Grelle routed mile record holder Peter Snell in Los Angeles last year on the boards, and he is unbeaten in four Invitationals.

Tickets are now on sale at the L. A. Sports Arena.

OK 'ANITA RACE PACT

Tentative agreement on a new three-year labor contract between the Federation of California Racing Associations and the Building Service Employees International Union was reached Saturday following all-day negotiations.

Clark Garners Another Prix

EAST LONDON, South Africa (UPI) — Jim Clark of Scotland Saturday became the first racing driver to win seven Grand Prix events in a season by winning the South African classic in a V-8 Lotus.

Clark finished the 207-mile, 85-lap race 46 seconds ahead of Dan Gurney of Riverside, Calif., who was at the wheel of a Brabham-Climax. Britain's Graham Hill, the 1962 world champion, took third place in a BRM, another 50 seconds off the pace.

Kelso Top Future for S.A. 'Cap

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (UPI) — Mrs. Richard C. DuPont's Kelso, four-time horse of the year, has been installed the favorite in the Caliente race course future book on the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap, the opening line disclosed today.

As a tribute to the great gelding, odds-maker Tony Alessio installed Kelso at 4-1 although he is currently in Florida and it was doubtful, although possible, that the star would be flown to Santa Anita for the race.

In another surprise, the filly sensation of 1963, Lamb Chop, was listed as second choice in the winter book at odds of 6-1. No filly or mare ever has won the Santa Anita although such great ones as Two Lea and Miss Grillo attempted it.

WITH WAGERING going four places, Kelso was listed as 8-5 to place, 4-5 to show and 2-5 for fourth. Lamb Chop was quoted as 2-1 to place, even money to show and 1-2 for fourth.

The erratic but speedy Crimson Satan, who deadheated for place in the 1963 Santa Anita Handicap, was listed at 15-1 while Olden Times, who was last in that race but second the year before, was quoted at 8-1 as was the speedy Native Diver.

Fourth in the prices came Cyrano and B. Major at 10-1, the line not taking into account Cyrano's track record sprint victory on opening day in the Palos Verdes Handicap nor B. Major's appearance in Saturday's Malibu Stakes.

Stan Mans No Desk for Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan Musial is a vice president without a desk.

"When I need one I borrow it," said the St. Louis Cardinals' most famous veep.

Musial, 43, was named a Cardinal vice president when he retired as an active player at the end of the 1963 season, his 22nd year with the Redbirds. He holds more major league records than any man alive.

"I belong on the field-not in a chair," Musial said during an interview in the Cards' Busch Stadium general office. "I don't like desks, and in this job I don't need them too often But I like my work."

The Man's new assignment has many facets. He represents the Cardinals at major and minor league meetings, scouts other teams, acts as an agent in quest of talent, and handles some public relations work.

And Musial looks every bit the executive.

Neatly dressed in a gray suit, Musial and Cardinal general manager Bing Devine looked over some scouting reports. Musial signed some papers, then cracked:

"I hope the desk work dosen't drive me to make a comeback next year. But on second thought, I couldn't afford the stamps."

He explained that after his announced retirement he received "about 50,000 letters and telegrams from all over the country. My secretary is working full time through the winter trying to answer the boxes and boxes of mail."

Kickers, Thor II Collide Today

The Long Beach Soccer Club will face Thor II today at noon at Pan American Park in the first game of a twin bill. The Fullerton Rangers play Thor I at 2:30.

Long Beach tied Hermosa, 3-3, last Sunday and its record to date is five wins, four losses and the tie. The Kickers still are without the services of ... Tom Deaplage and ... forward Vince ...

LAS VEGAS BARE FACTS

Nudes Big Draw

By DAVID FARMER

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Three bare-breasted showgirls descended from the ceiling on small suspended discs.

They didn't know it, but they were pushing a trend that might one day force Las Vegas to compete with Broadway in the show field.

Down on the stage, the curtain rose and dozens more girls — some clad elegantly, some almost invisibly — threaded through intricate maneuvers amid flashing lights and crashing music.

It was the spectacular and opulent opening of the newest edition of the Stardust Hotel's Lido De Paris French revue.

The three bare show girls revolved slowly on their platforms in a bath of light. Then the discs silently ascended to become part of the ceiling again.

* * * *

ON THE sprawling stage, the size of a basketball court, the show moved massively through its two hours. It was studded by such unexpected touches as:

The startling, whirling flight of a covey of doves from a spotlight booth to the stage.

A tropical island destroyed by fire and a hurricane.

A live white horse and rider, galloping in the basement and reflected to the audience by a huge mirror.

A circus with performing seals and flimsily caged tigers.

An ice duet, and a grand finale featuring costumed and half-costumed girls perched in the backdrop while fireworks sprayed sparks behind them.

The audience was fairly panting when it left.

* * * *

THE STARDUST installed the new show, with a cast of 70, even though the previous edition was drawing 1,000 persons twice nightly — three times on Saturday —every day of the year.

Business was so good, in fact, that the half-clad showgirls are forcing a transformation of the Las Vegas show philosophy.

Other hotels are hinting they may go the spectacle route blazed by the Stardust and the Tropicana. The Thunderbird has already switched to a stripped-down Broadway show theme.

The Dunes, after a half-year flirtation with "Guys and Dolls," is installing a French revue.

The Sahara Hotel is getting ready to enlarge its showroom so it can stage full-size Broadway productions—or originals that may one day challenge the great white way.

The Desert Inn, sister hotel to the Stardust, will shortly enlarge its own showroom and stage so that it can produce Broadway shows.

The epidermis and elegant-costume productions have triumphed over their critics, including the top Catholic authority in the state.

Bishop Robert J. Dwyer issued a pastoral letter condemning the bare-bosom shows in 1961. He blasted them as sinful, and said Catholics shouldn't attend them.

IF THE spectaculars fill up the main showrooms, where will the singers and the comics go? Into the lounges.

Las Vegas is already famous as the place where the lounges feature stars who would headline anywhere else.

AMID FLASHING lights and crashing music, dancers perform in the Stardust Hotel's Lido de Paris French Revue at Las Vegas. Girlie shows are edging out star entertainers.

Sarah Vaughan, Harry James, Billy Eckstine, Ray Anthony, Della Reese, Louis Prima, Lionel Hampton, Billy Daniels.

In the lounges, it's all free — even the fancy hors d'oeuvres the scantily clad cocktail waitresses pass around.

It should come as no shock that the singers, hoofers and comics are on the marquee to lure gamblers. Strip hotel officials are quite frank about that.

"If you don't have a show, you don't have gamblers," says Jack Entratter, producer-president of the Sands Hotel.

Jess Goodman, vice president and general manager of the Riviera, puts it another way:

"It gets the bodies in."

Marines Called to Fight Rats

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesian marines have been called in to help combat a plague of mice in the east Java port of Surabaja, the Antara News Agency says.

The agency reported that the troops were mobilized as part of the "civic mission" program. Under it military units work on national development projects.

Antara said if the campaign against the Surabaja mice was successful, other units of marines would be deployed for similar missions in other areas of east Java.

FARCE AT OFF-BROADWAY

Cure for 'Cockeyed' World

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

To fill an interim holiday booking, intrepid Off-Broadway Theater set back the theater 50 years last Friday night. All the way back to the tent show days when the actors looked like disciples of Charles Darwin and the dialogue of dalliance and double-talk was in finest flower.

An engaging group of visiting players on "wilful" leave from Paramount City Recreation Department force me to "tell the cockeyed world" that the three act farce, "Why Wives Worry," by Charles Harrison, sets us forward while purportedly setting us back.

* * * *

FARCE IS A dirty word in our modern theater. And seeing WWW tells us why. It is quite a jolt at our expense to find that what a previous generation honestly called farce we sometimes offer sanctimoniously as serious modern drama. A lot of plays are still being written like this prehistoric "pot-pourri" in which nothing is left to the imagination of the viewer —not even the pictures on the wall or the action, or what is taking place in the minds of the actors. In which everything is narrated, milked, blocked and neatly tidied up to a farce-thee-well. The difference is that 50 years ago they did it with "style" plus audible prompter. And kept it unpretentious. And called it farce.

Success of the Paramount Players is due to their ability to recapture the "innocence" and atmosphere of the period. So faithful is the reproduction of the old "style" that Friday night's audience played it "cautious" for the entire first act. By act two they caught on and audience and actors went at each other with laughs. It is that crazy sort of a show—a good cure for our cockeyed world.

* * * *

THE STORY? Oh, that. Well, you see these two guys with the same name of Roy Baker, played well extremely well by Roger Williams II and Marvin Case, got their mails and wives mixed up and decide to share the same apartment — with one wife being sent on a vacation and the other left around to force marital fidelity to live up to its vows. When both wives end up simultaneously in adjoining rooms and the husbands keep making hurried exits and entrances and explanations, worry sets in on the wives and the possibilities of a contrived "slipup" convulse the men.

Reminds you of any recent play in the modern theater? It certainly does.

But there is genuine fun in this farce, because it does not "pretend."

Here are the other performers with whom you should end your old year and start your new year "right": Roberts (Carlos Sanchez), Mrs. Gibbs (Ann Christie), Clarence Gibbs (Frank Buchanan), Jennie (Daveen Doornbos), Minnie (Gloria Rains) and Detective (George Surtees).

Roger William I—do they have royalty in Paramount?—is a slick man with his direction and production.

Winter Late, Oil Shows Odd Trends

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, (AP) — Winter's late arrival caused some unusual trends in demand for petroleum products.

September - November demand for gasoline was 3.4 per cent higher than the comparable year earlier period but heating oil requirements dropped sharply.

Demand for home or light heating oil dropped 4.3 per cent. Industry or heavy fuel oil requirements were off 8.6 per cent.

Petroleum economic analysts estimate weather during October and November was 27 per cent warmer than normal.

Available inventories of light heating oils, therefore, were abnormally high when the December cold waves began sweeping across the nation.

* * * *

REFINERS and suppliers had 180.2 million barrels on hand on Dec. 13, the latest reporting period on which statistics are available. Inventories a year earlier totaled only 164.5.

Home heating oil inventories dropped only 5.6 million barrels between Oct. 25 and Dec. 13, compared to a 16.3 million decline the same year earlier period.

Frank N. Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said this week total 1963 demand for petroleum products was about 3 per cent above 1962 despite the sharp November-December drop in home heating oil sales.

Ikard said the favorable motoring weather in most sections late in the year helped boost 1963 gasoline demand 4 per cent above 1962, the largest increase for any year since 1955. From 1960 through 1962, gasoline demand had increased only about 2 per cent a year.

* * * *

THE OIL industry's chief spokesman said demand for home heating oils held a 3 per cent gain through the first 10 months of 1963 but the November - December slump in sales probably would cut the 12-month gain to less than one-half of one per cent.

Year-end inventories for all oils—crude and products—were estimated by Ikard at a record 875 million barrels, 39 million above the year earlier level and 34 million above the previous record set at the end of 1957.

The new year-end record included a 12-month gain of 23 million barrels for light heating oils and an 8 million barrel decline for crude.

Kerosene, heavy fuel oil, and gasoline stocks also were up, but their increases were relatively minor compared to home heating oils.

* * * *

THE 243.6 MILLION barrel estimate for year-end crude oil inventories is the lowest since 1948 except for 239.8 millon at the end of 1960. The record of 281.8 million was set at the end of 1957.

Meanwhile, producers and refiners produced and processed more crude and gas in 1963 than ever before in history.

Daily U.S. crude production averaged 7,589,000 barrels a day, compared to the previous record of 7,332,000 in 1962. Natural gas output jumped 4.11 per cent to a record 40 billion cubic feet a day.

Refiners processed 8,696,000 barrels of crude a day, a 3.3 per cent gain over the year earlier record average.

* * * *

DOMESTIC refiners now can process 10,407,550 barrels of crude a day. Additions to the 1963 refining capacity day compared to a 1962 expansion program that amounted only to a net gain of 13,174 barrels a day.

The Petroleum Institute estimated 1963 well completions at 43,550, compared to 46,422 last year and 47,018 in 1961.

The institute's estimate is a bit higher than those made by two trade publications.

World Oil's Jan. 1 edition is to estimate this year's completions at about 43,150. The Oil & Gas Journal had tabulated only 42,314 completions through Dec. 21.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Economy Regains Its Momentum at Year End

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Business is closing out 1963 on a high plane.

It weathered early 1963 predictions that the economy might slow down in the second half of the year.

The Commerce Department reported this week that business activity has regained its momentus after a brief lag in November and seems likely to produce a sizable gain in the final three months of the year.

Here is evidence of the economy's robust health:

The Gross National Product—total of all goods and services—is at an annual rate of $592 billion against $554.9 billino for 1962.

The Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production stands at 126.9, compared with 118.3 last year.

* * * *

AUTOMOBILE SALES, including imports, are estimated at 7.7 million this year, up from 7 million in 1962.

Business spending on new plant and equipment is calculated at $39.1 billion, a gain of 5 per cent over last year.

Steel production of 109 million tons is the highest since 112.5 million tons were turned out in 1957.

Personal income hit a record $472.8 billion, up from $442.1 billion last year.

Housing starts reached a record 1.5 million units.

Consumer spending increased to $373 billion from $355 billion in 1962.

Corporate profits, estimated at $26.8 billion, showed a 9 per cent gain over 1962.

Employment rose to 69.3 million from 67.8 million last year.

Expressions of optimism about the outlook for 1964 were voiced by leading business men.

For example, Frederic C. Donner, chairman of General Motors Corp., said:

"The economy continues to have available increasing resources of capital and labor for further expansion. With sustained business and consumer confidence, all present indications are that in 1964 the economy will use more fully these growing resources."

* * * *

WALTER W. HELLER, chief economic adviser to President Johnson, predicted —dependent on early passage of an $11 billion tax cut— that the Gross National Product will rise to $620 billion next year and that the unemployment rate would drop to less than 5 per cent of the labor force.

Christmas buying apparently zoomed to a new record on a late rush after getting off to a slow start mainly due to the nation's shock over the assassination of President Kennedy. The National Retail Merchants Association said indications were that dollar volume was the highest ever although it probably failed to record the expected 4 per cent again.

The Christmas holiday cut into industrial production.

Automobile production was trimmed to an estimated 131,000 passenger cars, down from 185,144 the previous week but well ahead of the 109,900 of a year ago.

* * * *

GENERAL MOTORS Corp.'s Oldsmobile division reported selling 16,130 new cars in the middle 10 days of December, a record. GM's Chevrolet division and Chrysler Corp. also reported that sales in that period exceeded a year ago.

The Big Three automakers have allocated more than $1 billion for plant expansion and improvement next year. Ford will spend $500 million and Chrysler $200 million. While General Motors hasn't announced figures, it has spent more than $500 million on expansion each year since 1953.

Steel production posted its second straight weekly decline, dropping 1.7 per cent to 2,003,000 tons. Steel executives reported orders are continuing strong enough to push January shipments well above December's.

New Civic Spirit Is at Work in L.B.

planning. A splendid development is the adoption of R5 zoning in one area, opening a whole era for high-rise construction.

We highly commend the dedicated and devoted services of the Planning Commission and staff for farsightedness in many of its projects. There are however frequent criticisms of a strong tendency toward keeping Long Beach a bedroom city rather than one balanced between commerce, industry and home development; criticism of some degree of inconsistency in rulings relating to the Building Code and types of building structure.

TRAFFIC AND PARKING: One cannot deal with the moving of traffic solely from the standpoint of political expediency, personal comfort or its effect upon a particular piece of property. This philosophy applies specifically to the crosstown freeways, for ingress and egress from all directions must be provided. It calls for sufficient off-street parking at new structures.

CULTURAL ACTIVITIES: Creation of the Arts Council is a basic step forward. Our prime need is for some better physical plants for concerts, plays, exhibits, etc. These matters are under study.

SOCIAL WELFARE: The community is woefully weak in financial support of volunteer agencies. Governmental welfare agencies seem to do their work very well.

BEACH DEVELOPMENT: Tideland funds are anticipated for the voter-approved West Beach shoreline plan. The plan is good and the work will get a big lift with World's Fair development. Our greatest asset, the central and east beaches also must be developed.

GOVERNMENTAL ACTIVITIES: There is great progress in City Council relationships, thanks in large measure to Mayor Ed Wade's friendly, objective approach. But the understanding is not complete—here and there within a department we find a skeptic so far as the Chamber is concerned.

In contrast to the antics of the municipality to our north, our county Board of Supervisors shows a dignity that reflects great credit to the entire community.

COMMUNICATIONS: Our citizens once talked the town down but now praise it for overcoming the image of a sinking city, for substantially reducing internal community pettiness and bickering, for a completely new attitude and sense of self-confidence.

The Chamber put $16,000 into an International Publicity Department. It accomplished little in tangible results but did establish the need. From this beginning the highly successful news agency, Long Beach Promotion, Inc., has grown.

Agencies aiding in creating a better image: the city's public realtions office, the Convention and Visitors Bureau, Downtown Long Beach Associates, Chamber of Commerce, Independent, Press-Telegram, the neighborhood press.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE: The Chamber has had splendid leadership from its inception. Its program embraces every facet of activity needed by the community. The Chamber had a long period of deficit financing. We turned the corner in 1962. The 1963-64 projected income is $190,000, expenditures $183,000. We are still woefully short of our $225,000 budget goal.

The slow response to adequate support of all cooperative community efforts, including the Chamber, is the result of habit, a point of view, a defeatism, a game of downgrading, a sadistic type of negativism that is difficult to understand.

CONCLUSION: Our needs may make us feel inadequate, our effort futile. But our achievements show what organized effort in community relations can do.

Long Beach has demonstrated great achievement in the past five years. Of course, the next five are the years that count. We have laid a good foundation. We only hope that the vision will grow; that the lessons of these five years will stimulate present leaders and leaders to come to build bigger and higher and better.

There is no reason why Long Beach will not become one of the great cities of the world.

"... that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

—ABRAHAM LINCOLN,
The Gettysburg Address, November 19, 1863.

Great American Shrines Etchings presented with the compliments of Union Federal Savings

Union Federal Savings has selected a special gift for you, actually a series of gifts, since there are four altogether . . . a collection of famous national shrine reproductions in a beautiful color etch process on silver foil, created by nationally renowned watercolorist, Phil Austin.

The first of this educational series, Mount Rushmore, recreates the majestic splendor of one of our nation's greatest creative efforts . . . the carving, from a mountainside, of the likeness of four of our great presidents. This handsome reproduction is yours for the asking when visiting one of our offices January 2 through 10.

In February we will offer a color print of Mount Vernon; in March, Independence Hall and in April to complete your collection, the Jefferson Memorial.

United States Postage
Stamp Machines
A reliable party (man or woman) will be selected in this area to own & service route of postage stamp machines in retail stores. More postage stamps are sold than any other product in the country.

Sales of this necessity are in the upper billions yearly and you can get your share of it now. Profits are greater than ever since governmental price change.

No selling or soliciting as all accounts are established for you by company experts. This is not a "get rich quick business" and not a job, but a chance to get into a non-depression proof business for yourself that can be started part-time & developed into a big profitable full time business if you are truly ambitious & sincere. Xlnt. income.

To qualify, you must have car, 5 hours spare time weekly and a minimum cash investment of $899. For a prompt personal interview and first consideration, call collect anytime.

CAR SIDE CHAT
From Ridings Cadillac Long Beach's only authorized Cadillac dealer

We have a choice selection of the finest "Customer Ready" cars to be found anywhere. Every car in our resale department is clearly described for your shopping convenience. A check list is on the left rear glass showing the equipment and the suggested selling price.

We are closed on Sundays so that our salesmen may be with their families. However, we cordially invite you to browse around our lot and look over our fine used cars. We urge you to compare our cars with others.

YEAR OF RACIAL CRISIS

Demonstrations and Deaths Mark Revolt of Negroes

Some Milestones Achieved, Say Civil Rights Chiefs

By JUNIUS GRIFFIN
Associated Press Writer

The racial revolution of 1963 engendered violence, wracked the conscience of America and exposed racial discrimination as a condition not confined to any geographical area.

The climate was ripe for the Negro revolution, which begun as non-violent but soon became a demand of sweeping proportions for payment on a century-old note: the Emancipation Proclamation.

As in all conflicts, some of the major skirmishes occurred in unlikely places—lunch counters, churches, schools, public libraries, construction sites and finally in the courts and the halls of Congress.

How and where did it all start?

* * * *

THE CITY WAS Birmingham and the time was early April. It was intended as a demonstration protesting that the city's Negroes termed unjustifiable segregation patterns

But before the mild day was over, police had broken up the demonstrations with fire hoses and night sticks.

Less than a month later, Negroes of the city had mobilized all their resources and were back in the streets again for a showdown.

Again, the police used fire hoses and night sticks. Hundreds of Negroes were arrested.

* * * *

THE NATION AND THE WORLD took notice of the turbulent prelude to a summer of racial discord later described by Secretary of State Dean Rusk as "the worst domestic crisis since 1865."

The civil rights crisis was responsible for 11 deaths during the year.

William L. Moore, 35, a white postman from Baltimore, was shot dead near Gadsden, Ala., while staging a private "freedom march" to Mississippi, April 23.

Medgar W. Evers, head of the Mississippi chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was assassinated by a sniper as he returned home from an integration meeting June 12.

On Aug. 10, Serina Taylor, 14, a Negro girl, was killed by a wild shotgun blast in Jersey City, N.J.

Sept. 15, four Negro girls were killed in a Birmingham bombing that wrecked the 16th Street Baptist church. They were Denice McNair, 11; Cythia Wesley, Addie Mae Collins and Carol Robertson, all 14.

On the same day, two Negro teen-agers, James Robinson and Virgil Ware, were shot to death in other Birmingham racial incidents.

* * * *

The tragic violence surrounded Negro demands for:

Better jobs and better pay, fair employment opportunities, non-neighborhood school policy, the right to eat at any restaurant or stay in any hotel and to worship in white churches.

When does the Negro expect to achieve these goals?

"My definition of now is yesterday," says Cecil Moore, chairman of the Philadelphia NAACP.

Moore's impatience has been reflected in responsible and irresponsible demonstrations by Negroes in such places as Danville, Va., Savannah, Ga., Albany, Ga., Cambridge, Md., New York City, Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Newark, N. J.

"Miscalculation of the moment of truth which is upon us could plunge New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit and Los Angeles into a crimson carnage unparalleled in the history of the nation," warned the Rev. Gardner Taylor, pastor of Brooklyn's Concord Baptist Church.

C. Summer Stone Jr., editor of the Chicago Defender, one of the two daily Negro newspapers in the nation, says:

"I expect all hell to break loose next spring when the snow thaws. The Negro is merely using the winter to store up his hatreds and frustrations and reflect on the many broken promises of 1963."

* * * *

IN THE MARCH on Washington last August, more than 200,000 people staged what was called by some commentators "an impressive demonstration of Negro unity; a visible expression of interracial brotherhood."

The march was intended to convey to the nation's leaders the necessity for civil rights legislation, jobs, and first-class citizenship for America's 19 million Negroes.

The year 1963 did result in some encouraging milestones. Civil rights leaders cite these:

In Chicago—a City Council bill which, if enforced, opens housing to Negroes anywhere in the city.

Detroit—a massive slum clearance and urban renewal project which will remove Negroes from one of the city's worst slum areas.

Cambridge, Md.—the hiring of a Negro interviewer in the state employment office.

Birmingham—token school integration.

Charleston, S.C.—token school integration and access to some places of public accommodation.

Areas where civil rights leaders say they accomplished nothing include Selma, Ala., Albany, Ga., Danville, Va., and Williamson, N.C.

In contrast, Nashville, Tenn., rates high among some Negro leaders as the city "with the most comprehensive integration achievements."

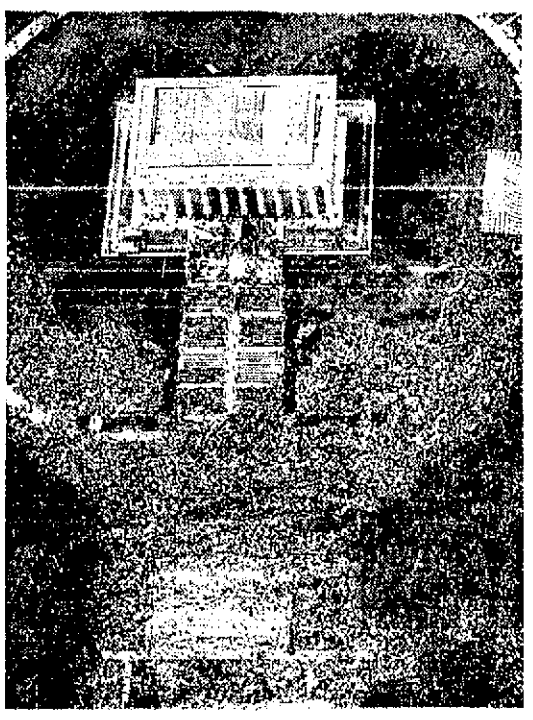

Other cities which drew praise from Negro leaders were Atlanta, Durham, N.C., Miami, Louisville, Ky., and Knoxville, Tenn.

BRUSHING ASIDE a National Guardsman's bayonet, Mrs. Gloria Richardson, head of the Cambridge, Md., Nonviolent Action Committee, moves to try to disperse a crowd of Negroes. She is one of militants among Negroes.

NATIONAL and world attention became focused on Birmingham, Ala., in 1963 as a city of racial violence. In April, police used dogs to break up a Negro demonstration. In May they added fire hoses and tear gas and arrested hundreds. A policeman and a dog grip a Negro, who swings at the dog with a small knife on May 3.

CLIMAX of the Negro revolution of 1963 was the Washington March on August 28. More than 200,000 persons, including thousands of whites, poured into the national capital in a giant, peaceful demonstration and demand for first class citizenship for America's 19 million Negroes. Center of demonstration was the Lincoln Memorial area.

A BOMB HEARD around the world was that which wrecked the 16th Street Baptist Church in Birmingham, Ala., on Sept. 15, 1963. Four 14-year-old Negro girls, there for Sunday School, were killed, several hurt.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, DEC. 29, 1963
SECTION W

A SWEET SIXTEEN. A bevy of 16 lovely debs, all of whom bowed to society for first time Saturday evening, pose in traditional white ball gowns. They are (from left) Linda Marino, Carolyn Joe Peek, Susan Garland, Carolyn Combs, Laurie Kinley, Charlotte Calvert, Cheryl McNulty, Janet Jacobs, Luciann Esposito, Dede Norman, Anne Whittlesey, Ann Bowen, Susan Jennings, Roxanne Hamilton and Devon Beck. The Junior League presentation ball took place in Long Beach Pacific Coast Club with Dr. Arthur H. Buell, master of ceremonies. The event climaxed a series of festive holiday parties for the girls, all college students.

They'll Never Say "We Told You So"

By MARY NETH

What's in store for '64?

It doesn't take a crystal ball to predict that that's a pretty popular question right now.

But, if you're looking for the answer, you may find the crystal ball a bit cloudy.

We did. We thought we'd get everything all straightened out—get world in order and find what to expect during the next 366 days.

We went to the people purported to know: the psychic readers, the palmists, the fortune tellers, the astrologists.

And, what did they say? Well, it seems they're a bit hazy about it all, too. Right now, at least. Maybe they'll know more about it all around this time next year.

Anyway, the gypsies had gone away for the holiday, so we marked them off; headed for the palm and card soothsayers.

Well, believe it or not, they just don't predict. Said one who advertised herself as an "Indian reader with God given powers to help humanity," "I just do little character readings, that's all."

The psychic reader we queried was "too busy" to enlighten us.

Another who "gives advice in love, marriage and business" explained haughtily that she "doesn't go into the future—just deals with the past and present."

Even the spirits seem to be a wee bit uninformed these days.

A Hindu reader from India, one that "helps many—gives full life readings," said he hoped it would be a good year." Well, we do too, and we don't even have a spirit to back it up.

The "famous psychic"—"You tell me nothing—I will tell you ALL." didn't tell us a thing.

"Not interested," was the snappy telephone retort. "Very busy."

And, the mystery lady? She WAS mysterious.

But, finally we struck gold. We called an astrologer. She was quite rushed, asked to call back three times. Then, rather waspishly to be sure, gave out with the info. "A clue to the future will take an awful lot of looking up—consulting all those stars and all, she said. "Why don't you go buy an astrology book at the news stand and do it yourself?"

Well we took her kind advice, and lo and behold, we discovered that things will at "long last be moving in truly new directions."

According to Ambrose Bierce's definition of the future ("The Devil's Dictionary") it's "that period of time in which our affairs prosper, our friends are true and our happiness is assured."

Maybe we'll let it go at that. And in doing so, just hope his definition of misfortune "the kind of fortune that never misses," proves in error.

Of course, if the Panacea Society in England had its way we'd have a happy new year for sure.

The society claims to have a sealed box containing a prophetess's prescription for all the world's ills. Unfortunately 24 bishops must be present before the 122-year-old box can be opened and the society can't talk them into putting in an appearance. Oh my!

Junior League's Debs ...Presented at Ball

Sixteen young women made their debut to society Saturday evening at the 1963 Debutante Ball.

The ball, given by Junior League of Long Beach, took place in Pacific Coast Club with Dr. Arthur H. Buell as master of ceremonies.

Gowned in traditional bouffant evening dresses and carrying white orchid covered fans, the debutantes were escorted into the ballroom by their fathers. An orchestra, seated beneath a decorative gazebo, played the grand march.

Guests were welcomed by Mmes. Donald C. Wallace Jr., league president and Leon Wiltse, ball committee chairman, and husbands.

GARLANDS of balloons hung from the ceiling over tables covered with shocking pink linen. Tables were decorated with tall, sparkling centerpieces composed of white birds amid pink poinsettias and carnations.

The main lounge, the setting for pre-dinner cocktails, was rich in vibrant reds and greens. There a long table, opulently festive in Christmas red, was laden with an elaborate selection of hors d'oeuvres.

As in the past, the ball was coordinated by Tom Ingersoll with music by Joe Moshay's orchestra.

PRESENTEES were Devon Beck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Beck, escorted by Robert M. Newell; Ann Bowen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Bowen, escorted by David Hutchinson; Nancy Brandel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brandel, escorted by Robert Schaeffer; Charlotte Ann Calvert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Calvert, escorted by Michael Dorn; Carolyn Combs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frende Combs, escorted by Ronald Kasper; Luciann Esposito, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leslie Esposito, escorted by Dominic Cavaliere Jr.; Susan Garland, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Guy P. Garland, escorted by John Lungren Jr.

Music, lights, flowers, elegantly dressed guests — and 16 lovely young women. It was the deb's evening. And, after the ball was over? The Frende Combs and Dr. and Mrs. Leslie Esposito were hosts and hostesses at a post-ball breakfast in the Esposito home.

Roxanne Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Montgomery Jr., escorted by Paul Parkhurst; Janet Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jacobs, escorted by William Rolf; Susan Jennings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Jennings, escorted by Dennis Scharer; Laurie Kinley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kinley, escorted by James Young; Linda Marino, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Marino, escorted by Michael Maloney; Cheryl McNulty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McNulty, escorted by William Dunlap; Dede Norman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Norman, escorted by Christopher Bowen; Carolyn Joe Peek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lon E. Peek, escorted by Cadet William Hurley III; Ann Whittlesey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Whittlesey, escorted by Philip Nyborg.

AMONG THE stags were Charles Garland, Peter Jennings, James Jones, Michael Kenney, Richard Learned, Richard Matlock, Michael Mullarky, Lon Peek II, William Polkinghorn Jr., John Robbins, Richard Russell, Daniel Dunlap, William Belding, John Hutchinson, F. L. Andrews, Thomas Merrick, John McGill Jr., Charles Marino, Larry Evans, Midshipman Stephen Brown, William Cheney, John M. Clarke Jr., William Davidson, Leeds Disston, Bruce Drown, Robert Earl, Vincent Esposito and Robert Freiwald.

This is the fourth annual Debutante Ball held by the Junior League.

The league itself was established here in 1931. The original membership (41) raised money by dues and a charity ball at Pacific Coast Club.

ONE OF AN international association of 190 leagues, Long Beach juniors work to foster interest in the social, economic, educational, cultural and civic conditions of the community. Each prospective member is required to complete a training course on volunteer service and on various aspects of her community before active membership is approved.

Continuing volunteer service is a requirement for membership. Each Junior Leaguer works one-half day a week in a League-sponsored project or in an agency in which she is especially interested.

This year's debutantes, all college or university students, have a wide range of talents and interests. Two of the girls plan teaching careers; two are majoring in language; two in liberal arts; two in drama and two in the arts.

One of the debs was an AFS exchange student in Europe and another is making plans for a forthcoming trip to Europe. All have high scholastic ratings and are active in school social activities.

Christmas Wrap-Up, All Tied with Type

Check those checks—in four figures—for CBL good deeds.

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

GOODWILL toward children so they can become healthier, better adjusted men and women is the aim of Children's Benefit League. This year the women—not many in number but long on heart and full of energy—are demonstrating, in the picture above, how they made Christmas time much happier.

Presented earlier this week are checks displayed by, from left, Harriett (Mrs. Van I.) Grose, Ione (Mrs. Myrl W.) Hurley and Lois (Mrs. George W.) Reynolds. CBL gave $2000 to the Children's Clinic of Long Beach, $2000 to the Psychiatric Clinic for Children and $1000 to the Epilepsy Clinic. In addition, the women have donated $1500 to individual family cases, covering medical and dental needs.

Main money raisers to make dreams come true for less fortunate people included the formal, grand opening of the Edgewater Inn, co-chairmanned by Eloise (Mrs. Richard) Gripp and Lee (Mrs. L. W.) Clark.

The second annual Decorators Show was chairmanned by Lucille (Mrs. Harold) Gray and the many fund raising bridge parties were whipped together by Alice (Mrs. Robert) Dick.

They'd be the first to say "don't thank me—thank the wonderful women who helped."

CBL is one of many, many women's groups in our city which make life so much better off for so many others. A Happy New Year to them all—and a productive one. We need 'em!

RING BELLS. Mary and Col. Bill Green (USAF-Ret.) came home this week. And I mean HOME for keeps. They are staying with her parents, Dr. Fred and Myrle Clarke.

Bill will be associated with the South Gate Chamber of Commerce where they will live as soon as they can get located. Meaning, like in South Gate somewhere.

They drove out from Moberly, Kansas, with their three children, one dog and all that weather to contend with! It has been about 13 years since they've lived here—about two since they've visited. They had a stint of Europe aboding during Bill's service career, to boot.

BEFORE we get too far away from Christmas compliments I hear about, several are in order for the annual street-to-street caroling for the neighbors in Park Estates.

Wild Waves Say...

The event is spearheaded by Joan and Don Stage and Susie and Norm Meager. The Stages, as usual, had the adults cocktails and buffet party for about 60. Then off they went a-singing, with the children and their friends joining in to the tune of about 130 voices.

After the street singing (they cover several blocks with the joyous songs of Noel) adults and children, too, went to the Meagers for hot cider, hot chocolate and cookies. This nearing, if not THE, 10th year of the caroling. Big help to parents come from Jim and Steve Stage and Kent Meager, hosts' sons.

The Junior Boskings are en route from Honolulu, where he was stationed at Schofield, to Ft. Monmouth, N.J., where he reports Jan. 3 and where it's going to be a lot chillier.

Incidentally, Jack hit a 350-yard drive to the green at Recreation Park Golf Course the other day—a par four hole. And it was on the 13th hole, at that!

MORE CHRISTMAS wrap-ups in fancy packaging. Betty and Jim Milner had a gift-wrapped cocktail buffet at their home last Sunday. Guests, in party spirit, were in hilarious mood, making with loads of sparkly conversation. Among these—Faye and Willis Weber, Jeannie and Ralph Rowzee, Bev and Les Weed, Sharon and Don Wood, Reggie and Sid Levy, Ann and Al Germann and Ronnie Peterson and Dave Crane.

Very next day Betty's parents added to their festive mood by arriving for the holidays. They are Flo and William McBirney of Delta, Colo., and Phoenix, Ariz.

WHEN decorators admittedly "knock themselves out" to do their home for the holidays you can be very sure it's very special. Anne and Wellington Phillips' home is a true example of artistic holiday glory.

They entertained kith and kin at a Christmas Eve supper party which also was in celebration of Wellington's birthday. The 27th they had a cocktail party and today plan a dinner. Finally, they'll entertain (again!) at a New Year's Eve supper, midnight variety.

The home glows; is done in blue and green with white accents.

IN THE holiday mood—but not a holiday party—was Patty and Ned Twining's open house of last Sunday to "warm" their gorgeous new beach play room—right on the ocean front in Seal Beach.

It is Parisian in feeling, with black and white striped awning, black shutters, etc. About 150 friends were bidden to try it on for size. It fit to perfection.

NICEST thing that could possibly have been under, around or near the tree for Cathy and Mike Murphy was baby daughter, Joan, now just a month's worth of loving cuddle at the holidays.

Say Vows Here; Will Reside Out-of-State

Tindell—Nadeau

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the afternoon wedding of Nicole Nadeau to Verne H. Tindell at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Parents of the couple are Messrs. and Mmes. Henri Nadeau of Long Beach and Conrad C. Tindell of Bellflower.

The bride wore a formal gown with a lace bodice and full organza skirt. Her sisters, Louise and Michele Nadeau, were her attendants.

Ronald Lewis served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers included David R. Williams and Walter D. McClain.

The new Mrs. Tindell graduated from high school in France and attended Long Beach City College. Her husband was graduated from Bellflower High School, Whittier College and now attends Willamette University Law School in Salem, Ore., where he is a member of Delta Theta Phi.

The young couple will make their home in Salem.

Young—Kuschelbauer

Four hundred and fifty guests witnessed the ceremony uniting in marriage Trudy L. Kuschelbauer and Wesley D. Young at First Methodist Church in Santa Monica.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Kuschelbauer of Santa Monica and Mrs. Claude W. Young of Downey, formerly of Long Beach.

A peau de soie sheath appliqued with Chantilly lace was chosen by the bride for her wedding. Mrs. Royal E. Lord was her matron of honor. David Davies served the bridegroom as best man.

Other members of the wedding party included Judy Boehler, Mrs. Kevin Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Young, Stanley Young and Rex Saracino.

The bride attended Santa Monica City College and San Jose State College. Her husband was graduated from Wilson High School, Compton Junior College, San Jose State College and is now working for his master's degree at George Washington University.

Following a New York honeymoon, the couple will reside in Washington, D. C.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Shor-Forman

Announcement is made of the engagement of Arlene Linda Shor to Hal S. Forman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Forman.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Shor, the bride-elect is a 1962 graduate of Poly High. Her fiance, an alumnus of Millikan High, will graduate in August from the University of Denver, where his fraternity is Phi Sigma Delta.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Clark—Stockham

The engagement of Long Beach State College students Carolyn Faye Clark and Douglas William Stockham has been announced by the bride-to-be's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Clark. Parents of the bridegroom-elect are Mr. and Mrs. Douglas A. Stockham.

Miss Clark is affiliated with Spurs and Califias. Her fiance is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon. The couple graduated from Millikan High School.

Late summer of 1964 has been chosen for the wedding.

Miss Hermon Is New Bride

Wearing a floor length gown of Chantilly lace fashioned with sweetheart neckline and carrying orchids with stephanotis, Judee Anne Hermon became the bride of Donald Ray Rogers of Tulsa, Okla.

Mrs. Donald Rogers

The afternoon ceremony in Temple Baptist Church was witnessed by 200 guests.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hermon, 2449 E. Fifth St., was attended by Mrs. Stephen E. Lamb, matron of honor, and Margaret Monroe and Carolyn Meissen, bridesmaids.

SON OF Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Chattin of Santa Ana, the bridegroom was attended by Paul Monroe, best man, and Stephen E. Lamb and Bill Batman, ushers.

The newlyweds will be at home in Tulsa after the first of the year. Mrs. Chattin was graduated from Millikan High School and attended Long Beach City College. Her husband attended Eastern A and M, Oklahoma.

The Small Fry Go High Style

. . season's new look is mom-inspired

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
L. P-T Fashion Editor

Small fry are getting big ideas about fashion these days.

Their wardrobes are becoming as complex and contemporary, as fast-moving and furiously fashion-minded as any haute couture creations in the women's field.

Designers are taking an intense interest in what young things think, what kind of lives they lead and, of course, what kind of clothes flatter them most.

ONE SUCH couturier of children's fashions is Robert Love, who has grown up with the firm founded by his father, Joseph Love.

His current collection spans "the looks" for the season—everything from a spanking A-line nautical dress to a cool carousel stripe with a sunburst of pleats . . . from a dropped-waist dream of an organdy dress to the very last word for small femme fatales: a white at-home gown, floor-length and empire waisted with the perfect touch of a long red sash.

(Local merchants report a flurry of holiday sales in long at-home styles for young, young ladies).

THE SEASON'S prevailing look is the skimmy silhouette, with news in the slightly flared A-line, characterized by sharp side pleats or all-around inverted box pleats.

There's the tomboy look, the casual country look, the dropped waistline, the jumper, the empire, the fisherman's shirt and Paris adaptations—just like mom's.

Style features from Paris designs that have found their way into children's wear include the long sleeve with two-button cuff, the sweater look in overblouses, the apron-wrap skirt, the high rise empire touches, the horseshoe neckline and gold buttons.

ALTHOUGH children's designers have injected high fashion into tiny items (a neat trick when you're working with a couple feet of yard goods), they have kept ease-of-care in mind. Dripping popsicles needn't be a catastrophe.

In addition to traditional cottons, a number of orlon blends are seen, particularly in the sheer wool look. Washable wools, suedelike fabrics, knits, corduroys and cotton blends are prominent on the children's scene.

All are as easy to wear and care for as they are to look at.

GOING PLACES with the young set are these couture styles by Joseph Love. Tiers of red, white and blue (left) are fashioned in sturdy sailcloth treated with fabric fluoridizer to resist stains. Smartly dressed traveling lady (above) wears blue sailcloth dress, belted like the English bobby's uniform. Both are from Love's "My Friend the Policeman" collection. (Available locally.)

LBSC Pair Will Wed

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Morgan are announcing engagement of their daughter, Susan Joy, to Sherwin Barry Cotler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Cotler.

Both young persons were graduated from Wilson High School, attended UC, Berkeley, and currently are enrolled at Long Beach State College.

Miss Morgan pledged Delta Phi Epsilon at Berkeley, and is a member of Epsilon Phi at State. Her fiance also attended Long Beach City College where he was president of Alpha Gamma Sigma and Alpha Nu Gamma. He is vice president of Psi Chi, national psychology honorary, at LBSC.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Thinking of Others Increases Happiness

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My daughter worries me to death; she is so restless and unsettled. She is an intelligent, nice-looking girl of 21, but she is the unhappiest person I know.

Snice she graduated she has had eight different jobs. She didn't like any of them. She has friends, but no close ones. She belongs to clubs but they don't interest her much. The men she dates don't mean a thing to her.

She broods continually. Her mind is never at rest.

I just don't know what to do with her. I'm a widow, not very well, and with no other children to turn to. Is there any advice you can give me? — WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR WORRIED:

I'm not at all sure I can help you—but I'd very much like to. I'd like to help you and your unhappy daughter, too. It's quite possible, though, that she'd view anything I said rather cynically, isn't it?

Anyway, here goes: I have often noted that the unhappiest people are those who spend all their time trying to make themselves happy. Just as I have often noted that the happiest people are those who spend most of their time doing things for others. Believe me, this is no idle platitude; but an absolute fact you can observe by looking around you.

Therefore, if your daughter could be persuaded to throw herself into some sort of work whereby she would be bending her energies to helping others, she'd indirectly be helping herself far more than she can possibly guess.

Maybe your job is to persuade her to see this — to think more of giving OUT than taking IN. Or, as St. Francis of Assisi so aptly put it, "It is by giving that one receives, it is by self-forgetting that one finds." —M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

After Mom died, Dad and I moved into an apartment. The lady across the hall from us is divorced from her husband and seems to have her claws out for Dad. Dad is a very sweet person who doesn't like to hurt anyone so he is nice to her and that encourages her to run after him.

I can see it all so plainly but Dad can't. I'm an only child, and a rather possessive daughter, I fear. However, I do not like to see a woman so obvious about trying to "get her man." What can I do?—THELMA

DEAR THELMA:

I somehow can't see your managing Dad's life for him. If he wants to be snagged that's up to him, isn't it? And maybe, as a matter of fact, he knows what he wants far better than you do.—M.M.

WHAT HAPPENED?

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Reason, Don't Rationalize

DEAR ABBY: You have no idea how much courage it takes to write this, but I have to tell somebody. I have, probably, one of the best husbands on earth. We've beeen married 23 years and have three children of whom we are very proud. We have a home in the suburbs. My husband is an average wage-earner. We have two cars. We neither smoke nor drink nor spend foolishly. I've always let my husband be the head of the family. He is loving and good, but a strict disciplinarian with the children. He has always been a little on the jealous side, so not wishing to provoke him, I have never gone in for any outside activities. No volunteer work. Not even a P-T.A. meeting without him. I once read that a cake decorating class was starting and I said I'd like to go. He was so violently opposed that I never mentioned it again. The only people we see are his business friends and their wives. I am a friendly person and not unattractive. Now the problem: Last year, while grocery shopping, I became friendly with a widower (neighbor) and I soon looked forward to "running into him" at the store. He asked to buy me coffee, once, then again, and before long it was a standing date. I hate to admit it, but this was the high point of my day. We did nothing wrong, even though I know how much I could care for this charming man if I let myself. I know he feels the same for me. I would never do anything to hurt my family. But I can see how a respectable married woman can "fall in love" with another man. If this could happen to me, it could happen to anyone. I keep asking myself, why?—FIGHTING IT

ABBY

DEAR "FIGHTING IT": Keep fighting it. Couples don't "fall" in love. They walk into it with their eyes wide open. Mutual interest must be cultivated to become love. Then finally all reason is drained away and the rationalizations take over. When a husband first shows signs of unreasonable possessiveness, he should be straightened out—not yielded to. What does it profit a woman to preserve peace if she loses the marriage?

* * * * *

DEAR ABBY: My mother recently bought my husband and me a vase for our wedding anniversary. It cost her $200 and the thing is hideous. It is the wrong shape, color and size for our house. My husband is an interior decorator and he says we can't possibly use it. We can't stash it in the attic because if mother doesn't see it around, she'll be hurt. The rest of our home is furnished in impeccable taste. What can we do? My husband had kiddingly suggested "accidentally" breaking it.—STUCK

DEAR STUCK: Keep the vase out where your mother can see it. If the rest of your home is furnished in "impeccable" taste, one vase won't matter.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO MITZI: If you want a place in the sun, prepare to nurse a few blisters.

* * * *

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

RESOLUTION FOR '64:

Keep Your Husband Happy

Remember the dozens of New Year's resolutions we used to make when we were little? We'd resolve to be neater, kinder, more diligent, thinner — each year we'd resolve anew to be paragons!

And now, a bit disillusioned with our will power and with our good intentions, most of us settle for one or two resolutions, humbly and sincerely made.

Jean Kinkead, women's consultant to The Travelers Insurance Companies, tells us that many of the gals who work for The Travelers have only one big resolution for 1964. These women, whose work brings them close to the shocking evidence that too many husbands die young, have resolved to make special efforts to keep their husbands healthy this year. "It's a big order," says Miss Kinkead, "with no Dr. Spock to reassure and guide us."

* * * *

WE HAVE, however, one big clue. Doctors in general agree that living in a climate of acceptance, affection, and good humor helps all human beings to thrive. One doctor in particular, Dr. Paul Dudley White, General Eisenhower's heart specialist, tells us that if you can add to a man's happiness, you can prolong his life.

Miss Kinkead offers some ideas to help create the happiness-making climate we all want.

1. Welcome him home at night. Resolve that there'll be no more half-hearted greetings while you go right on stirring something on the stove or putting the baby to bed. This is HIS moment. Think for a minute how glad you are that he's come back to you. Since you last saw him he's been through traffic hazards, work problems, a dozen small and large anxieties. And now he's HOME. Tell him how glad you are. He'll never get tired of hearing it.

2. Plan a little while just to be together before the demands of family living engulf you both. Let the children know that this is YOUR time, and that equal time is coming for them in due course. Try to be quiet about the day you've had for a few minutes so that your husband can tell you what's on his mind. Too often we chatty females deprive our men of our valuable services as a listener. Do you know that just telling us how they feel about things helps them let off steam?

* * * *

3. ENCOURAGE him to change into comfortable clothes. Putting on a sports shirt and slacks and a pair of loafers is almost like putting on a holiday mood for most men.

4. Keep meal-times as peaceful as possible. You can eliminate a lot of irritation by serving food that your whole family likes. Maybe this will mean repeating a few things ad infinitum, but what difference does it make as long as it's what everyone likes?

5. Let your children know what a special man their father is. Their respect and affection (like your own) will nourish him.

6. Help him find a balance between rest and relaxation. Regular exercise is good for both of you. Bowling, walking, dancing, skating, skiing, or just plain old sitting-up exercises contribute importantly to his and your well-being. Balance fun evenings with your friends with quiet evenings of music, reading and your favorite television shows.

7. Don't PUSH do-it-yourself projects. He's pushed enough during the day.

Miss Kinkead sums things up this way. "Don't fret over your husband, but cherish him. You'll find him cherishing you right back—for many, many bonus years."

Meet Thursday

Degree of Honor Lodge 108 will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in Machinists Hall with Velta Hunt presiding. 1964 officers will practice for installation.

Home Has Many Memories

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald D. Clapp

New Year's Day will mark the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald D. Clapp.

Fifty years ago on that day, the couple married in a quiet home wedding at 1011 E. Fifth St., then on the outskirts of town. Later in the day the newlyweds made the long trip to Pasadena to view the Tournament of Roses.

Fifty years later, the golden wedding anniversary will be observed in the same house with three sons, their wives, thirteen grandchildren and one great grandchild. The group will see the Rose Parade on television.

* * * *

CLAPP, now 85, has been in the plumbing business for more than 50 years. Mrs. Clapp, the former Lina M. O'Kelly, was a buyer at Buffum's, then known as The Mercantile, at the time of their marriage.

Members of the family will fete the couple at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Clapp, 1032 Junipero Ave., today from 2 to 6 o'clock. Also attending will be Harold W. Clapp of El Monte, Howard D. Clapp of Burbank and their families.

Honored at Party

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bruce, 1222 Mira Mar Ave., will celebrate their 63rd wedding anniversary Jan. 1 at an open house from 1 to 5 p.m. at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Chester W. Bruce, 848 St. Louis Ave.

Among those attending will be their four sons, a daughter and their spouses; Messrs. and Mmes. Guy Bruce of Nelson, Neb.; C. D. Kirkpatrick of Omaha; Paul Bruce of Santa Monica; Rex C. Bruce of Long Beach and the Chester Bruces.

* * * *

THE COUPLE married in Hicksville, Va. on Jan. 2, 1901. They came to Long Beach in 1946 from Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce have eight grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

City Librarian to Be Speaker

Insurance Women of Long Beach will have a 6:30 p.m. dinner at Hoefly's in Belmont Shore Thursday with Doris Spilman, president, in charge.

Long Beach City Librarian Blanche Collins will speak on, "The Freedom to Read." A check will be presented by Mrs. Gertrude Black, welfare chairman, to Mrs. Clarence Layden, representing St. Ann's Guild of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Vernon Hammatt

Catholic Vows Said by Couple

St. Cyprian's Catholic Church was setting Saturday morning for the marriage ceremony joining Arletta Leona Myers of Bellflower with Vernon Baxter Hammatt, Long Beach.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Myers, the bride was gowned in a sheath dress of imported lace with flowing detachable train of silk organza and lace. A halo hat of lace held her bouffant tiered veil and she carried a star bouquet of orchids set in white rosebuds.

Preceding her to the flower banked altar were Mrs. Donald Meints, matron of honor, and Kathy Young, Marge McCarthy and Yvonne Hammatt, bridesmaids.

* * * *

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hammatt, 4702 Pearce Ave., asked Robert Bingham to attend as best man. The 200 guests were shown to their places by Richard Jones, Donald Meints, Tom Depuy and Larry Jones.

Following a honeymoon trip to San Francisco, the newlyweds will reside in Fort Monmouth, N. J., where the bridegroom is stationed with the U. S. Army. He is a graduate of Lakewood High School and attended Long Beach City College. His bride, an alumna of Jordan, attended Cerritos College.

Restraint Goes Far

John R. Crawford of New York is one of the finest and most colorful players of all time. Almost anything can and does happen when Johnny is at the table. Unquestionably his false-card in a rubber bridge game at Newport was the most sensational of the year 1963.

South was pretty proud of his restraint in opening with only one club. He had 23 points, but in addition he had better than six old fashioned honor tricks. So once North responded to that one club opening, South was on his way to a slam and would probably have gone all the way to seven had North shown a king in response to South's five no-trump Blackwood call.

Johnny was looking at a lot of cards in defense against six no-trump, but it never occurred to him to double. He did not want to show the location of all those picture cards.

* * * *

WHEN he saw dummy, Johnny was really glad that he hadn't doubled. Obviously, South held all the missing aces and kings and if he could bring those six diamond tricks he would have his slam.

It also looked as if South would bring those six diamond tricks home unless Johnny could create an illusion for him.

That is just what Johnny did. South finessed dummy's queen of diamonds at trick two and Johnny dropped the jack.

South returned to his hand with a club, led a diamond, played dummy's ten and was about to claim a grand slam when Johnny produced the king. Instead of making all the tricks South wound up going down four.

Candians to Welcome New Year

Hundreds of French Canadians will welcome 1964 at a New Year's Eve "Reveillon" party Tuesday at Knights of Columbus Hall, 9th Street and Bonnie Brae Avenue in Los Angeles.

Gertrude LaVoie Thomasset, president of the French Canadian Club, sponsor of the party, announces that a midnight buffet will be a feature of the event.

* * * *

AN EIGHT piece orchestra will play for dancing and there will be party favors for all attending.

The public is invited to attend the party. Reservations are requested and may be made with the French Canadian Club office, 215 W. 5th St., Los Angeles.

Golden Age Club Meets Thursday

Golden Age Club of Long Beach, Mrs. Marge Woods, president, invites all members and friends to the monthly meeting Thursday at Linden Hall. A dessert lunch will be served at noon followed by a short meeting and cards.

Banks and Boats Beckon

Chef of the Week

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

C. Arnholt Smith

No precision instrument has ever been perfected that could "clock" his modus operandi. He has good "pick-up" too, yet he is not perpetual motion. Today's Chef of the Week, C. Arnholt "Arnie" Smith, is president and chairman of the board of the United States National Bank, and president of the Westgate California Corp. He also owns the San Diego Padres. He has been very careful not to become a personal failure while making a business success.

Probably the biggest secret of his accomplishments is his pride in physical fitness, and his interest in sports of all kinds.

Always fond of water, Smith, at one time owned the Crystal Pier at Pacific Beach, near San Diego, just so he could be close to it. This fondness led him to become a rowing champion. Also, he is now cruising in his fifth cruiser, the Kimika. That's Hawaiian for Smith.

* * * *

DURING HIS rowing days at San Diego Rowing Club, Smith was known as the "silent, placid one." He lived by training rules and kept in excellent condition. He was called a natural oarsman, was never beaten in competition. He won the California senior sculling title by beating Bill Nelson of San Francisco, the man they claimed was "unbeatable." He won 20 trophies in rowing and one in golf for a one-day tournament at Catalina Island. Smith retired from rowing at 23.

He has been known as the "man with the tan" for the past 35 years, which accounts for the color of his banks, including the three located in Long Beach. In fact, his home, and Westgate Park, which he owns, are painted "Smith Brown." It is estimated he spends $100,000 a year on paint.

He has called San Diego home since 1906 when his parents moved there from Walla Walla, Wash. Practically self educated, Smith went to San Diego High, but didn't finish. He has reached the top by working hard and long hours. With a natural business sense as a youngster, he learned most of what he knows about the banking business by attending American Institute of Banking classes.

* * * *

HIS ADULTHOOD mirrors his childhood in other ways, too. He always had to have many things on the fire and, if things slowed down, he'd start something. He read and reads a lot. And he had, and has, that happy faculty for making his enthusiasm become infectious. But, probably his greatest attribute is his ability to make his employes want to match their energy with his. To quote one, "He makes you feel as if you are working with him as an equal."

As chief executive for the U. S. National Bank and the Westgate California Corp., Smith oversees a total operation of more than 1,200 employes and combined resources of more than $202,000,000.

Since its expansion program began in 1950, the U. S. National Bank has grown from a single branch in San Diego to a 28-branch system with offices in five key counties of San Diego, Orange, Riverside, Los Angeles and San Bernardino. In the last five years deposits have risen from $108,000,000 in 1958, to $203,000,000 in 1962.

Smith conducts his varied business interests from a swank, beautifully wall-papered office of the U. S. National Bank. Across the street he watches construction of his new 24 story skyscraper, which eventually will house the bank. He and his associates bought the bank in 1933.

* * * *

SMITH IS A great family man, too. He and Mrs. Smith have a daughter, Carol (Mrs. Harry Shannon), and a son, Arnold Jr. Weekends usually find them at Westgate Park, pulling for the Padres, in Balboa Stadium rooting for the Chargers, on the ocean in their 67-foot cruiser, or swimming in their pool at home.

A perfectionist, anything he does, he does the best he can. No one is neater.

And . . . when he cooks, well, his recipe had better be for tuna, or he'd be "off limits" at Westgate. This one is for Tuna Curry.

TUNA CURRY KIMIKA

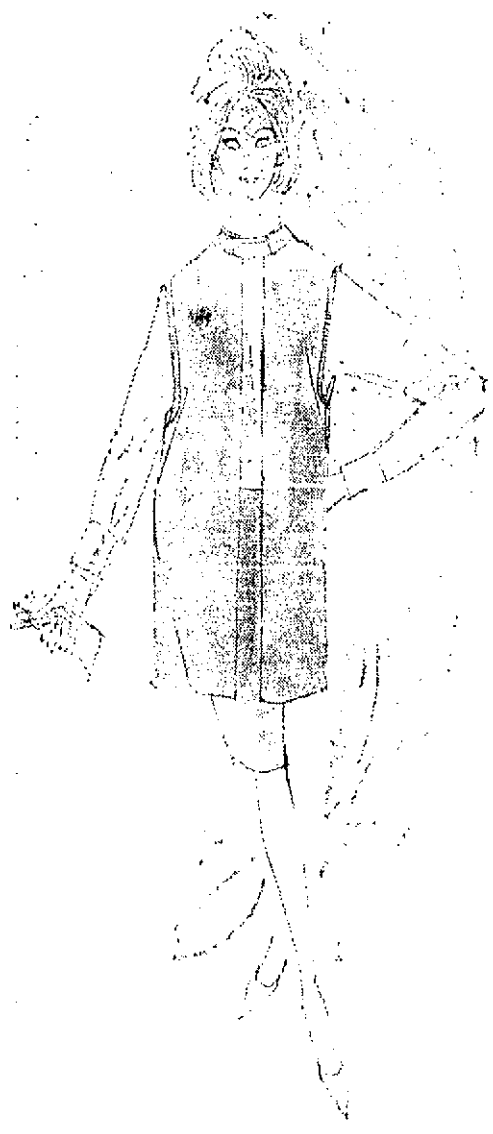

2 7-oz. cans tuna
1 quart milk
1 package coconut
3 cloves garlic, crushed
2 medium onions, chopped
1 piece green ginger, chopped
1 to 2 tblsp. curry powder (to taste)
4 tblsp. flour
2 tblsp. melted butter
Salt to taste.

Add coconut to milk and let stand 2 hours; then simmer 30 minutes. Add garlic, onion, ginger, curry powder and flour which has been blended with butter. Cook 30 minutes longer. Strain tuna and add to mixture. Also, more salt if needed. Reheat and serve on mound of steaming rice. Serves 5.

Serve with any five of the following:

1 cup chopped, crisp bacon
1 cup hard cooked eggs, chopped
1 cup roasted peanuts
1 cup sweet ginger
1 cup grated coconut
1 cup chopped onion tops
1 cup mango chutney
1 cup gherkin pickles
Lemon or lime quarters

Juilliard Schedules Auditions

Juilliard School of Music, New York, has announced that it will hold auditions for the Naumburg and Lifschey Scholarships for orchestral instruments: violin, viola, cello, string bass, oboe, English horn, bass clarinet, bassoon, French horn, trumpet, trombone, bass trombone and tuba.

On Jan. 6 and 7, Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard Orchestra, and Jorge Mester, a member of the orchestra conducting faculty, will adjudicate the orchestral scholarships. On Feb. 10, Christopher West, director of the Juilliard Opera Theater, with Frederic Waldman, conductor and associate director of the Juilliard Opera Theater, will judge for the Opera Theater scholarships.

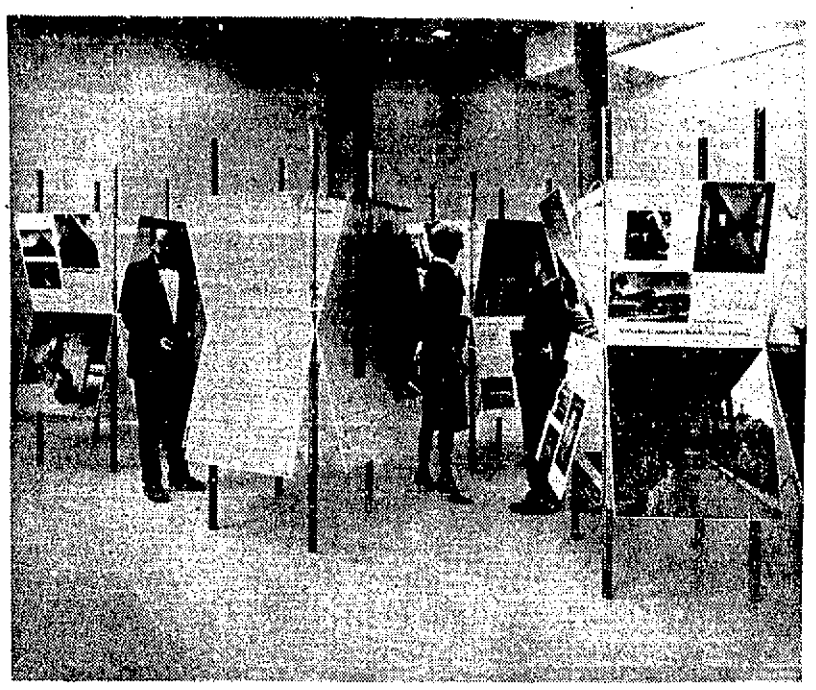

* * * *

THOSE ACCEPTED for admittance to Juilliard School of Music as orchestral instrument students will, in addition to their regular training, have opportunity to play with the Juilliard Orchestra, which gives six concerts a year.

Not only does the orchestra play the standard symphonic repertory, but contemporary works and premieres. There are also the advantages of performing on afternoon and evening student recitals, training in the Opera Theater Orchestra, chamber ensembles, etc.

Spring high school graduates, as well as performers on the college and graduate levels, are eligible to participate. Orchestral applicants will be expected to play not only compositions of their own choice, but also to sight-read difficult passages from the standard symphonic repertory.

Complete information concerning these auditions may be obtained from Mr. Edward T. Paul, 1330 N. Vine St., Hollywood.

TWELVE CHURCHES

Religious structures from many parts of the country make up a new exhibit, "Twelve Churches: An Architectural Study in Photographs," which will come to Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., Feb. 2. Circulated by the Smithsonian Institution, it includes churches chosen to demonstrate how an architect can help the clergy bring people into the church complex to use and enjoy its spiritual, educational and recreational resources.

Landscape Show First in '64

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., next Sunday will open its January exhibit, "Landscape Paintings," selected from its own collection.

The show is planned to demonstrate developments in landscape painting in Southern California during the last 10 years.

Such artists as Florence Arnold, Hans Burkhardt, Paul D. Cooper, Frode Dann, Orval Dillingham, Keith Finch, Robert Frame, George James, Gerd and Irene Koch, Roger Kuntz, Douglas McClellan, Dean Spille and Jack Zajac are represented.

The show will hang through Jan. 26.

* * * *

WILTON McCOY, remembered here as an active participant in Long Beach Art Association and Spectrum Club, will have a one-man show of desert and mountain paintings at Desert Art Center Gallery, 444 E. Indian Ave., Palm Springs.

The exhibit will open Jan. 5 with a reception and tea from noon to 5 p.m. next Sunday.

* * * *

TWO DISTINGUISHED artists from the San Francisco area, Robert Rishell and Dr. Raymond Brose, are featured in a show at Desert-Southwest Art Gallery on Highway 111, Palm Desert. The exhibit will continue through Jan. 14.

Rishell won fame as a portrait painter as well as for his landscapes and murals. Saturday he gave a demonstration of landscape painting at the gallery.

Dr. Brose teaches art at Stanford University. Since 1950, he has received 38 awards in regional and national exhibits, including the purchase prize at the Library of Congress fourth annual exhibition of prints.

The Desert-Southwest Art Gallery, formerly the Desert Magazine Art Gallery, is open daily, including Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. There is no admission charge.

New Year's Eve Show on Agenda

A special New Year's Eve performance of "Flower Drum Song" has been scheduled at Melodyland Theater, opposite Disneyland. The colorful Rodgers and Hammerstein stage hit, starring James Shigeta and Elaine Dunn, will then close its holiday run on Sunday evening, Jan. 5.

Next on the Melodyland Theater agenda is the winter play series, consisting of a quartet of hit comedies, also imported from Broadway, each to run two weeks.

* * * *

FIRST of the group is John Patrick's "Teahouse of the August Moon," starring Burgess Meredith, opening Jan. 14. Others will be "Anniversary Waltz," co-starring Howard Duff and Anne Jeffreys, opening Jan. 28; Gisele MacKenzie in "Auntie Mame," opening Feb. 11; and "No Time For Sergeants," starring Jerry Van Dyke, opening Feb. 25.

Tickets for the series are available by mail or at the box office of the theater. Seats also are on sale at Southern California Music Co., Los Angeles; all Mutual Agencies and Wallichs Music Cities.

Ford Grants for Ballet

A $7,756,000 program to strengthen professional ballet in the United States has been announced by the Ford Foundation.

Recipients include performing companies, ballet schools, private teachers and promising students.

A significant part of the new program is designed to improve instruction and performance in local communities. It will be implemented through a $1.5 million grant to the School of American Ballet in New York under direction of George Balanchine. The school also will receive $2,425,000 over the next 10 years to strengthen it as a national ballet training institution.

* * * *

THE NEW York City Ballet will receive $2 million over 10 years for expansion of its repertoire, extension of employment periods for its dancers and stage managers and provision for its dancers to perform with emerging companies in other cities.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Charles Munch Is Dyanmic Director

By RACHEL MORTON
I, P-T Music Critic

Charles Munch, who will appear as guest conductor with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra on Jan. 2 and 3 at the Philharmonic Auditorium, Los Angeles, has had a thrilling career. Those of us who heard him conduct the Boston Symphony at the Shrine Auditorium some years ago will never forget this tall, handsome giant with a shock of wavy blonde-grey hair as he conducted the orchestra with dynamic authority and poetic sensitivity.

Charles Munch was born into an environment of nothing but music. All his paternal ancestors were organists. In Strasbourg, where he was born in 1891, his father, besides being an organist, founded a choir and organized a school of music.

* * * *

THE MUSICAL get-togethers in the family of six children on Sunday afternoon were as set a custom as going to church. Often, celebrated musicians were guests in the home and young Munch was thus privileged to meet Arthur Nikisch, Gabriel Pierne, Vincent d'Indy and Edouard Colonne.

Young Charles, like his brothers and sisters, was taught to play the organ and violin and at an early age was playing second violin at the last stand in his father's orchestra. From the age of 14 he was an occasional substitute for his father at the organ. "Before those keyboards and pedals and the palette of stops," he says, "I felt almost like a demigod, holding in my hands the reins that controlled the musical universe.

* * * *

BUT IT WAS as a violinist that he received his diploma at the Strasbourg Conservatory in 1912, and it was as a violinist that he headed for Paris to study under Lucien Capet. Paris became the love of his life. Here he met and married the daughter of a prominent family of Switzerland, Genevieve Maury, a marriage that lasted until her death in 1956.

During World War I, Munch was gassed before Peronne and wounded at Verdun. He returned to Strasbourg, which had become French territory and took out French citizenship papers. He became concert master of the Strasbourg Orchestra and in 1926 he became concert master of the Leipzig Philharmonic, under Wilhelm Furtwangler, where he had occasional chances to conduct.

* * * *

BEING PERSUADED now that conducting was to be his life's work, he returned to Paris. With his wife's encouragement and their pooled resources, he rented a hall in Paris, engaged an orchestra and conducted a concert which was so successful tha this name became famous overnight. He assembled his own orchestra, calling it The Paris Philharmonic, and made a point of playing the works of men then living in Paris, such as Honegger, Roussel and Poulenc.

"I like all music," he says, "no matter from what country or what composer. But I do like to interpret music in which something is happening all the time."

HAPPY NEW YEAR TO MY READERS!

Southern California Art Flowered in 1963

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Art flowered everywhere in our area in 1963. The Los Angeles County Museum brought to us major and definite exhibits, historical and contemporary: the Treasures of Versailles, paintings by Philip Guston, 12 Pop Artists, Masterworks of Mexico, the sculpture of Gaston Lachaise.

Among other brilliant showings, Pasadena offered collections of Robert Motherwell, Nolde, and Duchamp. The contributions of the newly-born Balboa Pavillion Gallery included Morris Graves and the exciting "Artist as Craftsman—Craftsman as Artist."

* * * *

WITHOUT even mentioning the consistently high quality of exhibits at the UCLA galleries, kudos must go to college galleries: the splendid Long Beach City College offerings highlighted by this fall's "Six Painters," the brilliant promise of Orange State College's opening show. Long Beach State College now has a gallery director who brought here, among others, the "34" show of major West Coast sculptors.

The business world is assuming responsibilities in the cultural field. The Rossmoor Shopping Center offered this summer a major juried exhibit of paintings, Buffum's commissioned a painting as its Christmas offering. Sears showed its Vincent Price collection here.

LONG BEACH Museum of Art consistently offers the public a wide variety of art forms, including the two "Arts of Southern California" series, the "Second Annual Southern California Exhibition" of 110 juried paintings and sculptures, and circulating exhibitions. Two of these were from the American Federation of Art, "A University Collects: Notre Dame," with 17th and 18th century works from France and Italy, and "A University Collects: Cornell," showing prints by Whistler. The current toy exhibit includes old and new toys from around the world, selected for their historical interest as well as for their art value. Two exhibits this year pointed up the museum's interest in the local art scene—the Jubilee Show and the Long Beach Art Association Annual.

THE WORKS shown by private groups to the public reflect a dedication to higher standards: the Villa Riviera Gallery of Long Beach Art Association and the Seal Beach Artists' League. Series of shows are presented at the Pacific Coast Club, at Buffum's and other business establishments as well as in our branch libraries.

Commercial galleries seem to survive best as adjuncts to other businesses. Grace Carnot supports her high caliber collections of local artists by the unique International Gifts, Atelier 7 with a bistro, and Veltman with its frame shop.

LBSC graduates each year several dozen first-rate artists in all media schooled by a faculty whose own works are of wide renown. Both the annual faculty and students shows are exciting events.

* * * *

WHERE IS this flowering leading? (The term "renaissance," meaning re-birth, is hardly applicable to the situation.) Pasadena Art Museum and the County Museum will move into appropriate new homes in the near future. The opportunity for assembling meaningful collections is wide open. Many sincerely-dedicated persons hope that in the New Year our city will take positive steps toward establishing an art center which will be appropriate to the opportunities and future needs of the community.

On Stage—

Russian Bill Booked for Film Series

The presentation of an early Russian film classic, "Alexander Nevsky," will high light Jewish Community Center's Foreign Film Festival on Saturday.

The public will be able to see the complete version of this film in the original language, with English subtitles. Directed by the renowned Serge Eisenstein, it features an original score by Prokofiev. With magnificent visual imagery, it tells of the defense of Novgorod by Prince Alexander Nevsky against the invading Teutonic hordes during the fierce 13th century Battle of the Ice.

Open to all, the film will start at 8:30 p.m. at the center, 2601 Grand Ave. A short feature on Russian folk dance will also be shown, and coffee and cake are available after the presentation. For further information, call the center.

'Las Posadas' at Padua Hills

"Las Posadas" at Padua Hills Theater, Claremont, is popularly known as the story of Christmas in Old Mexico.

"Las Posadas" is the story of a humble Mexican family faced with a problem at Yuletide. Between the first and third acts of the play is the famous coloquio, Nativity scene recreating the birth of Christ. It is a stirring a dramatic event as presented by the Mexican Players.

"Las Posadas" will run through Jan. 4. It will be followed by "Las Canacuas," comedy set in romantic Michoacan. This play will open a run of seven weeks on Jan. 8.

Padua Hills Theater is located three miles north of Foothill Boulevard, Claremont. Reservations may be made by phone.

OUR COVER

A million persons will line the parade route Wednesday in Pasadena, and 90 million others will be watching on television as 19-year-old Nancy Kneeland of San Gabriel and her six princesses roll by on the royal float of the diamond anniversary Tournament of Roses. Nancy, who was selected as queen from 2,600 Pasadena City College coeds, is a business major who plans a career as a retail merchandising buyer. The 5-foot-7, green-eyed brunette collects antique silver and china as a hobby, likes tennis, hunting and sailing, and sings in her church choir. Nancy, whose widowed mother is secretary to a school principal, works part-time in a department store.

The Confusing Game of Football

—Associated Press Wirephoto

Football is confusing enough for its fans, but pity this hapless official trapped helplessly in a pileup of players. Not only disturbed, he almost lost his pants.

By Jerome Hall

IT HAS been concluded, apparently by use of some gigantic adding machine, that 75 million persons will watch the games of football played Wednesday for television and the glory of Alma Mater.

Obviously, that total includes women and children who do not understand what is happening.

But if all those who do not understand the game were subtracted from that 75 million, it would leave only 384 — the head coach and the quarterback of each of the colleges in America. And some of those coaches are on the borderline.

Football, you see, is not a simple game.

Originally it was. The game began in ancient Athens, was banned in the 12th century. Then it just slid along in a limbo until Knute Rockne.

FOOTBALL is a game of specialists now—and so is watching football. There are those who specialize in watching the linemen. They never know who won the game until they read the papers the next day. But somewhere in their youth they heard that the football fan "in the know" watches the line play.

Football is based on confusion. Harland Svare, the Rams coach, recently was asked if he had one wish for a Christmas present, would it be the Chicago Bears' defense or the New York Giants' offense. He picked the Bears' defense, without hesitation. Then he was asked which team he thought would win the National Football League championship game. He picked the Giants.

Then there are statistics. You can't have sports without statistics. Else what would the sports writers write about on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursday? But if you don't understand what "TCB" and "PC" and "LG" means, don't fret. A college coach of considerable academic achievement recently summoned the school's publicity man to admonish him for giving away the team's secrets. He considered the average gain per carry to be classified information.

"All the schools do it," protested the publicist.

But the coach insisted. It was all right to reveal the total yards gained by the backfield men and the number of times they carried the ball, but it was revealing too much to tell their averages.

THERE IS so much confusion that the Encyclopedia Brittanica now has tried to uncomplicate the game. It has a new booklet out, saying "As soon as the center snaps the ball, you suddenly see mayhem. Everyone starts running and in a few seconds the players are piled in a heap."

Now, what could be clearer than that?

Since the encyclopedia has invaded football, the dictionary is next. It will define backfield players as "swivel-hipped slashers," no doubt. And linemen will be "hard-nosed linemen" because there obviously is no such thing as a soft-nosed linemen. Not in Wednesday's bowl games, anyway.

One thing that isn't confusing about football is what the coach says to the referee when a long run is called back.

One other thing that's easy to understand about football. When you're sitting in that crowded stadium and someone squeezes past, spills some soda pop on you and steps on your toe . . . he knows what you're thinking.

Muir's Springs Where Wild Roses Grow

By Vera Williams

NATURALIST John Muir set out in 1877 on an excursion into the San Gabriel Mountains, and eventually made his way up Eaton Creek into Eaton Canyon.

He spent his first night, he wrote, in the company of "a strange, dark-looking man" who lived in a cabin "situated at the foot of the mountains where a small spring oozes out of a bank overgrown with wild rose bushes."

This colorful natural area described by Muir is located in the heart of one of Los Angeles County's most natural and unspoiled parks—Eaton Canyon Park, 1750 N. Altadena Drive, Pasadena, 12 miles from downtown Los Angeles, 36 miles from downtown Long Beach.

OF SPECIAL interest to nature lovers is the 185-acre Fox Ridges section of the park, featuring a new nature study center, a nature trail with chaparral and desert scrub plants, and an outdoor farm-and-wild animal compound. Nearby are a wildlife area of several canyons, a meadow and a dry wash for hiking and studying purposes.

Provided also are a picnic ground with 50 tables and a fire circle, parking facilities and a camp ground with restrooms.

An overnight campside for equestrians is under construction.

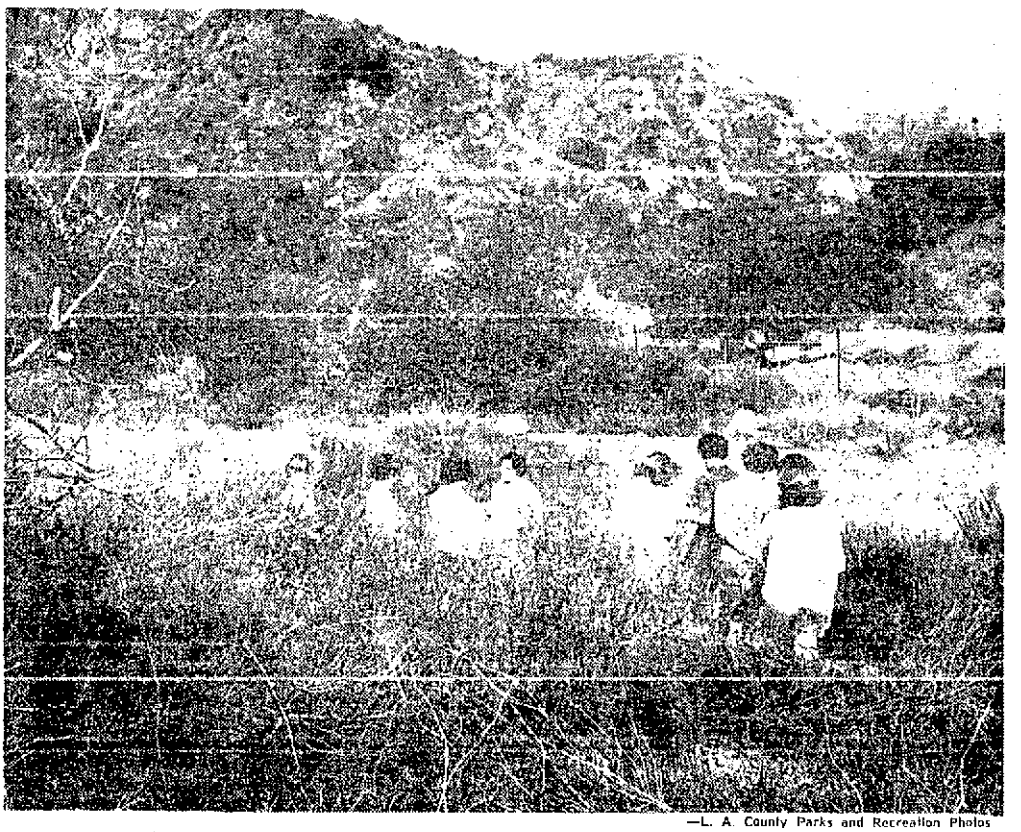

Eaton Canyon, altitude 960 feet, lies entirely in the foothill and chaparral life zone and provides fascinating flora and fauna. Included are 2,705 species of animals (2,500 insects, 25 mammals, 70 birds, 8 lizards, 10 snakes and 7 amphibians); 123 species of plants (70 wild flowers, 44 shrubs, 6 trees, 3 vines) and a vast number of grasses, lichens, ground covers, mosses, ferns, mushrooms and toadstools.

THE NATURE STUDY area's compound of wild and farm animals eventually is to become a "barnyard zoo" where children may feed rabbits, chickens, pheasants, guinea pigs, tortoises and rodents.

A large hawk and an opossum delight children and animal-loving adults. The park regrets that it has lost "Hopper," a tame cottontail who used to hop up out of the brush for visitors to scratch his ears. Lately he has been missing—and some female rabbit, not so tame as Hopper, is suspected.

The Robert McCurdy Nature Study Center, named for a Pasadena civic leader interested in nature study, recently was opened. It includes a Nature Study Building (3,653 square feet) and a 196-seat auditorium (1,792 square feet). The Nature Study Building has a museum-library, two classrooms, preparation room and office. The auditorium has a raised speaker's platform.

The museum-library and display cases facing the enclosed court are reserved for exhibits. Window displays include living snakes and lizards common to Eaton Canyon, live insects, plant legends, common birds and mammals and a habitat exhibit of the great horned owl and dusky-footed wood rat.

—L. A. County Parks and Recreation Photos

Girl Scout guides studying nature trails at Eaton Canyon Park, Pasadena, appear to be wading through dense growth. The girls escort visitors to the 184-acre park.

NATURE recreation programs are coordinated by Senior Nature Recreation Specialist David G. Marqua, who holds a master of science degree in zoology from Long Beach State College. Naturalists on the staff include Robert Crandall, nature photographer known for his work in Walt Disney's "Living Desert" and "Secrets of Life."

Hikes and guided tours, youth and adult classes, guest naturalist lectures and starlight nature programs are provided. Hikes and guided tours are highlighted Saturdays and Sundays, 10-12 noon and 1-3 p. m.

When the county acquired Fox Ridges from Miss Mary Beatrice Fox in 1950 for $50,000, the former owner stipulated that the natural beauty of the park be preserved in its original state. Her family had held title to the property from about the time Muir visited it until it was sold to the county.

IT HAPPENED IN IMPERIAL AND COACHELLA VALLEYS IN 1906

When California Almost Drowned

By Jan R. Young

WHEN MAN tinkers with nature, trouble is often the end result. Nowhere is this maxim better illustrated than in the titanic struggle that took place in 1906, a time when it seemed that part of Southern California might very well become a part of the Pacific Ocean, or at least the Gulf of California.

Newspaper headlines trumpeted the impending dangers when the mighty Colorado River left its bed and began filling the Imperial and Coachella Valleys with billions of gallons of water. Where there had been only desert, an inland sea appeared and was growing at an alarming rate. Something had to be done, and immediately. A railroad with faith in the future and men with little other than raw courage accepted the challenge. The battle lines were drawn.

But what was it that pitted man against nature in this epic battle?

IT WAS DURING the 1890s that pioneer land developers saw promise in the desert wastelands of Imperial and Coachella Valleys. But before they could become gardens, water must be had. Accordingly, a canal was dug which diverted water from the Colorado River directly into the Imperial Valley.

With water available, residents flocked to the area. Vision became reality as lush crops were harvested and the valley gave birth to a number of towns, built to serve the farmers and their families. For a time all went well, or so it seemed. But the Colorado, unused to being harnessed, was restless and treacherous. Bland on the surface, the river was secretly dropping sand into the canal. Suddenly, overnight, water to the farmers dropped to a trickle, then stopped altogether. Several miles of the canal were completely blocked with tons of sand and a levee 20 feet high appeared at the entrance!

Farmers were wild with rage, seeing their crops threatened because of water scarcity. They demanded that something be done at once. The promoters seemed to think a short by-pass canal would be easier than to clear four miles of silt. A control gate could be built later, after the emergency was over.

THAT DECISION cost millions and nearly destroyed one of the lushest agricultural areas in the West, if not the world.

The Colorado took to the new channel with a vengeance. More and more water poured into it, until the entire river had changed its course from south to north and its full force was pouring into the Imperial Valley. Now not only the farms were endangered but towns, a railroad, and hundreds of homes. What could be done?

With the full force of the river combined with a series of storms, the 60-foot irrigation ditch had been widened to 120 feet, then 600 feet, and finally a quarter mile. Nearly 20 million gallons of water were pouring into the valley every 24 hours. The full tide poured into the Salton Sink, an immense hole in the sand situated more than 200 feet below sea level. Unless something was done, that Sink would be filled before the river would go back to its bed.

The Southern Pacific Railroad, whose tracks ran across the valleys, accepted the challenge of taming the river. The SP put up $200,000 to aid in the fight. But the initial attempts were hopeless. Aided by the floods, more than four times as much earth as excavated from the Panama Canal was dumped into the cavity. E. H. Harriman, president of the railroad, realized the inherent dangers and issued orders:

Stop the break at any cost!

HE SENT HIS best engineer, Harry T. Cory, to the scene as local engineers showed signs of panic when their levees, dams, and other devices were swept away by the deluge.

While Cory may not have felt inwardly confident, he went ahead with the determination of a charging rhino, building rail spur lines and accommodations for the army of men needed in the struggle. But the Colorado didn't rest, either. The river's nozzle was dug 50 feet deep and was nearly a half mile wide.

Cory's heroic efforts met with defeat and with a million dollars already dumped into the flood tide, the Southern Pacific sought aid from the government. Because Congress wasn't in session, Harriman appealed directly to President Theodore Roosevelt, who personally promised that the government would assume the risk and the expense if the Southern Pacific would continue the fight.

With the promise of unlimited backing, Cory tied up 1,200 miles of main line track so that flatcars, loaded with rock and rubble, could go through. The rock trains, from as far away as 480 miles, began thundering along the rails. In 15 days, 2,057 carloads of rock, 221 of gravel, and 203 of clay were dumped into the raging river. It was a record which still stands unequaled.

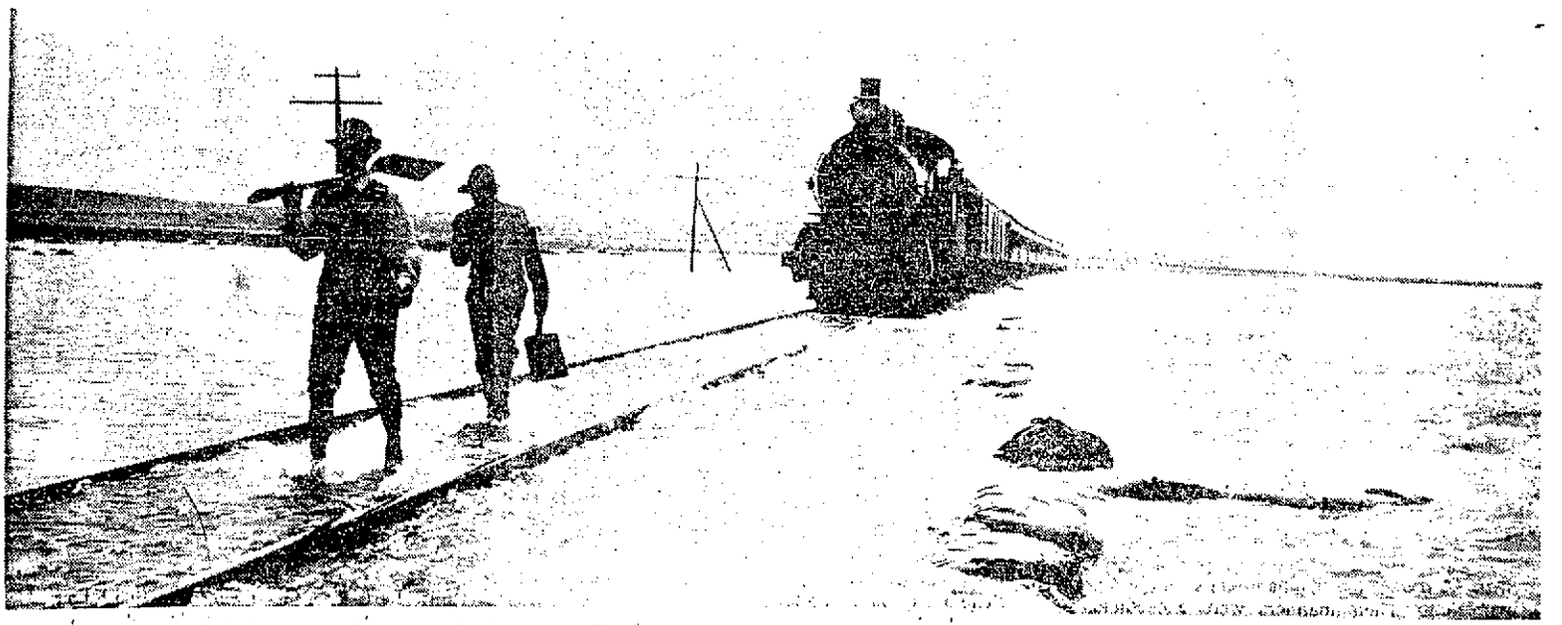

HUNDREDS OF MEN were recruited into the fight, including a number of Indians who wove a willow mat 180 feet wide and nearly a half mile long. Engineers planned to use it to slow the cutting impact of the water while thousands of tons of rock were dropped into the aperture. Traditional engineering methods had been swept away with the intensity of the fight. Anything was used, no matter how far-fetched or primitive it seemed to be. This was now a fight for survival.

Cory's men forced a trestle into the torrent three times, but each time the water engulfed it before enough rock could be dropped to support the structure. Ninety-foot timbers were floated away like matches. But suddenly, the accumulated work took hold. And it was on the morning of February 11, 1907, that the river was finally controlled. A trestle was pushed across, railroad men spiking down rails just ahead of the heavily laden rock cars. They were followed by trains carrying immense boulders which were pushed into the water with little else than man's naked courage and strength. Huge searchlights lighted the way for men working night and day.

THE RUBBLE, ROCKS and debris took hold in the mats and timbers. Just as though nothing had happened, the mighty Colorado jabbed through the earth and cut a new channel, again aimed peacefully as before at the Gulf of California.

To insure victory, a network of dikes and canals was constructed to prevent a recurrence of such a disaster. A glistening inland sea, the Salton Sea, 10 miles wide and about 35 miles long, remained to recall the strength of the river that left its bed.

In exchange for the millions spent and the heroic efforts in taming the Colorado and preventing Southern California from being inundated, the government finally paid the costs —22 years after the fight had been won.

This train had to steam into a vast flood in 1906, when an engineering error in Imperial Valley caused mighty Colorado River to leave its bed.

Shoot 'em up days of early California

New Year's Celebrations of Long Ago

Illustration by Richard Wallmeyer

Shocked young man was Harris Newmark, recent arrival in Southern California, at experiences on his first New Year's Eve and rough ways of West.

By Maymie R. Krythe

WHEN EASTERNERS came to California in the early days, they liked to carry on the old holiday customs they had enjoyed on the other side of the continent. And we have an interesting account in Richard Henry Dana's classic, "Two Years Before the Mast," of how he and a few companions—during the 1830s—went ashore New Year's Day when their ship touched harbor of Monterey.

After they had washed the decks and eaten breakfast, they got a bucket of water apiece and "scrubbed up" for the land trip. After dressing in their best sailor outfits, they went ashore in a quarter boat. Since they couldn't find a church service, they went around Monterey, talked with some natives, hired horses and rode to Carmel Mission. They had a dinner there of "beef, eggs, frijoles, tortillas, and some middling wine."

Then they "scoured" the vicinity on "fleet horses," and got back to Monterey soon after the sun had gone down. Some of the sailors had refused to go with Dana and his companions on the ride, "thinking that a sailor has no more business with a horse than a fish has with a balloon."

SO THESE MEN were "moored, stem and stern" in a grog shop, drinking and making a lot of noise. A crowd of Indians and half-breeds was standing around; and Dana said the sailors might have been "stripped and dirked" or taken to the calabozo if they hadn't rescued them. It was difficult to get these men down to the boats and back on their ship. And the next day after this New Year's revel there were many aching heads as the men worked long hours carrying hides to their vessel.

About a decade later, after Dana's adventure at Monterey, another American spent January 1 there. In 1842, Dr. R. T. Maxwell sailed from Norfolk, Va., as assistant surgeon on the 44-gun frigate United States, commanded by Commodore Thomas Ap Catesby Jones, for the Pacific Coast. Later, when his health failed, Dr. Maxwell left the naval service and settled in San Francisco. There he wrote a book, "A Visit to Monterey," and described a New Year's Day with native Californians at this coastal town:

"On the night of the first of January we gave them (the Californians) a ball at Government House. At that time the female population of Monterey had never tasted cake, mince pie, or anything of that sort. The stewards of our mess were set to work making all kinds of delicacies in the shapes of cakes and pies for the supper at the ball. Our wine from Maderia was all expended, so we were obliged to depend upon whisky toddy, which the ladies thought very fine, and indulged in too freely, some of them. . . .

"These people had the most extraordinary customs. They came on board the ship and danced all day, and we would go ashore and dance all night. They would sit down at the table, and every woman would spread her handkerchief on her lap, and whatever we had on the table, they would eat a part of and carry off a part in their handkerchiefs—nuts, figs, everything. Their manners were exceedingly primitive. . . ."

Richard Henry Dana recalled a year-end celebration in the Monterey area.

IN THE EAST, it was an old New Year's custom of long standing to keep "open house" on New Year's Day. Long tables were set with food and drink. Friends rushed about in their carriages, calling on as many other friends as possible, and, of course, indulging in an eating and drinking marathon. During Gold Rush days in Northern California, one woman tells how the holiday was spent there:

"Tomorrow (New Year's Day) the gentlemen make calls on that day, and the ladies keep a table loaded with cake and wine. I suppose three-quarters of the gentlemen in town will get most essentially tight. I shall not make any special preparation, but I have baked some cake, if anybody comes. I do not want to be piggish. . . ."

In October 1853, a young German named Harris Newmark arrived from his native land and settled in Los Angeles. He became a clerk in his brother's store, and later was one of the city's most influential citizens. His book, "Sixty Years in Southern California," gives a very interesting and detailed account of life in the pueblo during the last half of the 19th century and the beginning of the 20th.

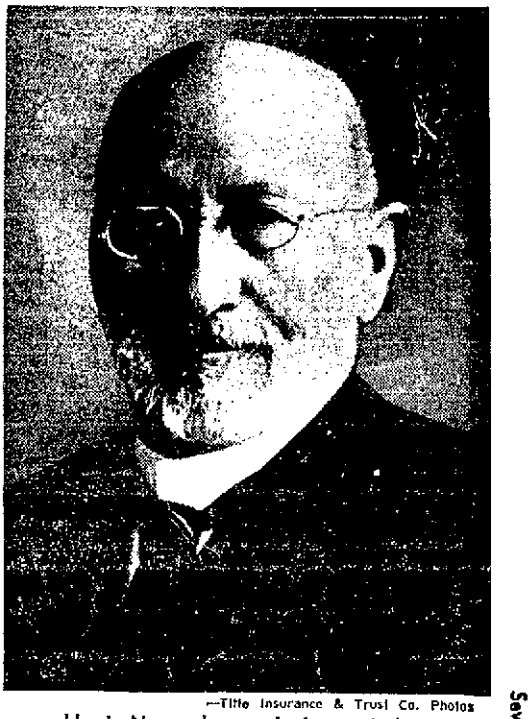

ONE CAN IMAGINE how surprised and shocked the young foreigner was when he spent his first New Year's holiday in Southern California where many lawless characters resided and paid little attention to the law.

On New Year's Eve, he was in his brother's store about 8 o'clock when a man "gloriously drunk and out for a good time" came in flourishing a gun. Since he had been celebrating the New Year for some time, he was already "six sheets in the wind," Mr. Newmark knew he was all right when sober, but a terror when drunk.

Therefore, when the intruder saw Newmark was alone, he pointed his gun at him and demanded, "Treat or I shoot." Discretion being the better part of valor, the clerk took him to a nearby saloon. Then, after the man had had his drink, he fired his gun in the air and disappeared in the darkness.

Newmark says that the first New Year's Eve he spent in Los Angeles (1853) was "ushered in with the indiscriminate discharging of pistols and guns." When the town was organized after California entered the Union in 1850, its council tried to pass an ordinance prohibiting the carrying of firearms, except "in defense of self, home or property." However, the councilmen gave up, as they thought it would be impossible to enforce such a measure. So Newmark says that he, too, got the habit, and kept "peppering away" at an adobe wall on Commercial Street in an effort to become proficient with the weapon.

He neglects to state the quality of his marksmanship by the time the next salute to the New Year rolled around.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Its 30-Year Mood Was Spanish: Today's Accent Is Modern

BEFORE: 30 years Spanish.

By Stella George

ABOUT 30 YEARS AGO a handsome, two-story, Spanish-type home was built on the lot located at 340 Quincy Ave. in Belmont Heights. Now, three years after Rafael de Freitos and Carlo Bognanno purchased the house, it has acquired a modern accent, at same time maintaining its graceful Spanish characteristics.

Structural changes included enclosing the patio (visible from the front of the home) adjacent to the family room and living room, and completely remodeling the kitchen-dining-family room area.

The large, beamed-ceiling living room is a step up from the inviting entry. Furnishings were chosen for suitability to surroundings and architectural motif of the home, color, lines, and comfort. A large plate glass window in the front center forms a living picture of the front garden.

WALLS ARE LIGHT in color and the thick, luxurious carpeting is of pumpkin shade. A long, curved, pumpkin-and-gold couch faces a round coffee table. Like so many of the individual pieces, the latter is noteworthy. Once a

Looking down from the stair landing in the Spanish style home of Rafael de Freitos and Carlo Bognanno: Outside an arched picture window, a bit of garden lends its delightful perspective to an already rich interior decor. dining table, its heavy supporting stem was cut off and the table was mounted on its base. (They later transformed the supporting stem into a base for a fruit bowl.) The table is inlaid in beautiful detail.

The original stairway of the home has a distinctive note. Brightly colored mosaic tile runs horizontally across each step.

Modern as 1964 is the new kitchen-family-dining room area. A compact kitchen with every convenience faces the main room, separated by a used brick bar. The round dining (or game) table can be extended; and the overhead hanging lamp can be moved along the ceiling to center light on the table as needed. The room has an "L" to the left of the kitchen where a glass door leads to the patio.

THE UPSTAIRS bathroom received a complete face lifting with a new enclosed shower and unusual tile which has a tweed-with-gold-thread effect. One of the bedrooms is walnut paneled with matching shutters; the other is furnished in light Provincial decor.

The rear patio and garden have a quaint charm. The visitor never knows what to expect around a corner. Ferns and tropical plants are in abundance. There are small private conversation groupings here and there, shaded by trees and tree-size plants. The garden has a skillfully planned informality, a result of the artistic skill and handiwork of the owners.

Visitors remember many things about this distinctive home: the handsome, hand-carved chest in the family room; the paintings and art treasures in the living room, especially the horse above the fireplace; the small patio which, separated only by glass walls, seems to be a part of the family room, bringing the outdoors inside.

Sturdy, with plenty of room for storage, the dough box of Colonial days makes an excellent lamp or end table.

By Bill Meyerriecks

TAKE A Colonial theme, add a slight modern design touch—and you've got a very functional piece of furniture. In early American days the dough box got plenty of use from the pilgrim homemaker. She mixed her dough for the family's bread in it, pressed it into service as a handy kitchen side table, perhaps used it as a cutting board.

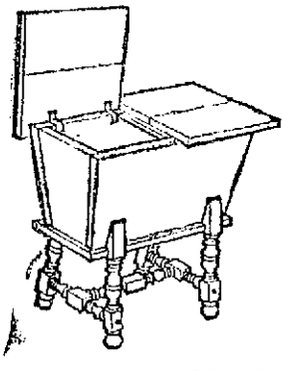

Sketchbook has modernized the traditional dough box as a very attractive lamp or end table. Easy to make, inexpensive in material cost, the dough box is very practical, too. Its hinged tops open to a very roomy storage that can hold many of the items that ordinarily are left about the home.

IT WILL HOLD those Sunday newspaper sections that you finish reading on Tuesday, or those play games that are too big to fit on the bookshelf, last week's mending or any number of things you prefer having out of sight but near at hand.

As an end table, its 23-inch height is right. By using hinges as shown in the plans, you can place a medium-sized lamp on the back half, still see and reach into the front by merely lifting the lid. When closed, the 15x26-inch top will hold and serve nicely for just about all the decorative purposes you have in mind.

The Sketchbook plan gives you all parts and material details plus easy-to-follow step by step instructions of assembly. Also full size patterns are given the type of legs you prefer to make for the table. For the real woodworker the full turned legs can be made from the patterns shown. Equally attractive are the more modern tapered legs shown in the photograph. These can be made with a hand saw.

TO ORDER, specify Dough Box Plan S-140 and send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, 12, Calif.

Sketch shows turned legs the woodworking buff can shape on lathe. Note how the top hinges for storage access.

Keep Family Accounts in Order

By Herb Shannon

EVERY household needs a secretary, preferably good-looking as well as efficient. The catch is that the average homeowner has enough trouble meeting the mortgage without hiring a shapely blonde to keep track of the monthly bills. Besides, Mrs. Homeowner probably would invent some unreasonable objection to any such business-like arrangement.

The alternative is an inanimate secretary, something in the furniture line, to keep the family accounts in order, for note-jotting and storage of paper clips, trading-stamp books, overdue bills and the other appurtenances of modern living.

This creates a problem of its own, what with the lack of space for extra furniture pieces in Mr. Average Homeowner's domicile. Where do you squeeze in a desk for occasional use? The answer, of course, is to build it into a bookshelf, where it is out of the way, yet ready for immediate operation.

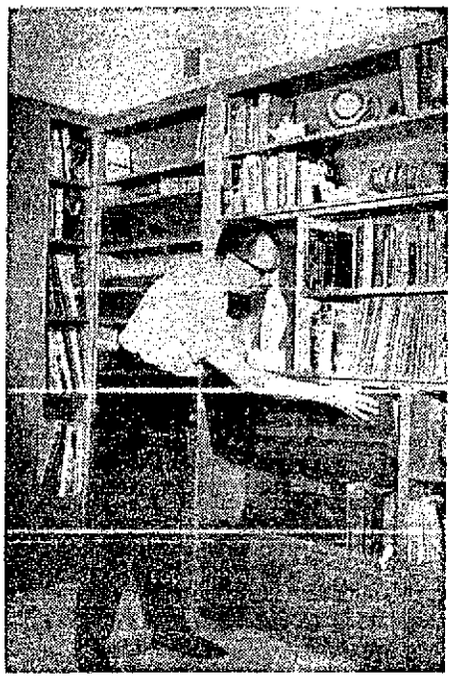

THE SIMPLE and easily made bookshelf desk illustrated here meets these requirements for utility and convenience in an attractive form, in addition to providing a self-contained instant seating facility.

This particular desk also provides the answer to a built-in puzzle: How do you file a 9½-inch business-size envelope in a space less than seven inches deep? The solution is much less complicated than its explanation, but like many of life's little mysteries, it was not immediately fathomed by the builder and author. For this reason and for purposes of suspense, the answer will not be revealed until we have examined some of the more apparent features of the desk.

The assembly is an integral unit, built like an open-front box to fit against a wall along with other bookshelf pieces. Dimensions are optional, depending on those of the surrounding pieces, except for the drop-leaf desk surface. This should be close to standard desk height, about 28 inches from the floor, when opened, and it should extend about 12 inches from the front of the bookcase.

THE DESK surface is hinged flush with the front of the enclosure from the bottom of a shelf inside the unit, and secured when closed by a touch-latch. It is held in the horizontal open position with standard fall-stop brackets on either side.

The desk shelf needs to be sturdy enough to present a good writing surface. In this case, it was made of ¾-inch birch plywood and faced with zebrawood veneer for decorative contrast.

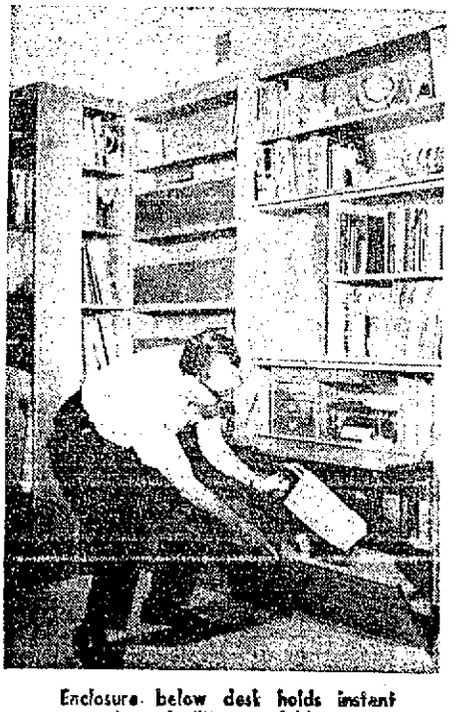

Decorative panel relieves monotony of shelves, opens to serve as desk.

The seating arrangement is simply a storage cabinet at the bottom, containing an inexpensive folding camp stool. The panel concealing this convenience is hinged at floor level and held in place when closed by a magnetic latch.

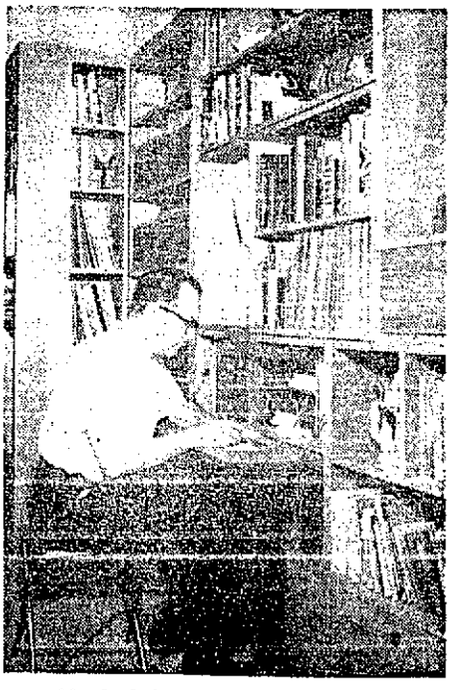

THIS DESIGN leaves an open shelf between the desk and storage enclosures in order to tie into the bookshelf wall motif. It also gives adequate space inside the desk enclosure for installation of drawers and shelves.

Which brings us back to the question posed earlier. After several days of research, experimentation and muttering under the breath, the author found that an envelope measuring 9½ inches long by 4 inches high will fit neatly into a space only five inches deep and 10 inches high, providing the envelope is upended and the pigeonhole is VERTICAL.

This may not seem like much of a scientific discovery at first glance, but neither does Einstein's formula. Both propositions require mental re-orientation.

Enclosure below desk holds instant seating facility—a folding stool.

Handy desk is ready for use any time. Drawers and shelves provide storage.

Old Tires Never Tire

By Frank Jewell

ACCUSTOMED to wastefulness, it is refreshing to Americans to find tireless old tires put to so many uses. They may be seen rolling, bumping, stomping, standing and walking all over the world.

Kids around home have fun rolling tires, rolling in tires and swinging in them on the end of a rope. Young and old in Mexico are grateful to have them to walk upon after they are cut into sandal treads. Old tires in carload and shipload quantities are salvaged for footwear alone as they are replaced by more than 100 million new tires manufactured every year in the U. S.

THOUGH UNSAFE for their original use on motor vehicles, and planes, old tires retain plenty of what it takes for new assignments. Perfected by modern petrochemistry, they retain plenty of elasticity, durability, water-resistance and ability to absorb shock.

No matter that their black and white walls are dull or that the tread pattern has thinned or disappeared: cut into strips they fasten into efficient door mats as commercial products.

Intriguing are the uses to which the whole old tires are put: A town in Texas uses them as bases for removable street traffic signs. The tire fits around a central metal base, stabilizing the sign and facilitating noiseless rolling.

Indians in Arizona reline their wagon brakes with pieces of old tires and even tread their wheels for sandy road traction. An adobe house in New Mexico has made use of old tires to reinforce the walls in interesting pattern arrangements and also to serve as window frames.

TIRES ARE helpful tied into mooring lines for houseboats to provide elasticity for less tension on the ropes and along docks in marinas to protect watercraft from bumping adjacent slips. Some tugboats are festooned with tires which protect them from damaging contact with piers and the ships they are maneuvering.

Old tires make good back stops in garages and strips on door frames save auto finish. They are easily arranged for staggered style, for football running practice and military excercises and are adaptable for other kinds of games.

In fact, old tires never tire, they just wear away.

Portable Doll House

Annette and Mrs. Robert Ray look over Annette's doll house. It's portable and there's very good reason why.

By Roberta Nichols

ELEVEN-year-old Annette Ray's doll house that is being displayed this week at Alamitos Branch Library, 1836 E. 3rd St., is portable and for a very good reason. It can be taken apart, packed, and in no time be on its way to the next Air Force assignment of Annette's father, Staff Sgt. Robert Ray, now in Saigon.

The Rays learned a hard lesson one year in Florida. Always great ones for family projects, they constructed a nine-foot Nativity scene smack in the middle of the living room floor. It took from October to the first of December, and on the day of its completion, Sgt. Ray received orders for immediate transfer. A nine-foot Nativity scene doesn't pack well, so it had to be given away.

WHEN MRS. RAY undertook the building of the doll house as a surprise Christmas present for Annette in 1960, the year Sgt. Ray was in Alaska, she was determined that it would never have to be left behind because of size. So she planned four two-foot-square rooms, each a separate unit, thus making them easily portable. The scale was determined by an 11-inch doll that Annette and her friends favor. To cut down on weight, Mrs. Ray chose aluminum and masonite bolted together. The house is three years old now, has been to Hampton, Va. and back, and has just undergone its first redecoration job.

Once the actual building was completed, the rest was easy and fun. There were shutters made from popsicle sticks, venetian blinds from match stick bamboo, a fireplace of the Ray's favorite all-purpose material, styrofoam. Each brick was individually painted a bright red. Furniture was made and also bought.

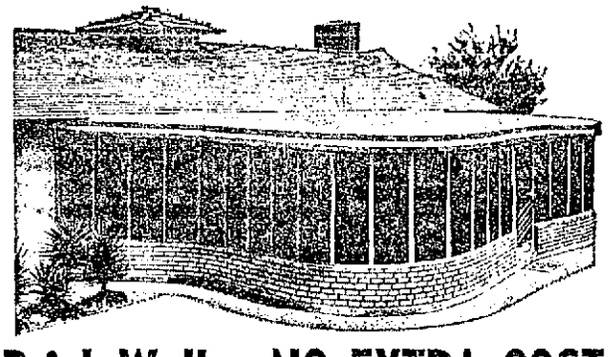

Came summer 1963, and Annette began to eye the doll house critically. It was out-of-date. It had to be redecorated. Like most such projects it became more costly and time-consuming than she had expected it. It ate her allowance and nearly 100 hours of summer vacation. She painted and recovered floors with wood-patterned plastic material. She papered each room with border trim wallpaper.

PLASTIC trellises from the dime store got a luxuriant growth of tiny flowers from old hats. Tops of plastic cigarette packs were filled with styrofoam and planted with more flowers to become window boxes.

Of two TVs, a two-inch set, commercially made, also sharpens pencils. The other is hand-fashioned from styrofoam and has a color picture glued to it. Elegant door knobs throughout the house are known to the playground set as "fried marbles." Curtains and new furniture were installed.

Party Buffet a la Polynesia

All the ingredients for a New Year's buffet in the gay mood of happy Polynesians is spread out here.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine
Home Economics Editor

SET A HAPPY stage in Polynesian mood and bring in an hibachi for a festive New Year's party.

Use the hibachi for tidbits and Polynesian shrimp and rice for the main dish.

Hibachi Tidbits With Barbecue Sauce

1 cup all-purpose barbecue sauce
¼ cup red wine
1 teaspoon soy sauce
Cocktail frankfurters, cut in bite-size pieces
Vienna sausages, cut in bite-size pieces
Drained, canned pineapple chunks
Drained, canned mushroom caps
Luncheon meat, cut in ½-inch cubes
Charcoal briquets

Combine barbecue sauce, wine and soy sauce. Place frankfurters, sausages, luncheon meat and mushrooms in skillet and heat till lightly browned. Place around Hibachi in small dishes (or shells) with bowl of sauce. Guests spear tidbits with wooden skewers, dip in sauce and heat on Hibachi.

Note: To heat charcoal quickly, place on aluminum foil in a pre-heated broiler for about 15 minutes, turning after about 7 minutes. Place charcoal in Hibachi when it is almost white.

Shrimp Polynesian

1¼ pounds cooked, cleaned shrimp or 3 pounds green shrimp in shell
3 tablespoons salad oil
1 can (6 oz.) broiled mushroom crowns
1⅔ cups chicken broth (13½ oz. can)
¼ cup light brown sugar
1 teaspoon powdered ginger
½ teaspoon kitchen bouquet
1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas
1 can (1 lb.) carrots—small, whole, diced or sliced
1 can (1 lb., 4½ oz.) sliced pineapple
½ cup red wine
3 tablespoons cornstarch

Heat oil in skillet, add cooked shrimp medium canned shrimp maybe used and saute for about 2 minutes to heat. Drain liquid from mushrooms, add chicken broth, sugar, ginger and kitchen bouquet. To be shrimp, add peas (thawed enough to be broken apart) carrots, mushrooms (whole or quartered) and pineapple, drained and cut in quarters. Pour liquid into skillet. Cover and bring to a boil, heat until peas are just tender crisp (about 5 minutes). Lower heat. Combine wine and cornstarch and add a little at a time to skillet pushing the food back from the edge of the skillet and stirring until all that section of the liquid thickens. Repeat this in other sections until all the wine-cornstarch mixture has been added. Serve at once with rice. (Serves 8)

Tahiti Salad

2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup sugar
1¾ cups boiling water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1½ cups white wine
1 cup mandarin orange sections
Apricot halves
Pineapple rings
Cherries
½ cup thinly sliced celery
1 grapefruit, sectioned
½ cup green grapes, halved and seeded

Combine gelatin, sugar and salt. Gradually add boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add lemon juice and wine. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Add orange sections, celery, grapefruit and grapes. Place pineapple rings around bottom of ring mold with cherries in center of each ring. Arrange apricot halves around the outer edge. Carefully pour in salad mixture. Chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold on large salad plate with crisp greens, if desired. Serve with Sour Cream Dressing. (Serves 8)

SOUR CREAM DRESSING: Combine 1 cup dairy sour cream, 4 tablespoons mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar and 2 teaspoons vinegar. Mix all ingredients together thoroughly.

Holiday Mincemeat Tart

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup lard or vegetable shortening
5 tablespoons (about) ice water
3 cups (28 oz. jar) prepared mincemeat
1 cup coarsely chopped pecans or walnuts
¼ cup cocktail sherry

Combine flour and salt. With pastry blender cut in shortening until mixture resembles course cornmeal. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of water over mixture at a time, tossing with fork until mixture holds together. Avoid using too much water. Shape pastry into ball. Roll out half of pastry, cut into 12 circles measuring about 3 inches. Fit into tart pans. Combine mincemeat, nuts and sherry. Place a heaping ¼ cup of mixture in each tart. Roll out remaining pastry, cut 12 more circles, cut out star in each circle. Moisten inside rim of each top circle with a little water. Place on top of mincemeat filled tarts. Press edges together firmly with a fork. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes or till lightly browned. (Makes 12)

Note: You can achieve a pretty brown glaze by brushing tarts with light cream before baking. Leftover tarts may be frozen, but better plan on 2 for some of the male guests. Insert a small birthday candle in center of star cut-out and light candles before serving.

Recipe of the Week

WHEN THE HUNTER is home from the forest, this week's $5 prizewinning recipe submitted by J. S. McNeil, 424 Magnolia Ave., Long Beach 12, comes into its own. The recipe:

Leg of Venison

1 leg of venison, 3 to 4 pounds
½ lb. butter
2 oz. bacon strips
1 cup sour cream
2 tblsp. flour
½ cup water
Salt, pepper

Wipe meat carefully, dry off all skin and break leg joints. Lard the lean sides of the leg with bacon strips and season well with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Melt butter in pan, add meat and cook well on all sides until light brown. Lay a few bacon strips in a roasting pan. Place the venison on them and roast in a 350 degree oven for 1 hour, basting frequently with cream. When the meat is tender, remove to serving platter. Add flour to drippings and cook for 2 minutes. Add water and cook for 5 mintes. Strain and serve with meat. Serves 6.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to: Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is is the genealogy on YULE, YOULLE, YOUELL.—G.T.,T.Y., Long Beach; V.Y., Downey.

G.Y.,T.Y.,V.Y.; YULE and the variations YOULE and YOUELL represent descendants of a child born at Yule-Tide (Christmas time) in old England. The 13th century words Yule and Youle became given-names and later surnames in both spellings. Ancestors recorded in Yorkshire are William Yole in 1335 and Robert Youle, 1379. The Yule shield is silver, decorated with a gold wheat sheaf between three black crescents.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly publish data on VAN LEEUWEN—G.L., Norwalk.

G.L.: VAN LEEUWEN is a Belgian name taken by this family from their home city of Leeuwen or Louvain, near the city of Brussels. This ancient locality was named for its inhabitants, a people called the Levaci, whom the Romans conquered in the first century B.C. The Van Leuvan or Van Leeuwen family crest, granted in 1556 by the rulers of the Belgian Duchy of Brabant, has a red lion placed between two silver ostrich plumes.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on REINDL—F.R., Long Beach.

F.R.: REINDL, when traced to its old German source, is disclosed as a Swiss-German variation of the Gothic warrior name Rein-Hardt meaning "Mighty and powerful one." Rein-Hardt was altered dialectically to Reind and was later augmented with the Swiss nickname suffix "—l" meaning "youthful."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on LOUNSBURY—D.L., J.C., Long Beach.

D.L., J.C.: LOUNSBURY ancestors were from a parish called Londesborough in Yorkshire, England. This town name, originally Lodens-burg, translates as "fortress of the shaggy-haired man." Lodensburg evolved into the surnames Londesburgh, Lonsbrough, Lownsbrough and Lounsbury. The family shield is not available.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of AISSA—F.A., Long Beach.

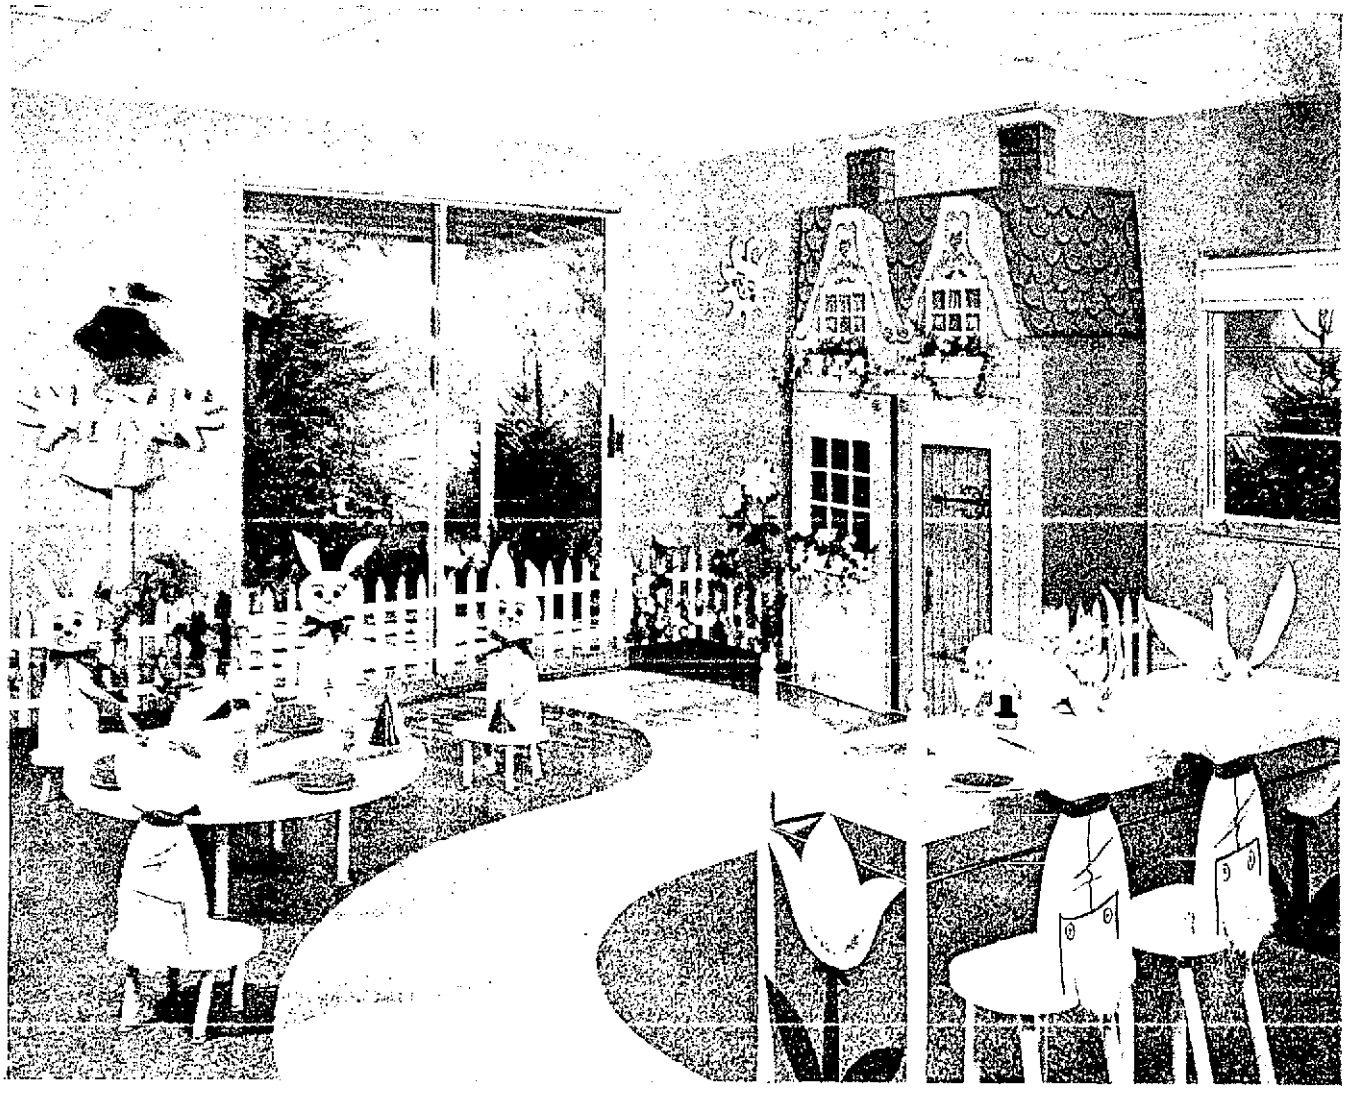

F.A.: AISSA and the variation Assa are Italian surnames. The source was the ancient Roman given-name Aius meaning "the speaker." Aius was used in honor of a pagan Roman deity Aius Loquens, who, tradition records, announced to Roman armies that their enemies, the Gauls of France were attacking them. Aius was altered to Ais, then enlarged to Aissa and Assa, denoting "son of Aius." Aissa may be from the word Assenato for "sensible one," referring to a wise forefather.

DEAR MIS RULE: May we have history on LATHAM—M.B., Long Beach; N.L., Wilmington.

M.B., N.L.: LATHAM was adopted by this lineage from the village called Latham in Yorkshire, England. The Anglo-Saxon source in the 10th century was Hlatha-um, translated as "place of the barns." The Latham shield from Essex is gold, engraved with three silver spheres on a serrated - edge blue stripe within a silver and blue border.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background of ALBRIGHT — L.E, Fullerton.

L.E.: ALBRIGHT originated in old England as the warrior-hero name Aethelbryht, meaning "noble and glorious." The most remote forefather was Eusebius Albrit of Huntington in 1273.

Colorful "Peter Rabbit" playroom (above), created by the Armstrong Cork Co. Bureau of Interior Design, uses green "Montina Corlon" vinyl floor with a contrasting off-white inset to give the effect of a "winding garden trail." Walls, counters and tables are also covered with durable vinyl, while a suspended acoustical ceiling helps to muffle sounds of exuberant play.

A Separate Playroom

CHILDREN may be the pride of the home, but they can be pretty rough on a house.

Within 15 minutes, kids can have a room looking like the wake of a hurricane. By the time Mother has finished cleaning up the mess, they'll have already started on another room.

Some of this, of course, is to be expected with small children, but it doesn't necessarily mean that a home with youngsters always has to be in a state of disorder. With careful planning and creative utilization of space, it's possible to give children all the freedom they need for normal, healthy development, and at the same time maintain the more formal living areas for adult activities.

The key, according to interior design specialists of the Armstrong Cork Co., is to provide a room somewhere in the house so completely appealing to children that they'll want to spend most of their playtime there out of sheer preference. It could be in the basement, or attic, or in a spare bedroom if one is available—the location doesn't really matter. What is important is that the room be designed and outfitted especially for children's activities—a place where they can do the things they want in their own way.

"A separate playroom," says Margaret Gordon Dana, AID, Supervisor of Interior Design for Armstrong, "can more than justify its cost by saving wear and tear on the rest of the house, and by giving the youngsters the right kind of environment in their critical growing-up years. Gradually, children will grow to appreciate such a room for the freedom it offers, and will take pride and responsibility in seeing that it's kept in good order."

A room project of this type isn't something that can be undertaken hastily, however, Armstrong points out. If it's to do the job, it must be planned carefully, both from an immediate and long-range standpoint. The company offers these 10 suggestions for achieving maximum utility, flexibility and appeal in a children's playroom at minimum cost:

- If possble, select a location with easy access to outdoors. This will allow the youngsters to come and go as they please without tracking dirt through the rest of the house.
- Give the room a thorough safety check. Anything that's likely to produce cuts, burns or shocks should be covered or moved out of reach.
- Look for ways to put existing elements of the room to good use. For example, a large closet or cupboard can be decorated to serve as a playhouse, and also double as a convenient storage place for toys.
- Sound-condition the room with an acoustical ceiling to help muffle noise. Regular acoustical tile can be applied directly to the existing ceiling, or if desired, a mechanically suspended ceiling can be used.
- Choose a floor covering that's designed to stand up under hard wear. Vinyl sheet material is ideal since it not only provides a durable, virtually seamless playing surface, but is also exceptionally easy to maintain. Modern vinyl flooring can be installed practically anywhere today—including most basement areas—thanks to a special "Hydrocord" backing that protects the material from the damaging effects of moisture and alkali in the concrete subfloor.
- Let the youngsters take an active hand in selecting the decorative theme for the room. Show them pictures of various children's rooms, then ask them what they like about the picture. This will supply plenty of ideas and will give the kids a chance to impart some of their own personality into the room.
- Make sure that furniture is flexible enough to "grow" with the children. Detachable legs on chairs and tables, for example, will make it an easy matter to add extra height later on.
- Encourage the children to entertain in the room by providing a place for snacks and lunches. A portable soda bar is an excellent enticement for neighborhood gatherings if the budget allows it.
- "Child-proof" everything in the room that is likely to receive abuse. Here again, your best friend is vinyl. As a wall covering, counter-top or table surfacing, it can take all the scuffing, pounding and spilling that children are able to dish out.
- Keep in mind that the children's playroom will some day have to serve as a teen-age rumpus room or study. Don't make expensive structural changes in the room now unless they can easly be adapted to future needs.

Stevenson's Eloquence at U.N.

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

THERE'S a new collection of Adlai Stevenson's campaign speeches. Campaign speeches not on behalf of Adlai himself, but for the United States and for democracy.

Around Adlai Stevenson's head in the United Nations (he's American ambassador to that organization) have swirled crises so great that at times peace has hung in the balance. There are those who idolize Stevenson, and there are those to whom he is somewhat less than one of the angels. But none can deny that he has put forward the American viewpoint, in the U.N., with great courage and with eloquence.

"LOOKING OUTWARD" (Harper and Row $5) is a selection of Stevenson's speeches before the U.N. during that body's greatest years of crisis. They show that America's viewpoint and freedom's cause have not suffered for lack of a valiant spokesman in the world organization. One address ends with this challenge: "If the Soviet Union really wants to stop nuclear testing we challenge it to join us in signing a test ban treaty." Stevenson said this on October 19, 1961; that challenge was to be hurled like a thunderbolt in many another Stevensonian address before the U. N. until at last, this year, the Soviet Union was forced to sign just such a treaty.

In a review of a book like this it is best to cite some of the brilliancies that fill Stevenson's U. N. speeches. On war, for instance: "First, the victor pays for the destruction of his enemy, then for the reconstruction of his friend."

On the new imperialism: "Chairman Khrushchev has called Western colonialism 'disgraceful, barbarous and savage. "But Soviet imperial rule has not been sweet, gentle and kind . . . More than twelve million persons have escaped since the Second World War from the Soviet Union, Communist China and the areas they control."

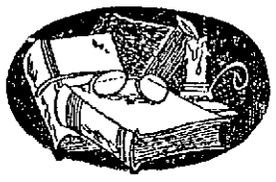

Of Eleanor Roosevelt's death: "We are lonelier; someone has gone from one's own life who was like the certainty of refuge; and someone has gone from the world who was like a certainty of honor."

AS A UNITED PRESS correspondent, Allen Drury covere the United States Senate from November 1943 to July 1945—one of the most important eras in American history. He kept a journal of events and the result is "A SENATE JOURNAL, 1943-1945" (McGraw-Hill, $6.95.) It covers the soldier-vote fight, thorough D Day, the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the ascension of Harry Truman, to the United Nations Charter debate and ratification. As such it is American history, recorded by the brilliant author of "Advise and Consent" and "A Shade of Difference."

MANY HISTORIANS have laid upon the shoulders of Douglas Haig, commander-in-chief of the British Expeditionary Force in World War I the burden for the horrors and shocking loss of life in trench warfare. Now, however, Field Marshal Haig has found an eloquent advocate.

John Terraine, young English military analyst, in "ORDEAL OF VICTORY" (Lippincott, $6.95) shows Haig as a soldier who, though not faultless, had courage and foresight—a soldier who was willing and able to engage the enemy on a scale never before experienced, with weapons and methods never before tried.

NO ONE can boast of being well informed or well read today without at least some knowledge of the 29 new nations of Africa. The name of Africa screams out from today's newspaper headlines and is continually in the forefront of television, radio and other news sources.

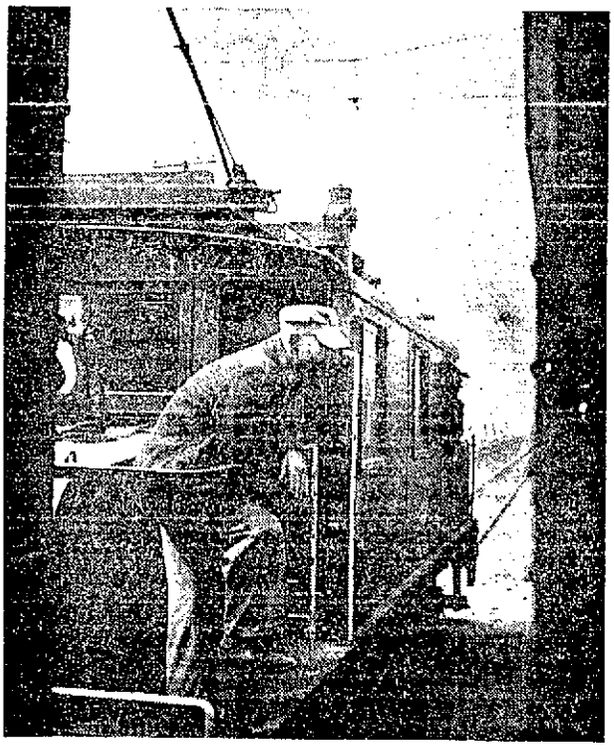

The intelligent reader is hard put to it to find adequate and reliable information on these very new nations whose history and geography and boundary lines are undergoing continual changes. Latest of the many books on Africa racing off the press is a large, impressive and profusely illustrated volume, "THE NEW NATIONS OF AFRICA" compiled by Ben Wattenberg and Ralph Lee Smith (Hart, $10.).

Illustrated with 30 maps and more than 300 photographs this highly readable, fascinating book is destined to be much in demand by teachers, students, the lay reader and those who are travel conscious.

So up-to-date is "The New Nations of Africa" that events occurring as recently as February 1, 1963 are included.

Each of the 29 countries is dealt with separately clarifying confusion and misconceptions that abound concerning these fledgling nations. No one who picks up this eye-catching volume can put it down without perusing from the colored photographs on the flyleaf to the glossary some 500 pages later. Past history, present problems and future outlook of each country are discussed and illustrated with sharp, smart photographs and biographies and pictures as the leaders of each country are presented.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

2 Basics Linked

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Which has the most influence on a child's success in learning—heredity or environment?

ANSWER: Modern psychologists and educators prefer to think of these two factors as interlocking rather than separate influences.

The child's mental traits — are handed down to him by his parents, as are his physical characteristics. The intelligence he inherits defines the limits of his ability to achieve.

His environment, however, shapes his attitude toward life, the degree of his self-reliance, his habits of study. Environment helps or hinders him in the use of the the intelligence he inherited.

Thus, both heredity and environment figure in the child's success, or lack of success, in school.

We see examples all about us, meanwhile, of the ability of a person of intelligence to overcome the disadvantages of poor environment. And phychologists have discovered in recent years that good environment may spur the person of average intelligence to do superior work.

Experts have learned to add "however" to almost everything they say about the effects of heredity and environment.

QUESTION: "Can a student—I'm thinking particularly of a journalism student — learn to observe things and events more accurately and in greater detail?"

ANSWER: Yes. Let him take a leaf from the notebook of the experienced journalist who sizes up the situation beforehand.

The trained reporter learns as much as he can about the forthcoming event and the people who will be involved; when the event begins to unfold, he feels a minimum of confusion. He identifies developemnts correctly, discards the irrelevent, and in general feels familiar with what is taking place.

Having obtained knowledge in advance of the anticipated event, he works with a sense of direction and expectancy. He observes more, understands it better, and retains it longer than does his haphazard competitor who goes to cover the story "cold."

Chaco, the Cave Cat

Chaco, the feline pet of Arizona's Colossal Cave personnel, lies by cave entrance, often goes on tours.

By Betty Hardesty

CHACO, a sleek, black and white cat with a stub of a tail, is a unique feature of Colossal Cave, near Tucson, Ariz. He guards the cave's entrance between guided tours, submitting nonchalantly to attentions by visitors. One of the cave guides, Joe Santa, found the cat abandoned beside the Chaco Canyon Road in the New Mexican desert and took him in.

Chaco squeezes between visitors' feet impatiently as the double-file tour groups start into the cavern. Chaco goes along several times a day. In the semi darkness, his feline form adds special interest to the eerie setting as he jumps over crevices and boulders or stretches out in full view at his master's feet during lecture stops.

The cat's eyes glint green in the electric floodlights, carefully arranged for cave display, although they may close during the first long pause as human eyes adjust while a recorded voice explains the cave's geology.

THE 39-MILE LONG underground passageways were formed by water dissolving calcium carbonate and the fantastic forms which decorate them, grew by dripping and evaporation through thousands of years.

Dry and dormant, Colossal Cave now is a comfortable 72 degrees but no living plants, animals or snakes are found within except bats which hang near the opening. This, the guide explains to calm any fears, forgetting to mention Chaco.

Smoke-blackened rocks show where fires burned and artifacts now on display prove the cave was inhabited by aboriginal Indians for hundreds of years.

OUTLAWS buried stolen gold in the cave and the guide shows how they hung their ropes to swing down 80 feet to the sand-floored, room-like portion of the cave. They hid-out there and some were even buried there.

It was in 1884 that one of the West's most daring robbers escaped from the law through a second outside opening to one of the intricate passageways. At that time, the main entrance was only 2½ feet high, and the sheriff of Pima County decided to wait outside and starve out the four bandits he had trailed from a $62,000 mail robbery.

Although the outlaws escaped the other way, Sheriff Leatherwood and posse later surprised and killed three of them in a tavern, One, Phil Carver, was caught, tried and sentenced. After serving 18 years at Yuma prison, he managed to elude the sheriff again, retrieve his loot and disappear. Four small stage settings depicting scenes of this real Wild West story, are set in rock niches along the tour route.

Because of the three levels in the cave, there are handrails and stairways between stretches of flagstone walks all constructed by the Civilian Conservation Corps after World War I. The 45 minute guided tour follows natural openings except where stairs were blasted in order to reach the sand bottom.

Spectacular views, such as this "Drapery Room," are a feature of a 45-minute guided tour within the cavern.

One Sack of Flour: $275,000

By Fred B. Clarke, M.D.

DURING the Civil War, a person was either a Unionist or a Southern Rebel. These conflicting beliefs resulted in many heated discussions, at times leading to violence. Even in places as remote from the actual conflict as was the town of Austin in Nevada Territory, 225 miles from the nearest railroad, there were many violent arguments. Feeling was bitter between the two factions. There was no middle ground.

Austin, situated in narrow, winding Toyibe Canyon at an elevation of 7,400 feet, was a new, raw, roaring mining camp which acquired a population within two years of 10,000 miners, merchants, a few lawyers, doctors, many gamblers, saloon keepers and dancehall girls, coming from all points of the compass. Some came with money, many without; and all were buoyed up by the hope that they would strike it rich.

There was a great deal of antagonism between Ruben Cole Gridley, a merchant and southern sympathizer, and a Dr. Herrick, a loyal northerner.

A BET was made on the outcome of a local election. Under the terms of the bet, if Herrick lost, he was to carry a 50-pound sack of flour from the lower end of the canyon up to Gridley's store (about a mile and a half) and the band was to play "Dixie." If Gridley were the loser, he was to carry the sack from his store down the canyon, and the band was to play "John Brown's Body." The sack of flour was to be donated to the U.S. Sanitary Fund.

Gridley lost!

The morning after the election Herrick and his friends proceeded to the upper end of the winding narrow canyon to Gridley's store to collect the wager. Gridley was ready. He came walking out of his store with the sack of flour on his shoulder. Herrick took the sack of flour and decorated it with American flags and ribbons of many colors. He then gave the order to march. The band preceded the city officials on horseback. Then came Herrick carrying Gridley's hat and cane, then Gridley, and marching by his side was his 10-year-old son carrying a union flag. Then came two men, one with a mop indicating a clean sweep and one with a flag indicating victory.

THIS WAS a gala affair. Thousands of miners were along the narrow road, and many unkind words were directed at Gridley. He put the sack of flour down at the Bank Exchange Saloon and said, "You have a great deal of fun at my expense. Let us see what you will do for the wounded Union Soldier." An auction was held with Thomas Wade as the auctioneer. Gridley made the first bid of $200 and the flour was his. At the close of the auction $5,494 was taken up.

Gridley decided to take the flour to Virginia City, where a big celebration was organized. At the end of the bidding $5,822 was raised. Gridley then went to Silver City, Dayton, and again to Virginia City. The four cities contributed $25,000. Gridley toured the mining towns of Nevada and California and at the end of his trip had collected $175,000.

Elated by his success, he went east and on his return from St. Louis by stage to Austin he had collected $275,000 which he donated to the U.S. Sanitary Fund (before the days of the Red Cross) for the relief of wounded Union soldiers.

OFFICIALS OF Austin decided that the official seal of the city would be a stamp that depicted a sack of flour.

Gridley never returned to his store, the walls of which still stand. He spent all of his own money, never taking a cent from the fund which he created. In 1870, he died in poverty at the age of 41 at Paradise, Calif., and the cause of death was neuralgia of the heart. His last request was that his body be taken by the Masonic Order to Stockton for burial in the rural cemetery.

Fifty years later the Grand Army of the Republic and the citizens of Stockton erected a monument of marble, standing on a mound about four feet high. In a circle around the mound are 18 small, plain headstones, each marking the grave of a Union soldier.

On the large base stands the figure of a man, his hand resting on a sack of flour.

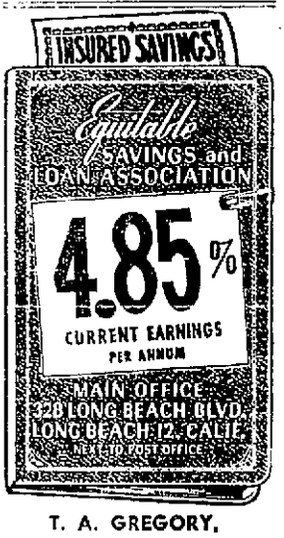

On this monument is inscribed:

THE SOLDIER'S FRIEND
RUBEN C. GRIDLEY
Born: January 23, 1829
Died: November 24, 1870

This famous sack of flour remained in the possession of the Gridley family until a few years ago when Gridley's daughter presented it to the Nevada State Historical Museum at Reno, where it is sacked in a goatskin bag and resting in a glass case.

Memorial to Ruben C. Gridley, whose famous sack of flour now rests in Nevada Historical Museum, Reno.

Great-Granny's Iron

By Helen L. Gillum

A SMALL cast-brass "smoothing iron," owned by Mrs. Emma Kittell of 922 Magnolia Ave., speaks mutely of the drudgery of "ironing days" a century and a half ago.

Although it is smaller and lighter in weight than the traditional flatiron or sadiron, it is of the type that had to be heated by hot coals plucked from the kitchen fireplace, or, as Mrs. Kittell's mother told her long ago, sometimes by small metal bolts made especially for that purpose. A sliding door in the back of the iron allowed the coals to be placed inside the hollow brass chamber.

This quaint old kitchen relic once belonged to Mrs. Kittell's great-grandmother. It bears the date 1810, and is thought to be from Denmark or northern Germany, the home of Mrs. Kittell's ancestors. Even in that day, when menial kitchen labor was more or less taken for granted, the maker of the iron took pains to add decorative bits of engraving — perhaps in a humble effort to make more pleasant the long dreary hours of "pressing day."

A HEART-SHAPED medallion with flowers and curlicues is engraved in the top of the iron. The 1810 date is elaborately done, and frilly touches elsewhere might indicate that this small, lightweight iron was also designed to press laces, silks, and other fine fabrics. It is only 5½ inches in length, three inches wide at the back, and six inches high to the top of the wooden handle, which is a replacement for the original one burned off long ago. The coal compartment is far removed from the heating element in the modern electric iron.

If this method of ironing clothes seems crude and impossible today, let us consider one great-grandmother's "receipt" (that's how she spelled it) for washing clothes "way back when." It is believed to have originated in Kentucky, but it is a jarring reminder that, whether in "Old Kentuck," far away Denmark—or in our own pioneer West — laundering clothes was no cinch. Read this, dear modern housewife, and "count your blessins" the next time you get out your steam iron or plug in your automatic washer! (The spelling is great-grandma's.)

1. bild a fire in back yard to heet kettle of rain water.
2. set tubs so smoke wont blow in eyes if wind is pert.
3. shave one hole cake lie soap in bilin water.
4. sort things, make three piles. 1 pile white. 1 pile cullord. 1 pile work britches and rags.
5. Stur flour in cold water to smooth then thin down with bilin water.
6. rub dirty spots on board, scrub hard,. then bile. rub cullord but dont bile — just rench and starch.
7. take white things out of kettle with broom stick handle then rench, blew and starch.
8. spred towels on grass.
9. hang old rags on fence.
10. pore rench water in flower bed.
11. scrub porch with hot soapy water.
12. turn tubs upside down.
13. go put on cleen dress — smooth hair with side combs — brew cup of tee — set and rest and rock a spell and count blessins.

PET PARADE

A Pet's Second Best Friend

By Eleanor A. Price

IF YOU have obtained a new pet for Christmas, keep in mind that, after you, a veterinarian is the pet's best friend. Most are fine people with feelings. In a recent case I know about, a dog had to enter slumberland. When the pet was brought in, tears streamed down the veterinarian's face. He had known the dog, and owner, for a number of years.

A veterinarian works hard to make his little "hospital" as complete as possible. There are a few large veterinarian hospitals (and every veterinarian likes to visit them now and then to get new ideas for his own establishment), but the average veterinarian creates his own place complete with waiting room, consulting room, runs and cages, and up-to-date equipment. Sometimes the building is new; sometimes it is an older place, perhaps a house made over. But whatever, the good veterinarian takes pride in keeping his place clean.

THE VETERINARIAN must continually add to his store of knowledge. In recent years the science of veterinary medicine has grown by leaps. New techniques, new drugs, new this-and-that require him to be up-to-date in pet care. And your pet, along with you, benefits. Discoveries in nutrition and medicine have greatly added to the longevity of most pets. Cats now often live to age 20, and there are many dogs around that are approaching 16 or 17 years. It is said that dogs live about twice as long as they did in 1930. Even your parakeets, canaries, and exotic delicate animals benefit.

A healthy dog delights in a romp. Next to his master, a veterinarian who keeps him well is his best friend.

Some veterinarians strive for very intensive research far beyond private practice of animal welfare. You may never meet most of these people, for their area of service takes them to many places. Some are devoted to the care of livestock that provides much of our food as well as our leather and wool clothing. Others apply themselves to municipal, county, state and federal projects in animal disease control, inspections of various kinds including imported animals, and general public health. Some veterinarians work in space travel programs. Still others are employed by pharmaceutical manufacturers, meat packing houses, horse farms and other activities.

THERE ACTUALLY are not enough veterinarians, so if you have a child who makes good grades in school, is fond of animals, is curious and has a lot of stick-to-it persistence, talk to him about this field of opportunity. (Girls, too.) He will need to attend veterinary college, and he really should work for a time with a practicing veterinarian. Of course he must pass a State Board of Veterinary Examiners test.

World's most exclusive restaurant is this cozy retreat for two that hangs in boughs of a Waikiki banyan tree.

Restaurant for Two

By Dorothy Gale

HIGH in a giant banyan tree above Waikiki's International Market Place, is the world's most exclusive restaurant, just for two!

A favorite with Hawaii honeymooners and anniversary couples alike, the tiny tree-slung thatched hut provides a heady dinner retreat for lovebirds of all ages.

Here, while enjoying baby squab stuffed with curried quail eggs, chilled mangoes, French champagne, Kona coffee and liqueurs, they look out through a leafy green canopy to the beautifully landscaped market place below.

In absolute privacy, too! For the turbaned native bearer of the repast, double locks diners into their retreat, then awaits orders from the Colonel's Plantation Beef Steak & Coffee House nearby.

FORTUNATELY, a telephone is alongside the cushioned couch where tete-a-tete dining goes on, accompanied by Hawaiian records and other discs which couples play for themselves on their private phonograph.

Thus it's easy to call down for another bucket of champagne or whatever comes to mind. The genial native is always ready to scramble up the steps at a moment's notice. But only when summoned by phone.

A prelude to this tree-top feast, served on Hawaiian carved monkeypod and accompanied by hot towels, Oriental style, is a drink in Don's exotic Mandalay Lounge and Beachcomber's Bar below.

Since your host is none other than Don Beach himself, known around the world as Don the Beachcomber, anything you order is inspirational.

WHILE SIPPING same, it is possible to people-watch through bamboo palings facing palm lined Kalakaua Avenue. Here foot traffic includes everything from Hawaiian beachboys and hula dancers to muumuu-clad and aloha-shirted vacationers from around the world. (Don boasts that he is host to both beachcomber and prince, and this is undoubtedly true).

Another diversion is watching passersby stop to chat with the saucy, talking mynah birds Don keeps in cages in front of his popular gathering place.

The mynahs all but rattle off the list of drinks, which includes everything from Don's Pearl (with a gleaming pearl in every fifth potion) to exotic South Seas rum concoctions served in coconuts.

Some come garnished with jungle leaves or pineapple spears. Others with gardenias!

AFTER COCKTAILS the lovebirds then climb (or fly) aloft to their banyan-tree feast that is meanwhile prepared just for them.

Total tab, including pre-dinner drinks, complete dinner, champagne, a fragrant pikake lei for the lady, and after dinner liqueurs aloft is $35 for two.

Reservations are available by writing the originator of all these delights, Don Beach himself, at the international Market Place on the beach at Waikiki.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

CALCUTTA

"We will be in Honolulu New Year's Eve. What kind of clothes will we need?"

THE Royal Hawaiian will be the dressiest. About two-thirds of the men will wear dinner jackets. Women in evening gowns. But there will be plenty of places around Waikiki where everybody will still be in muumuus and aloha shirts.

Seems to me people giving home parties on this night tend to dress a little more than usual. Coat and tie and cocktail dress kind of party.

Outer islands resorts are generally less dressy. But you might want coat and tie (in case) at Hanalei Plantation House on Kauai; the new Sheraton Maui and at Hana Maui.

" . . . dress for New Year's Eve in Mexico City?"

DARK SUIT for men. Cocktail dresses for women—no hats in Mexico.

" . . . for New Year's Eve in Jamaica?"

BRITISH colonial. Better gussy up with the dinner jacket. Evening gown for ladies.

"We will spend a few days in Rio de Janeiro and would appreciate advice on where to go, etc."

YOU'LL PROBABLY be staying at one of the hotels along Copacabana Beach—an overrated beach but the better hotels. Couple of good night clubs, one at each end of the beach.

The Brazilian cruzeiro has been up and down but mostly down. So watch the exchange. If it's slipping, don't cash more than enough for each day. Tomorrow could be better. Many money exchanges on the street just back of the beach front hotels. A shopping street with street cars running on it.

Rio is the home of Brazilian gem stones. They cut them and mount them well. Whether they are actually great buys I don't know. But most people who buy them come home happy. Biggest store is H. Stern. Don't call him. He'll call you. He's a hustler.

They serve one fine barbecued meat down there called churrasco. And an excellent place to get this is at Churrasceria Gaucho. Get a piece of each—pork, beef, sausage. And have them bring you the hearts of palm salad on the side.

"We had heard that the service charge of 15 percent on a restaurant bill in France covered the tip. However, the waiter kept hanging around and made it so obvious . . ."

HE WASN'T waiting for a warm handshake. Here's what the French do: You leave the waiter a little in coins — two per cent is enough. The French often just leave whatever small change comes back whether it is one or two percent.

Since old French coinage and new overlap — (100 old francs equals 1 new franc)—be a little cautious which kind of small change you are leaving. Don't leave new francs for old and make him a rich man.

"Where would you buy men's clothes in Rome? A good tailor?"

I'VE NEVER done this as I didn't like the Italian cut. I guess Brioni is the best-known tailor. But what I would do, I would telephone Jean Govoni, the public relations director for TWA, and I'd ask her. I don't think she'd mind if you did the same.

"For a party we are planning: What is the rule in Tahiti for wearing flowers behind the ear?"

" . . . a typical, good English restaurant in London?"

TRY SHEPHERD'S in Shepherd's Market. Pub downstairs. Restaurant upstairs. The little area is like a postcard of a scene from Dickens.

Japan's New Generation Is Going Western

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

TOKYO

A NEW generation is growing up in Japan. It has its own ideas about personal freedom, is staging a sometimes not-so-mild rebellion against strict discipline at home — which has always been the rule — and some of the ancient customs of their forefathers.

In a phrase, the Japanese teen-ager is going Western

Parents who have always taken their children's obedience for granted are confused and worried about what is happening.

As an example, the kids balk at the old custom of sitting cross-legged at the family table. When reprimanded a daughter might reply with finality, "That is no good. Mama's legs don't look good because she has been sitting on tatami like that."

More and more of the teeners step out when they please, come home when they get good and ready.

THEY CRITICIZE their teachers, and this causes parents added worry. When the parent objects, the child is apt to retort, "The salary teacher gets is too low to keep a decent living standard, and this causes him to demonstrate with placards. Why is it not right to criticize him?"

Observers say this is all due to the American occupation influence which has shown these quick-minded boys and girls how the other half lives.

American influence certainly has had much to do with the younger generation's thirst for a knowledge of the King's English.

To "speak American" is a status symbol with them. Courses in English have spread to many of the schools, and they are paying off.

YOUNGSTERS who can make themselves understood to American tourists get the best jobs in the hotels. They serve as guides, have the best-paying jobs in travel agencies, and hold key jobs in some of the big department stores.

It is obviously the teenagers who are taking the lead in this trend. Boys and girls in their mid-twenties find our language harder to master, and Japanese in their 30s and older are in positions where they seldom contact tourists because they speak practically no English.

If the trend continues, and some observers here think it will snowball, what kind of nation will Japan be a generation from now? Will it result in even closer ties with the United States?

OF COURSE, it is expected that these kids will frequently garble their English. But, for that matter, they sometimes fail to make themselves understood in their own language.

A young Japanese guide tells the story of a boy who asked a friend for advice on whether he should marry the girl with whom he had fallen deeply in love.

"Matsu!" the friend replied.

The guide explained that "matsu" means "wait." It also mean "pine tree."

The eager young man in her story didn't wait. He hustled out and planted a pine tree.

IF THESE KIDS are rude or disobedient at home, they are extremely courteous with visitors. But, then, this is true of all Japanese.

Courtesy and attention to visitors or guests starts with the crew on the Japan Air Lines' sky giants that whisk countless tourists here. It continues in Immigration and Customs at the airport, in the taxicabs, at the hotels and shops — wherever visitors go.

And the way they do it—that smart bow, friendly smile, and apologetic nonsense are convincing proof that they really mean it.

This is one vital lesson Americans could learn from the Japanese.

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

SEVILLE — Carmen's tobacco factory is, of all things, a university today. But still standing is the bullring and its entrance, exactly as depicted forever on the operatic stage. Happily, Seville remains the romantic heart and soul of southern Spain.

Here reside the visual beauty and sophisticated, light-hearted gaiety that the Mediterranean air always brings out when it is within whiffing distance. Among the orange tree-shaded boulevards, sidewalk cafes seem to be the main industry. On Sunday afternoons downtown, whole platoons of families, lovers and predatory bachelors wend their ways from one to the other, sipping sherry and nibbling from little dishes of olives, nuts and potato salad. The palace gardens and exposition buildings of Maria Luisa Park fairly explode with people.

Unlike most Spanish cities, Seville has a river worthy of the name, the Guadalquivir. It is navigable from the Mediterranean to here, and splits the business and residential sections of the city. Bridges criss-cross it and waterfront cafes and promenades line it. Enticed by the fertile bottom land, the ubiquitous Moors found their way here, and established a lovely city whose grace has never been lost.

SEVILLE'S cathedral, like Toledo's, was described to us as the third largest Gothic structure in the world, but we have ceased trying to iron out interurban rivalries. Suffice to say that it is so vast the city fathers who planned it reputedly vowed, "Let us erect such a grand temple that we shall go down to posterity, even for madmen." Its 32 pillars are 15 feet thick and 150 high.

Legends of Columbus are deeply entwined with the cathedral's history. It was long believed that he is buried here, but most authorities now agree that his bones lie in the cathedral of Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic. However, his son Hernan is buried here. The disputed bones of what may or may not have been the admiral lie in a huge coffin supported by four heroic figures.

Before his voyages, Columbus prayed in a chapel in the cathedral before an ancient statue of the virgin known as the Antigua. It is said that all the Western Hemisphere places called Antigua were named after this image.

ADJOINING the cathedral is an incongruous but handsome example of Moorish art known as the Giralda tower, profusely adorned with arches, tiling, stone carving and other examples of opulent baroque Spanish art. Two other Moorish structures, the Tower of Gold and the Tower of Silver adorn the banks of the Guadalquivir.

Seville boasts another of those Moorish palaces all of which are known as the Alcazar, which means, simply, fortress or castle. Not as well known as Granada's Alhambra, it is nonetheless impressive for its sumptuous halls, carved chambers, arches and galleries.

Seville's Holy Week pageants, a non-stop procession of floats, hooded figures with candles, and tableaux, run from Palm Sunday until Good Friday, and are the city's biggest event. A preview of its elaborateness may be had at the Church of Santa Maria Margarena, where two of the 98 floats are kept.

Like all good Spanish cities, Seville has its old quarter, known as Santa Cruz. It is a charming maze of alleys, garden walls, courtyards and squares surrounded by the traditional white-washed houses with the barred windows and cascades of flowers. In nearby Charity Hospital, Murillo's finest paintings decorate the chapel.

'Flying Ferries'

Several new hydrofoil ferry services are now in daily operation on the Inland Sea and at two major coastal points, reports the Japan National Tourist Association.

The 70-passenger "flying ferries," which skim the surface of the water at high speed, link Kobe with Takamatsu on Shikoku Island in two hours. The one-way fare is $5.95. Similar services link Osaka with Inland Sea ports of Sakate and Tonosho, while a third new hydrofoil route, crossing Ise Bay from Nagoya to the pearl island of Toba, takes three hours and costs $2.72 for the one-way trip.

Do You Know These Faces?

After looking at the following clues, see how many of the above faces you can identify. Give yourself 5 points for each correct answer, and subtract 3 for each face you miss. Then see scoring chart below.

HERE ARE THE CLUES

1. The 26th President of the U. S., he urged the carrying of a "big stick."
2. A mother made famous by her son's artistic skills.
3. Defended New Orleans against the British, is now often confused with another soldier (same last name) nicknamed "Stonewall."
4. Flew a kite, invented bifocals, served U. S. as statesman.
5. Appears on a form of traveling money honored in all countries but not issued by any government.
6. Brilliant southern general whose middle name was Edward.
7. An inventor (middle name, Alva) who had only three months of schooling but came up with a very bright idea.
8. Painted by Leonardo da Vinci, this lady's smile has intrigued people for centuries.
9. This famous general was re-elected U. S. President in 1872, defeating Horace Greeley.

Scoring: To arrive at a total, add one point to your score for each two years it has been since you left school. 5 to 14, Fair; 15 to 24, Good; 25 to 34, Excellent; 35 or more Outstanding.

Answers: 1—Theodore Roosevelt. 2—Whistler's mother. 3—Andrew Jackson. 4—Benjamin Franklin. 5—Man on American Express Travelers Cheques. 6—Robert E. Lee. 7—Thomas Alva Edison. 8—Mona Lisa. 9-Ulysses S. Grant.

The Face of Fortune

By Clay Johnson

DOES YOUR facial expression reveal your character? The ancients believed your features gave you away. A receding hair line indicated intelligence; an even row of teeth meant an orderly nature; hazel eyes forecast evil.

Throughout history, man has attributed definite characteristics to certain features. Unsymmetrical features denoted an interesting nature; the length and quality of beard determined one's trustworthiness. Deep-set eyes indicated an unscrupulous nature.

Thin faces meant danger. "Yon Cassius has a lean and hungry look," said Julius Caesar. Fat faces, meanwhile, meant satisfaction and reliability. Square jaws meant strength while round jaws indicated weakness.

PRETTY OR UGLY, the face has always symbolized something. George Washington's picture, hanging on almost every schoolroom wall, has come to stand for virtue, strength and morality. When we see Abe Lincoln's gaunt dark features and black beard we usually think of honesty and human dignity — how often of the $5 bill?

Some faces have become famous without a name. Most people can identify Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," but how many can tell you who he really was?

Other well-known faces are couched in mystery. For instance, no one knows the identity of the warrior whose face appears on American Express travelers cheques and credit cards. The artist who made the original portrait died while completing it, and went to his grave without identifying his model. Did he copy from the statue of an ancient hero, or did his butcher pose?

THE SAME ARTIST, A. E. Foringer, earlier in his career, painted a famous World War I poster that brought $150,000,000 of contributions to the Red Cross, and made the model for that painting, Miss Agnes Tait, world-celebrated.

The face that launched a thousand ships. Homer, the ancient Greek poet, never described Helen of Troy's individual features, stating only that she was beautiful beyond comparison. Nevertheless, her face has been envisioned throughout history as the height of loveliness.

The woman with the mysterious smile. Critics for generations have been trying to discover what Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa had on her mind as she posed for the artist. Recently a doctor suggested that she was soon to be a mother.

THE TWO-FACED DIETY. The ancient Romans always pictured Janus, the god of beginnings, doorways and entrances, as having two heads. Our month, January, the beginning of the year, comes from his name.

The man of a thousand faces. Because of his fantastic ability in the usage of makeup, Lon Chaney acquired leader of men.

The face that turned men to stone. Greek mythology credits Medusa with the power to turn males to stone upon sight of her snake-capped face.

The face in the misty light. What man can escape sentimental daydreams when he hears the haunting ballad "Laura" and identifies the non-existent heroine with some secret romance in his own life?

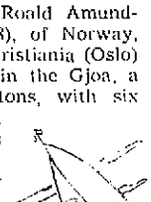

Ol' Stonewall. Upon sight of his stern features no one can doubt the ability of Confederate General Jackson as a magnificent soldier and leader of men.

You Ask, We Answer

By Hoskin

Q. What was Amundsen's course on the voyage in which he discovered and navigated the Northwest Passage? —H. B.

A. Captain Roald Amundsen (1872-1928), of Norway, sailed from Christiania (Oslo) in June 1903 in the Gjoa, a sloop of 47 tons, with six companions. His course was through Baffin Bay, Lancaster Sound, Barrow Strait, Peel Sound, Franklin Strait, James Ross Strait, Rae Strait, Simpson Strait, Dease Strait, Coronation Gulf, Dolphin and Union Strait, to King Point on the western side of the Mackenzie River delta which he reached in September 190. The voyage was completed through Bering Strait in the summer of 1906.

Q. Does sap keep circulating upward and downward in a tree, somewhat as blood circulates in an animal? K. U.

A. No. In the process called transpiration, water is absorbed by the roots, pushed into the sapwood, and then pulled up to the leaves. Evaporation from the leaf creates a pull on tiny strands of water in the sapwood and thus causes a movement of water from the roots to the treetop. Only a trifling amount of water is transported from the crown of the tree downward. About half the solar energy that falls on the leaves is used in the process of transportation.

Q. What requirements must be met before a building can be said to be fireproof? I. G.

A. To be classified as fireproof under one widely followed building code, a building must be of noncombustible construction, with all exterior and interior weight-bearing walls made of masonry or reinforced concrete. Exterior walls, columns and wall-supporting girders and trusses must have a fire resistance of four hours; floors and roofs, a three-hour fire resistance rating. A building of this type is itself fireproof, but additional precautions are required for the safety of occupants or contents—such as insulation to confine any fire to its starting place, and fire-resistant partitions and doors for stairways and elevator shafts.

Q. What do the degrees M.C.E. and M.M.E. stand for? L. C.

A. M.C.E., Master of Civil Engineering; M.M.E., Master of Mining Engineering or Master of Mechanical Engineering.

Q. Have girls ever been employed as pages in Congress? E. P.

A. Only one girl has ever served as a page. On the opening day of the 76th Congress— Jan. 3, 1939—the 13-year-old daughter of Rep. Eugene Cox of Georgia was employed as a page and received $4 for her day's work.

Q. When and where was Paul Anka born? What nationality is he? D.J.

A. Paul Anka, famous young singer, was born July 30, 1941, in Ottawa, Canada. The Anka family is of Syrian descent.

Stocks for Spicy Fragrance

By Joe Littlefield

OF ALL THE winter blooming annuals, stocks provide one of the spiciest fragrances and their colors make good contrast when planted near bright orange and yellow calendulas, gay snapdragons, or behind a row of showy pansies.

They don't mind cold weather, but if planted now will be slower to grow than if they had been set out earlier.

Be sure to plant them in a sunny area of the garden, in soil well drained, and away from where a lawn sprinkler might soak them.

MIX SOME organic materials such as pre-moistened peat moss, compost or prepared planter mulch in the holes where young plants are to be set out.

Stocks don't like the soil to be cultivated around them. A thin layer of manure keeps the soil from drying and crusting.

Don't let aphids get started on the tender new foliage. Undetected winter aphids can stunt new growth of stocks and cause them to have inferior flowers.

ONE OF OUR readers sent us a dead pfitzer juniper to find out what had caused the trouble. She had planted 14 junipers, and two died. She wondered if something has been sprayed onto it.

We carefully examined the roots, trunk, and branches of the plant through a strong magnifying glass. The first thing apparent was that the trunk had been two inches deeper in the ground than it should have been. Two small side branches just above the top of the root ball had died some time earlier.

There appeared to be no bores in the trunk, no pest damage on the branches, no nematodes on the roots, and no root damage. We couldn't tell whether something had been sprayed on the foliage that might cause the plant to die.

It is possible in a row of 14 plants to have one become sick or even die because of being planted too loosely, so that the root ball doesn't get enough water.

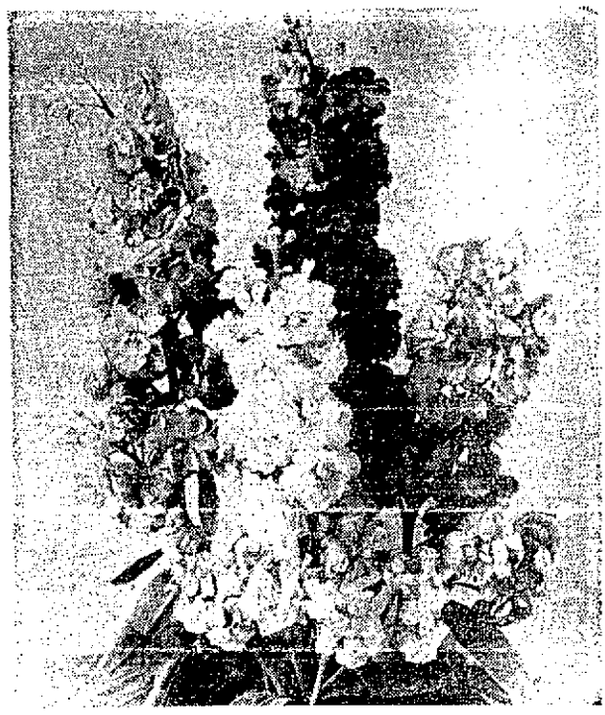

FOR PROPER planting, dig the hole twice the size of ball of plant roots and fill it twice with water. If the plant root ball is dry, dip it in a bucket of water. Carefully pull away excess soil around the trunk to uncover it to the top of the fine roots.

The root ball level should be planted level with the ground. Mix two parts of compost soil or one of the prepared planter mixes with three parts of soil dug from the hole.

Build a ring of soil at the edge of the plant to confine the water, and several months later scrape it away. In its place, make a circular furrow about two inches deep to keep soil from washing in around the trunk of the plant and eventually burying it too deep.

Heavy infestation of spider mites can cause juniper foliage to look "dusty," later turn yellow color, slowly dry and die. Hose the foliage with a sharp stream of water to discourage pests from setting up housekeeping on them.

Plants with firm foliage can stand oil emulsion spray, which not only kills the pests but the eggs in the colony, too.

Stocks provide a brisk fragrance and good color contrast. They like sunshine and a well-drained soil.

Colorful 'Birds'

Bird-of-Paradise is particularly useful in the Long Beach area because it has landscaping virtues as well as a most exotic flower.

The sword-like leaves give vertical lines that go very well with such things as pampas grass or New Zealand flax. Bird-of-Paradise creates a soaring effect when surrounded by the low, stiff, grassy tufts of blue fescue, or one of the low-growing succulents such as the echeverias.

Bird-of-Paradise earns its name because of the orange and blue flowers, resembling cockatoos, that appear around October or November and continue through March to April. They make excellent, long-lasting cut flowers or continue to show their brilliant feathers in the garden if left alone.

Bird-of-Paradise requires full sun. It likes some manure worked through the soil at the time of planting and should be given a feeding of commercial fertilizer twice a year—spring and about two months later. Ask the expert at a California Association of Nurserymen nursery to suggest the proper plant food. He will have the Bird-of-Paradise plant, too, and can give you suggestions on proper planting companions for your particular location.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week ... by now your fruit trees should have lost their leaves.

Many evergreen trees serve a double purpose. Good landscaping of trees and shrubs inevitably follows a pattern. When you are planning landscaping for your home, if you will keep in mind the Christmas outdoor decorative scheme and then choose the types of evergreen that will serve the Christmas decorative idea, you will have accomplished beauty the year around. Your local nurseryman can advise you as to which varieties do best in your locality and help you in the selection of the types according to growing habits.

Junipers and podocarpus are not known to host many insects; however, red spider and scale are prevalent in some areas. Preventative spraying should be done regularly on these types in order to keep them clean and robust. This can be done by spraying with a product containing kolthane, 50 per cent malathion is also very effective on soft scale.

Alternate spraying with both sprays should enhance the appearance and growth of any evergreen tree or shrub.

Clean up the leaves and burn them. Then spray the fruit trees thoroughly with a winter "dormant" spray. Ask your nurseryman.

Roses should be coming onto the market bareroot. Buy only first grade stock—those with at least three sturdy canes and a good heavy root system.

Earwigs and snails and their unshelled friends the slugs are out in force. Pellets scattered in shaded, moist areas is the most effective way to use snail bait.

Many of the camellias are now in bloom. This is the time to pick them. Those carried by your local California Association of Nurserymen member will be in top shape and ready to plant now.

Heather is blooming beautifully and if you want a few sprays for the house, shape up the plant as you cut—but don't take too much. Incidentally, a good time to plant them, too.

Bulbs still can be planted. Tulips and hyacinths should be cooled in the refrigerator (not freezer) for two weeks before planting.

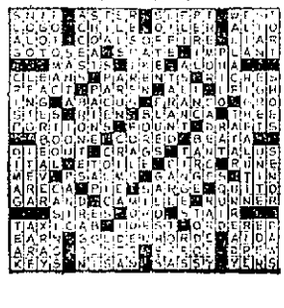

Clean up litter in the garden, particularly any leaves under plants in a shady area where insects could hide and breed.

Clean tools and rub them with a light oil to prevent rust.

Clean your spray equipment completely and carefully.

Check your nursery for unusual bulbs, particularly the species tulips, scilla, snowdrops, snowflakes, dwarf iris.

Subjects such as this offer a challenge to the black and white printer but the rewards are very satisfying.

By The Shutterbug

WHERE the subject of black-and-white photography is concerned, much is written and said about such matters as choice of film and developer, proper camera technique, subject matter and composition. All too little is mentioned and practiced on the subject of how to make top quality prints, a fact that is made apparent by the sadly infrequent appearance of really good black-and-white prints made by home darkroom enthusiasts.

There are many steps along the route to completing a top-quality enlargement, beginning with the photographer's perceptively seeing and composing an interesting subject, and continuing through correct exposure and subsequent processing of the film in order to produce a negative suitable for making a good print. But the final effect can be seriously blunted if the quality of the resulting print doesn't do justice to these preceding steps.

CERTAIN PHASES in the process of making prints should be able to go unmentioned, but are all too often overlooked or disregarded by otherwise earnest monochrome workers. Cleanliness of all equipment and processing utensils is very important; correct preparation (initial mixing, dilution where required) of all processing solutions — developer, stop bath, and fixer—should be carried out strictly according to instructions. A means of correctly and thoroughly washing the prints must be provided. If needed, a hypo eliminator should be employed to assist in this important step.

WITH THE darkroom and equipment tidied up, all processing solutions ready and waiting (at the proper temperature, usually 68 degrees F), and the negative in the enlarger, the next step is to focus the negative image sharply on the printing easel. For maximum sharpness, the grain of the negative should be focused upon. With diffusion-type enlargers, this is not feasible, as the grain pattern is not rendered distinctly, but with the more commonly-used condenser enlargers, this is readily possible. Special optical devices, called focusing magnifiers, are made by a number of manufacturers which enlarge a small portion of the negative image, making precise focus easier to achieve with any enlarger. The enlarging lens should be open to its maximum aperture for focusing, then closed down two stops for making the print exposure.

Assuming a sharply-focused, correctly-timed exposure has been made, the paper is ready to be developed. Quick, complete immersion into the developer is a must if uniform development of the entire sheet of paper is to be obtained; this is most easily accomplished by sliding the paper into the solution, emulsion side up. The developing tray should be gently and constantly rocked during the development period to insure a constant flow of fresh developer across the entire emulsion area. Streaks, light areas, and mottling of the image can occur if this agitation is not correctly carried out.

Time of development should be constant for every print processed; the exact time is given in the paper instruction sheet. This is one of the most important factors in getting a really top-quality print, a print that will have the fullest, richest possible range of tones and optimum contrast. Minimum developing time for any paper is almost always one minute; with some it can be extended to as as long as three minutes for maximum contrast and brilliance. Exposure of the paper should be altered to obtain the desired print density, not developing time.

As in most other phases of photography, experience is the best means to become a good black-and-white printer.

'Quietest Subway'

Tourists who know only American subways will find the Berlin underground, or U-Bahn, a pleasant novelty. The system is immaculately clean and has numerous book and flower stalls. According to the Berlin Tourist Office, the U-Bahn is being extended and made more efficient. Noise, for instance, is kept to a minimum.

At the recent convention of subway specialists in this city, the manager of Toronto's underground system paid Berlin a tribute by calling its subway the world's quietest.

JERRY REYNOLDS
Welcome, 1964!

"ABSOLUTELY marvelous. An unusual combination of flavors."

"Terrific. But how can you do it at that price?"

Satisfied and smiling after a fine meal, patrons at the Melody Cove restaurant, 1960 Santa Fe Ave., often make comments like those to owner Jerry Reynolds and his tall brunette wife, Josephine. The subject of their conversation is often the Cove's unique teriyaki steak dinner, which is $2.25, including a tender top quality steak served with a cup of exotic soy sauce and ginger. When dipped into the sauce, each forkful of tender, juicy steak picks up additional gourmet flavor which is tantalizingly good. The steak is also accompanied by soup of the day, or an excellent large salad, steaming baked potato with cheese sauce, hot toasted garlic bread and coffee.

Closed Sundays, the Melody Cove will be open both New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, serving its interesting menu at no increase in prices. Decorated festively for the holidays with Christmas trees and a six-foot reindeer and sleigh, display, the Cove will give gay hats and noisemakers to all guests for the New Year's party which will start around 10 p.m. On New Year's Day, dinners will be served from 3 p.m. on.

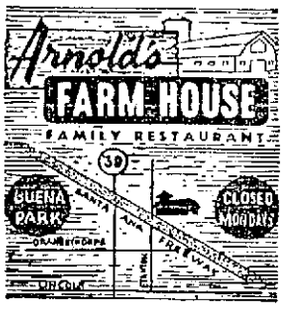

Other entrees featured daily include a fine broiled top sirloin (surprisingly large) for $2.65; sweet broiled lobster tail with drawn butter, $3.65; broiled eastern scallops with smooth tartare sauce, $2.15; steak and lobster combination, $4.25; and unjointed fried chicken, $1.95. The Cove's service, by pleasant waitresses, is always thoughtful and gracious.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Fan Ann Takes Name of 'Hero'

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

The production was "Oklahoma" but one schoolgirl in the audience didn't even look at the stage.

Her eyes were on a handsome man a few rows in front of her.

The man was actor Joel McCrea and the DuBois, Pa., schoolgirl stargazing at him was Ann McCreight.

The experience was more thrilling than would be a trip to Mars.

* * * *

IT WAS a thrilling experience and awesome—a little too overwhelmingly awesome for Ann.

The schoolgirl, a mere mortal, simply couldn't bring herself to ask the famous actor for his autograph. Instead, Ann sent her mother chasing after the star before he reached the theater exit. He graciously signed.

A number of years later mere mortal Ann had the opportunity to become a Powers model.

It was at this time that she decided to adopt a professional name. The name: Ann McCrea.

* * * *

FROM modeling, Ann progressed to acting and currently appears as a regular, Midge Kelsey, in ABC-TV's Thursday night "Donna Reed Show."

"I have always wanted to do comedy," said Ann, "and they've given me the chance."

Most of Ann's acting chances before have been in what she calls "sexpot" roles, a gambling-hall girl, a gangster's moll, a murderess.

"I'm just not the gambling-hall girl type," said the lovely actress. "I'd rather play a boy than be glamorous."

She reserves for the future, of course, the womanly perogative of changing her mind.

If they were casting a Joel McCrea movie and looking for a leading lady with sex appeal, could be that Ann might make one glamorous exception.

Sports Today

NFL CHAMPIONSHIP, 9:45 a.m., ch. 4, has Jack Brickhouse calling the first half, Chris Schenkel the second, as the 31st annual title clash pits the N. Y. Giants (east), against the Chicago Bears (west) at Wrigley Field.

ICE HOCKEY, 2:30 p.m., ch. 11, has Doggett and Stratton at the Cow Palace as the E. F. Seals take on the Blades

NHL HOCKEY, 4:30 p.m., ch. 9, has the Chicago Black Hawks facing the Montreal Canadiens in a delayed tape

SPORTS SPECTACULAR, 5 p.m., ch. 2, shows the free-fall maneuvers of a U. S. Army parachuting team, in training and demonstrations at Fort Bragg, N. C.

SPECIAL

LADIES OF THE PRESS Madame Nhu, Ralph Bunche, Jackie Robinson, Gov. George Romney, Floyd Patterson, Louis Nizer and John Birch Society founder Robert Welch are among those seen and heard again as they were interviewed during 1963. Clifford Evans moderates, at 10:30 a.m., ch. 9.

SAGA OF WESTERN MAN: 1492—First in the 4-part series bringing to life the people, places and events of turning-point years in modern history, is reprised in color, on ch. 7 at 3 p.m., for youngsters' viewing. Fredric March is the voice of Christopher Columbus in hour documented by historian Louis B. Wright.

LAW & LEE OSWALD—The legal aspects of the Oswald case, not evidence or factual details, but whether he received or would have received all his Constitutional rights under due process of law, is probed at 4 p.m., ch. 2. Dan Rather will moderate, with panelists including former FCC chairman Newton E. Minow, Prof. Paul Freund of the Harvard Law School and two prominent Texas attorneys.

'63 FINAL—Highlights of the year's national, international and sports news will be offered at 6:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4, as the first in a 2-part special is reported by Jack Latham, Cecil Brown and Chick Hearn. Local and state news will be recapped Wed., 7:30 p.m.

PINOCCHIO — First televised production in which the famed fictional puppet actually is played by a puppet (Jerry Mahoney), is repeated at 6:30 p.m., ch. 7. The musical hour stars Paul Winchell and the Bob Baker Marionettes, with midgets doubling for the puppets in long shots. Original hour was June 30.

MAKING OF THE PRESIDENT — 1960 — A 90-minute adaptation of Theodore H. White's Pulitzer Prize-winning book, produced by David L. Wolper and narrated by Martin Gabel, is screened at 3:30 p.m., ch. 7. Rare film of the 7 men who sought the Presidency in 1960 highlights the documentary, put together from 8 million feet of film from 500 sources at an initial budget of $470,000, and scored by Elmer Bernstein. White's script remained unchanged after the assassination of President Kennedy except for the addition of a short prologue.

PROJECTION '64—Frank McGee is moderator as 11 NBC news correspondents gether in New York from their round-the-world posts to review events of 1963 and forecast happenings of 1964 in a color hour at 10 p.m., ch. 4. Taking part are Joseph C. Harsch (London), Bernard Frizell (Paris), Welles Hangen (Bonn), John Rich (Tokyo), James Robinson (Hong Kong), George Clay (Africa), Wilson Hall (South America)

1963: TRANSITION and Tragedy—Howard K. Smith is anchorman for a review of news highlights of 1963 and an analysis of their effect on the course of history in the year ahead at 10 p.m., ch. 7.

ALL SET FOR A ROOTIN'-TOOTIN' Happy New Year are "The Beverly Hillbillies"—well, most of them. Buddy Ebsen (left), Max Baer and Donna Douglas are in the swing of things. However, Irene (Granny) Ryan and the Clampett bloodhound much prefer their swing of things to be a little less rootin'-tootin'.

Television Movie Tips

SUNDAY

THE HARVEY GIRLS—9 a.m., ch. 11 (also Thursday, 11:30 p.m.). Judy Garland, John Hodiak, Preston Foster, Ray Bolger (1945). Young ladies who go west to become waitresses in a Fred Harvey restaurant form the background for a musical-romance.

DUMBO — 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. The full-length 1941 Walt Disney cartoon of a baby elephant whose huge ears bring laughter until he learns he can fly.

THE COMMAND — 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 9. Guy Madison, John Weldon, James Whitmore (1954). First run. Army medical captain is given command of a cavalry detachment escorting a wagon train through hostile Wyoming territory.

WILSON—11:15 p.m., ch. 2. Alexander Knox, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Thomas Mitchell, Charles Coburn (1944). Powerful story, superbly performed, following our World War I president from Princeton to his futile attempts to make us part of the League of Nations.

MONDAY

KISS ME KATE—7:30 p.m., in color ch. 4. Kathryn Grayson, Howard Keel, Ann Miller, Keenan Wynn, James Whitmore (1953). First run. Musical inspired by Shakespear's "Taming of the Shrew," with 15 Cole Porter songs, a play within a play.

TUESDAY

FARMER'S DAUGHTER—9 p. m., ch. 5. Loretta Young, Joseph Cotten, Ethel Barrymore, Charles Bickford (1947). Fiery Swedish servant girl makes a fight for a congressional seat and soon has everyone rooting for her. The ABC series was based on this Oscar-winning film.

NIGHT OF THE HUNTER —10:30 p. m., ch. 9. Robert Mitchum, Shelley Winters, Lillian Gish (1955). Religious fanatic marries a widow to kill her and get her inheritance. Charles Laughton directed. (Note: Station has booked Mitchum films each week night at this time.)

WEDNESDAY

LITTLE KIDNAPERS—12:30 p. m., ch. 9 (also 12 midnight). Duncan MacRae, Adrienni Corri, Theodore Bikel (1954). Brilliant, moving film of two orphans who hide a baby in the woods as a pet when they can't have a dog.

REBECCA—1 p. m., ch. 5. Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, George Sanders (1940). Brilliant Hitchcock direction of classic thriller about a man dominated by the memory of his first wife.

O. HENRY'S FULL HOUSE —1:45 p. m., ch. 11. Charles Laughton, Richard Widmark, Anne Baxter, Jeanne Crain (1952). John Steinbeck narrates an anthology of five O. Henry classic short stories. Shown without commercial interruption.

SATURDAY

THE LAST COMMAND — 12:30 p.m., ch. 5. Sterling Hayden, Ernest Borgnine Anna Maria Alberghetti, Richard Carlson (1955). Story of Jim Bowie and the historic battle of the Alamo. Historical action, with fine battle scenes.

A WALK IN THE SUN — 1:30 p.m., ch. 7. Dana Andrews, Richard Conte, John Ireland (1945). Realistic, well acted World War II drama of a platoon of Texas Division infantrymen in Italy.

LONELYHEARTS — 8:30 p.m., ch. 9. Montgomery Clift, Robert Ryan, Myrna Loy, Dolores Hart (1958). First run. Dore Schary screenplay of a sensitive young newspaperman assigned to write the "advice to the lovelorn" column and of his sympathy for the tormented people who write in.

DADDY LONG LEGS—9 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Fred Astaire, Leslie Caron, Terry Moore, Thelma Ritter (1955). First run. Musical version of the Jean Webster novel about a middle-aged millionaire who falls in love with his ward, a French orphan girl. Ten Johnny Mercer songs are featured.

LAST TIME I SAW PARIS — 11 p.m., ch. 11. Elizabeth Taylor, Van Johnson, Walter Pidgeon, Donna Reed (1952). F. Scott Fitzgerald story of American repatriates in Paris after World War I.

SEVEN LITTLE FOYS — 11:15 p.m., ch. 2 Bob Hope, George Tobias, Molly Vitale, Angela Clark (1955). First run. Biopic of Eddie Foy, widowed and faced with raising seven children while pursing a show business career.

★ SPECIAL

THE OBJECT IS—Premiere. Dick Clark hosts a new daily game show in which 3 week-long celebrities and 3 daily contestants try to identify personalities from inanimate object clues. Hans Conried, Yvonne Craig and Dwayne Hickman are initial guests at 11:30 a.m., ch. 7.

LET'S MAKE A DEAL — Premiere. Monty Hall hosts another new daily game show, this one replacing "People Will Talk" at 12 noon, ch. 4, in color. Contestants will be offered chances to make swaps for unknown prizes of varying values, and disguised so that a peanut might contain either a nut or a diamond inside its shell.

RECALL — By means of fantasy, recalling the dead from the grave, Paul Coates interviews Mary Todd Lincoln to reveal her as she really was when she lived. Bette Davis portrays Mrs. Lincoln, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 11, with Natalie Schafer and George Macready in vignette roles as her sister and a biographer.

THE UNBELIEVABLE YEAR—Joseph Benti is host for a 90-min. wrap-up of a most eventful 1963, at 9 p.m., ch. 5. Spotlighted are the Kennedy assassination, Baldwin Hills dam disaster, mud slides and heat wave.

RETROSPECT—Highlights of the year in the Southland are reviewed by Baxter Ward at 11 p.m., ch. 7, including the Baldwin Hills tragedy, Sinatra kidnaping, Griffith Park fire, Madame Nhu's visit, segregation demonstrations, World Series, Walter O'Malley's tax problems and all-digit dialing.

Will the President Utilize Television More or Less?

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—What will be the relationship of the new President and his family to television? Will it be as pivotal a device to them as it was to the Kennedys?

One may assume, of course, that President Johnson will employ video as strategically as possible with an election year coming up. One may assume, also, that when a decent period of time has elapsed after President Kennedy's assassination, we will most probably get a number of television portraits of the Johnsons. And it is also possible that the effect of Kennedy being shot while in a public motorcade may result in the new chief executive taking more to video for widespread contact rather than risking dangerous exposure too frequently.

Nevertheless, the differences between the Kennedys and the Johnsons indicate that the new residents of the White House will have a less emphatic relationship with television, as subjects.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. JOHNSON are a highly attractive couple. But it is no secret that President and Mrs. Kennedy were an extraordinarily handsome pair in physical appearance, with the aura of film celebrities. This drew added attention to them, sometimes distasteful attention, but it was a valuable political asset.

Furthermore, while the Johnsons' two lovely daughters are grown, the Kennedy children were the object of added interest and humor in the way that all such youngsters are to the public.

This may well be a blessing to the Johnsons, one that Mrs. Kennedy, who cherishes privacy, might envy. For television, by its nature, is remorseless in its creation of unwilling celebrities.

AS AN INDICATION OF how times have changed, here is a anecdote recalled by the journalist Alistair Cooke in a recent "Show" magazine article: "Once, in Bermuda, a cameraman had the breathtaking audacity to snap Woodrow Wilson's daughter, Jessie, against the President's wish. Wilson sprang at the man and screamed, 'I want to give you the worst thrashing you ever had in your life.'"

Besides in personal matters, there are other differences between Johnson and Kennedy that relate to television use.

Television helped get Kennedy elected, it is generally agreed. It made his first great impression on the nation as a public figure in a presidential race. From then on it was one of his basic weapons.

Johnson, on the other hand, owes little, if any, of his political career to video. He made his reputation as one of the great congressional strategists of the century before he ran with Kennedy. Johnson is known to rely heavily on his powers of private persuasion.

Kennedy's coatless, hatless appearances on television served the image he sought. Johnson's is likely to be more conservative. As for his family, one can only sigh for the less complicated days when, as Cooke records it, Woodrow Wilson told reporters: "I am a public character for the time being, but the ladies of my household are not servants of the government and they are not public characters."

'Making of the President'

THE LATE PRESIDENT J. F. KENNEDY AS HE APPEARED ON CAMPAIGN TRAIL

TV REVIEW

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

In the darkened screening room at ABC-TV, the face of Pulitzer-Prize-winning author Theodore H. White appeared on the television monitor and he said:

"John Fitzgerald Kennedy loved American politics. The story you are about to see tells of one of its greatest clashes. This film was finished shortly before his death.

"We have left it as it was then. . . ."

You will have an opportunity to see that story, "The Making of the President, 1960," at 8:30 p.m. today (Sunday), channel 7.

I advise you not to miss it. I suggest you encourage your children to watch.

I say this regardless of your political affiliations. Both major political parties are extensively covered in the 90-minute documentary.

IF YOU KNEW nothing about political campaigning before, you will feel like you have completed an education afterwards.

It is a fast-paced education with the excitement of a football game although you know who will be the winner.

It is movement, continuity and people, not just speeches. It's a documentary of history.

After watching it, I talked with producer Mel Stuart who worked with author White in adapting the prize-winning book for television.

"We were extremely lucky in getting some of the footage we obtained," said Stuart.

"FOR EXAMPLE, in Chicago we found a cameraman who had made a tape of Kennedy, then a senator, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon as they were preparing for the first of their 'Great Debates.'

"If that kind of preliminary tape is kept—which it usually is not—it generally is erased and used over for something else. The cameraman in Chicago kept his tape the way it was."

Television stations all across the nation provided campaign footage for Stuart and his aides to look at. So did many amateur and professional photographers.

With his assistants, Stuart looked at a million feet of film before editing the total down to 2,000 feet for tonight's documentary.

AFTER THE ASSASSINATION, there was no thought of shelving the 90-minute production.

"We felt its honesty was a tribute," said Stuart.

"Teddy (White) said if the President was alive, it was exactly the way he'd want to see it.

"There are no eulogies, no superlatives."

From a personal standpoint, I had attended the screening feeling I would come away with a sense of sadness.

I was wrong.

Watching the life in the man, the vitality, obscured all but fleeting thoughts of his death.

What he wanted to achieve, he had achieved.

An assassin's bullet could not take from him that moment of victory.

SPECIAL

BIG NEWS OF '63—Newsmen Jerry Dunphy, Maury Green, Ralph Story, Charles Neal, Grant Holcomb, Saul Halpert, Paul Udell, John Hart and Robert Simmons evaluate stories which had a major effect on the Southland. Hour special, at 4:30 p.m., ch. 2, puts the emphasis on violence that marked 1963.

JACKIE GLEASON — Art Carney, Gleason's sidekick of many years, is host for a tribute to The Great One's 35 years in show business, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2. Arthur Godfrey, David Susskind, Arnold Palmer, Dina Merrill, Audrey Meadows and billiard championship Willie Mosconi appear in taped or filmed segments from past Gleason shows, and scenes will be shown from his movies "The Hustler" and "Gigot."

HOLLYWOOD PALACE — Premiere. A variety show, in the Sullivan manner, is the newest production for the old El Capitan Theater (and, for 13 weeks, the Jerry Lewis Theatre). Bing Crosby will be the first of a series of weekly hosts (next week, Bob Cummings), with 9 or 10 acts designed to complement the talents of the headliner. Opening hour, at 9:30 p.m., ch. 7, spotlights Bing's own son Gary, plus Bob Newhart, Mickey Rooney, Bobby Van, Nancy Wilson, the acrobatic Hardy Family, musical clowns Les Salvadori, the Andre Tahon Puppets and The Young Puppets and The Young Americans, young choral group who performed on Crosby's last special.

Guarantee money for college?

How?

With your life insurance . . . and the help your agent is trained to give you!

YOU: That's a pretty big promise. How's it possible?

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE AGENT: You simply use any policies that have cash values—as a way of putting money aside for your children's education.

YOU: And then what?

AGENT: Well, as you know, these cash values in your policies increase, year by year, as you pay your premiums. When college days arrive you can use this money, if you need to, for tuition and other expenses.

YOU: But why do it with life insurance? There are lots of other ways I could save the money.

AGENT: Sure, if you're positive that you'll live to save it. With life insurance you know the full amount will be there—even if you're not.

YOU: I never thought of it that way. The money really is guaranteed, isn't it?

AGENT: Right. That's one of the unique advantages of life insurance.

Q. Joe Valachi, the Cosa Nostra squealer—isn't he a high-grade moron? How could the Justice Department believe anything he told them?—Lou Diamond, Chicago, Ill.

A. Valachi was given an intelligence test by a prison psychiatrist. The test revealed that he has an IQ of 85, which places him within the normal intelligence range. The Justice Department checked his information, found much of it to be valid.

Q. Is it true that Sammy Davis, Jr., owns a $20,000 Rolls-Royce?—Verna Elton, San Francisco, Calif.

A. True.

Q. Does Casey Stengel own the Valley National Bank of Glendale, Calif.?—R. Volney, Phoenix, Ariz.

A. John Lawson, chairman of the bank, is Stengel's brother-in-law. In 1957, when he founded the bank, he gave Stengel the opportunity of buying in. Casey did and is now one of several minority stockholders.

Q. In how many states is marriage between Negroes and whites prohibited by law?—B.T., Little Rock, Ark.

A. In 19 states—Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Delaware, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Wyoming, Oklahoma and West Virginia.

Q. What is the relationship between Fidel Castro and Celia Sanchez? Isn't she his mistress?—R. P. Coronado, Miami, Fla.

A. Celia Sanchez, 36, is a former girl friend of Castro's who fought with him in the jungle, was later made his private secretary. When Castro came to power he gave her a cabinet post, Secretary of the Presidency. She is expected to succeed provisional President Osvaldo Torrado.

Q. Whatever happened to ex-tennis champ Alice Marble?—Carla Monti, Hollywood, Calif.

A. Alice Marble, 50, is director of the Lake Encino Racquet Club outside Los Angeles.

Q. Can anyone tell me how much money Cary Grant is worth?—Lena Harrison, Columbia, S.C.

A. Approximately $15,000,000.

Q. How tall is President Johnson, and what did he do in World War II? — David Watts, Erie, Pa.

A. President Johnson is 6-feet-3. In World War II, Johnson enlisted in the Navy three days after Pearl Harbor. He was commissioned a lieutenant commander and sent to New Zealand and Australia. He served as an observer on bomber missions, was awarded the Silver Star. When President Roosevelt ruled that national legislators might not serve in the armed forces, Johnson returned to the House of Representatives, in mid-1942.

Q. When Happy Murphy divorced Dr. James S. Murphy to marry Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who got custody of the four Murphy children?—T. P., Buffalo, N.Y.

A. Dr. Murphy.

Q. How about the Judy Garland-Glenn Ford romance? True, or is Ford doing it for publicity?—Dan Fredericks, Tarzana, Calif.

A. They're old friends.

Q. Is it true that in his press conferences French President Charles de Gaulle chooses the questions he wishes to answer and brushes aside all others?—B. L. French, Baltimore, Md.

A. Yes, he generally chooses one question, answers it for 30 minutes.

Q. Lindsay Crosby, the 26-year-old son of Bing Crosby —wasn't he recently arrested for being an alcoholic? Why doesn't Bing give him the cure?—T. P., Riverside, Calif.

A. Young Crosby suffered a nervous breakdown 18 months ago, was recently arrested in Palm Springs on suspicion of drunken driving.

Q. Who said: "Who loves not women, wine and song remains a fool his whole life long"?—Nettie Chalmers, Oil City, La.

A. Martin Luther, 1483-1546, leader of the Protestant Reformation in Germany.

Q. Is it true that Queen Elizabeth plans to abdicate the British throne in 6 years when Prince Charles reaches 21? — Henrietta Sher, Newark, N.J.

A. There is some talk that she will abdicate when Prince Charles reaches 30 or 35. The idea is to permit him to reign in the full vigor of his youthful manhood rather than when he's an old man. When Queen Victoria died in 1901, her son Edward VII was 60. He died 9 years later. Queen Elizabeth wants no duplication of that setup.

Q. Is there anything to the Suzanne Pleshette-Troy Donahue thing—or is it one of those studio-manufactured love affairs? — Belinda Church, Des Moines, Iowa.

A. They may wed Jan. 4.

Q. Is Jerry Lewis all washed up in television?—Oliver Hinson, Detroit, Mich.

A. He's too talented to be washed up in any medium.

Q. I've been told that Sen. Barry Goldwater was once denied permission to play golf at a Los Angeles country club because of his ancestry. Supposedly Goldwater said to the club manager, "How about letting me play 9 holes? I'm only half-Jewish." Is this anecdote true?—Sandy Gersch, Tucson, Ariz.

A. The anecdote was first narrated by the senator's brother, Bob, who told it about himself. Later, Bob Goldwater said, "I made the story up. I told it at a PGA meeting. It's not true."

STALIN'S GHOST

How the old tyrant still haunts the Kremlin and influences American-Soviet relations

by JESS GORKIN
EDITOR OF PARADE

Top photo shows Irkutsk, Siberia, square in 1959 dominated by statue of Stalin. Today (bottom) this area has completely changed and the old tyrant's visage has disappeared.

One of Lyndon B. Johnson's first acts as President was to express the hope that the thaw would continue in American-Soviet relations.

What are the chances of the thaw continuing? Will the cold war ice, which began to melt for the first time after the 1955 Geneva Conference, turn to water or reverse once again into a deep freeze?

The man who holds part of the answer to these and other questions about the internal politics of Russia, the outcome of many international events and the peace of the world is a man who has been dead more than 10 years. His name is Josef Stalin.

A full decade after the old dictator's death, his ghost still sulks in the Kremlin shadows. His survivors, peering into the gloom, can almost see the great mustache, the cold suspicious eyes, the sinister sneer.

They laid him to rest alongside Lenin in the purple granite mausoleum which they had built as a pyramid for their pharaohs. They were uneasy at first, as if he might reach out from his tomb and strike them down in a posthumous purge. But, as they gathered courage, they defiled both his memory and his grave. They ripped down his pictures, battered down his statues, uprooted street signs bearing his name—leaving angry scars in every bleak little park and garden, every drab public building. They rewrote their history and their literature to blot out his name. Subscribers to the large Soviet encyclopedia were instructed to delete favorable references with "a pair of scissors or a razor blade."

Obscure Resting Place

Then on Hallowe'en night, 1961, his body was spirited out of the mausoleum and buried in an obscure grave outside the Kremlin Wall. (Though the grave is now marked with a simple slab instead of the customary headstone, it continues to draw curious visitors. See accompanying pictures.)

Only in Stalin's native Georgia can his likeness be found today. There he remains a hero, admired for the qualities that made others hate him.

During my first trip to the Soviet Union in 1955, the Russian people were stumbling out of the Stalin era, shaking off some of the old oppressions, blinking in the sunlight that was beginning to break through. They were friendly but furtive; the fear and distrust hadn't yet disappeared.

He Still Has Admirers

When I visited the Soviet Union a few weeks ago, I spoke to scores of Russians, and found only a handful who admitted they thought kindly of Stalin. This minority view is best voiced by Vladimir Ottarshevsky, director of the Irkutsk Historical Museum: "We still have a great respect for Stalin. He has an important place in our history."

Although most of the Russian people despise the old despot, he still has his secret sympathizers throughout the entire Communist apparatus. But they dare not come out in the open, they lurk at all party levels—from the top policy makers who still believe Stalin's grim ways would be best for Russia, to the petty martinets who loved to administer Stalin's rule of terror. Through them, Stalin's ghost still stalks the land, waiting for the chance to strike.

Nowhere is his presence more ominously felt than in the huge paneled Kremlin office that Nikita Khrushchev now occupies. It was Khrushchev, then number 7 in the Soviet hierarchy, who made the arrangements for Stalin's funeral in 1953. Three years later, it was Khrushchev again who pulled the pedestal out from under Stalin and excoriated him as a brutal, despotic, capricious, sickly and suspicious "criminal murderer." Throughout most of the Communist world, the statues of Stalin came crashing down, and Khrushchev emerged from the rubble as the new supreme ruler, blaming past misdeeds of Communism upon Stalin.

But the ghost of Stalin was to give his successor no rest. The first time Khrushchev turned his back on the Kremlin, in 1957, the Stalinists rose up and tried to depose him. But he hurried home from an eastern European tour and drove them out instead.

Still Khrushchev was not safe; a young, new breed of Stalinists, led by the forbidding Mikhail Suslov, watched and waited. They were more flexible in their tactics, but their aims were the same as those of the ousted Old Bolsheviks. They also sympathized with the Chinese Communist ruler, Mao Tse-tung, who grows ever more frenzied in his determination to foist his doctrines on the Communist world and to bring down the West.

Whispers reached the West that Khrushchev had a showdown with the young Stalinists only last month. He sought to expel Mao from the Communist brotherhood. The Stalinists rallied enough support from world-wide Communist leaders to prevent the excommunication. They also attempted to overthrow Khrushchev's economic policies, to impose belt-tightening measures upon the people and to divert more of the nation's resources into military might. Reportedly, they pushed some of their policies upon Khrushchev. But their efforts failed. Instead, it was Suslov who disappeared (though perhaps temporarily) from the Moscow scene.

Will the ghost win in the end? Can the Stalinists overthrow Khrushchev? Here are my conclusions:

1. The experts think Stalin's ghost is fighting a losing battle, will be driven out and eventually retreat to Red China.

2. During the interim, the Stalinists will continue to exert pressure on Khrushchev's policies. But Khrushchev, a master politician, will duck and weave and outbox them. One of Khrushchev's major headaches is the decline in the economy, which has been skidding since 1958.

3. Khrushchev tried to excommunicate Red China from the Communist oligarchy but was overruled by the Stalinists. Some experts believe Khrushchev will reverse tactics and turn the other cheek to his old foe Mao Tse-tung. If Mao accepts the invitation to slap it, Khrushchev will then blame the Chinese for wanting a break.

4. As Russians get more education they become more difficult for the Communists to control. The Kremlin cannot have a technological nation without granting a measure of education and freedom. The police have now been tamed and the crimes of the Stalin era condemned. Yet it can't be said that the average Soviet citizen is free. He still has no freedom to criticize his government, no power over its policies.

5. It should be kept in mind that even though Khrushchev favors peaceful coexistence and a continuing thaw, he is a doctrinaire Communist. As part of his strategy, the U.S. can expect at least one Cold War crisis in the coming months to test President Johnson's mettle.

Turn the page for some random glimpses inside Russia 10 years after Stalin.

Moscow's favorite tourist spot continues to be the mausoleum in Red Square even though Stalin's body has been removed and Lenin's remains are the sole attraction.

Stalin's grave, located between rear of mausoleum and Kremlin Wall, is marked by a simple slab. The 60,000 daily visitors who pass by after viewing Lenin are curious.

HOLIDAY HEADACHE?

If you've never tried Alka-Seltzer® you don't know how speedy relief can be!

When too much holiday cheer brings on holiday headache, bring out the Alka-Seltzer! Unlike pain pills, Alka-Seltzer is already a liquid when you take it. Ready to go to work instantly.

Alka-Seltzer provides the effective pain-reliever, sodium acetylsalicylate, in a completely dissolved solution. In the first ten minutes—when you really need it—the system quickly absorbs more of this Alka-Seltzer pain-reliever.

When you want a modern effective pain-reliever (and a soothing stomach alkalizer) take two Alka-Seltzer tablets.

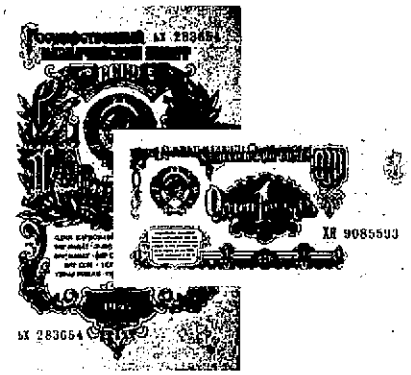

RELIEF IS JUST A SWALLOW AWAY

The Soviet people want peace along with more

Western influence on dress of many Russians is one of the most obvious changes in the Russian scene during the last 10 years. Contrast between the old and the new is shown in these photos. Kremlin criticism of use of cosmetics and Western styles, at one time severe, is now at a minimum.

Today's ruble (r.) is smaller in size, but U.S. dollar is now worth less than 1 ruble instead of 10.

Ironically, I found the people in Siberia more free and less inhibited than in Moscow. Typical of the comments I heard was engineer Vadim Kolonov's: "Some of my Siberian comrades who went back to the West eventually returned here. I have been in Siberia six years and find the people are more independent and friendlier."

THE HAMMER. Russia still is no worker's paradise, but working conditions have improved during the past 10 years. The work week has been reduced from 48 to 41 hours. The labor unions, which under Stalin only spurred workers to further effort, now help guard their safety and health. The unions can even call managers to task for violating work laws.

THE SICKLE. Russia has largely won its battle over malnutrition, but Khrushchev is furious at his farm managers for bungling, waste and ignorance. Though they boosted production by 60 per cent during the first 5 post-Stalin years, they have had trouble merely keeping up with the population increase since 1958. Khrushchev has put the plow to 100 million acres of arid "virgin lands" since 1954, almost one-creature comforts and personal freedom.

third the total U.S. crop land. But there hasn't been enough moisture to support the crops. And there is a desperate shortage of fertilizer. The bleak land has been farmed out, and drought is threatening to turn it into a vast, frightening dust bowl next summer. Russian farmers working their private plots on the side and selling their surplus on the free market have accounted for one-third of the farm output from less than four per cent of the tilled land. Compared to the American farmer, who feeds 25 people, 1 Russian farmer feeds only 4.

EDUCATION. The Russian child goes to school six days a week. Grade by grade his schedule is as follows:

Grade	Number of hours in school	Daily homework in hours
1-3	24	¾
4	27	1
5-6	30	1½
7	32	1½
8	34	2
9-11	36	3

Schools are closed on Sunday, and no homework is assigned for Sunday or Monday.

CARS. Ninety per cent of the vehicles in the Soviet Union are trucks. Few people expect ever to own a car. Rationalized one man: "A man takes more care of a car than of his wife."

SPORTS. All teachers, with an eye on the Olympic Games, try to build children who have a future in sports. Young athletes with potential are hand picked and attend sports schools twice a week. Age 10 or 11 is considered best to start training in gymnastics.

LEISURE LIFE. For entertainment, Russians now can find more stimulating reading than novels about young lovers discussing pig production by the light of the moon, more provocative listening than radio reports of the all-union conference of flyswatter makers, more exciting viewing than movies about dedicated workers on a production belt. Now Russians are even permitted to see American movies. They can attend the circus, watch a ballet, dance the Twist—even listen to the Voice of America.

FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION. The muzzle Stalin fastened on writers, artists and composers is alternately removed and replaced. For the moment, Khrushchev is pushing repression: witness his angry tirade against abstract art, which, he said, could be painted by the tail of a donkey.

HOUSING. Two things the Russian people want most are peace and a new apartment with their own kitchen and bathroom. Khrushchev has tried to speed up housing construction since 1958 but has had trouble keeping up with the urban growth. Urban population has increased 45 per cent during the past decade, passing Russia's rural population for the first time in history in 1960. The quality of construction is poor, and new homes are antiquated almost as soon as they are built.

THE CONSUMERS. The cumbersome Soviet economy suddenly shot upward after Stalin's shackles were broken until it had looked, indeed, as if Khrushchev's boast that Russia would overtake the U.S. by 1970 might come true. Booming factories filled Soviet shelves with 60 per cent more than had been available to consumers under Stalin. Then the economy suddenly slackened in 1957, and industrial production actually declined. To make matters worse for the consumers, Khrushchev put bullets ahead of butter in 1961 and increased defense outlays by a staggering 50 per cent.

THE OBSTACLES. The main hindrances to Soviet growth are too many Commissars, constantly changing directives, lack of incentives, indifference and inefficiency. In short, the Communist system is holding Russia back.

New housing has top priority, but construction is faulty. Prefabs were recently introduced.

Siberian collective farmer Vladimir Gvosdik's family prefers Siberia over their native Ukraine.

3. Take aspirin to reduce fever and relieve pain

REPORTING on a Government-Financed Study of Five Leading Pain Relievers, an article in The Journal of The American Medical Association showed that Bayer Aspirin was unsurpassed by any of them for speed and strength of relief. The report also showed that Bayer Aspirin was as gentle to the stomach as any product tested, including the higher-priced buffered product. On the other hand, the two combination-of-ingredients products tested upset the stomach considerably more often.

KAZAN & HIS REBELS

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

LAST week, Elia Kazan's latest film, America, America, opened on Broadway.

At 54, Kazan (real name—Kazanjoglous) is recognized as one of the world's most talented stage and film directors. An educational product of Williams College and the Yale University Drama School, Kazan has directed such memorable film fare as Streetcar Named Desire, Gentleman's Agreement, Panic in the Streets, East of Eden, On the Waterfront, Baby Doll, Splendor in the Grass and many others.

Certainly he is one of the great figures in contemporary American theater and motion pictures.

Small and restless, intense and vital, "Gadge" Kazan belongs to the school of naturalistic directors. It was he who first zoomed to stardom Marlon Brando via Streetcar, the late James Dean via East of Eden, Warren Beatty via Splendor in the Grass and now possibly Stathis Giallelis (pronounced Yallelis) via America, America.

All four of these actors are or were rebels of society, nonconformists, T-shirt or method actors, strong-minded individuals, seemingly contemptuous of normal behavior.

Marlon Brando, of course, lives each day as if it were his last. A frustrated writer, he divides his time between Tahiti and Hollywood, not too proud that he earns his living as a motion picture star. No one but he knows for sure to whom he's currently married or how many children he has—best guess is two, one by Anna Kashfi and one by Movita. He is seemingly a rebel without a cause, a millionaire approaching 40 who once had within him the ability and power to become one of the greatest actors of his time but who sold out to Hollywood and, according to friends, doesn't particularly like what he sees in the mirror.

Jimmy Dean was a reckless, cultureless, physically dirty young actor, rude, disrespectful, snarling, a chip-on-the-shoulder rebel, notoriously selfish and taciturn, who fought with all his directors but was nevertheless an immensely talented actor. He rode motorcycles at breakneck speed, disregarded the law and the advice of elders, killed himself in a meaningless car accident, defiant to the last.

A LOSING BATTLE

Warren Beatty, young brother of actress Shirley MacLaine, brought up by respectable parents in Virginia, is bad-mannered, foul mouthed, argumentative, spoiled, arrogant. His conduct on the location of Lilith, a picture he recently completed with director Robert Rossen, was so incredibly adolescent that at the start of the film Rossen wanted badly to throw him out if only he could have found a proper replacement. Of Beatty, his sister Shirley says, "I've tried to tell him that people must have manners in order to communicate with each other on a level of decency, but so far it's been a losing battle."

Stathis Giallelis, another Kazan discovery, is a 22-year-old Greek who had never faced a camera before Kazan found him in Athens 2 years ago. Giallelis' idea of formal wear is a T-shirt, but he is filled with such buoyant, boyish self-importance that when you ask him, as I recently did, "What do you think of Elia Kazan?" he quickly answers: "He is the best man who ever directed me." America, America is Giallelis' first and only motion picture.

Where does Elia Kazan find these fellows? Does he specialize in rebels? Does he have some strange affinity for nonconformists? Does he see these youngsters as members of the out-group, the nonbelongers—as he himself was, first at Williams, where he washed dishes in a fraternity house, and then at Yale, where he was considered a poor actor?

A few weeks ago, while he was rehearsing Arthur Miller's new play, After the Fall, which opens in New York on January 23, I asked Kazan a few of those questions.

'THEY SAY DEAN IS MY FAULT'

"I don't know why these particular actors should be identified with me," he answered. "After all, I've worked with other actors. Take Karl Malden. I've worked with him seven or eight times, whereas I worked with Jimmy Dean only once. Yet they keep saying Jimmy Dean is my fault.

"The truth is," he went on, "that I never liked Dean. He was crude, dirty, unco-operative, snide, very bad-mannered."

I interrupted and said, "Aren't they all bad-mannered—Brando, Beatty, Giallelis?"

Kazan thought a moment. "I guess," he said, "they're taking out some personal grudge on the whole world, something of that kind. They feel cornered and bedeviled, but frankly, I'm not interested in that sort of bedevilment any more."

In show business circles there's a theory that Kazan can take a young actor, evoke from him a tremendous performance, then turn him over to Hollywood, where he becomes negativistic, unco-operative and willful. Kazan does not like Hollywood. He films his pictures away from Hollywood, and many people believe he projects his antagonism toward the film world into these young actors. I asked the director if he would comment on that.

"I don't have much antagonism," he said. "I used to when I was a kid in my early twenties, but I don't any more. Why should I? I do what I want, when I want. I enjoy life. But these actors you mention. I don't know why they're antagonistic or surly or unco-operative.

"The whole life out there in Hollywood is boring—the agencies, the publicity, the hangers-on—I'd revolt against it, too. The only thing I always wondered is why the hell they stay."

"Because," I answered, "money provides status and creature comforts, and there is a certain pleasure of self-abnegation in Hollywood prostitution. If there weren't, Marlon Brando would be with you now working in this new play."

Kazan agreed that I might be right. "You know," he said, "I think Marlon's a wonderful person. He's a very smart man, very babyish on one side, but on the whole a very decent man, tolerant, understanding, interesting, humorous. In Hollywood he's his own boss. Here in New York, the most we could pay him would be a thousand a week. I guess he can't afford us."

I asked Kazan if he might reveal the secret formula by which he obtains such overwhelming co-operation from actors who subsequently refuse to accord the same to other directors.

"Well," he said simply, "at the start of a play or a film, I figure I'm going to be with these guys for a long time, so I try to set up standards and values that I believe in and I hope they'll believe in so we'll be able to work well together."

Stathis Giallelis (l.), latest Kazan rebel, stars in America, America. Warren Beatty rose to stardom via Splendor in the Grass.

GEORGE MASTERS OF HOLLYWOOD SHOWS HIS NEW SMOOTH, NATURAL COIFFURE—THE UPDATED CLASSIC

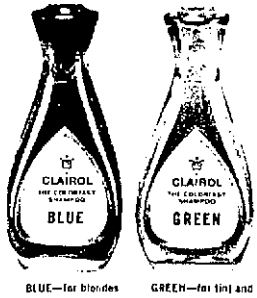

This world-famous hairdresser tells why you should use a special colorfast shampoo if you color or lighten your hair

"The look is casual, but the care we give to hair and its color is anything but casual," explains George Masters, whose exuberant approach to hairstyling attracts a star-studded clientele, from Beverly Hills and throughout the country.

"Naturally, when I arrive at the most becoming hair color for a woman—a soft, lovely shade that does wonderful things for her looks—I want it to stay that way. I certainly don't want to see the color changed by the shampoo."

Asked how he handles this important shampoo problem, Mr. Masters told us, "Once it seemed a lost cause. But it's easy now that Clairol has developed this special shampoo that really cares for haircoloring. Because it's colorfast, it doesn't change hair color."

Very different from other leading shampoos, new colorfast shampoo by Clairol was specifically created for women who color or lighten their hair. In two unique formulas: Clairol Blue for all light delicate blonde shades of lightened and toned hair. Clairol Green for all red, brown and black shades of tints and lasting rinses. So you see, however you color your hair, one of these two is exactly right for you! Used by leading beauty salons everywhere. Now available at fine cosmetic counters.

Old-time calendars come back

by ROSALIND MASSOW

What ever happened to those sweetly sentimental calendars of yesteryear? You know, the ones that depicted doting mothers and fathers and very fancy ladies done up in big hats and feathered boas?

Well, they're coming out of their dusty hiding places in the attic to become wall decorations. Decorator interest in Edwardian furniture and anything old-fashioned has put a premium on originals of the cloyingly sweet variety of calendar art reproduced on this page and on today's cover. But ladies who haunt the antique shops may be lucky enough to get their hands on one of these flowery, marvelously corny creations of the early 1900s.

However, even the 1964 calendars—there'll be about 500 to 600 million distributed—will have a touch of the turn of the century about them. They'll have more warmth, grace, sentiment and ornamentation than they had in the past decade. Says Stan Shaw, art director of Shaw-Barton, one of the country's largest calendar manufacturers, "You're going to see a lot of calendars which feature woodcuts and other traditional art forms."

The average household will have two to three calendars, Shaw says, and at least one will be decorative. He sees the present trend as a reaction from art that's impossible to understand. "People want to look at something that rings a familiar bell, instead of the abstract use-your-own-imagination kind of design," Shaw explains.

Calendar art has always reflected the mood and needs of the time. At the turn of the century and for 20 years after, rococo treatment of home-and-Mother subjects was in vogue. Pictures were bordered with pansies and curlicues. People liked them so much they kept them as decorations long after the calendars themselves were obsolete.

The Roaring 20s, with its flappers and its air of abandon, launched the pin-up, first of the girlie calendars. During the Depression, calendars were simple and austere; during the war years, patriotic. From 1950 to 1960, calendar formats were severe and somewhat abstract. Now we're returning to sweetness and light. But no matter what kind of calendar you get for 1964, chances are that it will so beguile the eye, you won't even mind the passage of time.

New Products: Best of 1963

by Peter Dryden

Here, judged by reader inquiries, are the 10 most popular new products reported by Parade of Progress in 1963 — and another chance to get any you missed.

Spray your oven clean: A new aerosol preparation produces a white foam that lets you clean an oven in 10 minutes—and without need for rubber gloves. Almost as bland as water, it can't burn skin, injure fabrics, metals or floor coverings. 16 oz.: $1.50. Oven-Joy, Dept. PP, 14934 Telegraph Rd., Detroit 39, Mich.

Convenience under the sink: Now comes a waste can with 15-qt. capacity, largest ever, that fits into an undersink or counter cabinet, attaching to inside of door. Its lid pops up when you press a button and there's also a built-in odor-killing deflumer. 10¾" wide, 8½" deep, 15" high. White or yellow enamel: $7.98; stainless steel: $10.98. ($1 more in Western states.) Beautyware, Dept. PP, 225 42 St., Brooklyn 32, N. Y.

Fold-away summer room: You can set up a new screen-walled room quickly and easily in your back yard for family picnics, parties, cookouts, children's play in bad weather. And it folds up compactly for winter storage. It has Fiberglas screening, rustproof aluminum framing—and even the largest size, 12'3" x 12'3", weighs only 130 lb. Other sizes from 9' x 9'. Details: Pennant Div., Nova Industrial, Dept. PP, 9705 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago 28, Ill.

Compact camper: Hitched to your car, a new camper is only 6'8" long and 5' wide when closed—yet opens to 10' width to provide sleeping space for a family of 4 or 5. It also has built-in kitchen with 35-lb. capacity icebox, water pump, 5-gal. water tank, steel sink, space for camp stove. Details: Right Products, Dept. PP, 213 Dunn St., Cincinnati 15, O.

Carpet mats: New for your car, they're made of rayon viscose carpeting, have rubber backs that anchor them—and let air circulate underneath to avoid moisture accumulation, mildew. 16" x 18". Black-white, beige, or green tweed. $1.29 plus postage. Crown Rubber, Dept. PP, 1615 Croghan St., Fremont, O.

Walkie-talkie from a kit: You can put a new 2-way transistorized radio together from a kit in a few hours. Powered by a miniature 9-volt battery, it provides on-the-move communication at ranges up to ¼ mile (more over open country or water), has many applications—from calling Junior home to across-the-street talk with neighbors, and use in boating, fishing, golfing. 5$^{11}/_{32}$" x 2⅞" x 1¾". $9.95. Allied Radio, Dept. PP, 100 N. Western, Chicago 80, Ill.

For your blacktop driveway: Brush or roll on a new paint and it not only adds attractive color but also increases driveway life. Made with aluminum, it seals the surface, keeps it cooler, helps prevent cracking, crumbling. In grass green, coral red, beige gray or raven black—all fadeproof. $6.85 a gal. (good for 75-100 sq. ft.). Al-Chroma, Dept. PP, Stevens Point, Wis.

Cold protection: Inhaling cold air bothers many people with asthma, bronchitis, other medical problems. Now a knitted mask fits over nose and mouth—and preheats air. Designed by a physician, it has a heating element energized by a small, rechargeable battery. Details: Carmen Commodities, Dept. PP, 2900 W. Peterson, Chicago 45, Ill.

Versatile intercom: This one can operate from house current or a little 9-volt battery. It can go on table or wall, in home or office, works instantly without warm-up, has a special switch that shuts it off automatically when not in use to avoid current consumption or battery drain. Gray, tan, ivory or blue. 2-station system: $34.95; 5 stations: $98.08. Details: Beta Instruments, Dept. PP, 2205 Butler, Dallas 35, Tex.

Emergency heat and light: Everything you need for heat, light and cooking in case of power failure now comes in a compact kit that can also go along on your camping trips and picnics, taking little room in the car trunk. It includes a portable stove (with windshield) that also serves for heating; a camplight with illumination equal to a 125-watt bulb; 4 propane fuel tanks to provide for 42 hot meals and 50 hours of light. $29.95. Details: Turner Corp., Dept. PP, Sycamore, Ill.

A Hearty Welcome for 1964

BY BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

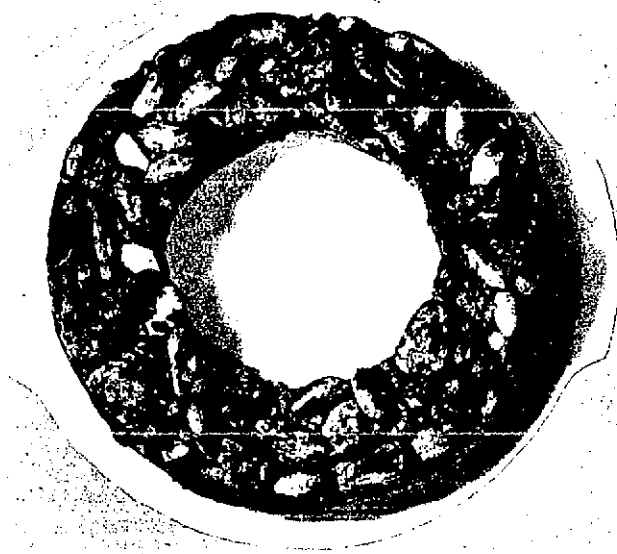

Usher in the New Year with Open House hospitality. Set the stage with holiday decorations, the soft glow of candlelight, and perhaps a crackling wood fire on the hearth. Serve a punch that is different, fragrant with fruit, spices and the added tang of beer. Cut the fruitcake wreath in thin, thin slices to serve with the punch.

New Year's Eve Punch

- 3 medium apples
- 4 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon each ginger and nutmeg
- 6 cups orange juice
- 2 quarts cranberry juice
- 2 bottles or cans (12 oz. each) beer or ale
- 3 tablespoons raisins
- 4 thick slices oranges
- Whole cloves

Core apples; slice into thin wedges; sprinkle with brown sugar. Place in baking pan; cover bottom of pan with ⅛ inch water. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes or until tender. Combine sugar and spices in 8-quart kettle. Add all but last two remaining ingredients. Heat (do not boil) 15 minutes. To serve, pour mixture into heatproof punch bowl; add apple wedges. If desired, garnish as illustrated, with 4 orange slices decorated with whole cloves forming the numerals of the New Year. Makes 3½ quarts.

Fruitcake Wreath

- 3 cups shelled Brazil nuts (2 lb. unshelled, 1 lb. shelled)
- 1 lb. pitted dates
- 1 cup (8-oz. jar) drained maraschino cherries
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Put whole Brazil nuts, dates and cherries into large bowl. Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt over nuts and fruit; mix with hands until nuts and fruit are coated. Beat eggs until foamy; add vanilla. Stir into nut-fruit mixture until well mixed. Spoon into greased and foil-lined 6-cup ring mold. Grease foil. Bake at 300° for 1 hour, 30 minutes. Cool before slicing. FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN dad helps deliver the baby

by NEAL ASHBY

DENVER, COLO.

Just 30 minutes after giving birth to a baby daughter at Porter Memorial Hospital here, Janice French walked out of the delivery room with the infant in her arms and her husband at her side. She looked tired, but radiant. So did he. For almost literally they had delivered their baby together.

In the labor room, Lynn French, 21, had whispered "words of love" to divert the mind of his 20-year-old mate from labor contractions and tension. He had rubbed her back, helped make her comfortable.

In the delivery room, he sat at the head of the table on which his wife lay. As she strained in heavy labor, he leaned against the pillow behind her upraised back to afford her more leverage. He patted the perspiration from her forehead. They strained together, and 6-pound, 13½-ounce Martha, the Frenches' first child, entered the world.

The photos of the Frenches on these pages illustrate the new dimension being given to natural childbirth, itself relatively new in this country, at Porter Memorial. It is the development of Drs. Robert A. Bradley and Max D. Bartlett.

Dr. Bradley, veteran of 7,000 natural, anesthetic-less childbirths, had felt repelled by the "pain and anguish often attending the birth of a human baby. In many instances the mother-to-be was not prepared for childbirth mentally or physically. She was a frightened individual, a 'medicated maniac.'"

REPLACES FEAR WITH SELF-CONFIDENCE

Working with Dr. Bartlett, he initiated an "Obstetrical Therapy Training Course" for husbands and wives. It consists of five one-hour demonstrations to coach them in the anatomy of childbirth and in emotional training to replace fear with intelligent self-confidence. For the mother-to-be only, there are six exercise classes to strengthen back and pelvic muscles.

When it's time to go to Porter Memorial, husband, wife and obstetrician form an "OB team." Working behind his laboring wife in the delivery room, the husband sits on the "Daddy Stool," in the position the anesthetist ordinarily would take. With experience, the doctors discovered that even more beneficial than the father's presence was his participation. Like the doctor, the father is in surgical garb.

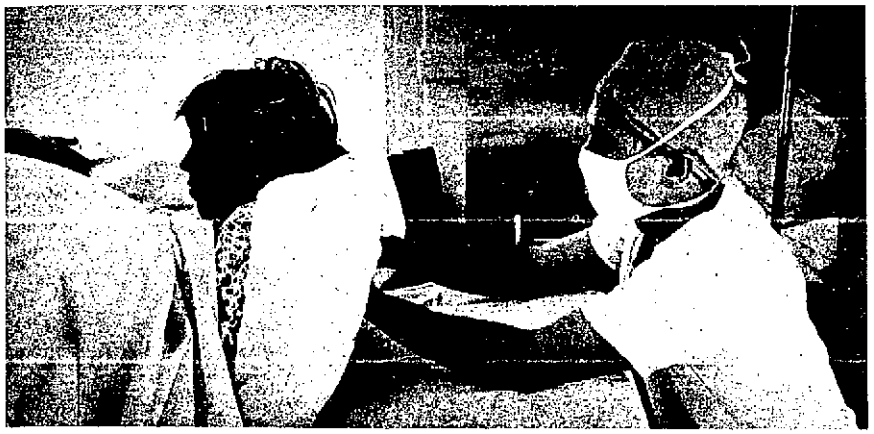

Drs. Bradley and Bartlett allow their mothers to walk from the delivery room if they wish—also a change from conventional procedure. Janice French did admirably. Soon after giving birth she was on the phone telling her mother excitedly, "I didn't have any anesthetic, or anything. The baby was born only a half hour ago, honest!"

Dr. Robert A. Bradley visits the Frenches in labor room at Denver's Porter Memorial Hospital. He's not needed yet.

As wife relaxes before natural childbirth, Lynn French places hand on her abdomen to help her regulate breathing.

As Janice undergoes the stress of advanced labor, Lynn helps her to gain leverage by pushing against the pillow at her back. He is seated on "Daddy Stool" at head of delivery table.

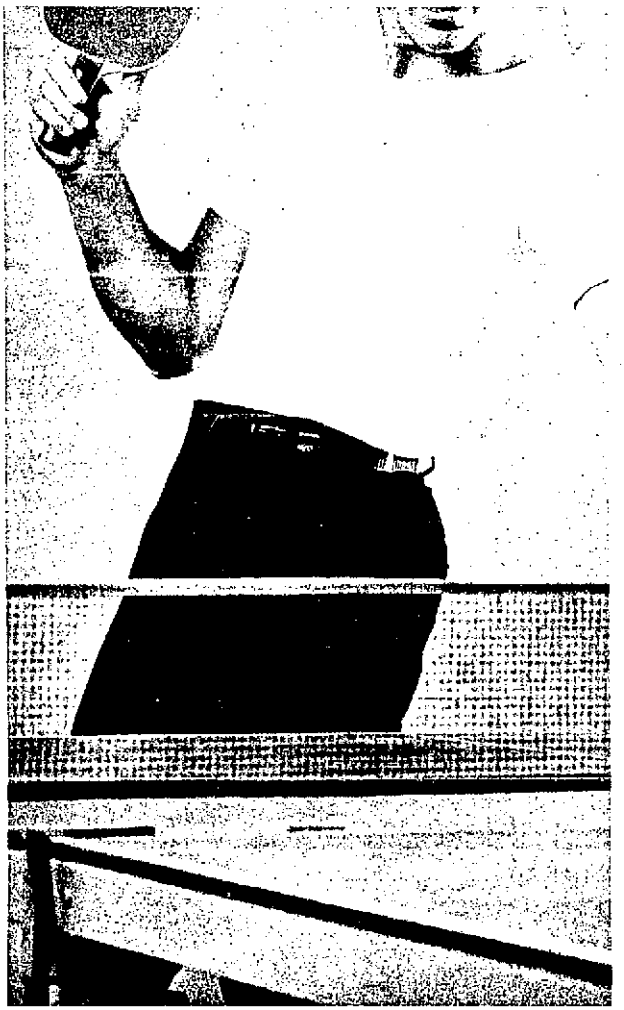

Just after the glorious moment of birth, Janice French drops back on her pillow, closes her eyes—and gets a loving hug from her husband, who is attired in surgeon's gown and mask.

Delivery over for both of them, the Frenches admire their baby daughter, whom they named Martha. A few minutes later, Janice was giving her mother the news on long distance phone.

my favorite jokes

by billy falbo

EDITOR'S NOTE: Comedian Billy Falbo, born in Chicago 35 years ago, is a former prize fighter who entered show business after his discharge from the army. A former singer with the Stan Kenton band, Billy discovered his bent for comedy when he was asked one night to replace a comedian who had fallen ill. That was 15 years ago, and Billy has been singing and telling jokes ever since, in such top night spots as the Sahara in Las Vegas, the Deauville in Miami Beach, The Playboy Club in Chicago, the Tidelands in Houston. One of the few comics who is still single, Billy makes his home in Melrose Park, Ill. He also owns a ranch in Hinsdale where he races quarter horses. He says he finds these much easier to run than any possible wife. Herewith some of his favorite jokes.

I have an uncle who wants to go on television. It's the only way he can get into 200 bars at the same time!

Speaking of TV, some of those old quiz shows got a lot of people into trouble, but they have a new kind of quiz now. You're given the question and answer, but you have to guess who sent it in.

Actually, these quiz contests are getting a little ridiculous. I know a 10-year-old kid who had to get married just because he won a honeymoon vacation for two in Hawaii.

I've done my show in Florida many times, and I love it down there. Where else can you open a window and let all that good fresh virus in?

My neighbor, a confirmed gambler, came home very discouraged after a bad day at the track last week. His wife learned he had lost a lot of money and was very upset with him. "I can't understand why you never have any luck at racing," she nagged, "when you always win at cards."

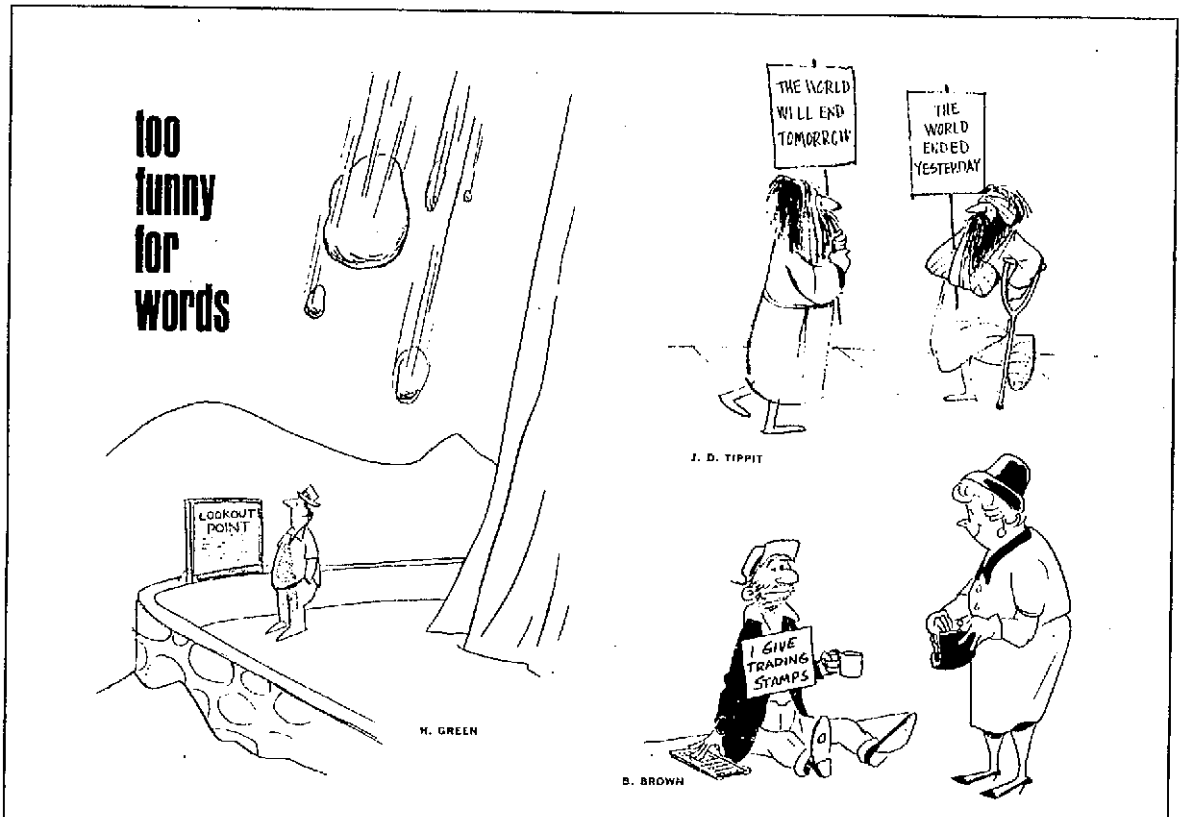

"It's simple," he replied. "They won't let me shuffle the horses!"

Do you know why wives are like umpires? They not only have the last word, but they never think you're safe when you're out.

It's amazing what a good architect can do these days. Why, he can make your old house look a hundred per cent better just by talking about the cost of building you a new one!

An awful lot of American tourists will be going to Europe next year. They're not going for the scenery—they just want to be near their money.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

MAKE MARIJUANA LEGAL. Lancet, the journal of the British medical profession, says it may be a good idea to make marijuana legal. The magazine claims the drug is not addictive although it was placed on the British list of dangerous drugs in 1951. The article suggests taxing the production of reefer cigarettes and points out that while alcohol is used in the Western countries as an accepted liquor for the release of aggression, marijuana is recognized in the East as a producer of valued passiveness.

TO FIGHT CANCER. General de Gaulle is willing to give .5% of France's military budget to an international fund to fight cancer. The idea was suggested by Louis Armand, a French businessman who has written to the heads of government in Soviet Russia, Great Britain and the United States, asking for a similar pledge.

DRIVE-IN CHURCH. At Escondido, Calif., $420,000 is being spent on the construction of a new drive-in church which people can attend while in their cars. Plans call for a clergyman to conduct services from a glass tower over loudspeakers hidden in shrubs. Name of the church will be the Escondido Reformed Drive-In Church.

ELBOW GREASE. The do-it-yourself movement has spread to car washing, particularly in the Southwest. For 25¢ motorists can now drive into car wash booths, have their cars cleaned by high-pressure jets of water and detergent. Wiping cloths and vacuum cleaners are available for another two bits.

FALCONRY USE. Sea gulls are a constant threat to jet planes taking off from West Coast airports. To keep these gulls from being swallowed by jet intakes, safety experts are in the process of training falcons to rid the airfields of gulls.

TROUBLE FOR KRUPP. Krupp of Essen, the West German industrial giant whose steel and munitions plants made possible much of Adolf Hitler's war, has run into considerable financial trouble. The entire Krupp empire has been compelled to rely on short-term financing--6- to 12-month loans-- and is encountering a great deal of difficulty in obtaining the long-term loans it badly needs.

FACT-OF-FOOT. Nylon was introduced into the U.S. 25 years ago. In 1938 all the available nylon went into women's hose. Today hosiery uses only 45 million pounds of nylon while tires use 210 million, carpets 100 million, dress fabrics 75 million pounds.

GERMAN MEASLES. Expose your teenage daughter to German measles long before she gets married. That's the advice of Dr. Virginia Apgar, director of the Division of Congenital Malformations for the National Foundation March of Dimes. Says Dr. Apgar: "We have made a great deal of progress in 1963 in the study of virus infections and their effect during pregnancy. The virus which causes German measles--rubella--has been discovered. Vaccine research is under way, and specific laboratory tests can be performed to determine whether or not the future mother has actually had rubella." If your daughter hasn't had the disease, the doctor believes she should be exposed to it in order to obtain immunity. "If a mother-to-be contracts German measles in her first month of pregnancy, she has a 50% chance of giving birth to a baby who is abnormal or born dead. If she gets the disease in the second month of pregnancy the chances are reduced to 25%. In her third month they are 15%." Dr. Apgar is the originator of the Apgar Score, a clinical evaluation made within a minute after birth to determine if there is any brain damage to the infant.

Disability Payments

When you get hurt and can't work!

ACCIDENT INSURANCE

Only 50¢ A MONTH

Provided as a Reader Service of the Independent Press-Telegram

HERE IS WHAT YOU CAN COLLECT
In accordance with policy terms

MINOR ACCIDENTS	When there is no disability, policy covers your doctor bill expense up to $15.00 (limit $3.00 per visit); plus X-ray expense up to $10.00.
DISABLING ACCIDENTS Include HOSPITAL EXPENSE	For most accidents at home, at work, at play, etc. Disability Benefits up to $120.00 at $30.00 per month; X-ray expenses up to $10.00; Ambulance expenses up to $10.00; PLUS Hospital Benefits to $300.00 at $5.00 per day. Maximum total $440.00. For Auto and Pedestrian Accidents; maximum total increased to $620.00; for other Specified Travel Accidents, maximum $920.00.
FATAL ACCIDENTS	$500.00 for most accidents at home, at work, at play, etc. $1,000.00 for Auto, Pedestrian, certain specified Travel accidents. Up to $10,000.00 for other specified Travel accidents.
MONTHLY INCREASE	Important Death Benefits increase 1% each month you are insured—up to 50% maximum.
ELIGIBILITY	Issued to men, women and children between ages 1 and 79—except those who have lost both hands or feet or sight of both eyes.
LIMITATIONS	Benefits reduced one-half after 65th birthday. No reduction in benefits first year.
EXCEPTIONS	Benefits paid in accordance with terms of policy form HM 7624 UA which is renewable at option of Company. Does not cover accidents in a mine; in railroad yard or train except as fare-paying passenger; warfare; auto races; expense items paid under Compensation insurance.

It costs a whale of a lot to be laid up by an accident — any kind of accident. When the family bread-winner is hurt and can't work, his income is usually reduced or stopped entirely. Result? The family savings are drained so much that it may take years to recover from the high accident costs.

Bills for medical treatments, X-rays, hospital rooms, wheel chairs and a dozen other unexpected expenses, take a big chunk out of anyone's hard-earned savings.

This insurance is designed to help you solve the Accident Expense Problem. You may find it hard to believe, BUT this policy — at a cost of little more than a penny a day does pay the benefits shown below, for accidents at work, at home, in your automobile, on the street, and even at play.

Hundreds of claims are paid every week to men and women, like yourself, who never expected to be hurt. But they realized that, since one American in every 12 gets hurt each year, they just couldn't afford to be without this low-cost protection.

Take advantage of this great Reader Service — the personal accident insurance that brings you cash when you need it most! Send in your application today!

CHP Setting Up Traffic Checkpoints

POLICE READY FOR NEW YEAR'S EVE

By WILLIAM JONES

A small army of more than 2,000 uniformed sheriff's deputies, local policemen and highway patrolmen will be called out for duty on New Year's Eve in hope of preventing a traffic bloodbath on Southland roads.

Beginning at 10 a.m. Monday, mobile units of the California Highway Patrol will set up traffic checks at 20 different locations in Los Angeles, Ventura and Orange counties.

It is expected that more than 10,000 motorists will be funneled through the checkpoints at the undisclosed sites. Generally, patrolmen will operate the checkpoints for two hours at one location and then move on to another.

Main target of these roadblocks: the drunk driver.

With leave time canceled, the Highway Patrol will put 500 officers in the field on New Year's Eve to man the checkpoints and for regular patrol duty.

A force of 750 deputies will be on full-time duty in Los Angeles County, including "contract cities" such as Lakewood, Bellflower, Paramount, Artesia and Dairy Valley, according to Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess.

Orange County will field 50 deputies, concentrated generally in the "contract cities" of Fountain Valley, Villa Park and San Juan Capistrano.

Most cities in the two counties, including Long Beach, will summon extra policemen to augment their regular forces during the midweek holiday period.

Despite this, safety officials Saturday were pessimistic about the traffic accident outlook.

Forecasts of traffic deaths in the state during the holiday ranged from 18 to 23.

The Long Beach Chapter of the National Safety Council pointed out that the early national prediction of 250 traffic deaths for both the Christmas and New Year's holidays already had been surpassed Friday with 316 dead.

Clifford Boutin, president of the Long Beach chapter, said the "holiday danger in the fight for life" had increased because of extra traffic caused by workers given extra days off by local businesses. This stemmed from the midweek observance of the two holidays, he said.

In Long Beach, the Safety Council, Police De-

POPE MEETS ORTHODOX CHURCH ENVOY

LBJ Decree Made Rapid Budget Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) —An unpublicized decree by President Johnson, demanding a "voluntary" trimming of agency budget requests, produced over $730 million worth of cuts in 48 hours, government sources said Saturday.

The cost-cutting drive apparently has become Johnson's uppermost concern, administration aides reported, and has become the biggest headache of his cabinet officers.

But even though the President pounded on the cabinet table at a recent session to underscore his demand for savings, officials indicated there is little hope of a fiscal 1965 budget below $101 billion.

• • • •

THAT WOULD be about $2 billion greater than the spending estimate for fiscal 1964, ending next June 30. But the budget message still is full of blanks and question marks, officials said, and only these facts seem fairly solid:

—It will go to Congress Jan. 21, remaining open for revision until almost the last moment.

—It will show reduced outlays for some of the heaviest spending agencies, including the Defense Department, Agriculture Department, Atomic Energy Commission, Post Office and Veterans Administration.

—It will propose increases for some others, including the Labor Department, the Department of Welfare, the Peace Corps and the housing agencies.

—It will wind up in red ink again, although the deficit is expected to be smaller—by several hundred million dollars—than the estimated fiscal 1964 deficit of $9.2 billion.

The President made a brief reference to his econ-

ANYBODY FOR A BEER?

The new Miss Rheingold, Celeste Yarnall, a native of Long Beach, strolls Saturday through New York's Central Park.

L.B. Girl's Title Worth $50,000

By ANDY PARK

A 19-year-old Long Beach Girl is $50,000 richer and on her way to being the most well-known young lady in New York as a result of a brewery beauty contest she won this month.

Celeste Yarnall, an actress-hopeful born here in 1944, is the reigning beauty of Manhattan and environs (and, up that way, they consider most of the East Coast "environs.").

Celeste, with a name that means "heavenly," is Miss Rheingold of 1964. In New York City, that's the next best thing to being the Statue of Liberty.

• • • •

RHEINGOLD, a pleasant potable purveyed in Gotham and the New England states, annually elects a "Miss" and bestows upon her $50,000 in cash, a $10,000 wardrobe, $400 monthly expenses, and sends her around their marketing territory to smile on TV, chat on radio, pose for pictures and grace the thousands of billboards at various levels on the skyline of New York.

In the process, the company sells a lot of beer and makes a famous person out of its Miss.

Celeste, a free-lance actress from Hollywood, was born in Long Beach July 26, 1944 at Seaside Memorial Hospital, when her father, F. E. Yarnall, was a Navy commander stationed here.

• • • •

"WE LIVED there for a while," Celeste recalls, "but I don't remember exactly where. But Long Beach is my birthplace and I've always been glad."

The Leibman Breweries of New York is also glad—

Tariff View Brighter, He Tells LBJ

JOHNSON CITY (UPI)—President Johnson opened summit talks with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard at the LBJ Ranch Saturday and Erhard told him efforts to resolve East-West tensions had "not been very encouraging," particularly in terms of a divided Germany.

A spokesman for the chancellor emphasized that despite his "realistic and sober" assessment of the last year, Erhard fully supports continued efforts to resolve differences between the Allies and the Soviet bloc.

• • • •

JOHNSON and Erhard conferred in the living room of the Johnson ranch house and in a car driving over the ranchland.

The chancellor was more optimistic about U.S. concern over European trade barriers to American farm products during two sessions that opened the two-day meeting.

Erhard, whose nation is a member of the Common Market, sought to ease U.S. worry over European tariff barriers.

• • • •

CHANCES looked "improved" for American-European tariff talks next year, Erhard told the President.

Johnson did not reply to Erhard's comments about East-West relations, which stressed events of the past "year or so." He cited delays of U.S. troops on the highway to West Berlin by the Reds.

The White House said Johnson made no reply since he was simply listening to a rundown by his guest. The Germans said the summary was a "realistic assessment" of the East-West situation.

The atmosphere of the talks was very relaxed.

50 FIRMS NAMED

Report Charges Utilities Discriminate Against Jews

NEW YORK (AP)—Fifty of the nation's giant utility firms were accused Saturday of discriminating against Jews and other minority groups in selecting executive personnel.

The accusation was made by A. M. Sonnabend, president of the American Jewish Committee and a Boston industrialist.

He said very few of the utilities practice discrimination as a specific policy. Nevertheless, he said, they "maintain a personnel practices climate that discourages Jewish candidates and members of other religious and ethnic minority groups."

• • • •

THE JEWISH committee has been sponsoring and cooperating with three major studies under way for the past two years at Harvard, the University of Michigan and the University of California at Los Angeles.

The studies are designed to probe barriers on the executive level both at recruitment points and within the industries.

Sonnabend minced no words in a statement issued through the American Jewish Committee headquarters here.

"There seems to be a built - in discriminatory screen which has a much finer mesh for Jews than for other candidates," he said.

"Jewish personnel traditionally must do better than others either to stay in the same place, or to move up on the higher managerial ladder."

• • • •

SONNABEND named the 50 concerns he accused of discriminatory practices. They included American Telephone & Telegraph Co., Consolidated Edison of New York and Western Union Telegraph.

These three quickly asserted through spokesmen that they knew of no discrimination of the type charged by Sonnabend within their own organizations. They withheld comment pending study of his remarks.

Another denial came from a West Coast firm named by Sonnabend, Pacific Gas & Electric.

"We have no records on percentages, simply because we don't hire that way and so we don't keep them," a spokesman said. "I've been told subsequent to employment that persons had Jewish blood. That has never made any difference to us. It is not a matter of consideration.

"Frankly I don't understand Mr. Sonnabend's charges."

• • • •

SONNABEND contended discriminary barriers exist both in recruiting and promotion.

At the top level, he said, Jews hold less than one-percent of the executive positions in the firms.

On the other hand, Sonnabend asserted, about 8 to 10 percent of the college-trained population in this

Hottest Spot Again Today

If you feel hot under the collar today, you will have good reason. Long Beach may well be the hottest place in the 50 American states with a predicted high of 85.

Long Beach, Los Alamitos, San Gabriel and some other places in the neighborhood set a national record Saturday with 86 degrees recorded. By contrast, International Falls, Minn., was the coldest place with 23 below.

Gunshot Fatal to Broker

Owen T. Masters, 65, investment broker and one-time Long Beach automobile dealer, died in his Virginia Country Club home Saturday night from a gunshot wound through the heart.

Police theorized the self-inflicted wound was accidental.

Masters, 65, was showing his wife, Patricia, how to use a handgun, officers learned. A number of burglaries have occurred recently in the area.

As he turned a .38-caliber revolver, it discharged, striking him in the chest and killing him instantly.

• • • •

INVESTIGATING Officers A. E. Sturgeon and P. A. Chastain said that when they arrived shortly before 9:30 p.m., they found the pajama-clad body in a second-floor bedroom.

At his feet was the revolver, with one bullet fired, they said. Under his legs was a .22-caliber automatic pistol he also had been demonstrating for Mrs. Masters. The automatic was fully loaded.

The childless couple lived alone in the 12-room house.

Masters, a native Virginian, came to California in 1919 and operated several automobile dealerships in the north. He moved to Long Beach in 1942 and founded Masters Pontiac agency, since sold to another dealer.

Beer Manned, Wits Canned

SWANSEA, Wales (UPI) —Two men arrested for drunkenness on Christmas Eve were fined $14 each Saturday by Chief Magistrate Percy Morris.

He ordered them to repeat this verse: "When beer is in the can, wits are in the man. When beer is in the man, wits are in the can."

Hoffa Trial Site Changed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—U.S. District Judge Frank W. Wilson Saturday night ordered the jury-tampering trial of Teamsters Union president James R. Hoffa and six other defendants transferred from Nashville to Chattanooga.

MOSLEMS RIOT

HAIR OF PROPHET STOLEN

SRINAGAR, Kashmir (AP)—Riots touched off by the disappearance of a hair believed to be from the head of the prophet Mohammed raged in this Himalayan city Saturday.

Moslem mobs set fire to two movie theaters, a hotel and a police station. Police fired over the heads of the crowds trying to control them.

The Moslem shops closed and Moslem workers went on a "hartal"—work stoppage.

The Indian government, which controls this part of disputed Kashmir, dispatched a top intelligence agent to help in the search for the hair.

Processions of Moslems carrying black flags in sign of sorrow and anger marched to the Bazrat-bal Mosque, where the hair had been enshrined.

Religion is an explosive issue in this state which was fought over after partition created Pakistan as a Moslem state and India as a predominantly Hindu one.

L.A.C. Says:

1968 No Longer Candidates' Targets

Some Republican candidates had been reluctant to enter next year's race because they figured President Kennedy had a big edge for re-election in 1964. They were looking forward to 1968 when the race would be wide open since President Kennedy—if re-elected in 1964—could not succeed himself. Now they must look forward to 1972 before this succession would be denied to President Johnson. The two-term limitation does not apply unless the candidate has served at least two full years as President.

It is the reason for reappraisal of their programs by all GOP candidates. Only Gov. Rockefeller has announced his candidacy. If he is the only candidate who files on the March New Hampshire ticket, the result there will have little psychological effect. But if Goldwater, Nixon or Scranton decides to challenge Rockefeller in that campaign it may well decide their political fate. The victor would get a big lift throughout the nation. The losers would have a tough failure to overcome.

The big question before the candidates is what kind of campaign they will carry out. The kind of attack they would have used against the Kennedy regime may fall flat against Johnson. Many people who think of themselves as middle of the road conservatives may find Johnson much more acceptable than they did Mr. Kennedy. Many of these voters are Democrats who disagreed with the Kennedy programs and the people around him. But they will probably vote the Democratic ticket under the leadership of President Johnson.

The big problem is that voters will probably not know what President Johnson actually stands for until after the election next year. He has a tremendous advantage in being in office and following the late President. His past record is one of being a strong supporter of the New Deal and of the Kennedy program. But he is also thought of as being fundamentally conservative in his views. Whether or not he is will not be known until Congress meets in January—and probably not until after the election.

Actually the issues which caused so much dissension under President Kennedy are still the same issues. President Johnson has endorsed them. But it may be he will accept amendments to make them more palatable to the people and to Congress. Only time will tell this. But, as of now, the tax program without adequate reductions in spending are the same. The civil-rights bill still has provisions that will destroy states' rights and those of individuals, going far beyond the protection of Negro rights to education, voting and job security. And foreign aid continues to be a major cause of our balance-of-payments deficit, and the federal debt will rise again because of large deficit spending. Mr. Johnson has not directly touched on these issues—and the economy programs he has discussed are minor by comparison, but in the right direction.

These are issues that are as crucial today as they were when Mr. Kennedy was fighting for them. If Mr. Johnson insists on them as presented by his predecessor they should be opposed with equal vigor. The Republicans have a lot of lost ground to recover. The tragic death of President Kennedy released an emotionalism that placed political and economic issues in the background. It was no time for attacks on these issues. But this meant the GOP was silent and inert while the Democratic candidates have had all the advantages.

It is now time for the Republicans to pick up the issues and fight on them. If President Johnson continues to support the over-all Kennedy program, the issues should again be dominant. If they were wrong before, they are wrong now. The fact that Mr. Johnson may be more adroit in maneuvering them through Congress does not change this factor. The successful GOP candidate will be the one who carries on the fight on this basis. Sen. Goldwater has been the most outspoken opponent of these programs. If the President fights for them as they are now written this would make the Arizona Senator the outstanding spokesman for such opposition. If the President modifies his position it would nullify much of the Goldwater support.—L.A.C.

New Phone Company Projects Begin Despite 10-Week Strike

By CHARLES SUTTON

General Telephone Co. is showing renewed signs of life in its heavy construction program—a part of its operational anatomy that was struck a near-paralyzing blow by the walkout of the company's nearly 9,000 workers Oct. 19.

As recently as five weeks ago, company spokesmen concede, none but the most urgent jobs could be undertaken.

Now, in addition to meeting its top-priority commitments at defense and space installations, such as Douglas Aircraft Company's new space center at Huntington Beach, the company is tackling other jobs, as well. It is laying new cables, relocating telephone poles in line with street improvement projects and installing heavy-duty central office equipment to meet the demand for new phones.

ROBERT WELLMAN, assistant director of public relations for the strike-bound firm, says General also is meeting most of its commitments for phone installations at new housing tracts in some of the 170 communities it serves throughout Central and Southern California.

Wellman admits the company's recovery in heavy construction is far from complete, but he and other company officials are frankly "encouraged by the progress being made."

He also admits the company—or rather, its non-striking workers—are paying a price for that recovery. Most of them are working six days a week, 12 hours a day.

And officials of the striking Communications Workers of America are watching closely to see just how long they can go on under such a gruelling schedule.

BIGGEST factor in the recovery, says Wellman, is the almost 900 new craftsmen hired by the company since the strike began. They make up the bulk of the 1,510 installers, cable men and splicers now engaged in heavy construction work for the company. The rest include striking craftsmen who returned to work or who refused to hit the bricks in the first place.

While there's no denying the company's strengthened position as a result of the improvement in its heavy construction program, a clear-cut assessment of that strength is difficult to make, partly because company officials have not translated the comeback into percentage figures. However, some indication of the company's position may be gleaned from the fact that the 1,150 men currently engaged in heavy construction constitute almost a third of the normal complement of men assigned to that field.

THE UNION — not unnaturally, perhaps — is inclined to pooh pooh the development. "It'll solidify the company's position to some extent," says a spokesman, "but not appreciably."

CWA officials also cling to the belief that the firm's automated equipment is headed for trouble. Sooner or later, they say, it will start breaking down.

Company officials, on the other hand, think the union men are whistling in the dark. "The equipment is holding up well, and we expect it to continue holding up well," says Wellman.

Wellman claims management and supervisory personnel have been doing a yeoman job of maintaining the equipment, and he sees no reason to believe that they won't go on doing so. Besides, he adds, "the equipment is designed to last. It's pretty rugged machinery."

JUDGING from company and union statements, the men and women on either side of the dispute are made of equally rugged stuff, since both sides are claiming morale is high among the troops.

And if either side has any intention of throwing in the towel, it certainly isn't telling anyone—least of all the federal mediators who have been trying to bring the two parties to the bargaining table for another round of negotiations.

The mediators threw a compromise proposal out for consideration Dec. 20, but neither side made a move to accept it. So the strike appears to be as hopelessly deadlocked today as when it started 10 weeks ago. Moreover, with no more mediation sessions scheduled for the time being, both sides agree that it looks like a long, hard winter ahead.

Four Grants of Yule-Seal Money Made

Four new research grants totaling more than $17,000 in Christmas Seal contributions have been awarded, it was announced today by Jack E. Oritt, president of the Long Beach Tuberculosis and Health Association.

One of the grants, for more than $6,000, went to a local medical investigator, Dr. Jack Lieberman of Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

Dr. Lieberman is working with a new drug that thins mucous secretions. If it proves out, it will be a significant contribution to the treatment of various respiratory disorders.

THE OTHER three awards went to researchers in Los Angeles, Riverside and San Francisco.

With the new awards, more than $124,000 has been spent this year in California for research and medical education, Dr. Orbitt said.

Five percent of local Christmas Seal contributions are earmarked for a special research fund administered by the TB and Health Association of California.

Boys Flee Tijuana Police, Run Border, Jailed in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Four Los Angeles-area youths were arrested Saturday after a high-speed chase which began, police said, when they ran a U.S.-Mexico border check station at San Ysidro.

Officers said three police cars and a U.S. Border Patrol car chased the youths 10 miles at speeds exceeding 100 miles per hour. Booked on suspicion of robbery in San Diego City Jail were Jack Leslie Stokes, 19, of Los Angeles; Donald Guddal, 18, of Maywood; Johnny Jarvis, 18, of Pico Rivera, and David Contreras, 18, of Montebello.

The youths told police they were fleeing from Mexican police after becoming involved in an argument in a Tijuana bar.

Rose Parade Girls From Royal Families

Political scientists don't need to worry, but the Great American Tradition against royalty is suffering a blow in the annual Tournament of Roses in Pasadena New Year's Day.

At least two Long Beach girls who will participate in the parade come from "royal families," a distinction earned by virtue of the fact their mothers preceded them in regal splendor down Colorado Boulevard in the annual festival.

* * * *

PERT, dark-haired Carolyn Crowell, a 19-year-old Whittier College sophomore, will reign as queen on the Whittier-area float in the Jan. 1 parade.

Carolyn's mother, Mrs. Annabelle Weih Crowell, of 1615 Obispo Ave., Long Beach, graced the 1940 Long Beach float in the Tournament of Roses Parade.

Lauren McColloch, of 4533 Hazelbrook, Long Beach, a student at Long Beach City College, also will be following in the royal footsteps when she steps forth on the line of march.

Lauren's mother, the former Peggy Schuck, rode the first float ever entered by the City of San Marino in 1928.

* * * *

ANOTHER local girl, Rosemary Dysel, of 431½ 58th Place, a Long Beach State College student, will be in the 1964 parade.

Mrs. Crowell was the Far Western majorette champion in her teen days and her ability with the baton was passed on to Carolyn "once summer when I was in high school and I 'forced' mother to give me some lessons," says the daughter.

Carolyn was freshman and senior class princess during her days at the Wilson High School and was homecoming princess for her freshman class at Whittier.

The LBCC entry on the Long Beach float, Lauren McColloch, was homecoming queen in 1962 and teaches swimming and life guard service during summer months for the Long Beach recreation department. She also won the 1963 Bank of America award for art at LBCC.

MISS DYSEL, another damsel on the Long Beach float, is a senior at LBSC, majoring in social science. Rosemary is an excellent student with a high scholastic record and served as a chaperon last summer for the American Field Service, conducting 36 foreign students across the United States.

The royal New Year's line may continue, for all three girls hope to "marry and have children."

ROSE PARADE PARTICIPANTS will include Lauren McColloch, left, Long Beach City College, and Rosemary Dysel, Long Beach State College. Lauren's mother, as Peggy Schuck, rode the first float entered by San Marino in 1928.

Johnson drove his guest from the ranch to the nearby Granite Knob Ranch, in which he has an interest. They talked on the way.

• • • •

THE PRESIDENT and the chancellor, the two newest leaders of the Western world, voiced "new hope" for peace and freedom in the world and plunged right to work with a private two-hour meeting in Johnson's ranch house living room.

At a formal afternoon session with advisers, Johnson packed Erhard, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder into an automobile. They continued their discussions for an hour while riding round the ranch, looking at deer.

A dinner for 30 guests concluded the activities of the first day in the two-day conference that was giving Johnson and Erhard a chance to size each other up. They vowed to carry on the "great heritage" of President Kennedy and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer whom they succeeded.

Discussing East-West problems, particularly the question of divided Germany, Erhard told the President that "the whole picture taken together, the Western efforts and the Eastern response, is not very encouraging."

This statement was provided by the German press secretary in a summary of the day's work.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the afternoon session lasted two hours. He said it covered, "a lengthy discussion of economic subjects," as well as a review of the multilateral-force idea to have the navies of the West join together, and Erhard's "attitudes and feelings on the future of East-West relations."

• • • •

THE TWO chief executives probed deeply into proposals for strengthening the Atlantic Alliance in the sessions that also served to get the two men better acquainted.

Erhard's press secretary, Karl-Gunther von Hase, reported Erhard's misgivings over East-West tensions as he joined Salinger in a briefing of the day's discussions.

Erhard expressed again his nation's sorrow over the assassination of President Kennedy. Johnson, in a lunch toast, referred to the "sorrow because of a great loss." Both leaders stressed their desire to plunge into the "great tasks" of the future.

Independent, Press-Telegram publisher Herman H. Ridder and Mrs. Ridder arrived in Austin, Tex., Saturday at the invitation of President Johnson to attend a "Texas-style" barbecue for German Chancellor Erhard today.

Utilities Accused of Anti-Jewish Bias

country is Jewish and managerial staffs are recruited almost completely from the ranks of college graduates.

The problem really begins at the recruitment level when company representatives visit the colleges and graduate schools throughout the nation," he said.

Sonnabend said potential Jewish candidates for jobs in utilities management are presented with "a negative and discouraging picture of their potential and possibilities."

• • • •

HE ACCUSED utilities management of conforming to "a sterotyped image of what they believe the executive should be." And very often, he added, top executives are unaware of discriminatory practices on subordinate levels.

Sonnabend said discriminatory barrier not only are old-fashioned and un-American but are making the progress of the companies concerned as well as hampering full development of the national economy.

He urged utilities to initiate programs aimed at making their personnel aware of the harmful effects of discriminatory practices.

Police Out in Force for New Year's Eve

partment and the local chapter of the California Dining and Beverage Association are sponsoring huge billboard signs, tavern posters and a program warning motorists: "If you think before you drink, you will be alive after you drive."

Long Beach Police Chief William Mooney advised motorists "to look—and live."

"The reason is evident," he said. "Since the first of the year, through last Thursday, nearly 2,500 persons had been injured in local traffic accidents.

"The average was 18 accidents a day and 6½ injuries a day.

"Many people seem to take the problem of traffic and safety too lightly. We all know accidents don't just happen. They are caused — and, usually, because of carelessness, speed and just too much carefree holiday spirit."

Concerning the roadblocks, the Highway Patrol said cars will be funneled into traffic patterns to slow down for checks, "but not all will be stopped."

"We're going to be out to apprehend the intoxicated driver, not to delay the flow of traffic unnecessarily," said John Wagner, patrol information officer.

Generally, the CHP mans a checkpoint with 16 officers and a motor sergeant. Fourteen work on the roadblock, while two others are on motorcycles to chase down the drivers who make obvious turns to avoid going through the inspection point.

Moving slowly between officers, the car is visually checked for defects by officers assigned to look for such things as broken windshields or burned-out headlights. A third officer is close enough to observe the driver and catch any whiff of alcohol on his breath.

Drivers under suspicion are motioned to the side for closer examination while the rest of the cars move on through the line. Suspected drunk drivers are given the Romberg Test by the CHP. It consists of physical movements such as walking a line to test coordination. However, the driver may request a blood test.

Churches Group for Housing Initiative

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The American Council of Christian Churches says it will support the California Real Estate Association in its proposed initiative to repeal the Rumford Fair Housing Act.

Dr. Robert E. Kofahl, first vice president of the group, said, "To pit so-called 'human rights' against property rights as if the former override the latter is a specious and misleading argument. If property rights go, all rights go."

Ultimatum Got Quick Budget Cut

omy edict during an impromptu news conference Friday at Johnson City, Tex. He said it had resulted in recommendations "to the budget that reduced it $731 million and eliminated more than 10,000 jobs" for fiscal 1965.

• • • •

OTHER sources provided details.

Johnson jarred his cabinet officers, at their meeting Dec. 11, by hammering his fist on the table, declaring he knew more money could be wrung from their budget proposals.

After the session broke up, Johnson had Budget Director Kermit Gordon dispatch a letter to all agency heads, including those not at the cabinet session, spelling out exactly what the President had in mind.

Gordon's letters went out late Wednesday, calling for written replies by 6 p.m. two days later. Each agency chief was instructed to review his budget plans, curtail them, and report on what specific items could be trimmed and how much.

• • • •

THE 48-HOUR ultimatum — quickly dubbed the "Black Friday Edict" because it was returnable on Friday the 13th—dismayed some officials who felt their budgets already had been pinched unreasonably.

Some worked all night with their budget officers and controllers. Virtually all the reports, when they piled up on Gordon's desk two days later, showed savings.

The Black Friday cuts came along after agency requests already had been trimmed by billions of dollars.

DMV Opens Offices on Saturdays

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Department of Motor Vehicles will open its local offices on Saturdays starting Jan. 4 to help handle registration renewals.

The department said that the offices would be open for five Saturdays, from 8 a.m. to noon. Registration renewals for 1964 may be paid through Feb. 4 without penalty.

MORE THAN LUCK L.B. ALERTED ON NAVY YARD CUTBACKS

Hosmer Consulted With City Officials, Business and Labor Groups to Warn of Difficulties, Dangers

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY

It is "more than a little bit of luck" that Long Beach is alert to the possibility that a number of Naval shipyards may be closed within a year.

Before the recent public furore over the shipyards, Rep. Craig Hosmer (R-Calif.) met in Long Beach with Mayor Wade; representatives of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard's Employes Association; the Independent Businessmen's Association; and the Chamber of Commerce. Hosmer spoke frankly of the problems and the dangers.

He made two basic recommendations: That the Navy designate Long Beach as a pilot yard to show how costs may be cut in repair and conversion. He recommended that the L.B. Navy Shipyard Employes Association spearhead and coordinate their own pilot program by minimizing in every possible way direct labor costs on all work in the yard. It is believed Hosmer's recommendations will be adopted.

• • • •

REP. HOSMER is the senior Republican from the House of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy which is one of the most responsible and powerful Congressional committees.

On Dec. 21, the JCAE issued a unanimous report which was unique in its condemnation of a Cabinet officer (Secretary McNamara). Their criticism was directed at him for his decision against building a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier. In blunt language, the committee questioned Secretary McNamara's judgment, his figures, his ability to plan and estimate, his military philosophy and it cast doubts on the accuracy of the information provided him by his advisers.

By showing Johnson Administration officials and the American people that Secretary McNamara's judgment may not always be perfect, real help will be given to beleaguered Naval shipyards.

• • • •

THE JCAE report castigated Secretary McNamara for his original idea "cost effectiveness" approach which "could create an intolerable peril to national security." The report said his approach would prevent military forces from having the best and most modern technological weapons that can be produced.

The report was prepared after three days of closed hearings at which witnesses were heard from the Defense Department, the Navy, and the Atomic Energy Commission. JCAE Chairman, Senator Pastore (D-R.I.) stated that McNamara was the only witness who testified against the atomic-powered carrier.

Calling McNamara "misinformed," the report charged that he had cited cost figures for the first three nuclear-powered ships: the cruiser Long Beach, the carrier Enterprise, and the frigate Bainbridge which were more costly than the facts revealed.

The JCAE report also charged that when McNamara estimated a nuclear-powered carrier would cost $163 million more than the conventionally powered ship, he had added an estimated $32 million for the initial nuclear fuel load but he omitted to mention the cost for seven years of fuel oil for a conventional ship.

Secretary McNamara has ordered a special Board of Defense Department and Navy officials to conduct a new study of Naval shipyards.

COMMANDER

Harold H. Penhale will be installed commander of Long Beach Commandery 40, Knights Templar, at 7:30 p. m. Saturday at Palos Verdes Masonic Temple, 5155 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

40 States Enter 1964 IBC Meet

International Beauty Congress sponsors for 40 states have already been signed, assuring at least that number of girls in the Miss United States contest here, Wayne Dallard, executive producer, announced this week.

"We have been working to make the contests in the various states more uniform," Dallard said. "And I think we have accomplished a great deal."

Dallard, who recently made trips through the East, South and Middle West lining up sponsors, is enthusiastic about the United States portion of the IBC pageant for 1964.

A STRONG effort is being made, Dallard added, to make the state contests duplicate as much as possible the contest here in order to give the girls more information on what to expect after they arrive here and to improve the caliber of the entrants.

"In the past many of the contests in the individual states have been conducted in a pretty willy-nilly manner," the executive producer said. "We think we will be able to change most of that this year and all of it next year."

Emphasis is being placed on making the judging standards used in all the contests conform to the requirements observed here. Even the entry blanks are expected to be the same.

Scheduling of the contests will be coordinated by the IBC here so that there will be no conflict in neighboring states. Dallard says he hopes to be in telephone contact with all of the sponsors on a weekly basis from late spring until the pageant opens here Aug. 3.

THE MOST recent states to be lined up are Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado where state chapters of National Association of Press Photographers will conduct the contests.

States in which sponsor franchises have been signed are Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

EVERYBODY'S EXPECTING

Jayne Mansfield is expecting a child soon. Andy Anderson, left, and Mickey Levine, chairman and producer of the International Auto Show, expect her to be queen of the event, Jan. 17 through 26 in the Long Beach Arena. Miss Mansfield says the stork has priority, but if all goes well, she'll attend the show here, too.

Boy, 15, Stabs Girl, 18, Fatally, Tries to Burn Body, He Admits

PALMYRA, N.J., (UPI) — A quiet teen-age boy, described by neighbors as "always such a good boy," admitted Saturday he stabbed his sister's 18-year-old girl friend with a hunting knife and then burned the body in an incinerator.

Police Chief Payton L. Flournoy said Thomas Busby Jr., 15, "readily admitted" killing amateur artist Maureen Drummy Friday night but couldn't remember why he did it.

"The boy didn't remember how many times he stabbed her or any reasons for the act," said Flournoy.

Young Busby was placed in the juvenile detention quarters of the Burlington city jail pending a hearing before a juvenile court judge Monday.

* * * *

OFFICERS found the charred body of the Drummy girl in a 55-gallon incinerator can near the back door of the Busby home Saturday after receiving a telephone call from the boy's father, Thomas Sr., operator of an automobile-repair shop in nearby Cinnaminson Township.

"I think the missing girl is out back in the incinerator," he told police.

Maureen, an avid artist who was working as a secretary in Philadelphia to earn enough money to enter art school, was reported missing early Saturday by her parents who told police she left Friday night with the family car.

Police said the Busbys and the Drummys were close friends and it wasn't unusual for either of the families to drop in on the other. Maureen and Thomas' sister, Helen, 17, were described as girl friends.

Chief Flournoy said the boy recalled watching television from 9:15 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. Friday while his mother and sister were out shopping. His father still was at his shop.

The chief quoted the boy as saying he stabbed the girl with a four-inch hunting knife on the second floor of his home, then carried her body to the backyard. After rolling the large incinerator can to the body, the boy stuffed the victim inside head first, poured gasoline over her body and set it ablaze, Flournoy said.

Before his parents arrived, the boy said, he wiped blood from the second-floor hall and hid his bloodstained shirt. He also recalled placing the girl's pocketbook in a municipal trash truck parked nearby.

"Come in the house, my son has admitted doing this," the elder Busby told officers when they arrived at his home.

Residents of this quiet, suburban community of 6,000 in southern New Jersey were shocked at news of the slaying.

* * * *

THE NEXT-DOOR neighbor of the Busbys, Mrs. Eugene Frazer, said, "I just can't believe it."

"Tommy was always such a good boy," she said. "Whenever he saw Mr. Frazer or myself he always went out of his way to say 'Good morning' or 'Good evening.'"

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Historic Papal Meeting Assured

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The first meeting in five centuries between leaders of the Roman Catholic and Orthodox churches became a virtual certainty Saturday as Pope Paul VI conferred—and likely prayed—with an emissary from the Patriarch of Constantinople.

Both the Roman Catholic pontiff and Patriarch Athenagoras I of Constantinople (Istanbul) appeared committed to a summit encounter in the Holy Land. Pope Paul begins his three-day pilgrimage there next Saturday.

The meeting here between the Pope and the Patriarch's envoy, Metropolitan Athenagoras of Thiatiron, was in itself historic. It marked the first visit to Rome by an official representative of the Patriarchate of Constantinople since the schism between Orthodox and Roman Catholicism in 1472.

A Vatican communique said the metropolitan had established "contact with the Holy Father (the Pope) and his collaborators for a possible Holy Land meeting between the pontiff and Patriarch Athenagoras."

British Cabinet Officer in Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—British Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys arrived here Saturday on an emergency peace mission sparked by reports a Turkish invasion fleet had been sailing toward Cyprus.

Turkey officially denied the British Royal Air Force reports and said the fleet 20 miles off the northern coast was on NATO maneuvers. But scattered shots and thunderous roar of three jet fighters buzzing Nicosia at rooftop level just after dawn sent a shiver of fear through the tense city.

Sandys, who arrived with a contingent of British troop reinforcements, made the emergency flight from London after conferring by telephone with Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home in Scotland. It was reported prompted by fears the strife between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in this former colony might lead to a conflict between two NATO allies, Greece and Turkey.

Planners Predict Tax-Cut Benefit

WASHINGTON (AP)—If taxes are cut promptly, the national output will rise by $26 billion next year to a record total of about $610 billion, the National Planning Association predicted Saturday.

The forecast of a 4½-percent rise, compared to a 3½-percent increase from 1962 to 1963, was made by Gerhard Colm, NPA's chief economist and the former senior economist of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Colm emphasized that the estimate assumes enactment of a tax bill early in 1964, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Cuba Charges CIA Blasted Boat

HAVANA (UPI)—The Cuban government charged Saturday that U.S. Central Intelligence agency "saboteurs" blew up a Soviet-built PT boat last Sunday, killing three Cuban sailors and wounding 18 in the first act of aggression by the Johnson administration.

A government communique said a mine blew up the PT boat last Sunday in Siguanea Bay of the Isle of Pines and that an investigation showed the explosive came from a U.S. Navy submarine.

Plan to Keep Berlin Wall Open

BERLIN (AP)—German officials in both parts of this divided city voiced readiness Saturday to discuss extending past the Jan. 5 deadline the agreement permitting West Berliners to visit behind the Communist-built wall.

Both sides expressed the hope they could keep open the holes in the wall which allowed hundreds of thousands of separated Berliners their first Christmas family reunion in two years.

So far, 250,000 West Berliners have visited relatives in East Berlin, the official East German news agency, ADN, reported. Altogether 840,000 permits for one-day visits have been issued, the agency said.

Jayne Will Arrive If Stork Does

Jayne Mansfield was named Saturday as queen of the International Auto Show, Jan. 17-26 in the Long Beach Arena.

The sponsoring Long Beach Motor Car Dealers' Association promptly crossed its fingers.

It's a question of which comes first, they admitted, the show or the stork.

If Miss Mansfield, who is expecting, expects on time, she will attend the show, they reported. If she has her first appointment on time, she will attend the second on time.

Meanwhile Miss Mansfield sent show chairman Andy L. Anderson an encouraging word Saturday.

"It looks like I'll be at the show," she said via the telephone.

Prelate Urges Youth to Emulate Mrs. JFK

MIAMI (UPI) — Richard Cardinal Cushing arrived here Saturday night for a Memorial today to the assissinated President and described Mrs. John F. Kenney as "the most extraordinary woman I have ever met."

The Catholic cardinal said teen-agers should look up to Mrs. Kennedy as their "ideal" instead of movie stars.

Cushing, who will speak at a memorial to the late President in Miami's Bayfront Park today, will spend the night at the Palm Beach home of former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and will hold a special Mass for Mrs. Kennedy and the elder Kennedy's.

* * * *

"I WISH I could say to young girls of the future that I think instead of looking to motion-picture actresses for their ideals, they look to Jacqueline Kennedy," the cardinal said.

"She is the most extraordinary woman I have ever met," he added.

Cushing said he had two documents he planned to take to Mrs. Kennedy, who has been spending the Christmas holidays at the Palm Beach home of C. Michael Paul.

* * * *

ONE WAS a telegram from the Pope "conveying a special Christmas message to the family," and the other was from the National Catholic Welfare Conference, which voted Mrs. Kennedy "Woman of the Year."

The cardinal, a longtime friend of the Kennedy's, married the couple and baptized their children.

Vocal-Cord Surgery Teaches Soft-Sell Lesson

SILENT SALESMAN OF REALTY SETS RECORDS

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

Sell real estate without talking?

"Impossible," said the company president.

Get listings without the hard sell and some yak-yak?

"Can't be done," said the vice president.

But Enzo Barbati, a European import with charming Italian accent (when he talks), proved them both wrong.

In a six-weeks period he broke his own record and that of most coworkers by selling a staggering $150,000 worth of property and getting $182,000 in listings . . .

• • • •

A REAL ESTATE salesman with Rex Hodges Co., Barbati recently underwent surgery on his vocal chords.

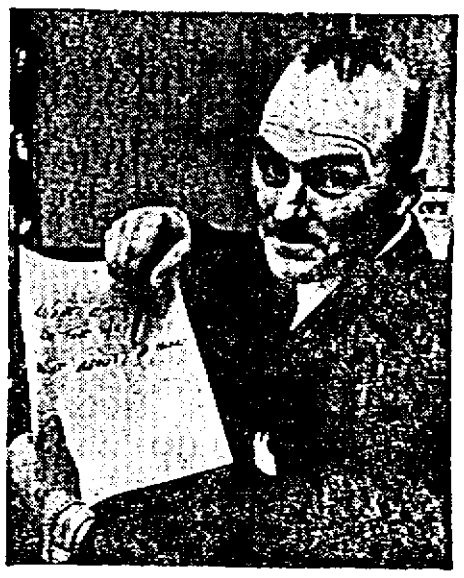

The doctor was firm. Barbati was shattered.

"You can't utter a word for six weeks," said the doctor. "If you do, the surgery will be for naught."

"Yea, and my income will be for ought—as in zero," thought Barbati. In no condition to talk back, however, he took the problem in hand.

After all, talking with your hands is an old Italian custom. "Besides, I still can write," thought Barbati. The idea wasn't too foreign, anyway, because he's had communication problems before. (When he arrived in California three years ago, Barbati couldn't speak English.)

So . . . off to the office went Barbati. "Let me work . . . at least, to keep up my contacts," he scribbled to company president Bob Westmyer.

—Staff Photo

SALESMAN Enzo Barbati demonstrates scribble-sales technique he used while unable to talk.

"But you can't sell houses without talking!" said Westmyer.

"Let me try," wrote Barboti.

"Go to it," said Westmyer.

• • • •

WITH THAT go-ahead, Barbati demonstrated how to succeed in business without really talking.

His method: When he called on a lead, he rapped at the door, clamped his mouth tight and flashed his business card.

It carried a different-from-usual inscription: "I am sorry. Because of surgery on my vocal cords, I cannot speak."

Barbati reports potential clients immediately took over the situation, did the talking—and very often talked themselves into buying or selling the property.

To consummate the deals, Barbati used up more than a hundred writing-paper tablets and went home every night with writer's cramp.

But he came to one conclusion: Salesmen talk too much.

"People don't want to be high-pressured," he concluded. "They like to make up their own minds."

• • • •

WHEN THE Rex Hodges Co. hands out awards to salesmen at its annual dinner Monday night in the Petroleum Club, Barbati will be honored for his half-million-dollars' worth of business done the past year.

But his $175,000-sales, $182,000-listing performance without speaking a word will also come in for some extra recognition. (The average real estate performance per salesman per month is $25,000 in sales, $40,000 in listings.)

And when Barbati gets that special award, it should be a gold one . . .

Proving the old adage that silence is, indeed, golden!

Long, Flexible Glass-Fiber Speculum to Aid Doctors

CLEVELAND (AP)—A potentially revolutionary "magic lantern" that might make possible the diagnosis and even treatment of cancer and other ills in areas of the human body inaccessible to direct observation was described Saturday.

It consists of thin long, bundles of flexible glass fibres that can be threaded down the throat to the lungs, the stomach and the intestines—and then illuminate these areas with light transmitted along the fibres. At the same time, radiant energy, packing power "far in excess of that of the sun", can likewise be, transmitted through the fibres to the target area.

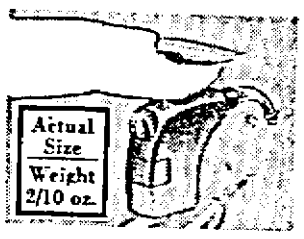

Dr. N. S. Kapany of Optics Technology Inc., Belmont, Calif., told about it in a report to the 130th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He stressed that the device so far had been used only in animals.

TRY ICE CREAM

New Year's Eve Hangover Cures

Going to get stewed New Year's Eve?

Well then, it's almost a sure bet you'll wake up New Year's Day with a hangover.

Not so sure is what to do about it.

Popular remedies range from a large serving of yogurt to a pint of ice cream. Some patients have been known to get worse.

• • • •

OTHERS REST UP for the inevitable treatment by drinking more alcohol. Experts say this "hair-of-the-dog-that-bit-you" cure merely postpones the agony.

Basic cause of the hangover, scientists say, is lack of oxygen in the brain. And the cause of this is generally not the alcohol itself, but the impurities in it.

The sorry thing about this is that the older and more expensive whisky you drink, the more impurities—called fusel oil—you are getting. A vicious circle.

Eating before drinking, especially fatty foods, will delay entrance of the alcohol into the bloodstream. But, eventually, it will get there.

• • • •

SO IF YOU have dinner before imbibing, you will have to drink twice as much to get high—and suffer a hangover the next day twice as bad.

Drinking water the next day doesn't help. Your body still has the same amount as before, but now it's unbalanced, thus your "thirst." Only time will take care of that.

Food does help. Milk will soothe the stomach lining. Salt and sugar help the body readjust its proper balance. Fresh air and rest help.

In old San Francisco, waterfront workers swore stale beer did the trick. Some bartenders recommend a Bloody Mary as "full of vitamins and dog-hair revitalizing." Another drink suggested has been a stinger.

• • • •

THE DOCTORS have a positive cure, adrenal cortical extract (ACE). The trouble here is getting a doctor to make a house call on New Year's Day.

Miami Beach bartender Johnny Brooks suggests in his book, "My Thirty-five Years Behind Bars," a pint of ice cream.

His prescription: A cold shower, next the ice cream, a breakfast of eggs, toast and coffee and finally a long, long walk.

But, perhaps, Dr. Leon A. Greenberg of the Yale Center of Alcohol Studies has the best advice:

Drink sensibly.

Researchers Find Cattle Like Booze

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Twenty-four steers at the University of Arizona have been taken off the bottle—liquor bottle, that is.

They received cocktails during an experiment conducted by agricultural scientists.

The object was to see whether liquor would increase their appetites.

There was a two-point conclusion:

1. Cattle like booze.
2. Cattle get tipsy when they drink alcohol.

Bruce R. Taylor, head of the school's animal science department, and William H. Hale, professor of animal science, watched over the experiment.

They used 48 steers. For 160 days they spiked the drinking water of 24 of them, while keeping the others on the wagon.

The boozers each consumed 10 gallons of alcohol, or the equivalent of about 16 ounces of whiskey a day.

The weight gained by the imbibers wasn't considered significant.

Weather Causes 21 Italy Deaths

ROME (UPI)—Snow, ice and cold weather was blamed Saturday for at least 21 deaths in Italy.

Most of the deaths occurred in traffic accidents on icy roads. A skier was killed in an avalanche near Trento in northern Italy.

FREE! MINIATURES OF FAMOUS PAINTINGS

Community brings the world's most famous masterpieces into your home. These are beautiful miniatures of paintings by Renoir, Utrillo, Van Gogh, Matisse, Degas, Cezanne, Buffet, Dufy, Lautrec and Gauguin. Each is printed in faithful colors by master craftsmen in France, then mounted on a stand-up easel. Place them on your bookshelves, piano and knick knack ledges. Watch the conversation they create! Miniatures are available January 2 through 10, one to a person, limited to supply on hand.

We're showing modern artists too. You're invited to preview

"CONTEMPORARY LANDSCAPES"

an outstanding collection of original paintings by leading European and American artists.

AT COMPTON Landscapes of Mexico and Spain by Richard Kozlow. Kozlow is Detroit's foremost painter and his landscapes are the essence of nature.

AT LONG BEACH Landscapes of the Paris countryside by Pierre Barat. Winner of many awards, the critics proclaim him an artist of great talent.

AT PARAMOUNT Landscapes of California by Ron Blumberg. Charged with emotion, Blumberg's paintings are rendered in subdued but striking color combinations.

Record Toll Taken by U.S. Traffic

CHICAGO (AP)—Traffic fatalities for the first 11 months this year and for November established new highs, the National Safety Council said Saturday.

The November total of 4,107 traffic deaths pushed the 11-month total for 1963 to 39,250 — up six percent from the record 1962 figure.

During the first 11 months of 1962, 37,120 persons died in traffic accidents.

• • • •

THE NOVEMBER toll was 11 percent over the 3,700 in November 1962. The total also eclipsed the 4,048 record established in November 1936.

The fatality rate during the first 11 months of 1963 climbed to 5.4 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles, a 2 percent increase over a comparable period last year, when the percentage was 5.3 per 100 million vehicle miles.

During the first 11 months this year, 1.4 million persons suffered disabling injuries and another 1.4 million received minor injuries.

Two of the five U.S. cities with more than one million population reduced traffic deaths during the 11-month period.

• • • •

LOS ANGELES remained in first place with the lowest vehicle-death rate. Chicago, Philadelphia, New York City and Detroit followed in that order.

Traffic accidents claimed 32 lives in Los Angeles during November and 324 in the first 11 months, compared with 34 and 373 in the corresponding periods last year.

Chicago had 24 November deaths and 272 in the 11-month period, as opposed to 25 and 218 a year ago.

In Philadelphia, 19 persons lost their lives in November both this year and last year. The 11 month total decreased from 172 to 160.

• • • •

NEW YORK traffic fatalities increased in both statistical periods in 1963. November totals went from 49 last year to 92 in 1963, and from 587 to 606 in the 11 months.

Detroit had 27 deaths in November and 188 in the first 11 months of this year, compared with 19 and 166 a year ago.

Houston maintained its first-place standing with the lowest vehicle-death rate among cities in the 750,000 to 1 million population range. St. Louis and Cleveland followed.

The Texas city had 14 deaths in November and 113 in the first 11 months. A year ago the figures were 4 and 97.

Traffic deaths in Cleveland went down one—from 7 to 6—during the November periods, but increased from 60 to 76 for the 11-month period.

• • • •

ST. LOUIS had 15 deaths in November and 83 in the 11 months of 1963, compared with 10 and 59 last year.

In the 500,000 to 750,000 bracket, Buffalo had the best traffic record, followed by Milwaukee and Seattle. However all three cities reported more deaths so far this year.

Buffalo went from 2 deaths in November to 5 and from 31 during the 11 months last year to 43 in 1963.

Milwaukee recorded 6 November deaths and 51 in the 11 months this year, compared with 1 and 45 a year ago.

Seattle dropped from 5 to 4 November fatalities, but increased from 53 to 63 during the 11-month period.

Scots' Way With Whisky Still Secret

LONDON, England (UPI)—Scientists the world over have been unable to figure out how the Scots make their whisky, a British biochemist said in the weekly journal "New Scientist."

"The production of whisky is undoubtedly an art, and all attempts to produce it by a scientific approach have proved futile. Nobody has been able to reproduce it outside of Scotland," Dr. Eustace Barton-Wright said.

Leper Colony at Molokai

GRAVE OF Father Damien, Catholic priest who devoted his life to lepers, is at colony.

By JAMES LAGIER

KALAUPAPA, Molokai, Hawaii (AP) — Sixty miles from Honolulu is a settlement of 208 people who live in self-imposed exile with no desire to join the society that once ostracized them.

Locked away from the world by sheer mountain cliffs and the sea, the village of Kalaupapa on Molokai Island is almost as remote today as it must have been nearly a century ago to the first group of lepers cast on its shores to die.

Located on a tongue-shaped area of land on the island's northern coast, the village is cut off from the rest of the island by a cliff that rises 1,800 feet.

• • • •

FROM HONOLULU, Kalaupapa can be reached only by airplane and a steamer which goes into the community three times a year.

But, except for the bane of Hansen's disease, life goes on in the colony as in any normal community.

The patients — 72 of them active cases and the remainder controlled — have automobiles, television sets and electric toothbrushes.

FATHER GUSTAVE
Kalaupapa Priest

They have full civil rights, subject only to the mild jurisdiction of the colony's resident superintendent, Edward Burlem, a former construction foreman who took over there 10 years ago.

• • • •

KALAUPAPA, which means "leafy plain" in Hawaii, is administered by the state through the Department of Health and by Dr. Ira Hirschy, chief of the communicable disease branch of the department.

Patients are provided homes, food ration tickets worth $10 a week, $10 every three months for spending money, and $40 every six months for clothing. Many of them work in the colony for about $170 a month.

Medical care is free. They pay no state or federal taxes, except for the few who have civil service status. Most are more than 40 years old.

Six Roman Catholic sisters — four of them nurses, a priest, four State Health Department nurses, and a physician comprise the medical staff. The sisters are paid a nominal salary by the state.

• • • •

PATIENTS are free to marry, but no children are allowed in the village. When a baby is expected, the pregnant mother is taken to Honolulu for her confinement. The baby is placed in a nursery of a private hospital where it is cared for until sent to a relative's or foster home.

The absence of children brings the biggest void to Kalaupapa. Scores of stray dogs which apparently belong to everybody only emphasize Kalaupapa's emptiness of youth.

Medical evidence has proven, Dr. Hirschy said, that the disease is not hereditary. None of the members of the medical and nursing staffs, the administrative staff, maintenance men, cooks and service personnel — 62 of them — need fear contagion as long as they take proper precautions and use a common sense program of hygiene.

• • • •

THE NORMAL activities of the group is testimony to the intelligent and humanitarian care in handling Hansen's disease. But it was not always this way.

In 1866, during the reign of King Kamehameha V, a segregation act was passed requiring lepers to be sent to the remote outpost.

In 1873, the first Caucasian to enter the settlement, the Belgian priest Father Joseph Damien de Veuster, went to the village and labored as priest, carpenter, doctor, and gravedigger until Hansen's disease claimed his life in 1889.

"Father is our hero her," one patient said. His death is celebrated each year with a Mass and a picnic.

• • • •

WHEN FATHER Damien first arrived, there were 816 patients, all on their way to death with almost no care, less sympathy, and perhaps no understanding at all.

The toll is made plain in Father Damien's own thin handwriting now in the safe of the rectory of the present priest, Father Gustave.

This entry was made seven years after Father Damien's arrival:

"Fourteenth February 1880—of the 342 Christians remain only 32. Rest in peace."

TOURISTS VISITING remote Kalaupapa view rugged scenery of the isolated outpost isolated from Molokai Island by 1,800-foot cliffs.

Masonic Club to Install New Officers

Carleton H. Peters will be installed president of the Long Beach Masonic Club at the noon Thursday meeting of the group in the Lafayette Hotel.

Mayor Edwin Wade, past president of the club, will be installing officer and speaker for the day.

Others to be installed are: J. W. Punt, vice president; Percy Palmer, secretary-treasurer and board members Albert Cruse, Harry Wade, Salvation Army Major Kenneth Anderson, Marion C. Houser, Lee Preuninger, Melvin Berbower, Morris Holmquist and Fred Capouch, immediate past president.

Membership in the club is open to any Master Mason in good standing.

Shocked Police Charge Man

LONDON (UPI)—Peter Hicks "wired" his car so that when a traffic policeman tried to put a parking ticket on it he was shocked.

The police charged Hicks with assault but they failed to prosecute him.

The reason, a lawyers' journal said, might be a legal precedent set in a case in which a husband won his appeal against a conviction for running a wire from the kitchen light to the handle of some French windows, to keep his wife out.

Name Young to Zoo Post

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Wesley A. Young, supervisor of Griffith Park Zoo since 1958, will be director of the new Greater Los Angeles Zoo, scheduled to open in 1965.

Young was veterinarian for Chicago's Lincoln Park Zoo for 14 years.

Nu-Pike to Hold Penny Scramble

An ancient tradition will be revived New Year's Eve when the Nu-Pike holds a penny scramble, Clyde F. Seek, Amusement Company general manager, said.

Over 10,000 pennies will be thrown for grabs from a truck that will tour the eight-block family amusement zone at 9:30 p.m., Seek declared.

Seek said the amusement company had received many requests to revive the old custom.

All the rides and games will be open New Year's Eve as they are every day in the year, Seek said.

Red China Buys Mexican Cotton

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Communist China has placed a $28 million order for 200,000 bales of Mexican cotton for delivery during 1964.

The announcement was made by Chang Kuan-Tau, head of a Chinese economic and commercial exposition, after a visit to President Lopez Mateos.

Pool Wealth Fails to Quench Torch for Wife

QUEENHILL, England (UPI)—A 69-year-old city employe who lives in public housing won $25,200 in a Christmas football pool. But his life won't be complete, he said, unless his wife who left him 17 years ago comes back to him.

"The money . . .' will be no good to me unless Nellie returns to enjoy it as well," Leonard Parker said. "I still love her and I want her back very much."

FORECAST FOR TODAY

ARIES (Mar. 21—Apr. 19): Be aware of need for change. Make adjustments where necessary. Face issues as they exist, but go slowly—be diplomatic. Exercise particular caution if you are traveling.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): There is pressure indicated. Instead of trying to shake it off—make it an exciting challenge. You should obtain time to yourself. There is need for reflection and for spiritual guidance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): Be willing to fulfill obligations. But don't overextend yourself. Remember value of timing, pacing. Don't wear yourself down. Holiday spirit fine, but don't neglect common sense!

CANCER (June 22-July 23): Circle high. Stress originality, independence. Associate may confide RADICAL problem. Offer advice, but hold on to purse strings! Don't be too quick to be borrower OR lender.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23): Key is balance. Avoid going to extremes. Resist tendency to be moody by maintaining realistic outlook, avoiding unnecessary worry. Strive for added knowledge. Base conclusions on facts.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 Sept. 22): Spotlight abilities. Time now to assert beliefs. Actions should be reasoned, not hasty. If you do something in the "grand" sweep of it, but be clear—specific.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your ability to perceive future trends comes to fore. Be sure before reaching conclusions. Weigh various possibilities. Don't be bogged down with only one method.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Check details. Realize patience will be required. Don't go into "overdrive." Communicate. Stress reasonable attitude. Attend church or lodge.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22—Dec. 21): Be analytical. Discover reasons. Find out the WHY of things. Reaffirm faith in loved one. Finances spotlighted—forget "quick profits" for long-range considerations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20): Family requirements are of paramount importance. Being reasonable accomplishes nothing. Rightful authority. Financial pressure due to ease. Make creative resolutions. Have faith!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19): Realize time is on your side. Persistence your greatest enemy. Appreciate potential, beauty, love of family members. Romance possibilities strong. Stress warmth, sincerity.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20): Favorable lunar aspect spotlights exciting SELF-DISCOVERY. Strive for truth. Above all, avoid self-deception. Facing facts as they exist is strongly advisable.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Aid Battle May Have Cost LBJ Later GOP Support

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Johnson won a major foreign aid battle with Congress last week, but also may have forfeited Republican support for crucial programs in the coming election year.

This will be spelled out after the second session of the Democratic - controlled 88th Congress begins Jan. 7. The President must have GOP support to win passage of his top priority bills — civil rights and an $11.1 billion pump-priming tax cut.

• • • •

FOCAL POINT of the fight was a GOP-sponsored amendment to the $3 billion aid bill. It would have prevented the U.S. from underwriting credit for commercial sales of surplus wheat to Russia, $40 millions of which the Commerce Department has licensed.

A well-disciplined House Republican bloc directed by GOP leader Charles A. Halleck, Ind., took advantage of Democratic absenteeism to twice force adoption of the amendmant. Before that the GOP had boycotted the House Rules Committee to try and keep the proviso from coming to the floor.

White House aides — speaking for the President — exploded wrathfully, charging Midwest isolationists had ganged up with Halleck to try and pre-empt Johnson's constitutional right to dictate foreign policy and thus make him appear as a weak leader to foreign powers.

• • • •

HOUSE Democratic leaders, failing to reckon with defections from their own ranks, were caught off base. They echoed the White House charges and accused the GOP of waging a sit-down strike against the Rules Committee.

Johnson delayed his departure for a Christmas vacation in Texas and personally began cracking the whip over absentee Democrats. By the time the House reconvened at the extraordinary hour of 7 a.m. Tuesday, enough were on hand to beat the amendment, pass the bill, and go back home.

The Senate, caught in the middle and made impotent by absenteeism in both parties, had to postpone passage of the measure until next Monday at which time Congress will adjourn for the year.

• • • •

THE PRESIDENT and Mrs. Johnson threw a big Christmas dinner for relatives on their LBJ ranch near Johnson City, Texas. Then the chief executive plunged once again into his federal economy drive in hopes of keeping his impending budget to Congress within bounds.

He slapped a freeze on government jobs and ordered agency heads to cut below current personnel levels. More than 2,534,000 civilians are on the federal payroll. Johnson said he was convinced that "we are not getting the maximum possible output per employe." He said he wanted the reductions achieved "through tighter management, redeployment, and stripping work to essentials."

Still another economy target was the controversial foreign aid program. The chief executive named a seven-man, high-level committee to report to him within three weeks on how waste, red tape and other deficiencies can be ended.

• • • •

ONE OF HIS goals is to encourage more self-help by recipient countries. Another is to persuade other developed nations to help carry the burden.

The President previously had ordered all federal departments to make sharp economies, with emphasis on needless domestic defenses bases. He hopes that booming business, plus the tax cut Congress is expected to pass this spring, will help take up any unemployment slack.

The Department of Commerce reported meantime that the national economy is expected to show "a fair-size gain" this year despite a slowdown following the Kennedy assassination. It said "the upward momentum has resumed, reflecting basic underlying strength." At the same time the Labor Department reported the cost of living hit an all-time high in November due to increases in costs of food and shelter.

The assassination continued to make headlines. President Johnson disclosed that right after President Kennedy was shot he ordered news of his death withheld temporarily on the chance the slaying was part of a plot to kill all officials in line for the presidency. As a security measure, Johnson felt that he should get back to the presidential plane before the tragic news was released.

• • • •

THE LATE President's will, leaving the bulk of a big estate to his widow, Jacqueline, and their two children, Caroline, 6, and John Jr., 3, was filed for probate in Boston a day after the 30-day mourning period for Kennedy ended. The total value was not disclosed since no bond was required for the three executors—Mrs. Kennedy and the Kennedy brothers, Atty. Gen. Robert F., and Sen. Edward M.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children were in Palm Beach, Fla., when the mourning period ended and later spent much of Christmas with the late President's parents.

On the political front the Republican presidential outlook became still more uncertain as former President Dwight D. Eisenhower urged several well-known men to throw their hats into the ring.

• • • •

THESE included Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, who hinted he may be an active candidate, and former Minnesota Gov. Harold E. Stassen who was Eisenhower's disarmament adviser. Stassen said that if he did become a candidate he would make "a vigorous fight of it."

Eisenhower also recently suggested to former Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Mass., now U. S. ambassador to turbulent South Viet Nam, that he seek the nomination. Soon thereafter he conferred with former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who looms ever larger as the potential nominee.

GOP leaders believe Eisenhower is cool toward Sen. Barry Goldwater, Ariz., although he has pledged himself to support who ever is nominated. This could include New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller who is preparing to relaunch his own campaign, now that the political moratorium stemming from Kennedy's death has ended.

Some Republican leaders are viewing Scranton as a sort of "Republican Kennedy," a millionaire with charm and tested appeal.

ON THE Democratic side, U. N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson left the door open for his possible candidacy as Johnson's vice presidential running mate. The choice, however, will be up to Johnson. Stevenson said he would run if the President asked him to and if he felt it was compatible with his health.

In other news spheres, West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard flew to the President's Texas ranch for high level talks, particularly about the European Common Market in which the United States has a huge trade stake. Other topics were general East-West negotiations, especially as they affect Berlin and West Germany.

A Navy doctor, Lt. Cmdr. Lewis H. Seaton, revealed that the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise was contaminated by fallout from Russian atmospheric nuclear tests in 1961, but that "there was no real danger to health." He did not say where the Enterprise was cruising at the time.

Pope Paul VI, in his first Christmas message to the world, said his pilgrimage to the Holy Land Jan. 4-5 will be "a journey of search and of hope for peace, Christian unity, and the fight against hunger."

In Vienna, Ivan-Assen Hristov Georgiev, 56, former Bulgarian U. N. diplomat and international lawyer, faced possible execution after allegedly confessing he voluntarily spied for the United States. He was accused of spying for seven years and collecting $200,000.

AS AN aftermath of the affair, 500 Bulgarians staged a violent demonstration at the U. S. legation in Sofia, smashing windows and overturning automobiles. The State Department protested sharply and demanded damages.

President Johnson directed five federal agencies to cooperate in a program to aid several thousand workers idled when the Studebaker auto plant at South Bend, Ind., shut down.

MY PERSONAL WISH FOR A 1964

BRIGHT WITH

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS...

Too often, we take for granted the precious birthright we have as Americans.
As we say goodbye to 1963 and welcome 1964, let us together thank God for the privilege of being citizens of the most wonderful country on earth.
May you have the happiest of New Years and may it bring you all the good things in life.

Two Saved as Boat Hits Flotsam, Sinks

An 18-foot outboard motorboat carrying two men struck an obstacle and sank Saturday as it was "speeding along close to the shore" near Long Point, Catalina Island, the Coast Guard reported.

John Moore, of 13740 Utica St., Whittier, and Robert Cash, of 12170 Aegean St., Norwalk, both 23, were taken to Little Company of Mary Hospital, Torrance, in a Coast Guard helicopter. Moore was treated for bruised ribs and Cash refused medical care.

Cash said he was sitting on the bow "looking for mountain goats" as the boat raced along about five feet from shoreline rocks with Moore at the helm, the Coast Guard reported. Cash said the craft, the Cathy O., hit what he believed to be a plank.

The pair was picked up by a passing boat which radioed for assistance.

Economist Becomes Viet Envoy to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vu Van Thai, an economist who left the government of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem two years ago, is slated to be South Viet Nam's new ambassador to the United States.

The Viet Nam Embassy announced Friday that President Johnson had approved the appointment of Thai. This was a preliminary to his formal selection by the new military government of South Viet Nam.

Negroes Chosen for Training as U.S. Diplomats

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A State Department official said in testimony made public Saturday that a new training program is being developed in hopes of bringing more Negroes into the career foreign service.

William J. Crockett, deputy undersecretary of State for administration, said that 25 students, "principally Negroes," are being selected from various colleges for the special training program sponsored by the Ford Foundation.

If it works satisfactorily, he said, "hopefully we will start getting an input of minority groups at the entrance level in the foreign service."

Liebling, Critic of Press, Dies

NEW YORK, (AP) — A. J. Liebling, a writer for the New Yorker magazine best known for his criticisms of "The Wayward Press," died of pneumonia Saturday in Mount Sinai Hospital. He was 59.

Liebling, whose friends called him "Joe," worked on several New England newspapers before joining the New Yorker. He was the author of more than a dozen books, including a recent one about Earl Long's last years as governor of Louisiana.

* * * *

AS A correspondent for the New Yorker in Europe during World War II he witnessed a raid of a U.S. fighter base in Tunisia, and was on a "beachhead correspondent's committee" which dealt with press problems during the Normandy invasion.

Liebling had a gourmet's taste for food, but was otherwise conspicuously unpretentious. He was known as one of the best prose stylists and wits in American journalism.

Born in New York, he attended Dartmouth College, Columbia University and the Sorbonne in Paris. He first joined the New Yorker staff in 1935. Besides his articles on the press he wrote profiles and book reviews for the magazine.

His wartime experiences, for which France awarded him the Legion of Honor, were recorded in his book, "The Road Back to Paris," published in 1944. In "Normandy Revisited," published in 1958, he wrote about what had happened to France in the intervening years.

* * * *

BEFORE joining the New Yorker he worked for the New York Times for eight months, then spent four years with the Providence, (R.I.) Journal and Evening Bulletin.

He is survived by his widow, Jean Stafford Liebling, an author, and a sister, Mrs. Harold Stonehill of New York.

Funeral will be Monday.

JUNGLE JAMEY BOOSTS SUNDODGERS

Gate-Crasher Plans to See Huskies Rout Bowl Rivals

—Staff Photo

POSING PROUDLY atop his battered buggy parked on a Long Beach street Saturday, is Jungle Jamey, world-renowned gate crasher. In his left hand is "manuscript" of book he hopes to publish next year detailing plans for feeding the world.

Jungle Jamey, world traveler, sports fan extraordinary, ambassador of goodwill and world-renowned gate-crasher, announced in Long Beach Saturday that he will attend the Rose Bowl game in Pasadena on New Year's Day.

But seeing as how he doesn't have a ticket, he refused to disclose how he plans to do it.

He would say only that he has no intention of letting down his 50,000 fans throughout the world.

• • • •

TO JAMEY, no sporting event is too big to crash. Two years ago, for example, the red-bearded itierant sports fan took 100 kids over the fence with him to watch the Grey Cup (professional championship) game of the Canadian Football League.

And in 1955, he said, he entered Yankee Stadium in New York—sans tickets, of course—to see the Marciano-Moore fight, another championship event.

But it would be grossly unfair to Jamey to regard him strictly as a gate-crasher, even though he is, as he says, the greatest crasher of sporting events since One-Eyed Connolly, who died in 1953.

James Joseph Peter Baccellieri—that's his real name—is also a man of some repute in the world of sports.

He numbers among his friends some of the greatest names in sports and, in fact, is being groomed in some quarters as the Clown Prince of Pro Football—he said.

He has traveled widely and intends to be in Tokyo sometime next year—"unless I decide to attend the world champion soccer match at Wimbledon, near London."

• • • •

RECENTLY, Jamey decided to embark on still another career—a literary one. He plans to publish a book entitled "How to Feed the World in 1964 to the End of Man."

For the nonce, however, his sights are set on Pasadena.

Jamey—yes, he's a prognostigator, too—predicts Washington over Illinois by 21 points! 35 to 14, to be exact.

TRAPPED IN SINKING

Divers Can't Find Boatman's Body

Five scuba divers from the Los Angeles County lifeguard service searched vainly Saturday for the body of Richard Marshall, 16, carried to his death when the commercial fishing boat Grace L. sank Friday night three miles off the San Pedro breakwater.

The diving team, working from a Coast Guard cutter and a fathometer-equipped fishing vessel, probed the 90-foot depths for more than five hours without locating the sunken wreck.

Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Marshall, of 2961 Adriatic Ave., apparently was trapped in a forward compartment when the Grace L. plunged suddenly beneath the surface.

• • • •

WITNESS to the sinking from a following fishing boat, the San Silverio, was the victim's half-brother, Donald Shuler, 37, of 776 Freeman Ave., who immediately radioed the Coast Guard for help.

William I. Adams, of 1434 S. Towner St., Santa Ana, owner of the Grace L., tried to save the missing boy, but was forced back by flooding waters.

Shuler also leaped aboard in a rescue attempt, but he and Adams were both driven off the Grace L. by the rush of water and swam back to the San Silverio, manned by another crewmember, Rudy Sanchez.

Lifeguard Lt. Don St. Hill said no further diving is planned unless there are further clues to the position of the Grace L., such as wreckage floating to the surface.

A few pieces of the boat, including a bait tank, were found on the surface Saturday. Cause of the sinking was unknown, but it was speculated the boat dove under after her hull was ripped by a submerged object.

600 Play in Bridge Contests

Six hundred persons played Saturday in the second day of the Long Beach Holiday Championships of the American Contract Bridge League at the Lafayette Hotel.

The breakdown of the participation, by events: mixed pairs championship, 156 pairs; one session, side game, Venus Pairs, 118 pairs; and the Evergreen Junior Pairs, 26 pairs.

The winners:

Mixed Pairs—Robert Chatkin, Los Angeles, Jean Williams, Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hoffman, Los Angeles; Joe Murphy, Lynwood, Dorothy Brewer, Pasadena.

Venus Pairs—Robert Rock, Los Angeles, Allan Mandelin, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Juan Adrover, Pomona; Olavi Vare, Long Beach; Jim Thompson, Los Angeles.

1963 U.S. Birth Rate Declines

NEW YORK (UPI) — The birth rate in the United States is declining, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company said.

The company said the number of births in the nation decreased in 1963 and was expected to be somewhat below the 1957 record of 4,300,000. It said this year will see only 4,100,000 births by Dec. 31.

L.B. Girl Wins Title, $50,000

glad Celeste decided to try out for the competition.

"She's a real beauty," says Gregory P. Fitzpatrick, advertising director for the firm. "And since we don't sell our beer out there, you know I'm not just saying that for promotional purposes."

Literally hundreds of thousands of East Coast beer drinkers agree.

• • • •

"I CAME here about six months ago to enter the contest," Celeste told the Independent, Press-Telegram Saturday.

"I was selected one of the six finalists and then we went on a seven-week campaign tour. We toured taverns, delicatessens, stores and markets — wherever they sell beer — and asked people to vote for us.

"You can vote as many times as you want to. All you had to do was fill out a ballot and turn it in.

Did she ever vote for herself? "I'm too young to drink beer!"

Fitzpatrick said "millions" of ballots are received each year in the contest. The company doesn't even bother to count them . . . it just weighs them.

And pert, brown-haired Celeste weighed out best.

• • • •

THEY CALLED her in Los Angeles Nov. 19 and told her to pack her suitcase and catch a plane east.

She left the Actors Theater Workshop, where she had been studying under Rudy Solari, and went to New York to claim her beer-cap crown.

"They announced the selection a week ago," Celeste said, "and I've been on the go ever since. And I guess it'll be this way for the next year, but I'm awfully glad. It will help my career a lot."

Space Engineer Held for Hiring Wife-Killer

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Brevard County sheriff's officers Saturday arrested a Cape Kennedy engineer accused of plotting to have his wife killed for $3,000.

Sheriff Lee Wilson said Vaughn Dobalian, 40, Satellite Beach, was arrested in a Cocoa Beach motel room. He handed an advance payment of $200 to an undercover agent who was to have killed the woman, mother of four.

The sheriff said his office, acting on a tip received a month ago that Dobalian wanted to have his wife killed, stationed the agent in Jacksonville. The agent called Dobalian and allegedly made the deal to kill Mrs. Dobalian by any method.

Wilson said Dobalian, an engineer working at the nearby space center, "even gave the undercover agent a diagram of the house" to aid the planned crime. Wilson said Dobalian admitted the plot.

The sheriff said a motive had not been determined but that divorce proceedings were under way.

"He may have wanted to avoid alimony," the sheriff said.

Cobalian was charged with conspiracy to commit a capital offense, a felony which could carry a seven-year prison term. He is expected to be arraigned Friday.

Louisiana Expects to Own 'Mudlumps'

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A Louisiana congressman said Saturday the state's claim to some 125,000 oil-and-gas rich acres of so-called "mudlumps"—land formed at the mouth of the Mississippi River—will be validated by the federal government.

Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., in an announcement from his New Orleans office, said Interior Secretary Udall will issue a ruling Monday favorable to Louisiana.

• • • •

THE ACTION is "a victory for Louisiana more vital to its interest than any matter pending with the federal government except the tidelands issue," Boggs said.

The tidelands issue involves a state-federal dispute over ownership of offshore lands in the Gulf of Mexico.

Interior Department officials available in Washington said they could not confirm Boggs' announcement.

A spokesman noted that the case had been pending in the Justice Department and the question simply was who owned the lands—the state or the federal government—and thus who would receive the revenue from granting leases for gas and oil rights.

• • • •

THE "MUDLUMPS" — or made lands — controversy, Boggs said, involve ownership of all naturally formed lands that have been built up on Louisiana's coast since it came into the union in 1812.

"Thousands upon thousands of acres—more than 125,000—were so formed in the lower delta region of the Mississippi River," Boggs said, "where some of our most important oil and gas fields are located.

"It is my understanding that similar, but smaller, buildups occurred in other regions along the coast of the state, particularly at the mouths of the Calcasieu and Sabine rivers."

Prince Hunts Birds

KINGS LYNN, England (UPI) — Prince Philip led a party of British royalty Saturday on a bird hunt at Sandringham, Queen Elizabeth's country estate. The group included his son, Prince Charles, the Duke of Kent, and Antony-Armstrong Jones, Princess Margaret's husband.

DID you ever wonder how kids must size up the grownups when they see those lurid girlie ads marked "For Adults Only?" Obviously, it must mean the old folks have gone off their rockers on sex.

One reader sent me a clipping of an adv. with the growl: "Couldn't they make it read: 'For SOME Adults Only?'"

POSSIBLY the most exciting Christmas dinner experience in town went to the Martin Konnight family, 2260 Easy Ave.

Right in the middle of the holiday dining a riderless motorcycle came banging through the Konnight door. It broke the door open, cracked the doorframe, and did other damage. Fortunately the door stopped the wild machine or it might have busted up the dining table.

The cycle took off across the Konnight's front yard after its rider fell into the street. Police said he lost control when the accelerator stuck.

RESIDENTS indignant about Christmas display bulb snatching (I'm still hearing from them) will be interested to learn there's something worse.

E. J. Flint had an American Flag hung on his porch, at half-staff in memory of the late President Kennedy. The other day somebody stole it. The Flag was too high for a child to reach, but not too high for a snake.

FOR a long time various acquaintances of mine have been jaywalking across Pine Ave. between Sixth and Seventh Sts. A few have been cited into court and many, 'no doubt, have a slightly guilty feeling when they do it.

It may not and probably should not be any comfort to these scofflaws (or should I say us scofflaws) but I must report that Friday noon two men of the cloth (gentlemen in black suits with collars turned around) were observed hiking the familiar route.

In fact, I met them right in the middle of the street.

PEOPLE who hang out outstanding lighting displays have ample evidence of the appreciation of the public.

John Paap, for instance, saw 600 automobiles per hour for four hours pass the fine display on the Paap residence at 231 Roycroft. And at one time after a picture of the display appeared in the paper, he counted 100 people on his lawn, going close for a look at the display.

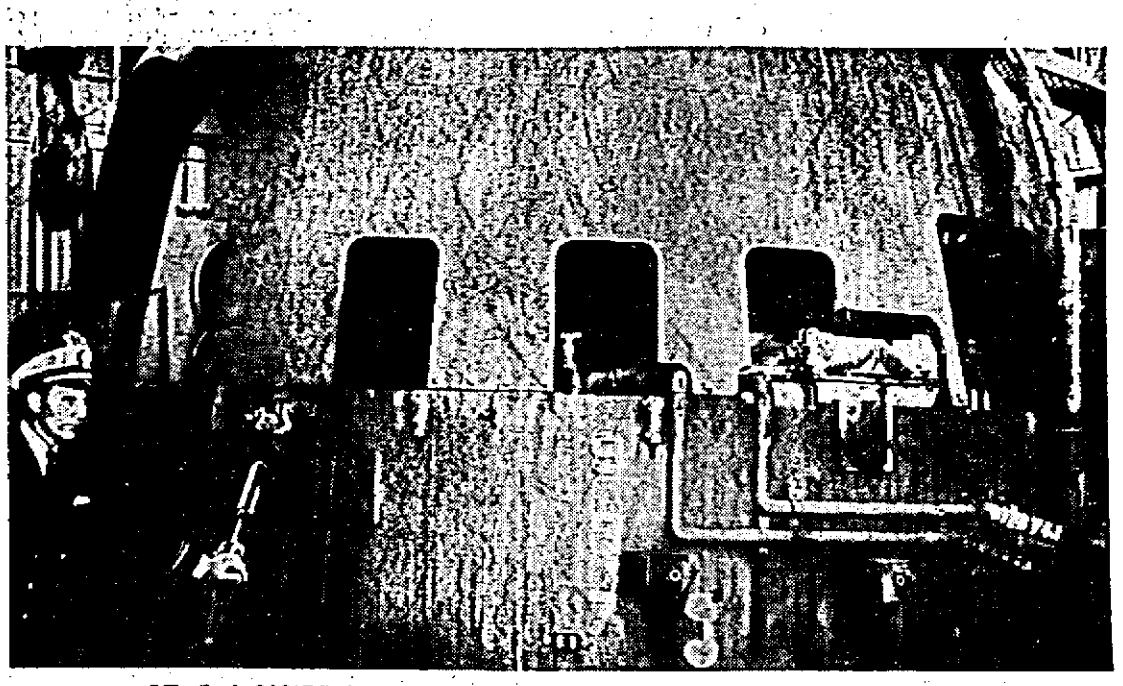

And on the subject of Yuletide lights, a Belmont Shore resident sends a note suggesting mention here of the Christmas Display on Alamitos Bay — the 12 lighted trees placed on the bay from the Second St. bridge to the Appian Way bridge.

These trees and their reflections in the water, together with fine lighting on homes along the shores, presented a great picture.

AND an early American Christmas display will be open for several weeks for visitors to Rancho Los Cerritos, the city's historical museum on Virginia Rd. north of San Antonio (just beyond the Virginia Country Club gate.) The Rancho is open to the public without charge, Wednesday through Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m.

Outstanding feature is a majestic pine touching the beamed ceiling of the old ranch. Dozens of yards of strung popcorn garland the wide symmetrical branches, holding dowel tapers and cheesecloth bags of candy, antique candles and other oldtime ornaments. Under the tree are quaint china-head dolls and priceless iron and wooden toys as well as children's books of the Victorian era.

They're in Deep Water for America's Defense

LT. (j.g.) JAMES A. McDOLE... Dwarfed by 'Cap' That Sits on Translator

GOING TO WORK... Navy Diver 'Backs' Into Water

ELECTRONIC CABLES MAZE... Diver's Expert Check

TRANSLATOR'S RIGGING... Carefully Adjusted

176 FEET BELOW SURFACE... Barnacles Cleaned Away

By BOB SANDERS

Some of the best — and worst — underwater diving in the world is being done at a small cove at San Clemente Island, 60 miles off Long Beach.

It's the best because some of the best divers in the world are doing it. It's the worst because it's difficult to conceive more trying conditions than those under which it is done.

The men are the Navy divers assigned to the Naval Ordnance Test Station (NOTS) with headquarters in Pasadena. All are graduates of the Navy's diving schools and many are master divers.

Their work is installing, maintaining and repairing the unique equipment used to test such sophisticated weapons systems as ASROC (anti-submarine rocket) and SUBROC (submarine rocket).

THESE SYSTEMS — ASROC designed to be fired from surface vessels to hunt down and destroy submerged submarines, and SUBROC designed to be fired from a submerged submarine to destroy another one — are among the most complicated in the world.

Testing these weapons under actual underwater conditions is no simple task. The equipment they use is, necessarily, as complicated in most cases as the weapons themselves.

And most important to the testing are the men who have to work on this equipment at depths up to 200 feet.

A few miles south of the NOTS headquarters at Wilson Cove on the land side of the island is what is known as the 'Pop Up Range."

It is here that the testing takes place.

It is here that the 29 divers, ranging in age from a "young" 29 to an "ancient" 43, which veteran Mike Lamar claims, do their difficult and dangerous work.

THEY ARE UNDER the leadership of a blond, 35-year-old personable officer in charge, Lt. j.g. James C. McDole, of 35221 Kempton Drive, Los Alamitos, a master diver himself.

Lt. McDole talks about diving the way the early pilots spoke of flying. It's more than a job; it's an art.

"In this business, you have to be more than just a good diver," he says.

And he's right. In addition to diving to extreme depths, Lt. McDole's men must be able to pour cement, install gigantic eye-bolts and other heavy gear, fit massive pieces of equipment into place with very small tolerances, and operate welding and burning torches, jackhammers and other construction equipment.

"Anything construction workers can do on the surface my men have to be able to do in deep water," he says. "They have to be good."

AN EXCELLENT EXAMPLE of the type of work they do was the construction last fall of a 90-ton, 60-foot-high piece of equipment called a translator, used to test the underwater firing of the Polaris missile.

After a 36-foot-diameter caison had been lowered to the bottom and filled with concrete, Lt. McDole's divers had to go down and set the translator into place, then bolt it tight and weld it so that it was securely anchored to the bottom.

All this in 176 feet of water, measured at low mean tide.

The reason the translator had to be so firmly anchored was that the 14-ton Polaris was fired from it.

Why they called it a translator is a deep Navy secret, but apparently it translates the movement of a submerged submarine.

"This was one of our toughest assignments," says Lt. McDole. "But we may get an even tougher one tomorrow."

New Civic Spirit at Work in L.B. Promises Change

(Editor's Note: Each year since 1960 Harry J. Krusz, executive vice president of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, has taken "an objective" look at the city. In a detailed 43-page report, Mr. Krusz has taken another such look at Long Beach. Following are a few excerpts from his newest report.

By HARRY J. KRUSZ

There is a wholly new spirit abroad — a higher plateau of action and interest — among business, professional, government, organization, labor groups and citizens generally, indicating continued growth and progress.

We recognize the continuing struggle between those who want to move forward and those favoring the status quo.

Ben Clawson, a former chairman of the Chamber's Area Development Committee, put it this way:

"The strongest single impediment to progress is the dead weight of tradition, the habit of doing things the way they have always been done."

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT: Every economic gauge gives clear evidence of the diversity and stability of the economy of Long Beach. It has soft spots, but, by and large, is well balanced between manufacturing, distribution and transportation. We must remain alert to pressures on our City Council and Planning Commission to alter land use contrary to our best economic interests and alert against too much accent on defense projects.

NEW INDUSTRY: Overcoming the subsidence problem and establishment of Douglas Aircraft manufacturing headquarters here with the DC9 development have given our industrial picture great impetus.

A stronger Chamber Area Development (Industrial) Department with well coordinated aid from city departments and the Board of Realtors is conducting an aggressive plan for new industry with some excellent results but feels it has only scratched the surface.

RETAIL TRADE: Good the past five years, especially promising the past year. It can improve. We must recognize the interdependent values of both the downtown shopping center and outlying shopping areas. One supports the other. Investment—in substantial amounts at times—in store and store front improvements, for bond issues, promotions, street and highway improvement, downtown improvement, shoreline improvement, etc., pays dividends.

DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENT: Not too much progress here since the last survey. Without a great show of courage and vision we can deteriorate and stagnate in spite of all the other favorable factors.

Among downtown liabilities: a widely scattered shopping area, some very narrow streets, special problems in the Pike area, many vacant stores, broken sidewalks, a host of unsavory bars and nightspots of doubtful character.

On the positive side: excellent major stores, fine variety stores, beautiful specialty shops, a promising redevelopment plan for the West Beach area and the rebuilding of the Wise Building.

What is the need?

First, a really workable master plan for street widening, malls, abundant offstreet parking, transportation between areas, demolition, perhaps, of several blocks in useless, overbuilt areas. The plan must be tied in to the urban redevelopment program, relocation of the Pike area, completion of shoreline improvement, a new City Hall and Public Library and completion of the Civic Center.

Much of old downtown is worn out, outmoded, obsolete. Investment here will pay for itself over and over again in increased property values, trade, tax revenue to the city.

TRANSPORTATION: The rapid transit problem is very big, involving millions in finances, requiring the cooperation of existing carriers, all traffic movement agencies as well as government and business interests. All the good effects of staging a World's Fair—only three years away—will be lost if we fail in adequate plans for 40 million visitors in the two-year period of the fair.

We are exceedingly pleased with resolution of the local bus situation but disturbed by the shortsighted approach to the problem of automobile movement. The recent report and recommendations of the city traffic engineer merit serious consideration.

Passenger traffic service here is far from satisfactory. Advent of the San Diego Freeway cuts travel time to Los Angeles Airport. Western and Pacific Airlines offer some service but nothing direct to the East or Southeast and nothing to the Middle West.

HOUSING: An intelligent housing survey is most needed, a joint responsibility, in our opinion, of the Board of Realtors, the Chamber and the city Planning Department. It should include urban development and redevelopment.

BANKING AND FINANCE: We are in good shape in providing for financial needs for business, residential structures and improvements. Long Beach has great need for leadership from banking people to establish themselves in the forefront of all community endeavor.

PORT OF LONG BEACH: Port progress, with increasing operations of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, is probably the greatest spark of economic progress. Spending about a million dollars each month on port improvement, together with the economic and efficient handling of the oil development program by the city and Harbor Department, the building of Pier J, erection of the new Harbor Administration Building, its intelligent programs with state officials, oil companies and others is an operation deserving admiration and support. Commissioners, serving without pay, do a magnificent job.

CIVIC DEVELOPMENT: Business is generous, progressive and intelligent in spending substantial sums for new machinery, buildings and advertising or for employe benefits, but almost invariably takes a reverse attitude in support of various institutions that successfully handle the community relations or civic aspects of its business. There is a growing awareness however that civic, governmental, educational and cultural matters have a terrific impact on the economic picture.

CITY PLANNING: Final adoption of the master plan is a signal development in strengthening our long-range

Let's Simplify State Tax Report

AS HE DRUDGES THROUGH separate federal and state income tax calculations next year, the California taxpayer may well envy his Alaskan cousin.

In Alaska, the taxpayer, having figured his federal income tax, merely makes an extra copy of the return, files the copy as his state return, pays the state a percentage (5.75 percent) of the federal tax figure, and goes fishing.

California legislators have been talking about this plan for years, but nothing comes of the talk; the idea of figuring income tax once rather than twice is apparently too simple a concept for California government.

THE ADVANTAGES TO STATE taxpayers apparently are too great. Duplicate tax returns, for example, would save Californians the trouble of maintaining separate books and worrying over second returns. Such a system would also eliminate a large part of the $10 million annual expense of the Franchise Tax Board.

This possibility sends a cold chill along the spines of state bureaucrats who protest that the carbon-copy income tax plan would hand the operation of California's tax system to the federal government.

A moment's reflection will show anyone the shallowness of the protest. If the state sets its own tax amount, eliminates substantial costs of tax administration, and eases the tax calculation burden for the citizen, who cares about the dubious prestige of being able to say we have a separate income tax form? The proposal is not designed to reduce the amount of revenue collected by the state in income taxes, but it would reduce the cost and the difficulties of collection and payment. What's the matter with that?

A CALIFORNIA LEGISLATIVE subcommittee undertook a study of the state's personal tax system in 1957 with the aim of patterning that system after the federal plan. The chairman of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee at that time expressed the hope that one day the California taxpayer would be able to fill out his federal form and send a duplicate to the state. History came full circle the other day when the same idea was once again presented at an interim meeting of the same committee.

Without a show of interest by taxpayers, there is little hope that this simple, practical, and worthy plan will even get a trial.

Democrats' Whip System Crumbles

I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The final 10 days of activity in the House of Representatives witnessed the almost complete breakdown of the Democratic Party's Whip system. The new administration's legislative program will be in deep trouble unless order can be restored, because the Republican forces in the House operate under Prussian discipline.

Two cases serve to illustrate the chaos in Democratic ranks. On the Monday morning the House was to take up the foreign aid authorization bill, Democratic leaders still had not communicated to the Whips what the party position would be on amendments or efforts to restore cuts made in committee. One assistant Whip called Majority Leader Carl Albert's office for instructions, and he failed to get any. Later, during the furious maneuvering on the aid bill conference report, the Whip system in one member's words "just went dead." There were no phone calls urging attendance on the floor, no advance soundings of members positions taken, no "nose counts" to give floor leaders an idea of what to expect.

The Whip system serves as the eyes and ears and voice of the leadership. When it broke down last week, Democrats sustained a grievous defeat which required President Johnson to put his total prestige on the line to salvage the bill.

Republicans were quick to take advantage of the Democratic lapse. "If they (the Democrats) want a civil rights bill, if they want a foreign aid bill, if they want a bill to paint the Capitol bright green, they've got the votes," said GOP National Chairman Bill Miller, "and it's their responsibility if their members jump ship or leave town, not ours."

HAVING GAINED FIRM control of the reins of government, President Lyndon Johnson has now put on his hat as leader of the Democratic Party to take a look at the Democratic National Committee. Cliff Carter, a personable ex-football star and long-time Johnson aide, has been positioned by the President as the White House link with the committee. That automatically makes Carter one of the major strategists for next year's political campaign as well as traffic control center for patronage.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK (from Gerhard Van Arkel of the National Committee for an Effective Congress): "I suppose that with a name like ours and a Congress like the present one, the thing our organization should do is disband."

The National Committee for an Effective Congress is a non-partisan organization devoted to helping elect congressmen who evidence strong commitment to internationalism and civil rights.

IF GOVERNMENT WERE like baseball, the Most Improved Player award probably would go to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. In 1963, NASA went to the missile launch pad 15 times and succeeded in 14 attempts, a batting average of .933. Five years ago, the fledgling agency racked up a far more discouraging performance—one success in five tries.

U.S. System of Government Shows Its Lack of Maturity

WASHINGTON—The American system of government is relatively young — not even two centuries old— but it has rarely shown so conspicuously its lack of maturity as it does today. To realize how little progress has been made in the field of responsible government, all one needs to do is to read about the prospective candidates for the presidency being brought forward to serve, if elected, in the highest office in the land.

LAWRENCE

Take, for example, the different men being talked about for the Republican presidential nomination. For months, attention centered on two or three possible candidates. Then, as if these men had suddenly become politically ineligible, the search turned to persons relatively unknown—as if it would be easier to elect someone who hasn't become identified with any particular issues or controversial questions in the national field. The fact that such newly discovered persons of prominence have not had any experience in a position of leadership or major responsibility in either the executive or the legislative branch of the federal government is regarded as of no importance by their political sponsors. All that seems to count is that the prospective candidate performs well on television or appears to be a man of congenial and pleasing personality. The quest is apparently for someone with no political liabilities. This is not unusual.

Our Presidents have not always been the ablest of public servants. Often they have had little background but lots of courage. Once a man is endowed with presidential power, he feels a sense of responsibility to be honest and fair. Mistakes usually come, however, as a result of the special prejudices of anonymous advisers who have no direct responsibility to the people.

How many of the men elected to the highest office in the land have turned out really to be great men? Adulation and eulogy afterwards are often emotional, but in the perspective of time the praise is, in fact, for the sincerity of effort and devotion to duty rather than for actual achievement. There is, of course, little time in a four-year term in which to do a good job, when the first few years have to be spent in learning the ropes. The record in a second term is often better than in a first term because a President has acquired experience on the job.

But, it will be asked, what difference does it make since the people elect and re-elect — it's their responsibility. Throughout history, however, some citizens have sought to improve the ways of free and representative government. There is no convincing reason, for instance why candidates for the presidency should not be selected only from those men who have had substantial experience in leadership posts in either the executive or legislative branch of the government. The Constitution can be amended at any time to require this.

It isn't sufficient that a prospective nominee should have merely been a governor or even a member of Congress or the cabinet. He should have risen to the top rank through his work in either the executive or legislative branch of the national government. He will not necessarily make a good president because he has been elected to some office in a state or city or because he is impressive on the stump. Making speeches is one thing but executing policies is quite another.

What America needs is a system that will insure the selection of a competent President of experience and not just a candidate with personal appeal but without prior training in the national government. These are days when wrong decisions can mean war or national bankruptcy or other catastrophe to the American people.

As the population increases, the problem of government becomes more complex. Can one man be expected to rule effectively in the presidency? Wouldn't it be better to pick from the most capable men inside government the presidential nominees of their respective parties and to put alongside of them—to be chosen in the same election—a cabinet of 10 men also well qualified in national governmental problems? Wouldn't it be better to organize in this way an elected presidential council?

Some change is long overdue, and the stories about the process of selecting a Republican presidential candidate emphasize the weakness in the present system. Often the people vote for an incumbent administration because the alternative is no better. This is a reflection on the quality of men brought to the fore under the system that prevails today.

State and National Polls Show GOP Needs New Team

I, P-T Political Editor

PRESIDENT Lyndon B. Johnson beats all Republican opposition according to a statewide poll this month by the Independent, Press-Telegram. A significant finding of the poll is that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller runs slightly stronger against LBJ than does Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Goldwater's decline has been noted in national polls within the last three days. Polling among his own party members showed his lead in two categories — the "strongest candidate" and the "most likely to be nominated"—slashed in half.

HOUSER

California Republicans, before President Kennedy's death, gave Goldwater more than 50 per cent of their vote in a test poll as against about one-third for Rockefeller. Since the assassination, Goldwater's tally has dropped by more than 10 percentage points to less than half the vote. The early poll gave Goldwater some 30 percentage points over Rockefeller while the post-assassination tally cut the margin to about 8 points.

Richard Nixon, as a native son, runs expectedly strong in California but Rockefeller is gaining. LBJ tops Nixon in the balloting among all voters with Nixon polling about the same percentage as he did against Governor Brown in losing his governorship bid by some 300,000 votes.

THE DRAMATIC recession of Goldwater's prospects is increasingly significant in that his residual strength persists in the deep South. (All 41 Alabama GOP poll respondents stayed with him, as did 12 in Mississippi.) But Goldwater's stronghold of the South, Midwest and West showed considerable erosion outside this hard core and in the region where Johnson can expect to run strong.

Political experts hold it highly unlikely that a seasoned concertmaster like LBJ will play any notes false enough to fault a majority allegiance from his beloved South and West. This sure hand is just as likely to extend to his selection of a 1964 running mate—a fairly liberal type, probably close to the Kennedy establishment, with accents on youth and possibly the East for regional balance.

This combination would be keenly calculated against the obvious—Goldwater and Nixon—foreclosing obvious routes of opportunity for either or both of them.

THUS, the GOP gambit would seem to clarify. One Southern poll respondent put it in sum and focus: He was willing to test the strength of ultraconservatism with Barry Goldwater in a clear-cut choice experiment versus JFK, implying that it was unlikely Kennedy could be defeated anyway and it would be a noble exercise. But now he feels there is a real chance for the Republican party and "We can't afford to experiment."

So who else but its moving men should the GOP turn to? Strangely the GOP gives its current confidence vote to a batch of reluctant or undeclared or hesitant noncandidates. Certainly Rockefeller, as the only officially declared and running candidate of either party, stands to pick up credits soon from the all-out campaign he'll launch within days. Incidentally, Rocky's efforts, we're informed, will include probable twice-monthly visits to California aiming to our June 2 primary.

Also moving is Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton. Henry Cabot Lodge, South Viet Nam ambassador and Nixon's 1960 running mate, is a late and strong contender by virtue of a now third rank in last week's poll and apparent recipient of former President Eisenhower's urgings to get in among his other friends to give Republicans a broad choice.

MICHIGAN Gov. George Romney has faded, but perhaps not beyond recall in the context of a national election as opposed to the parochial setbacks in his Michigan administration. There also is the handsome and skillful Sen. Thruston Morton of Kentucky with warm and powerful credentials he earned as a hard-working national chairman.

It seems Republicans do have a clear-cut choice, intra-party, if their hankering is for winning the office rather than mounting a do or die philosophical crusade. And the choice would clearly seem to lie outside its receding or defeated champions.

Rumford Act Curbs Freedom

EDITOR:

I chuckle when I read a lot of ridiculous propaganda in support of the Rumford Act suggesting that is is unconstitutional to oppose it.

In the first place, this civil rights act (to end civil rights) tells a property owner what not to say in advertising property for sale or lease. That is purely and definitely against our Bill of Rights. Did anyone ever hear of free speech? Only dogs allow themselves to be muzzled without a fight to the end.

In the second place, to allow your property to be controlled in any way while the impression (false) is created that you still own it, is submitting to fascism, which is just another form of socialism. Hitler and Mussolini, those great do-good welfare state liberals were national socialists. Are we becoming a mixture of two forms of socialism which are just branches of totalitarianism?

Isolation of Leftists Urged

EDITOR:

Our government has asked its citizens to fight against communism. Yet they let Paul Robeson and other Communist sympathizers in our country. Robeson admitted that he likes Communism.

When a person has an infectious disease, they isolate that person to keep the disease from spreading. To me communism is an infectious disease. I think all pro-Communists should be isolated to keep communism from spreading in our country.

Local ACLU Backs Rumford Act

EDITOR:

The executive committee of the Long Beach Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union at its meeting on Dec. 15, 1963, unanimously resolved to support the Rumford Fair Housing Act and to urge all citizens to oppose the initiative petition now being circulated by some realtors. The Rumford Fair Housing Act was passed by the lawmaking bodies of California and should be given the test of practice before conclusions are drawn. The Executive Committee of the Long Beach ACLU wished to add its voices which have supported the Rumford Fair Housing Act throughout California.

Two Wrongs Don't Make a Right

EDITOR:

R. Greengard makes an excellent case for the CREA stand on the Rumford and Unruh Acts. He intended otherwise.

Realtors could add many more "You Can'ts" to the list of Greengard. That is the cause of their concern. Greengard reasons that since many rights have been taken from owners of real property, the proper thing is to take the rest of them.

Realtors are not interested in the color of Greengard's skin. Should he be inspired to take his capital, buy some high priced land, obtain financing, construct a multiple-dwelling thereby giving employment to many, and this improvement to his community, Realtors believe he should be permitted to manage that property to the best dictates of the conscience which moved him to build it in the first place.

The freedom of non-owners of real property to swing their fist should indeed stop where it meets the nose of the fellow who is building up his community.

Wheat State Congressman Tries to Block Sale to Reds

WASHINGTON — Congressman Bill Avery, a down-to-earth Kansas Republican, hid out in the Capitol the other day when the Johnson administration was trying to get a quorum inside the House Rules Committee. Avery is a member of the Rules Committee but did not go to the meeting. He was in the Capitol building just a few hundred feet from the committee chamber, but made himself very scarce.

PEARSON

This was part of the Republican strategy to pin the Communist label on Lyndon Johnson for selling wheat to Russia. Charlie Halleck of Indiana and other right-wing Republican leaders figured they could both embarrass Johnson and get headlines by blocking the foreign aid bill, unless it contained a proviso which would have banned the wheat deal.

"I am not particularly interested in staying here to help finance the Russians and the Communists," proclaimed Halleck, ignoring the fact that the Russians proposed the same wheat terms to us as to Canada—namely, cash within 18 months.

Ironical fact about Bill Avery, however, is that he represents the great wheat-growing state of Kansas, and the Great Plains Wheat Assn., of which Kansas farmers are important members, has done a magnificent job in winning friends abroad with wheat. In some cases, Kansas wheat has been sold under Public Law 480 which means payment in local currencies. In some cases wheat has been given away—to both Communist and non-Communist countries.

The Soviet Union, on the other hand, proposes to pay for its wheat with one cash payment down, plus other payments spread over 18 months. U. S. banks which handle the transaction can get their paper underwritten by the Export-Import Bank, which is the normal procedure in foreign export sales of this magnitude.

In contrast, here is how free wheat is being used in other countries, as described by El Mercurio, the No. 1 newspaper of Chile. On Dec. 9 it published an editorial praising the Great Plains Wheat Assn. and Harlan Parkinson, its representative, for initiating a school lunchroom in the slum, "German Riesco," in Santiago. The lunchroom has been named Abraham Lincoln.

"The construction of the large school lunch building was paid for by the donation of Great Plains Wheat," commented the newspaper, "an association of approximately 300,000 North American wheat farmers who use their earnings in collaboration with Food for Peace and the Alliance for Progress.

"Harlan Parkinson, Latin American director of the wheat farmers, asked only for the voluntary cooperation of the parents of the children. In this way work squads were formed, and working in their spare hours and even at night they finished the main part of the building in less than three months. Groups of the mothers of these same children daily prepare the meals under the guidance of nutrition experts.

"In our opinion, the work carried out by Great Plains Wheat is a palpable demonstration of what it would mean to our country if the programs of the Alliance for Progress and Food for Peace were speeded up."

Chile, of course, is not a Communist nation though it has a very powerful Communist party and could conceivably go Communist after the next election. But whatever the form of government, food can be one of the great ambassadors in winning friends, as the American people demonstrated when they fed their enemies after World War I and World War II.

Enjoy a Party-Perfect NEW YEARS EVE

PRICES, HAPPILY, A LITTLE BELOW LAST YEAR'S

L.B.-Area Cafes Book Gay New Year's Fetes

BY TEDD THOMEY

Good fellowship, gay comedy, dancing, the poppety-pop of champagne corks and the sentimental strains of "Auld Lang Syne" will mingle as Long Beach's nightclubs and restaurants greet 1964 with special parties New Year's Eve.

Celebrators should be pleased to note that the price ceiling here will be slightly lower than last year, with the top tab hitting $15 per person. Top prices in nearby cities will be a bit higher in some places.

Most niteries report that reservations have been coming in briskly, with throngs anticipated.

New Year's parties will be held for the first time in two of Long Beach's newest showplace spots—Jim Stockman's Edgewater Inn and the Sans Souci and Cafe Lafayette party rooms at the Lafayette Hotel. Facilities at both hotels were constructed this year.

THE LAFAYETTE'S DINNER party, $15 per person, will include a continental-champagne dinner in the Cafe Lafayette, plus a reservation for midnight in the Sans Souci room, where there will be dancing and Las Vegas-style entertainment. The headliners will be DuPont and Yumi, who offer sophisticated humor, and the Greenwood Brothers, producers of Hootenany 1964 routines. There will be a $5 charge for persons attending only the Sans Souci party.

The glamorous, large Parisian Room at the Edgewater will feature a full-course gourmet dinner, dancing and entertainment for $10 per person. The Parisian opens into the adjacent Sabre Room where smooth trombonist Kent Larsen and his band will entertain. Comic Joe Cetani will supply happy patter and songs.

BUSH

Dancing to two bands will be featured at Mr. C's, 5305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., one of the largest and most spectacularly beautiful tropical-Oriental restaurants in Southern California. Eddie Bush and his tropical dancers will stage floor shows in the Ming Room, while La Voy Halle and Rubin Quintero entertain in the Lanai Room. A full-course Mandarin or steak dinner, including a bottle of champagne, will be $20 per couple.

ACE BANJOIST WES TAYLOR and the Burlap Sisters will entertain at the party in the Gay 90s restaurant, 2500 Palm Dr., Signal Hill. The $15-per-couple tab will include a steak dinner, champagne, hats, horns, dancing and community singing.

The elegant Stuft Shirt Restaurant, 2241 W. Coast Hwy., Newport Beach, will feature dancing to Jimmy Lane's orchestra. Complete dinners will be $5.50 to $7.50.

Cocoanut Grove band leader Dick Stabile and his orchestra will play at the party in the large Jamboree Hall at the Newporter Inn, 1107 Jamboree Road, Newport Beach. The tab for dinner and dancing will be $17.50 each.

AMSTERDAM

One of show business' outstanding personalities, comic Morey Amsterdam, will top the show in the Anaheim Bowl's huge Chario Room, 1925 W. Lincoln Ave., Anaheim. Amsterdam, who stars on the Dick Dyke TV show, will be backed by big Tiny Little and his group, plus George and his Musicmakers. The tab for dinner and dancing will be $14.55 per person, including tax. Cocktail reservations will be $9.35 each, incdluding tax.

Cute Sandy Sanders, a delightful vocalist-pianist, will entertain, along with a trio, at the continental Chandelier restaurant, 4205 Atlantic. There will be dancing, favors, and a special champagne dinner, $10 per person.

DINING OUT NEW YEARS DAY

NEW YEAR ONCE BEGAN MARCH 25

Much Tampering With Calendar Before Modern Version Evolved

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was a pain in the neck. New Year's Eve falling on March 24.

At least, according to documentation on file at World's Fair Time Center's Swiss pavilion, as recently as 1751, New Year's Day was celebrated March 25.

But that was before the makers of calendars fiddled with time in unision to give us the calendar we use today.

The contemporary calendar is only the latest of many. One early calendar was developed by Romulus, founder of Rome, who started his calendar at the vernal equinox, March 25, and ended it on Jan. 24.

This calendar had just 10 months and missed 60-some days. The names of the month, as per the Romulus calendar: Martius, Aprilis, Maius, Junuis, Quintilis, Sextilis, Septembris, Octobris, Novembris and Decembris.

* * * *

A FEW years later, the Roman Emperor Numa thought it awkward to be missing months. He added three. January became the first month, Februarius became the last and Mercedonius was thrown in every other year. Otherwise, things just didn't come out right.

The first dependable calendar came in 532 A.D. but came to hard times 1200 years later. Roman Emperor Dionysius figured the solar year is 365.25 days long. He was wrong, say the Swiss time authorities. It is 365.2422 days long.

Seems like a trivial error. But it amounted to one day in 128 years.

By 1582, Easter was falling in the winter and the Council of Trent decided to authorize the Pope to repair the situation. He did and the world's calendar jumped from Thursday, Oct. 4, 1582, to Friday, Oct. 15 —everywhere but in England and her colonies.

Brittania and her American colonies finally got around to the change in 1752—and at the same time changed New Year's Day to Jan. 1.

As recently as 1940, Russia changed its calendar to conform to that of the rest of the world. In 1929, Stalin had decreed the month would consist of six weeks of five days each — with four days of work and one of rest. The extra five or six days at the end of the year were holidays.

Hutton L.B. Office Has New Chief

Appointment of Charles "Tod" Barrington as manager of the Long Beach office of E. F. Hutton & Co., Inc., has been announced by Murray Ward, Hutton senior vice president, at his Spring Street, Los Angeles, headquarters.

Barrington succeeds William C. Ferguson, who retires at the end of this year after 30 years of service with the New York Stock Exchange member firm. "Fergy" will remain on for the month of January as a registered representative, winding up his business affairs and assisting the new manager in the take-over of duties.

Barrington previously was manager of the firm's Wilshire Boulevard office. He started with the firm in 1945 as a registered representative. Barrington and his wife have a daughter, Susan B. Hunter, and a son, William.

Donald E. Leedom will continue as assistant manager of the Long Beach office, Ward stated.

Community Savings Offices to Show Art

The New Year will be ushered in with a "contemporary landscapes" art exhibit at all Community Savings offices Jan. 2 through 10, according to Roger E. Dunn, president.

The collection has been selected from the works of three leading European and American artists who have one thing in common — the landscape.

There will be landscapes of Mexico and Spain by Richard Kozlow. Pierre Barat's brush will give strong feeling of the Paris countryside. The exceptional, highly imaginative feeling on canvas is brought to the exhibits by Ron Blumberg.

"The public is invited to attend these unusual showings at our Compton branch, 477 E. Compton Blvd.; in Paramount at 15359 Paramount Blvd., and in Long Beach at 3901 Atlantic. All paintings are exhibited through courtesy of the Raymond Burr Galleries of Beverly Hills," Dunn commented.

Coffee and refreshments will be served each day during opening hours and a free "master in miniature," set on its own easel, will be presented to each attendant.

Cortese's Leisure World Concept of Living Accepted by Thousands

The New Year will find nearly 11,000 retired-age citizens living "the way of life" of Rossmoor Leisure World at Seal Beach.

Ross W. Cortese's first self-contained retirement community was a phenomenal success during 1963, so much so that the happiness and security found at the Seal Beach community will be duplicated for thousands more at two new Leisure Worlds which have become a reality at the turn of the New York.

The second Leisure World has completed the initial phase of construction at Laguna Hills.

On the same construction schedule is Cortese's third Leisure World at Walnut Creek, 15 minutes driving time from Oakland.

• • • •

FOR THE past two weekends, during the current pre-sales preview, nearly 3000 visitors each weekend have inspected five acres of elegantly furnished models at Leisure World in Laguna Hills, reports William G. Grangham, national sales manager. The public also is shown the first of seven luxurious clubhouses costing $850,000 and the handsome administration building, which contains a branch of the United California Bank and a furnishings studio.

The public pre-sales preview continues at the Laguna Hills Leisure World, located adjacent to the Santa Ana Freeway at the El Toro Blvd. off-ramp near fabled Laguna Beach art colony.

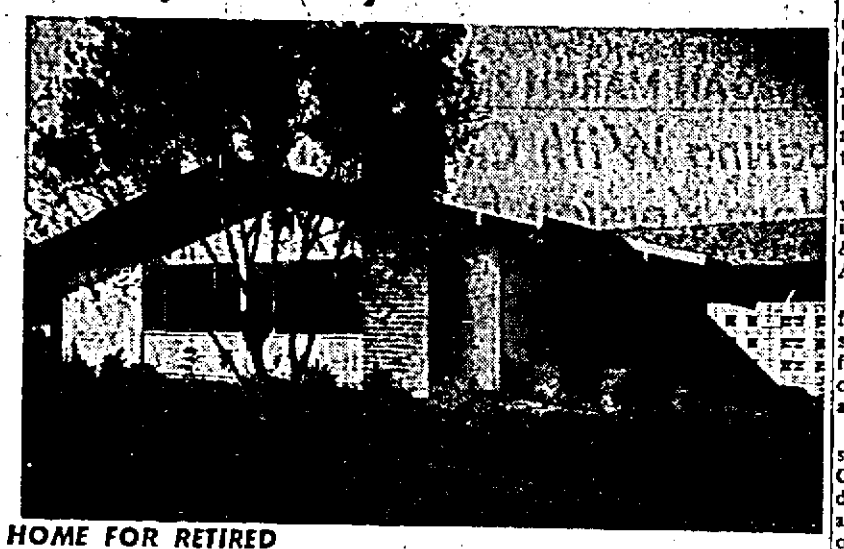

• • • •

THIS $500 MILLION retirement community will have 18,000 luxury share-owner-ship manors upon completion, and house more than 30,000 persons.

Walnut Creek's $250 million community will contain 10,000 luxury manors upon completion, and will house nearly 18,000 persons.

Soon there will be Leisure Worlds at Olney, Md., in the greater New York area, in Illinois, Hawaii and two in Europe.

It is, indeed, a happy New Year for Ross W. Cortese's Leisure World concept.

Apartment Units Due to Replace Del Mar Hotel

DEL MAR (UPI) — City Council approval was the final hurdle faced by developers today who plan to demolish the historic Del Mar Hotel and construct a $10 million apartment complex on the site.

The Planning Commission voted 3-1 in favor of granting a permit to Moote, Kempa & Galloway, Inc., of Santa Ana.

Guy Greene, land planner for the firm, said during a six-hour hearing that the firm plans a four-building complex containing up to 420 apartments.

Greene said that with speedy approval of the City Council, the hotel would be demolished in nine months and construction would start on at least one building. The council is to act Monday on the commission's recommendation.

Deane Named to Builder Group's Top Committee

William Blackfield, Honolulu, new president of the National Association of Home Builders, has invited Ben. C. Deane, Huntington Beach home builder, to serve on the NAHB executive committee.

Announcement of the selection was made by Robert A. Olin, president of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties, of which Deane is a past president and a director.

The formal invitation to become a member of the NAHB top committee was made at the NAHB annual convention-exposition just concluded in Chicago.

Deane has been active in home building in Southern California for 30 years. He was president of the HBA in 1958, first vice president in 1957, has been director since 1955, and has served on its regular and special committees.

Videosonic Exec Named at Hughes

FULLERTON—William R. Deutsch of Santa Ana has been appointed education and research director for the Videosonic Systems division, Hughes Aircraft Co., C. H. Brubaker, Hughes vice president and group executive, has announced here.

Deutsch formerly was head of automated teaching research and development for Rheem Manufacturing and Corrigan Communications. He also was associated with Douglas Aircraft Co. for more than seven years developing automated training concepts.

Compton Firm Adds Engineer to Staff

COMPTON—Concrete Tie, Compton, has added Stephen G. Shewak to its engineering staff.

Shewak has been active in the engineering and construction field since 1954. His previous California assignment was at Huntington Harbour, $200 million residential marina, where he was the assistant project engineer.

His Huntington Harbour assignment involved work under project engineers Moffett and Nichol of Long Beach.

Profit-Sharing Brings Bonuses at Realty Firm

A new profit-sharing program has brought added sparkle to Christmas at the office of Crabtree Corners, Inc., Realtors, at 2069 E. Pacific Coast Highway, Long Beach.

Glenn E. Crabtree, president, announced distribution of $3,864.93 in bonuses at a staff Christmas party. Sharing in this were Madrid Richards, general manager; Ray Fogle, Ralph Spencer, Barbara Johnson, Vince Parke and Crabtree. Only those with the firm at least eight months are eligible for the bonus.

Crabtree said the firm had topped $4 million in sales the past year, which saw doubling of office space at the Coast Highway address. He expects the sales force will have doubled by February.

Crabtree said 1963 was the company's best year for business since it was started 18 years ago.

49 Awards Made by Hodges Co.

Awards for outstanding sales of residential real estate were presented to 49 associates of the Rex L. Hodges Co., at the Christmas dinner-dance Dec. 23, according to Robert C. Westmyer, company president.

Recognition for sales of more than one million dollars went to C. L. Bevington and Ric Owen.

Winners in the over one-half million category were: Kenneth Moffatt, Walter Richman, Enzo Barbati, Jack Saxon, Helen Williams, Robert Hendon, Marge LaBranch and Madalyne Ursano.

Five of the 14 local offices of the Hodges Co. received recognition for home sales of more than two million dollars, including the Downtown, Wrigley, Bellflower Boulevard, Uptown Atlantic and Carson Street offices.

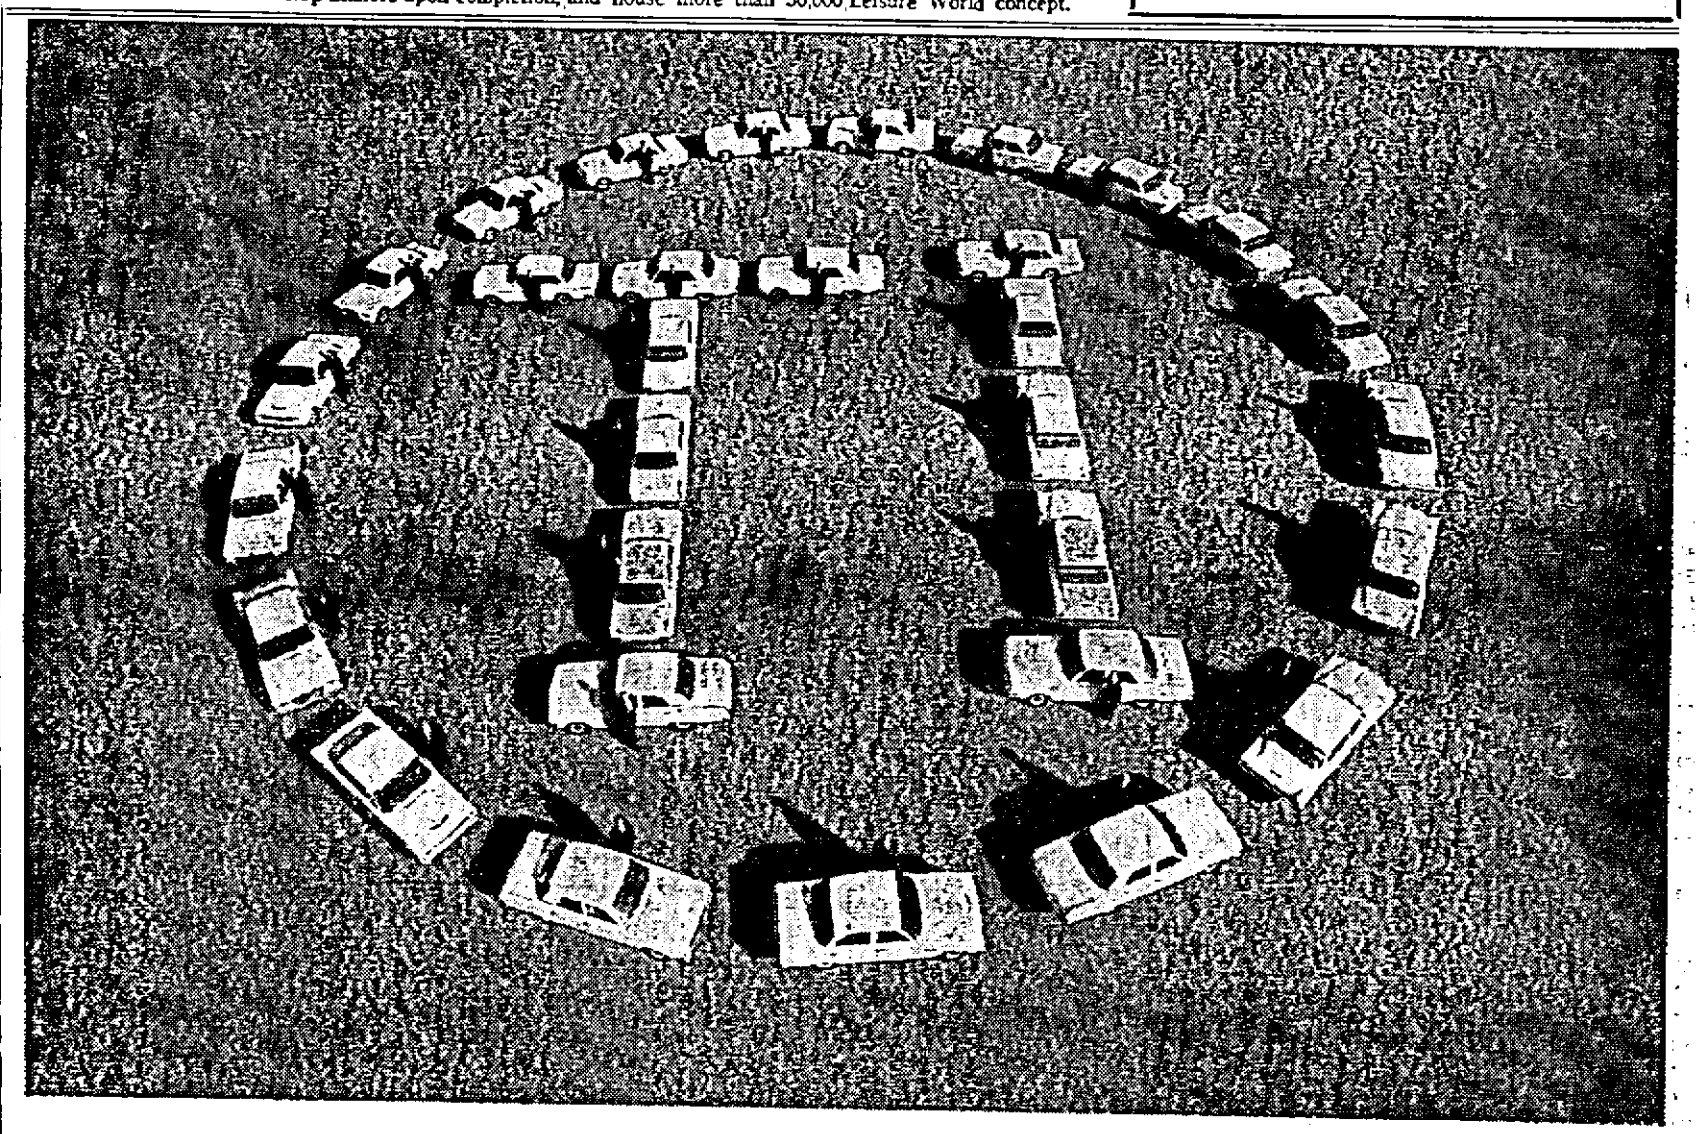

Bonuses and gifts to sales and office personnel exceeded $23,000, an all-time high for the company, Westmyer said.

Citrus Co-op Sales Tally at $222 Million

Total delivered value of sales by Sunkist Growers, world famous California-Arizona citrus marketing co-operative, during its 70th year ending Oct. 31, 1963, was $222 million, comprised of $177 million fresh fruit and $45 million products, F.R. Wilcox, general manager, reported to the Sunkist board of directors at the recent annual meeting in Los Angeles.

"This was an increase of $29 million over sales for the previous year," Wilcox said, "on a volume of business of 43½ million cartons or 9% more than that of the 1961-62 season, despite crippling losses to navel oranges particularly during the cold weather of last January."

Fresh Sunkist citrus shipments, including those moving over-water in export channels, were made up of 27.3 million cartons of oranges; 13.8 million cartons of lemons; 2.1 million cartons of grapefruit and 143,000 standard cartons of tangerines. A total of 366,000 tons of all varieties was processed by the two Sunkist products plants.

IN LOS ALTOS SHOPPING CENTER

Broadway Store Will Add Floor

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

A multi-million dollar expansion and remodeling program for the Broadway-Long Beach Store in Los Altos Shopping Center was announced Saturday. Work will begin at once.

The announcement came in a joint statement from C. Arnholt Smith, chairman of the board of Westgate California Corp., owners of the big shopping center at Bellflower Boulevard and Stearns Street, and from Dorothy Marshall, vice president of the Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., and general manager of Broadway-Southern California.

THE BROADWAY STORE expansion, which may run well over $4 million when complete, is one of several major expansions planned for the coming year in the Los Altos Center, Robert Graham, Westgate vice president, revealed.

When the Broadway Store expansion is completed the store will have approximately 50 per cent more selling area, including a complete new third floor, expanded interior areas and a $100,000 auto facility.

"A year after Westgate acquired the center, we undertook a survey of the general Long Beach-Lakewood-West Orange County area," Graham said.

"We wanted to determine how well our center was serving the areas, and, most important, what part Los Altos should play in the future of the area.

"WHEN THE PRELIMINARY results of the survey were disclosed 18 months ago, we immediately discussed with some of the center tenants, including the Broadway, the potential trade of the area.

"Both Broadway and Westgate felt enthusiastically that plans should be made at once for an expanded center. Since the survey we have experimented with prototype areas and all have met with amazing success for the future of the center."

The present Broadway Store in Los Altos Center has a full basement and two floors.

The new third floor is of unusual design. It features massive arches at the building top, extending the roof five feet beyond the walls, and is so designed that it will blend with the current architecture of the center as well as that planned in the immediate future. The rear of the present store will be given a new face and entrance. Welton Becket & Associates is the architect firm.

PLANS CALL FOR the complete refurbishing of the store interior at a cost of $1 million. The ground floor level and the second floor are to be modernized from floor to ceiling. Generous use of wood paneling, carpeting and terrazo is planned.

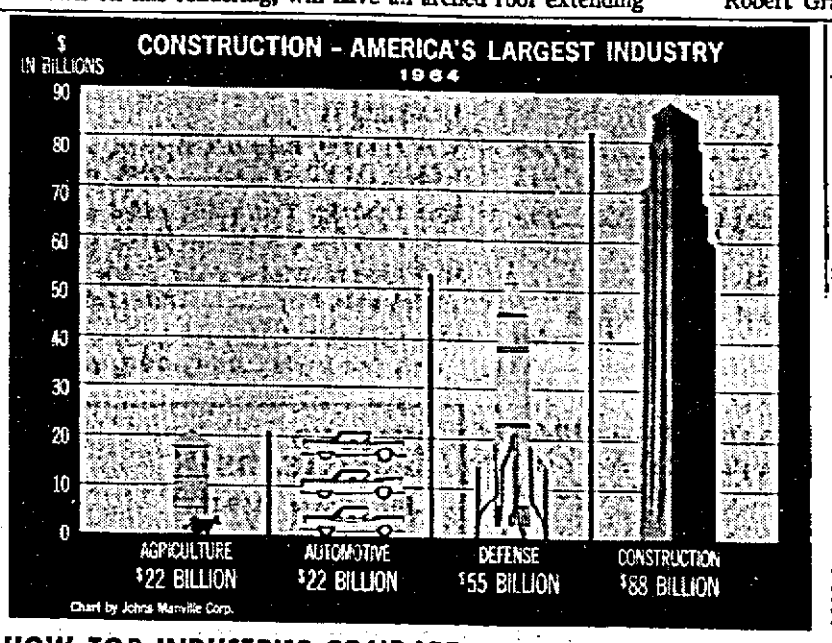

Additional lines of merchandise, not available in the past because of size limitations, will be stocked by Broadway-Long Beach. These will include furniture, home furnishings and expanded areas of fashion. Charles Luckman & Associates will coordinate the interior design and fixtures.

Construction is expected to be completed in about one year. The store will remain open during the construction.

Broadway to Enlarge Long Beach Store

A MAJOR EXPANSION PROGRAM that will increase the selling area by 50 per cent has been announced for the Broadway-Long Beach Store in Los Altos Center. The new floor, as shown on this rendering, will have an arched roof extending five feet beyond the building. More than $1,000,000 will be spent on refurbishing the present store, which has two stories and a basement. Plans for the expansion were revealed by Robert Graham, vice president of Westgate-California Corp.

HOW TOP INDUSTRIES COMPARE
Chart shows how construction industry leads in outlook for 1964, exceeding runner-up defense industry by $33 billion.

IN FIVE YEARS . . .

Orange Co. Gains 1,453 Businesses

In five years, 1,453 more businesses have opened in fast-growing Orange County, an increase of 23.1% to 7,746 businesses.

James L. Gravlee, regional manager of the Los Angeles office of Dun and Bradstreet, which keeps tabs on the state of the state's financial health, said that the finding was incident to compilation of a reference book due off the presses next month.

He said the reference book's listings showing the increases consider only those manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers who seek and grant commercial credit.

Naturally, he said, the total list of business enterprises will be much larger, since many operate on a cash basis and neither seek nor grant credit.

• • • •

SANTA ANA, with 1,350 such enterprises, has the largest number but showed gain of only 2.9 per cent in five years. Anaheim, with 1,157 places, reporting, showed a gain of 31.8 per cent, and is second numerically.

Costa Mesa showed a spectacular 42.8 per cent gain, with 709 businesses today as compared to 495 five years ago. Garden Grove has 605, a gain of 16.5 per cent.

Westminster, with 138 businesses in this category, has the same number reporting five years ago.

$88 Billions Construction Seen in 1964

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Americans are reported getting ready to spend $88 billion on construction of all kinds in the election year of 1964, an amount equal to one-seventh of the $615 billion Gross National Product forecast for the same period.

This would establish a new, all-time record high and place the construction industry, already a mainstay of the American economy, very close to equalling in GNP dollar value the next three largest industries combined—national defense, the automotive industry and agriculture.

• • • •

AN EARLY ANALYSIS of the 1964 construction market by Johns-Manville Corp., a world-wide manufacturer and distributor of building materials and products for industrial construction and operation, estimates that new building of all kinds is headed toward a $67 billion record in 1964, of which $47.6 billion will go for private building and $19.3 billion for public new construction.

New public and private housing together will get $21.8 billion in 1964, up 5.8% compared with $20.6 billion in 1963.

• • • •

OUTLAYS for new construction in 1964, according to the J-M market analysis just made public, will be augmented by additional expenditures of around $21 billion for building materials and supplies used in remodeling, repairs and maintenance of existing structures — adding up to an $88 billion construction year, compared with about $86 billion in 1963.

Except for 1958, maintenance, repair and remodeling expenditures have increased steadily for the past 13 years.

• • • •

INDUSTRY now seems likely to spend up to $43 billion in 1964 for continuing widespread plant expansion needed to keep up with the growing American economy.

A new, high level in capital expeditures now seems assured for 1964.

The outlook today is good for prospective home buyers who want to borrow, and all indications are that this favorable situation will hold well into 1964.

New Bank Planned at Bellflower

BELLFLOWER — Application for a new financial institution to be known as "The Bank of Bellflower" has been filed with the California Banking Department, according to the agency's weekly bulletin.

Mac Frankel, local public accountant for the past 23 years, is spearheading the organizational work with the aid of E. D. Mitchell, owner of Centerwood Plaza, shopping center located at Lakewood and Alondra Boulevards.

• • • •

FRANKEL indicated that other community leaders involved in the proposed formation of the bank included Mayor Norman Murray, realtor; Joe Hartstein, jewelry store owner; Jack Fishman of the Bellflower Credit Bureau; George J. Elkouri, automotive dealer, and Larry Bonzer, Long Beach manufacturer of electronic components. He said numerous other local merchants and professional people had been invited to associate.

"The Bank of Bellflower application proposes a capitalization of $1.5 million. As of the present time we are in the preliminary stages of organization and all determinations, including whether we receive a charter are within the discretion of the superintendent of the State Banking Department," Frankel said.

COAST COLLEGE 'HOME WORK'

Students Learn by Constructing House

By BOB GEIVET

It isn't much like a classroom, this Polynesian product. But for Orange Coast College's construction technology students it's a "learn-by-doing" project.

The house the boys are building is of six rooms, a "true" Polynesian style. It is ultra-modern, however, and will be fully-equipped with electrical devices, wall-to-wall carpeting and lush appointments.

It's to have a shake roof, but inside the living room there will be a tiki roof to carry out the motif of the design, it was explained by Robert Simonds, instructor of the college's building trades.

• • • •

IN HIS WORDS, Coast "has the most comprehensive and practical course in construction of any college in the nation."

The Polynesian house is a case in point. Students help design it, make the blueprints, then interpret them into lumber and finishing materials. They do almost every job incident to the construction, and their work must pass city inspection just as any other house.

That's because the college will market the building after it's finished in 1965. It will be moved off campus, and put up to bid. Money realized from the sale goes to buy more lumber and materials—and tools.

• • • •

FIVE DAYS a week, the construction technology students learn in the lecture room. They hear about framing, finishing, field layout, roof framing, cabinet making and new techniques.

Then, in the other hours, they build.

Simonds said that his boys get a comprehensive review of their studies and experiences on the job. It winds up the two-year course in the final six weeks, and prepares them for the California building contractors' license examination.

Building is the No. 1 dollar-volume industry in Orange County today, and Simonds said it will continue that way for at least the next 20 years. His boys, he said, will be in there working—and drawing big pay—because their time in Coast counts on their journeyman time.

List Purex on Exchange

Purex Corp., Ltd., of Lakewood, manufacturer of household and industrial cleaning products and drugs and toiletries, is now listed on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange, it has been announced by Thomas P. Phelan, Exchange president.

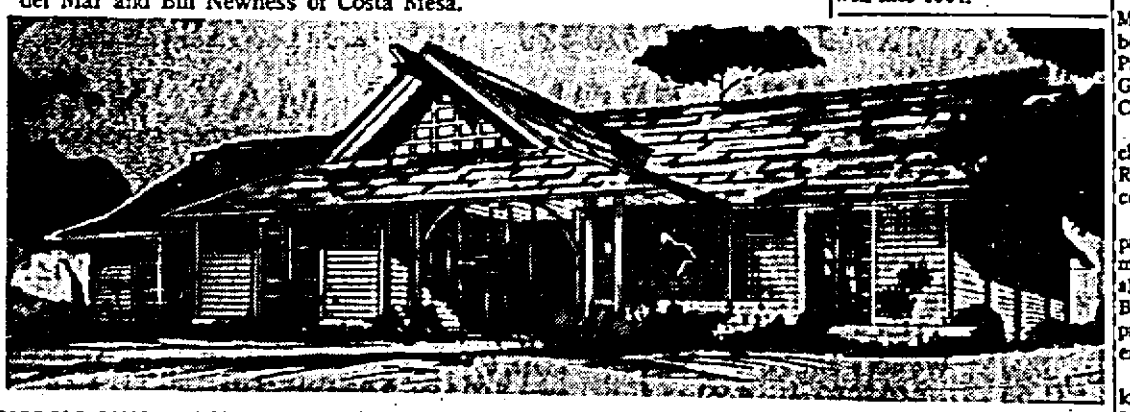

The issue was listed simultaneously on the New York Stock Exchange. The stock, which formerly was traded over-the-counter, was assigned the ticker symbol PRX.

2 Industrial Projects Set

LA MIRADA — Construction of two manufacturing plants containing 20,000 square feet of floor space will get under way shortly after Jan. 1, officials of Central Manufacturing District, owners of the 5,000-acre La Mirada Industrial Park, announced.

William Beaver, sales manager for CMD, said the H. B. Fuller Corp., manufacturers of industrial adhesives, will build on a two-acre site near Alondra Boulevard and Valley View Avenue.

The Elcen Metals Co. of Chicago, producers of metal products for the plastering trade, will build a warehouse on a 1.3-acre site in the same vicinity.

Bellflower Women Realtors Install

BELLFLOWER — Realtor Frankie Harrell was installed as 1964 president of the Bellflower Chapter, Women's Council, Bellflower District Board of Realtors, at the December luncheon of the group held at Hody's Restaurant, Lakewood.

Installed as officers with Mrs. Harrell before 71 members and guests were: Frances Parker, vice president; Gladys Leahy, secretary; and Carolyn Frlan, treasurer.

President-elect Isabel Mitchell, Southeast Board of Realtors, was installing officer.

Mrs. Mitchell has served as president of the National Women's Council, of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and has long been prominent in Board and Women's Council work.

Outgoing officers for the local council are President Lena Jenkins, Frankie Harrell, vice president; Mary Festa, secretary; Carolyn Frlan, treasurer.

'GOLDEN' EGG FEARED

Heat on Huskies, Illini

By JEROME HALL

Over the past half century the football contest that is played annually on New Year's Day at Pasadena has built a reputation as the best football game of them all.

Those who would dilute our language call it the "granddaddy of the bowl games." It has, more often than not in recent decades, amounted to the national championship playoff.

An emotional climax to a day of world-recognized pageantry, that's what the Rose Bowl game has been.

But what of the 1964 renewal, now only hours away?

This is the golden anniversary of the Rose Bowl. With 50 years of history, this is the one the Tournament of Roses Assn. was hoping would be at least as good as the 49th, which likely will be remembered forevermore as the best Rose Bowl game, one of the most exciting football games ever watched anywhere.

But what does the Rose Bowl get this time? A team from the West with almost as many defeats as victories. A team from the Midwest that is, at best, an ordinary club which scraped through on top in the worst season the Big 10 has known since it acquired the reputation as the strongest conference in the country.

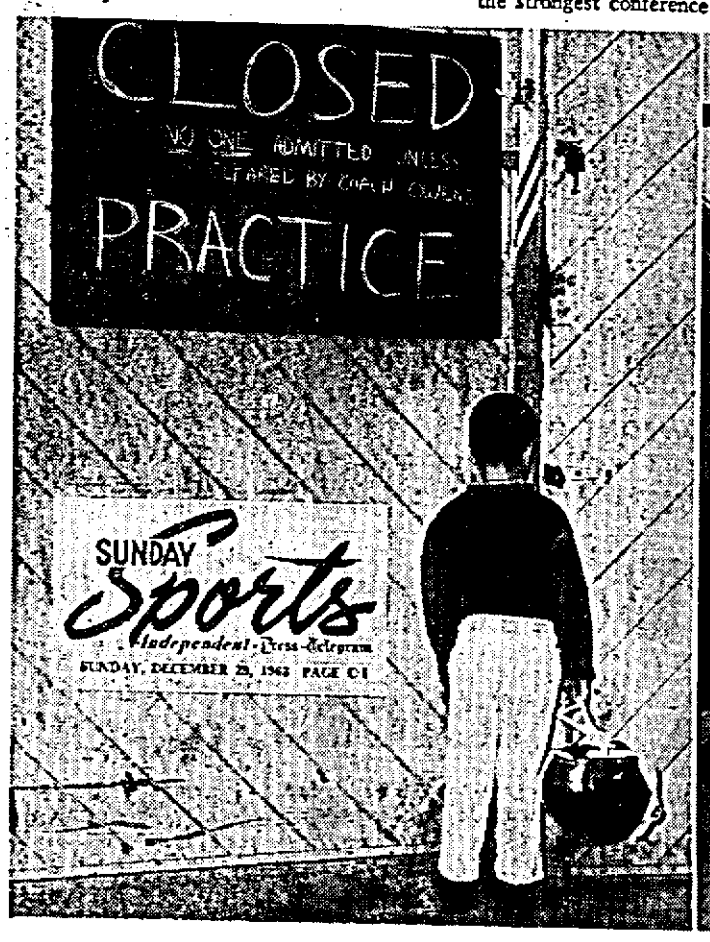

Last year the Rose Bowl had the No. 1 team and the No. 2 team in the nation. This year the West's representative is unranked. The Midwest's was ranked because there were no good teams this year.

What all this means is that Wednesday's game will be played for football fans. Not for those who attend a game merely because they had a friend who could get tickets.

The latter types will be among the 100,000 at the famed stadium Wednesday, but they'll be disappointed.

There is nothing spectacular about either

WHEN A FELLA NEEDS A FRIEND

When you're 5 years old and a football fan, too, and a Rose Bowl team training in your hometown closes the gates to its practice field . . . well, Matt Baker finds it just too tough to take.

SORRY, SON, WE ONLY WORK HERE

Washington players Ron Medved (left) and Bill Douglas aren't much help in surmounting the barrier to Veterans Stadium. "All right, then," says Matt, "where can I find this guy Owens?"

—Long Beach News Bureau Photos by John Krag's.

SEE, HE AIN'T SO TOUGH!

"No, sir, I'm not an Illinois spy . . . Yes, sir, I promise to root real hard for you Wednesday . . . How'd I like to play football in Seattle someday? . . . Gee, I'd have to ask my mom!"

BROWN SCORES ONLY WEST TD

East, West in Standoff

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "That line play in the Shrine game was the strongest I've ever seen," said Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian Saturday after the East and West battled to a 6-6 deadlock.

"There was a lot of head-knocking both ways. But Carl Eller (Minnesota), Mike Reilly (Iowa) and Dave Ellison (Purdue) all did great jobs for the team."

That was about the story of the game which ended 6-6 — mostly rugged tackling, vicious blocking, hard-nosed plunges in the line and those 10 pass interceptions.

	West	East
First downs	14	18
Rushing yardage	65	164
Passing yardage	173	162
Passes	18-36	11-24
Passes intercepted by	3	3
Punts	6-39.8	5-36.2
Fumbles lost	3	2
Yards penalized	26	12

Willie Brown of USC and the West was chosen the outstanding player of the game, but head coach Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue and the East thought the honor should have gone to Paul Warfeld of Ohio State.

Both sides claimed they could have won the game.

Jerry Richardson of West Texas and the West team said he trapped Sherman Lewis of Michigan State behind his own goal line—but the officials ruled it was on the one-foot line.

If Richardson was right, then it would have been two extra points on a safety for the West.

But Mollenkopf said a mix-up in signals cost the East a touchdown just before the half.

"We had third down and a foot to go," said Mollenkopf. "Our quarterback thought we had made a first down. On

WILLIE'S IN ON THEM ALL

Willie Brown (26) of USC, voted outstanding player of the East-West Shrine game Saturday, couldn't quite cope with this pass interception by Paul Warfield in first quarter, but Willie came back to intercept two of his own and score touchdown which eventually enabled West to tie East, 6-6.

Giants, Bears Collide for Title Today

New York Close Pick at Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Y. A. Tittle and the pass-minded New York Giants will slug it out with the Chicago Bears' alert defense and ball control offense today for the championship of the National Football League.

The NFL title game at Wrigley Field shapes up as a fine match of slugger against boxer. Tittle is primed with the long ball bomb, trying for the quick kayo. The Bears figure to be bobbing and weaving, picking off Tittle's best efforts and then grinding it out with Bill Wade's short tosses and the running of Willie Galimore, Ron Bull and Joe Marconi.

Weather is a most important factor in this sixth title game between these old rivals, who played the first championship game in 1933. Slim odds favoring the Giants are based on no blizzard or gale winds to dull Tittle's accuracy. In the last two championship tests, the old bald eagle of the Giants was below par on frozen fields.

• • • •

AT LAST reports the footing was good at Wrigley Field, where hot air blowers have been used under the tarpaulin.

Both the Bears and the Giants said Saturday that the turf appeared soft enough to permit them to wear regular football cleats.

The Bears worked out for about 45 minutes and the Giants for slightly more than

UCLA Snares Classic Title

By JEROME HALL

The UCLA Bruins won the championship of the fifth annual Los Angeles Basketball Classic Saturday night, but they didn't play like champions.

By a score of 83-79 the Bruins squeezed past the University of Illinois, which was an underdog given little chance of making it a contest.

But a contest it was. And it wasn't settled until Bruins guard Gail Goodrich pushed through a short shot as the buzzer sounded.

During the previous two minutes the Big 10 team was on the verge of regaining the lead it had held for so much of the first half.

• • • •

BUT THE Bruins hung on though their margin was sliced to one point with 45 seconds remaining and the Illini turned the tables on the usually nifty UCLA boys by stealing the ball time after time while the Bruins were trying to stall out the clock.

It was the second year in a row the Bruins have won the L.A. Classic. Attendance at the L.A. Sports Arena was 13,050.

UCLA, which the night before had been magnificent in overwhelming the No. 2 ranked Michigan Wolverines, never did play up to the quality it displayed in blitzing through eight previous opponents this year on the way to a No. 4 position in the polls.

The narrow victory cost UCLA the No. 1 spot in this week's rankings. Kentucky will be on top.

Goodrich led the Bruins' attack with 21 points and was chosen outstanding player in the tournament. Teammate Walt Hazzard also was voted a place on the all-tournament team. Others selected were Illini center Skip Thoren, NYU forward Hal (Happy) Hairston and Pittsburgh forward Brian Generalovich.

The Bruins dropped behind by 6-0 and 9-2 scores before they realized the warm-ups were over. They showed the effects of over-confidence and a lazy attitude after their big victory Friday night that was billed as the actual championship elimination. The Illini were supposed to fall over dead.

It still was 24-21 for Illinois after 11 minutes but the Bruins were beginning to get their fast-breaking, hard-pressing attack into working order.

The height of Illini center Skip Thoren, who is only 6-8½, but who plays like a seven-footer, kept the Bruins in trouble. He gave the defending Big Ten champions ball control and he also gave them 15 points in the first half.

UCLA finally caught up at 28-all after 13 minutes of the coldest play they have suffered through this season. The Bruins still were not running on all cylinders but they were beginning to look like the racehorse team which had blitzed through eight opponents in a row to earn a high national ranking.

The Bruins didn't get the lead until nearly 14 minutes had been played. Reserve sophomore Dough McIntosh, sent in to give the team some spark, connected for a 30-29 score.

• • • •

THEN IN the space of three minutes near the end of the first half the Bruins moved in from a deficit to a commanding position. They grabbed a 13-point lead.

Michigan, which came into the tournament with the No. 2 national ranking and suf-

The Sunday Sermon

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . Our recent statement that the sports magazine man who declared the NFL champion would blast the AFL champion by 50 points, was a bit daffy, prompted a few letters to this department. Then, Jerry Wynn's comment that the NFL Rams would rout the AFL's Oakland Raiders by 35 points touched off another written barrage. Some of the missives were particularly amusing.

. . . "That Jerry Hall is a nut," wrote a fellow named Wes Bronson, who must have mistaken our two Jerrys, Hall and Wynn. "Oakland and San Diego score more points than any of those so-called great teams in the National League. The Chicago Bears would be mincemeat for either Oakland or San Diego." (Whoa, Wes. Better lay off that Yuletide egg nog.)

. . . "Sid Gillman's Chargers are 50 points worse than the pathetic Rams he coached when he got fired," snorted Phil J. McCauley . . . "The Bears, Packers and Giants, among others, could play just 11 men an entire game and whip the shorts off anything in the AFL," indicated Tom McInerney . . . "The AFL scoring would have the NFL team dizzy after one quarter," countered Irv Levine.

. . . And so it went. I think a woman named Bess Swearingen summed the situation the way I might: "Spot the AFL champion 21 points and you'd have a great game." Three touchdowns is about the difference between the two leagues right now. That's an improvement for the AFL, too. A few years ago that 50-point spread would have been most appropriate.

. . . Not from a Chicago writer: "Billy Wade, your ex-Ram, is the most misunderstood player ever to pull on a Chicago Bear uniform. This can be attributed to a Bear defense that has overshadowed the offense directed by Wade. Even though Wade has a fine passing record himself, he still is battling for recognition of Chicago fans. Wade is in the strange role of being a hero still waiting for cheers from the crowd." (Wade was misunderstood when with the Rams, too, but for a different reason. He got slaughtered because of an offensive line that was as porous as a sifting pan.)

JOHNNY MORRIS, the ex-Poly tadpole who had his biggest season with the Bears in '63 (and may be one of the big factors in any Bear victory today), was paid another compliment recently by a Detroit Lion opponent after the final game of the season. Detroit's Tom Hall was filling-in for Night Train Lane in a defensive corner position in the finale because Lane's wife (Dinah Washington) died the day before the contest. Said Hall: "I was unfamiliar with the position, but that Morris taught me a few lessons that should help me next year. On one obvious pass play, I thought I had Johnny covered all the way. The next second, the little guy faked me into the stands, I slipped on my buttocks and he scored a touchdown. That corner position is real tough to play, but Morris gave me some good lessons."

. . . The Dallas Cowboys' Lynn Hoyem, one of Long Beach State's alltime greats, is looking for a job in this city. He'll be waiting at the telephone (FR 5-4316) in a relative's residence at 1661 Via Arriba, Palos Verdes Estates, for any prospective bosses' calls. Lynn wants to work here . . . and we want him here.

. . . Ex-St. Anthony cager Bob McConnell, now on the frosh club at Arizona State, is in town for the holidays with a greeting from his school: A Christmas card flooded with Devils surrounding a Yule candle. The Sun Devil cager designed the very unique cards himself.

RON MAURY special deliveried a note from Hawaii, where he's holidaying, that Long Beach Surf Club has been doing great in the Makaha International Surfing Championships. He expects half the 15-member team to be in this weekend's finals. Already Mike Doyle and Corky Carroll have nabbed trial titles. Other members enjoying 80-degree weather are Candy Calhoun, Robin Calhoun, Linda Merrill, Marge Calhoun, Nancy Nelson, John Peck, Chuck Linnen, Mike Haley, Bill Neary, Kemp Ackberg, pus a few more Ron neglected to mention.

. . . Barney Boring of Long Beach State has subscribed to Amateur Wrestling News for us "in hopes of getting coverage on this most athletic of athletic events." I'm sold, Barney, especially after noting that article, "Wrestlers Excel at Football." Most notable example is Air Force's fine quarterback Terry Isaacson, who also is an all-America wrestler. His assistant coach (under Ben Martin), explains Isaacson's success this way: "It's because a wrestler looks his man in the eye and they have at it. They have to have that footwork and hand action and be ready for most anything."

. . . Note to Jim Owens: Maybe you should utilize wrestling, instead of karate, next time you meet the Air Force. Isaacson looked mighty fine in the opener against your Purple Gang.

A COUPLE pro footballers who have returned to local haunts after their autumn wars opine that the Rams made "a heckuva move" in shifting Marlin McKeever from defense to tight end. "McKeever may be the best tight end in football next season, even better than Ditka (Mike) and Kramer (Ron)," they all claim. (Fellas, the move was accidental. Marlin simply worked out as an offensive end while recuperating from injuries and ACCIDENTALLY opened everyone's eyes.)

. . . And to those readers who have wondered why I've already tabbed Washington to whip Illinois in the Rose Bowl event (with or without Coffey), I'll reply: I think both clubs are about on a par, but I think Jim Owens will outfox Pete Elliott. (And remember, I've been right about the Huskies both times before!)

Frigid Lakers Bow in Tangle

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Red-haired Johnny Kerr celebrated his crowning as the National Basketball Association's new iron man by spearheading the Philadelphia 76ers to a 114-110 triumph over the Los Angeles Lakers Saturday.

The contest marked the 707th consecutive game for Kerr since he entered the NBA in 1954. He topped the old standard of 76 created by the current 76ers coach Dolph Schayes between 1952 and 1961. At halftime, Kerr received several gifts in honor of his achievement, including one from Schayes.

The game was marked by several injuries, including a mild concussion suffered by referee Mendy Rudolph with four minutes elapsed in the third period. The referee collided with Rudy LaRusso, Los Angeles forward, and both fell to the floor stunned. Rudolph was taken to the Philadelphia General Hospital and the other referee, John Vanak, had to finish the rest of the game alone. LaRusso was able to continue.

In the first period, Al Bianchi, 76ers guard, suffered a cut over his eye which necessitated two stitches.

Kerr's 23 points and 19 rebounds were instrumental in the 76ers' third straight victory. The game was close until 79-all late in the third quarter.

Hal Greer, the eventual high scorer for the 76ers with 24 points, and Kerr played leading roles as the home team spurted to a 98-89 lead early in the final quarter. The Lakers never were able to cut that margin appreciably.

Jerry West was tops for Los Angeles with 29 points.

DENVER UPS LEAD

Blades Clipped in Overtime, 2-1

By AL LARSON
L. P-T Staff Writer

DENVER—The Denver Invaders continued their home ice success story by edging the L.A. Blades, 2-1, in sudden death overtime Saturday night before 5,374 fans at the Coliseum.

Defense man Bruce Draper's goal with only 25 seconds left in the extra 10-minute period capped Denver's 14th successive victory here and hiked their Western Hockey League advantage to 13 points over their nearest rival.

Denver scored first when Larry Keenan slapped in a 10-foot goal with 1:28 remaining in the first period.

Denver goalie Al Millar again was nearly letter perfect. The WHL's leading netminder, with a 2.33 average for 34 games, lost his shutout when Leo LaBine deflected Bob Solinger's shot into the goal with 10:29 elapsed in the third period.

Rookie Jack Norris, equally as sharp in the goal, had to do nearly twice the work of Millar. Norris batted away 39 shots while Millar had to make but 21 saves.

* * * *

THE BLADES, who turned in a lackluster performance in losing 9-1 Friday, were a different club Saturday after a severe dressing down from Alf Pike earlier in the day.

L.A. plugged its defensive holes with tight checking. So rough was the first 20 minutes of play that three fights broke out and 24 minutes of penalties were assessed.

The first bout pitted Red Bownass and Denver's Rudy Migay with the game 3:23 along. Then Mo Oftebro and John Sleaver of the Invaders went at it, and before this fight was quelled another broke out between Connie Madigan of the Blades and Fred Hucul.

The game was L.A.'s eighth in overtime play and their record now stands 2-3-3.

L.A. plays its third game in less than 72 hours when they travel to San Francisco this morning and face the Seals in a 2:30 TV encounter.

Hot Poly Breezes to Title

By SAM BENOWITZ

Poly High's prolific shooting Rabbits raced to an 18-point halftime lead and never looked back as it routed Redlands, 78-52, to win the San Bernardino basketball tourney Saturday night.

The victory was the Hares' 11th in 12 tries this season and the second consecutive year they've won this classic. The 78 points kept Poly's season average near the 80 mark, tops in the CIF.

Center Mel Reed, soph forward Chuck Moore and senior guard Billy Richard made the 10-man all-tourney. This same trio won all-tourney honors recently at Dominguez.

Another soph, Trent Gaines, enjoyed a fine four games as did reserve center Bob Wiswell. Gaines was instrumental in Poly's pressing defense Saturday and Wiswell contributed 13 points.

POLY spurted away to a 13-5 lead with only four minutes gone and the decision was never in doubt. The Hares led by 22 at one stretch, then settled for a 44-26 intermission bulge. Moore had 12 and Reed 11 at halftime.

San Bernardino won third place by whipping Burbank, while Pat Watt's 28 points led Anaheim to a fifth-place finish.

Hoop Heroes

COTTON NASH scored 23 points to lead Kentucky, shooting for the No. 1 national ranking, to a 101-81 victory over Notre Dame.

BENNIE LENOX fired in 32 points to break the All-College Tournament record in leading Texas A & M to a 99-87 win over Wyoming.

FRED CRAWFORD sank a 25-foot set shot in the final seconds to give St. Bonaventure a 64-62 victory over Drake, the Bonnies' seventh victory in a row.

BOB YAHNE got the last four points for UC Santa Barbara as the Gauchos edged St. Mary's, 72-70.

LOYOLA of Chicago, its 22-game victory streak broken by Georgetown Friday night, bounced back on the clutch shooting of Rae Miller and Les Hunter to defeat Northwestern 88-82.

L.A. CITY rivals Loyola and Pepperdine collided in the West Coast Athletic Conference tourney with the Lions scoring a 76-70 victory. In the same event, Ollie Johnson scored 27 points to pace USF to a 77-67 decision over Pacific.

WISCONSIN won the Milwaukee Classic for the second year in a row, clipping Georgia Tech, 102-64.

ROBERT MURRAY's jump shot in the final second gave Syracuse an 86-85 overtime victory over Miami and the championship of the Hurricane Tournament.

Russell, Bellamy Top NBA Choices

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Russell of Boston and Walt Bellamy of Baltimore were the only unanimous selections Saturday for the National Basketball Association All-Star game.

Russell was one of three Celtics picked for the East squad while Bellamy was chosen along with teammate Terry Dischinger for the West. The 14th annual contest is scheduled Jan. 14 at Boston Garden.

Eight men were picked for each team by sports writers and sportscasters who cover NBA games. The league's coaches will select two more players for each team next week.

* * * *

THE REMAINDER of the squads:

East: Boston—Tom Heinsohn, Sam Jones; Cincinnati—Oscar Robertson, Jerry Lucas, Wayne Embry; Philadelphia — Hal Greer; New York—Len Chappell.

West: Los Angeles — Jerry West, Elgin Baylor; St. Louis—Bob Pettit, Len Wilkens; San Francisco—Wilt Chamberlain, Guy Rodgers.

Detroit is the only team which did not place a player on the team. Thus, one of the West's last two players must come from the Pistons.

Cal Poly Scuttles 49er '5'

Long Beach State's final tune-up for its CCAA debut was in the key of A-flat Saturday night as Cal Poly of Pomona handed the 49ers a 108-83 trouncing.

A second-half combination of Bronco marksmanship and erratic 49er floor play turned what had been a nip-and-tuck affair into a rout and the seventh straight defeat for Long Beach.

It was the fifth in a row for the winners who are now 6-2.

* * * *

DURING one eight-minute stretch after intermission, the victors scored 25 points to Long Beach's six as the Broncos came up with a sparkling 58 shooting percentage in the second half.

Lyn Hodge led Long Beach with 18 points and reserve forward Ken Ammann did a good job with 12. Reserve guard Chuck Reich led Cal Poly with 18 and guard Lewis Smith was right behind with 16.

The Cal Poly JVs made it an all Pomona night by beating the 49er junior varsity 83-75 in the prelim.

Rams Bow, Pius X Rolls On

By BRUCE YOUNG

Glendale High grabbed off twice as many rebounds as Millikan Saturday night and knocked the Rams out of the Covina invitational basketball tourney with a 65-57 victory.

Millikan stayed close, thanks mainly to Bill Johnston's 21 points and timely outside shooting by Harold Timboe, from start to finish, but never led after midway in the second period.

The loss was only Millikan's third in 10 games. Glendale has a 10-4 record.

Pius X, with Dean Donnellon, Dick Zembal and Jim LaCour combining for 55 points, smashed West Covina, 73-56, for its 11th consecutive win, also in a championship bracket game.

Covina and Crawford were the others to advance to Monday night's semi-finals.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Jim Brown, record-breaking fullback of the Cleveland Browns, was selected Saturday by the Washington Touchdown Club as the outstanding pro football player of the year.

Jordan Thrashed by Dons

By RALPH OLMO

Dominguez High weathered a late Jordan rally Saturday night to score a 64-52 win over the Panthers in the finals of the Newport Harbor basketball tourney.

Jordan, now 6-2, fell behind early but made a big challenge with 7:14 left as it cut the Dons' margin to 49-45. Then Dominguez ran off eight consecutive points and the Panthers were finished.

Herb Hargate gathered four of those eight key points and wound up with 21. He, teammate Bob Miller, Jordan's Frank Savage and Walt Weller and Newport's Jack Ferguson made the all-tourney team. Savage had 14 points, Weller 13 Saturday night.

Newport, led by Ferguson, clobbered Huntington Beach to win third place.

WYNN

Man to Man

BUTKUS

BY JERRY WYNN

From the tippy-toes of his blacksmith's body to the burr-cut on top of a face locked in a "try me, I'm tough" scowl of defiance, Dick Butkus is all football player.

Just how good a player is the 6-3, 237-pound middle linebacker of Illinois can be gleaned from 1963 achievements which include 144 unassisted tackles, a barrage of "most valuable player" in the Big 10 and this comment from a Ram scout:

"If Butkus had been available for the draft this year, he would have been No. 1 on almost every club's list. He can't miss as a pro."

Just how good a player is Butkus may well hold the key to Illinois hopes of defeating Washington in the Rose Bowl Game.

How are you enjoying life in Southern California, Dick?

"Real nice . . . The weather was 12 below zero when we left Champaign so it's been fun to sit around the pool at the hotel in our shirt sleeves. We're just waiting for the game to begin. That's why we're here."

As a 60-minute player, do you have a preference between center and middle linebacker?

"I like defense best. It's more fun because you are in the action all the time. As middle linebacker, I have to watch up the middle but I also have to follow each play regardless where it goes."

You were credited with forcing seven fumbles this season. What is the secret?

"I don't have any. I use sort of a bear hug on tackles when I meet somebody head on or from the side. If I come up from behind to tackle, I kind of strip them down."

How did Illinois put a clamp on Sherman Lewis, Michigan State's great back?

"We just had good pursuit and made sure he didn't cut back. In other games, he let men come at him and then cut back by them. We were looking for this and he didn't hurt us."

Who was the best back you faced this season?

"No one in particular. DiGravio of Purdue was hard to catch on passes. Warfield of Ohio State was a good runner. The best back I ever played against was George Saimes of Michigan State last year."

Do you have a favorite among pro middle linebackers?

"No. I like to watch the pros play and hope to play pro ball after I graduate, but I've never patterned myself after anyone. They're all different. I've met Ray Nitschke of the Packers, who used to play at Illinois. He's a good guy."

Coming from Chicago, do you root for the Bears?

"They're all right but I don't root for them. I don't know which team I'll play for so I have to like them all. When I was a kid, I always rooted for the winners. I liked the Rams when they were good and had that real good fullback, Towler. I liked the Colts when they were champs."

Do you think the Bears will beat the Giants today?

"I think so. I know the Bears really want it. They have a real good pass defense, and if they can stop Tittle, they'll win. What I don't like about the Bears is their fans. They're always booing the players."

Is Illinois going to beat Washington in the Rose Bowl?

"I hope so. We had to win all our big games to get here. And this is the biggest of them all. We're going after this one."

Keep your eye on Illinois' big No. 50 Wednesday. Dick Butkus is all football player.

Texas-Navy Best Bowl Match

330,000 to See New Year's Day Classics

By the Associated Press

Texas, Navy and Illinois—college football's big three—and four others rated among the top eight in the final 1963 rankings will swing into action New Year's Day in four major post-season bowl games.

Approximately 330,000 spectators are expected to be on hand from Miami to Pasadena to watch the athletes, including five All-Americas. And virtually everyone who has the slightest interest in college football likely will be somewhere near a television set tuned to one of the games.

Based on the records, the headline attraction should be the Cotton Bowl game which sends Texas, the undefeated national champion, against an exciting Navy team which still is not convinced that it should be only No. 2. A crowd of 75,000 is expected to jam the big Dallas stadium for this one.

As a preliminary to the New Year's action, Southern Methodist and Oregon will meet in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., Dec. 31.

Here is the New Year's Day line-up:

COTTON BOWL—Texas (10-0, ranked No. 1) vs. Navy (9-1, No. 2).

ROSE BOWL — Illinois (7-1-1, No. 3) vs. Washington (6-4, unranked).

ORANGE BOWL — Auburn (9-1, No. 5) vs. Nebraska (9-1, No. 6).

SUGAR BOWL — Mississippi (7-0-2, No. 7) vs. Alabama (8-2, No. 8).

All four games will be televised nationally.

The Texas-Navy game is intriguing not only because it pairs the first and second ranked teams and two outstanding individuals — Roger Staubach and Scott Appleton — but because the teams have playing styles diametrically opposed.

The Texas Longhorns are a rugged, battering, ball-control team who have lost only two of their last 37 games and who will be playing their sixth bowl game in seven years. Of 10 victories this season, five were by margins of a touchdown or less. That's a sort of tribute to the rugged Texas defense that dares its opponents to try to score.

Navy plays an open, opportunist offense that is keyed to the skills of quarterback Staubach.

Auburn sends its fine option runner, Jimmy Sidle, against another standout quarterback, Nebraska's Dennis Claridge. That duel alone should make the game interesting.

When Alabama's disciplinarian-coach, Paul (Bear) Bryant, suspended star quarterback Joe Namath for violating training rules before the season's last game, Bama's hopes apparently fumbled. But Jack Hurlbut directed the Crimson Tide to a victory over Miami.

RAKESTRAW HOT

South Wins Civil Grid War, 21-14!

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Larry Rakestraw of Georgia put on story book aerial demonstrations Saturday, and with that advantage, the South won the Blue-Gray football game 21-14.

Rakestraw, the Southeastern Conference's leading passer and runnerup in total offense, found the target on two touchdown tosses and accounted for most of the distance on another scoring drive which traveled for 98 yards.

A partisan crowd of 20,000, watching the game under bright sun with the temperature in the mid 50s, saw the Rebels go out in front 14-0 in the first period, then held its breath as the never give up Yanks came storming back to tie the score.

Rakestraw, a 195-pound quarterback drafted by the Chicago Bears and the Houston Oilers, began clicking with his overhead shots in the final quarter and fired a 10-yard scoring pass to halfback Mallon Faircloth of Tennessee for the tiebreaker.

Faircloth previously had gone 44 yards on another touchdown pass.

Sports writers chose the Georgia passer as the game's outstanding player.

Tar Heels' Blast Rocks Air Force

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Coach Jim Hickey, whose exuberant North Carolina football team carried him onto the field three seconds before the game ended, refused Saturday to call the Tar Heels' 35-0 victory over Air Force their best game of the year.

"We played like that all year," he said in the dressing room amid pandemonium. "We had a great season."

* * * *

HICKEY SAID he couldn't single out any player as outstanding. "They were all good," he said.

Hickey said there was no secret to the Tar Heels' defense against Air Force triple threat star Terry Isaacson.

"We played a lot of passers as good as he is this season," he said. "That's not to take away from him, but we played good passers all season."

Tackle and team co-captain Gene Sigmon said Carolina stopped Isaacson on the ground by spreading the tackles and ends somewhat after the Falcon quarterback picked up good yardage on his first runs.

"The ends contained him and ran him in toward the tackles," Sigmon said.

Powerful halfback Ken Willard, who scored the first touchdown, said "This was the greatest team effort we ever made. We had a great team this season."

Vikings Sign Gator Bowl Star

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—The Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League Saturday signed North Carolina end Bob Lacey, the team's sixth draft choice.

Lacey signed right after his team blasted the Air Force Academy, 35-0, in the Gator Bowl.

Viking coach Norm Van Brocklin and general manager Bert Rose were waiting for Lacey at the North Carolina bench as the game ended. Lacey, sitting on the players' bench using his helmet as a writing base, signed the contract.

Air Force's Isaacson was tackled by Sigmon and Willard as he tried to run for a first down in the first quarter. Isaacson was injured on the play and was replaced by Jim Lindsey.

Willard tore through the Air Force defense as if it were tissue, and he had help from senior quarterback Junior Edge. Willard and Edge each scored but once, but they were instrumental in each of the Carolinians' drives.

Martin surveyed the somber dressing room and said, "I know my boys and what you saw today was not our team — not the same team I coached all year. They had a hot day and we were just flat."

Martin called Willard "as good a power runner as we've seen this year."

Isaacson echoed Martin's sentiments. "North Carolina did everything right and we couldn't contain them."

Air Force coach Ben Martin said his team had turned in "our poorest effort of the season. We've had a long season and we came flat for this one."

Pressure On in 50th Rose Bowl

competing team now that Washington's fullback has been hurt.

But both teams represent solidity of effort. The Illinois boys won the Big 10 championship by standing shoulder to shoulder and daring the opposition to knock them down. The opposition tried. The Illini line held.

Washington is a team that won by expediency. When it had its big fullback it used him to knock people down. When it didn't have him, Washington didn't win.

It isn't certain today whether Washington will have him for this game, but it seems certain he will not be able to run over the likes of Illinois while operating on a broken foot.

Junior Coffey ran for the first time at practice Saturday. He did not participate in any of the drills but merely jogged around the field.

Owens repeated his statement of Friday. "He doesn't figure in our game plans."

So this leaves only one game plan. If Washington upsets the six-points odds against it, Washington will do it with trickery.

Last time Jim Owens brought a team to the Rose Bowl it went against national champion Minnesota and won 17-7. Washington won with trickery.

* * * *

THE IDEA will be to trick Dick Butkus, Illinois' all-America linebacker. There is some thought that Washington will attempt an old piece of strategy—cause great suffering to the opponents' best lineman with a two- and three-man blocking attack. It worked in the 1960 game when Wisconsin's all-America middle lineman Dan Lanphear was reduced to inactivity in the space of two quarters. He was described the next day as "a real dud."

It happened again in the '61 game when the Huskies took aim at all-America linebacker Tom Brown.

But the Husky coaches are optimistic about making it three wins in five years. It's difficult to see why, but they are.

Giants, Bears Settle NFL Title at Chicago Today

a half-hour on an uncovered half of the field.

Phil Wrigley's baseball park will be jammed to its capacity of 46,091 and three arena locations in Chicago expect to pack in 25,500 more for the first title game showing on closed circuit television. The Chicago area will be blacked out but the rest of the nation will see the show on network television.

Chicago elbowed Green Bay out of the way, stopping the Packers bid for a third straight Western title, by beating the Packers twice and rolling to an 11-1-2 season. George Halas, 68-year-old pro football pioneer who has been around the sport since 1920, earned the Coach of the Year award for his fine comeback in the Bears' first conference title season since 1956.

Blending Wade's short passing game with a ground offense that used Galimore, Bull and Marconi as its main weapons, the Bears finished 10th in total offense. But they were first in defense.

The Bears also led the league in interceptions, 36, and fewest points allowed, 144. The deep four of Bennie McRae, Dave Whitsell, Roosevelt Taylor and Richie Petitbon ruined many an afternoon for rival quarterbacks. The linebacker trio of Joe Fortunato, Bill George and Larry Morris has been called the best in the league.

The Giants made their big noise on offense with 57 touchdowns, and led the league with 448 points en route to an 11-3 record. They scored 39 of their TDs by passing and Tittle hit for a record 36. Tittle's accomplishments during the season gave him all-time NFL career records for most completions and most TD passes. However, the Giants also boast a solid defense that has intercepted 34 passes.

Both teams fell back on the field goal with regularity. Don Chandler, who also punts for the Giants, made good on 18 of 29 tries and topped the league in scoring with 106 points. Roger Leclerc of the Bears hit on 13 of 23 field goals attempts.

Both teams pride themselves on their rugged defense. In fact, there have been a few bitter incidents in the regular season game they played last year and an exhibition game at Ithaca, N. Y., in August, won by the Bears 17-7. Ed O'Bradovich of the Bears threw a punch at Phil King of the Giants last December. In the summer game at Cornell, it was Erich Barnes, an ex-Bear, vs. Roger Davis and Andy Robustelli vs. the Bears' Ted Karras in two outbursts of extra curricular activity.

* * * *

THE GIANTS, beaten the last two years by Green Bay, 16-7 and 37-0, are not proud of their 3-10 playoff record. They are 2-3 against the Bears and never have won a championship on the road, where their record is 0-6.

Chicago hadn't won a conference title since 1956, when the Giants clobbered them 47-7 at Yankee Stadium. They used to win a lot in the old days, but there had been a 10-year gap from 1946 before they won it in '56. Their over-all title record is 5-4.

There is no danger of any tie game, like the five that threatened to decide the races during the regular season. If this game is tied, there will be a sudden death playoff, as in 1958, until somebody scores a safety, field goal or touchdown.

Giants to Try Ground, Halas Told

A story out of Chicago states that George Halas' celebrated "spy system" has discovered the New York Giants are planning to carry the attack to the Bears on the ground rather than through the air lanes in today's "Battle of the Century" for the NFL championship.

The Giants allegedly will concentrate on running plays with only occasional passing on the part of their ace thrower Y. A. Tittle, to combat the Bears' tremendous pass defense.

Coach Allie Sherman is said to believe the best way to beat the Bears is on the ground . . . that their most vulnerable point is defense against running plays.

Y. A. TITTLE
Hoping to Control Ball

That may be so, but while running is always important in football . . . professional titles usually are won in the air.

And while the Giants may strive for ball control through running . . . pro football men expect that in the end, it will be old "YAT" trying to pierce the Chicago secondary with his passing.

The Giants' alleged game plan of running may stem from the fact that Tittle doesn't seem to be up to his customary marksmanship when the weather is as frigid as it likely will be today in Chicago. Most optimistic forecasts place the temperature in the low 20s . . . which at least is a big improvement over the below-zero weather.

Two years ago in Green Bay with the field ringed with snow, the Giants' offense fell apart in the title game and the Packers won 37-0. Last winter, the cold wind whipped through Yankee Stadium with numbing force and, although the score was a more respective 16-7, the Giants lost to the Packers. However, New York's only score resulted from a blocked kick recovered in the end zone . . . not from its own offensive efforts.

SO NOW THE GIANTS AND TITTLE WILL FACE the Bears who have allowed the fewest completions of any team this season . . . 164 in 14 games.

A running attack will carry you only so far in pro football, so under normal conditions Tittle ultimately will have to take to the air, and that's when spotlight will be on the Bears' sensational deep secondary foursome of Roosevelt Taylor, Richie Petitbon, Bennie McRae and Dave Whitsell.

Taylor intercepted nine passes this season, Petitbon eight and Whitsell and McRae six each for the bulk of the Bears' league-leading total of 36 thefts.

All four are shorter and lighter than the majority of receivers they have had to cover. But they have tremendous straightaway speed . . . plus catlike moves and reactions.

TAYLOR, WHO IS IN HIS THIRD YEAR in the league, is only 5-11 and weighs 185 pounds. He was signed by the Bears as a free agent almost as an afterthought when defensive coach George Allen went down to Grambling College in Louisiana to try and sign Ernie Ladd, 300-pound tackle.

However, Ladd signed with the San Diego Chargers . . . and Allen returned to Chicago with Taylor. Pro football men say he plays roving safety with such reckless abandon that just begs for trouble. But he has great spring in his legs and his diving interceptions have been compared to some of Willie Mays' more fabulous catches in baseball.

McRae, 6-1 and 178, is only a second-year player but he's much like Taylor as he guards the left corner. He was Big Ten hurdle champion at Michigan and beat out the great J. C. Caroline for the job.

THEN THERE'S THE VETERAN PETITBON, an offensive quarterback star at Tulane who was said to be too brittle to make it in pro ball. However, he's been a defensive standout from the day he joined the professionals.

Whitsell is a special story in himself . . . a man who will have a little added incentive to beat the Giants today for he was once a member of the New Yok squad so briefly that he never got a chance to be fitted for a uniform.

It will be Whitsell's important job to cover Del Shofner, Tittle's favorite receiver.

Whitsell came to the Bears in a weird series of trades. In 1961, the Giants sent Mel Triplett, Bob Schmidt and Bob Schnelker to the newly-created Minnesota club for Zeke Smith and Whitsell.

Whitsell had been Detroit's contribution to the Vikings in the special "draft" to stock the new club.

THE GIANTS TOOK WHITSELL IN TRADE in order to complete another deal for Jim Podoley and Bob Walton of the Redskins. However, Dave refused to report.

In his place, Washington said it would accept a placekicker, but the Giants had none to spare. Thus, they sent Lee Riley to the Bears for kicker Joe Aveni.

Now it was Riley's turn to refuse to go to Chicago. However, Whitsell said he would report to the Bears . . . and the complicated deal finally was consummated with Chicago adding another vital cog to its great defensive machine.

A machine that will get its ultimate test today.

Patriots Wait for Chargers After Victory

'Babe's Best Day' as Bills Bow, 26-8

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Head coach Mike Holovak of the Boston Patriots, whose strong men had just crushed the Buffalo Bills, 26-8, in the American Football League's Eastern Division playoff game, summed it up this way:

"We're No. 1 in this league," Holovak said again and again. His blue shirt was spattered with soft drink as four or five of his Patriots waved bottles over his head.

"It was Babe's best day," Holovak said. His quarterback, Babe Parilli, hit on 14 of 35 passes for 292 yards against the Bill defenders. "He was just great, they all were — especially that defense," Holovak added.

Boston's defensive line held the Bills to a slim seven yards rushing and six of those came in the first half.

Parilli threw two touchdown passes and league scoring champion Gino Cappelletti kicked four field goals and two conversions for the triumph.

With Parilli hitting fullback Larry Garron with both scoring passes, the Patriots completely dominated the game, first division playoff in the AFL's four-year history, in snow-covered War Memorial Stadium before a crowd of 33,044.

Boston will meet the Western Division champion Chargers in San Diego, Jan. 5, for the AFL crown.

Parilli redeemed himself after a disappointing regular season by his touchdown passes of 59 and 17 yards to Garron while Boston's top-ranked defense held Buffalo to just seven yards rushing.

Bills quarterbacks Jack Kemp and rookie Daryle Lamonica both were treated roughly. Kemp left late in the first half with the Bills trailing, 16-0, and Lamonica, the former Notre Dame star, did not have much luck until firing a 93-yard scoring pass to Elbert Dubenion with 1:31 left in the third period to avert a shutout.

Lamonica hit John Tracey with a two-point conversion pass.

Parilli's 17-yarder to Garron and Cappelletti's field goal, from 36 yards, wound up the scoring in the final quarter.

YES, VIRGINIA, THOSE WERE PROS
Yes, Virginia Country Club, those were pros on your fairways Saturday. Billy Maxwell and Bobby Nichols follow path of Mike Souchak's iron shot during pro-amateur event.

67 Nets 2-Stroke Victory

George Knudson, a slim, bespectacled swinger from Winnipeg, Manitoba, stroked a sensational 67 Saturday afternoon to walk away with individual honors at the pro-member tournament at Virginia Country Club.

Each of the competing pros was paired with three club members and the field was divided into three flights.

Knudson edged out Terry Dill by one stroke. Tommy Jacobs, Bob Harrison, Jimmy Clark and Mike Souchak were tied for third at 69.

• • • •

THE TEAMS of Jacobs-John Walter, Claude Harmon-Sol Deeble and Knudson-Ray Spawr deadlocked for first place in the A flight of the pro-amateur.

Knudson, a touring pro of five years, and partner Bob Sprague shared the class B title along with Harmon and Bob Cree while Skee Riegel and Fred Yeager took C division honors.

The tournament was a tuneup for the play-for-pay boys, who begin competition in the Los Angeles Open at Rancho Friday.

Pro flight—George Knudson, 67; Terry Dill, 68; tie among Tommy Jacobs, Bob Harrison, Jimmy Clark and Mike Souchak, 69. Willie Star in Shrine Tie the next play, he called an end sweep and we lost three yards. It may have cost us a touchdown."

Coach Jim Sutherland of the West admitted he may have sacrificed some offensive strength to keep the defense strong.

But he said a defensive setup on a field goal and conversion attempt saved the day for his team.

"We put an extra man out at the end of the line and he raced across to block the kick fortunately both times, said the coach.

Brown said he had not decided yet whether he'd play pro football or baseball.

"I thought I liked football best after the 1962 season," he said. "Then I hit .360 last spring for the NCAA champion baseball team at USC and I'm going to play baseball again in the spring. I'll see after that. Then it will be a matter of money."

This was one of the greatest defensive battles ever waged in the annual Shrine affair before a sellout crowd at Kezar Stadium.

There was no scoring until late in the third period when Brown caught a pass from Don Trull of Baylor and scooted 25 yards for the touchdown.

• • • •

IT APPEARED as if the West had the game in the bag until the waning moments when little Lewis, the Spartans' all-America, scooted around end for a touchdown to tie it. The kick failed and that was it.

Trull played quarterback for all of the game for the West except for the final four minutes when Bill Munson of Utah State took over.

An East drive in the final minute was stopped when Brown intercepted a pass—his second of the game—on the three-yard line.

On total yardage, the East outgained the West by a big margin on the ground but had a deficit in the passing department.

Another USC player, Pete Beathard, who quarterbacked the Trojans throughout the 1963 season, played a tremendous game on defense.

West 0 0 6 0—6
East 0 0 0 0—0

West—Brown 25 pass from Trull (Kick failed).
East—Lewis 10 run (kick failed).

QUALIFYING STARTS MONDAY

Palmer, Boros to Play in L.A. Tee Open Friday

By JERRY WYNN

Arnold Palmer and Julius Boros will play in the 38th Los Angeles Open; Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player won't, and 295 other golfers aren't sure today whether they will or they won't.

They are the unfortunate who face a stiff qualifying test Monday to gain admittance into the $55,000 tournament at Rancho Friday through next Monday.

A field of 164 pros will compete for 34 berths—a ratio of one spot for 5½ players—at Los Coyotes, Yorba Linda, Riviera and Los Angeles county clubs.

Aspirants include such well-known pros as Stan Leonard, Bill Collins, Jim Ferree and Marty Furgol. Long Beach area hopefuls are Pinky Stevenson, Jack Doss, Monty Blodgett, Dick Carmody, Gerald Zar, Wayne Otis and Bob Marshall.

Amateurs will play by themselves this year at Brentwood and Wilshire, and there will be 131 of them battling for only nine places—a ratio of one spot for 14½ players! Long Beach area braves are Bill McCormick, Mike Fedderly, Roger Cleveland, Jim Ferrie, Jack Gates, Ernie Combs, Bob Bouchier and city champion Jim Kline.

Qualifying survivors will join 115 exempt pros and one exempt amateur—1963 winner Larry Bouchey—to form the field of 159 which will tee off Friday morning.

FORTY-FOUR of the top 50 money winners of 1963 will tangle for the $9,000 first-place purse which Palmer won this year and used as a springboard to an all-time dollar haul of $128,230.

Among Arnold's awesome adversaries are Boros, Gene Littler, Billy Casper, Doug Sanders, Art Wall, Doug Ford, Jay Hebert, Tommy Bolt, Tony Lema Dow Finsterwald, Mike Souchak and Phil Rodgers.

Practice rounds are scheduled at Rancho starting Monday and a $5,000 Pro-Celebrity event will be held Thursday. Season tickets, priced at $7.50, are on sale at all Southland courses.

K.C.'s Best Offer Nixed by Finley

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City offered Charles O. Finley a new deal Saturday for use of Municipal Stadium by his American League baseball Athletics and Finley promptly turned it down.

"I don't consider this an offer," Finley said in Chicago. "Actually there is nothing new about this offer. That was one-half of our proposal."

Mayor Ilus W. Davis had said the offer was the best in organized baseball.

The Athletics' lease for the stadium expires Dec. 31 but the city said the club could keep its office and equipment there until Jan. 10 without rent or penalty.

• • • •

THE CITY offered Finley a five-year contract with no options or escape clauses. The city would receive 5 per cent of paid attendance and 7½ per cent of revenue from concessions but would take only $50,000 a year until Finley had been repaid $300,000 he spent on stadium improvements.

"That was one-half of our proposals," Finley said. "The other half was four 4-year options whereby we would pay no rent unless the paid attendance amounted to 900,000. Then we'd pay 5 per cent of the entire gate retroactive to the first paid admission."

Sharon's Naked Reverse Tangerine Smasheroo

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Sharon Miller (male quarterback) passed for two touchdowns and ran for another to lead Western Kentucky to a 27-0 victory over the Coast Guard Academy in the 15th annual Tangerine Bowl football game Saturday night.

Miller connected for only two passes during the game, but both went for scores.

The 5-11, 160-pounder scooted around his own left end midway through the second period on a naked reverse for 14 yards and a touchdown. Sam Clark kicked the extra point.

While Miller supplied the offensive show, the defensive unit of Western Kentucky was outstanding. The Coast Guard was held to a net rushing total of five yards for the game.

Boston Draws Gillman Praise

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Head coach Sid Gillman of the Western Division champion San Diego Chargers had high praise for the Boston Patriots who nailed down the Eastern Division AFL title today against Buffalo.

The two teams will meet here next Sunday for the league championship.

"Just how well the Chargers will do next Sunday against the league's best defensive club remains to be seen," Gillman said.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Ham Richardson and Cliff Rickey won their quarter-finals doubles match in the Sugar Bowl Tennis Tournament Saturday.

The Dallas duo bested Lee Fentress and Jim Beste, both of Baton Rouge, La., 6-3, 6-4.

In another quarter-final match, Gardnar Mulloy of Miami and Chuck Pasarell of Puerto Rico scored a three-set victory over Crawford Henry and Ned Neely, both of Atlanta.

Favor Oregon in Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Southern Methodist, which stopped two of the nation's highly ranked football teams by checking their outstanding quarterbacks, gets another chance Tuesday against Oregon and its talented Bob Berry in the 29th annual Sun Bowl.

Southern Methodist, a four-point underdog, has the poorest record of any team in a bowl game this year, 4-6. Two of these victories, however, came against bowl-bound Navy, 32-28, and Air Force, 10-0.

Oregon coach Len Casanova wasn't talking about the Mustangs' record, but about SMU tailbacks Billy Gannon and John Roderick.

"They scare you with all their speed," he said. "They've got one of the fastest teams we've seen or heard about. Those two guys can get one step on the defense and cross the goal line."

Casanova was impressed with his own team, too—so much so that he called off two-a-day scrimmages after Friday's controlled scrimmage. Oregon had been able to work out just three times during December because of exams.

Berry, a 190-pound junior, completed 101 of 171 attempts for 1,675 yards and 16 touchdowns.

SHOULDERED U.S. LOAD
Chuck McKinley (left) is hoisted onto teammates' shoulders and is congratulated by captain Robert Kelleher after defeating John Newcombe to give America possession of the Davis Cup.

Champagne for U.S. Cuppers

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) —There is nothing in the world like a champagne rinse for your hair—especially if it is applied by a United States ambassador just after you have won the Davis Cup.

That was the opinion of Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., and Chuck McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., Saturday after they captured the international tennis trophy for America for the first time since 1958.

McKinley, the sturdy acrobat, clinched the cup with a 10-12, 6-2, 9-7, 6-2 victory over 19-year-old John Newcombe in the decisive fifth match. Earlier, Roy Emerson had squared the series with a 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 conquest of Ralston.

The triumphant youngsters had hardly reached their dressing rooms when the huge silver trophy was brought in.

While the athletes stood around the cup for photographers, the U. S. ambassador to Australia, William C. Battle, poured champagne over the heads of the two American stars.

"You will get pneumonia," someone yelled.

"I don't care. It's worth it," Ralston replied.

The ambassador served as a messenger boy when fans at the door asked for players' autographs.

"Hey, matey, get McKinley's autograph for me," one Australian yelled.

"Certainly, just a minute," Battle said. Soon he was running back and forth from the front door to the dressing room getting autographs upon request.

McKinley said the Davis Cup victory provided him with particular satisfaction.

"I hope we have shown many of these people that we are not what some people have said we were," he said. "We have proved we are not a bunch of stinkers."

McKinley was a member of the 1960 team which was accused of smashing up a dressing room in Perth after losing to the Italians and then causing a commotion on an airplane.

Also recently a Sydney newspaper called the Americans "a bunch of stinkers" and "the poorest sportsmen the game has known."

Bob Kelleher, the soft-spoken lawyer from Los Angeles who captained the team, said Saturday's triumph was his swan song.

"I'm through. I'm finished," he sighed, indicating that the only reason for stepping down was the strain. He has been with the team almost constantly for the past six months.

"I think we beat a great Australian team. I wonder if anybody ever has played better tennis than Roy Emerson here. Or if anyone ever stood up better in his initiation than John Newcombe. But our kids beat them."

430 Surf Stars Get Acclaim

By DAVE TAYLOR

A record field of more than 430 crack Southland surf stars completed Santa Monica's second Milwinter Surfing Championship event Saturday to mark the largest competition in U.S. Surfing Assn. history.

The surfers finished three days of competition with their final elimination events in excellent surf Saturday.

Staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the surfing championships got TV coverage over five local and national network channels.

The Midwinter, which last year attracted only 184 contestants, included a unique new feature for surfing competition — the first National Skate Board Championships.

• • • •

IT WAS the first contest on record to include an official event for skate boards on which young prospective surfers often learn the fundamentals of balance and movement for surfing by riding the small boards on the wet sand at waters edge even before they have learned how to swim.

Final winners in the various Midwinter events who received trophies at a special Surf-Fair at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium Saturday night were:

Boys (12 years and under)—(1) John Bashaw, Venice; (2) Alf Lewis, Hermosa Beach; (3) Mart Martinson, Long Beach.

Skim Board Championships — (1) Chris DeLance, Long Beach; (2) Pat Moriarty, Los Angeles; (3) Bruce Eiserna, N. Hollywood.

Men's Open—(1) Skipper "Fats" Harwood, Los Angeles; (2) Bob Moore, Palos Verdes; (3) Johnny Fain, Malibu.

Men's Open Body Surfing — (1) Jim Graham, Santa Monica; (2) Jon Price, Pacific Palisades; (3) Warner Nelson, Venice.

Women's Open Body Surfing — (1) Charlene Price; (2) Josette Lesardere; (3) Mary Lou McGinnis.

Men's Surfboard Senior Race — (1) Bob Moore, Palos Verdes; (2) Bill Bragg, Redondo Beach; (3) Roy Seaman, Malibu.

Women's Surfboard Senior Race — (1) Gail Yarbrough; (2) Dulins McGough, Long Beach; (3) Robin Leedy.

National Skate Board Championship — (1) Squeak Blanck, Playa del Rey; (2) Johnny Frelk, Brentwood; (3) Tommy Ryan, San Diego.

Smarting Rockets Face Angels at Blair

By FRANK WHITNEY

With the bitter taste of defeat still lingering from last week's loss to the Los Angeles Eagles and with the hot breath of the Huntington Park Dodgers on the backs of their necks, the Long Beach Rockets take on the always dangerous Los Angeles Angels today at Blair Field at 1:30.

The Rockets had their eight-game winning streak stopped last week and at the same time had their league-leading lead shaved to only a half-game over Huntington Park. Long Beach is 8-1 with three games left and the Dodgers are 8-2 with two games remaining.

Terry Richards is the probable starting pitcher for the Rockets.

Exciting News About Lake Mohave

J. C. Morse, former trucking contractor here and a former president of the Long Beach Sportsman's Club but now retired and enjoying life at Cottonwood Cove, Lake Mohave, rolled into town yesterday with some great news about Cottonwood Cove and the lake.

He brought along several trout in the one- and two-pound range and this writer had a good sample of those rainbows that are being planted by the Nevada Fish and Game Department.

Strangely enough, those trout were not caught in the Colorado River below Davis Dam, the mighty impoundment that holds back the waters of Mohave Lake, but right out in front of the Cottonwood Cove resort which is 29 miles uplake from the dam.

For those unfamiliar with the lakes on the Colorado River, Hoover Dam backs up the tremendous Lake Mead, famous for its bass fishing, boating and water-skiing. Below Hoover Dam, the Colorado River flows onward, sometimes at fast speed and feeds the lake called Mohave.

Davis Dam is almost 200 miles from Hoover Dam and a great portion of the lake is backed up toward Willow Beach, a resort long famous for its trout fishing.

Below Davis Dam, the Colorado flows freely again until it starts forming Lake Havasu behind the mighty Parker Dam.

NOW, LET'S TAKE A LOOK at what is happening to Cottonwood Cove, probably the most famous resort on that lake. Gordon Colton, manager of a syndicate, has just bought the resort and plans a number of improvements.

There will be new docks, a new marina (the government is planning to dredge a large area), boat houses, an air-conditioned motel and 100 additional units for trailer parking. Also, a new launching ramp is being planned.

Even now, the Cottonwood Cove Corporation, as the syndicate is known, will launch anybody's craft for $1.50.

Coming on top of the news that several Long Beach men had bought the lease and physical properties at Temple Bar, Lake Mead, it begins to look as though there will be real competition between the Colorado River lakes.

One of the natural advantages of Cottonwood Cove is the presence of rainbow trout as well as bass. Trout are rare in Lake Mead, but its bass fishing can not be excelled anywhere in the west.

Another advantage of Cottonwood Cove is that it is only 268 miles from Long Beach, almost 100 miles shorter than the distance to Temple Bar. There are closer marinas on Mead, but the fishing is not as good as it is at Temple Bar and beyond.

THE BEST WAY TO REACH Cottonwood Cove is through Baker. Continue along the Las Vegas highway until you reach Wheaton Springs, where a sign points to Cottonwood. Until just recently that section of the route was a dusty country road through Tipton. It has now been paved all the way to the cove.

Morse makes the flat prediction that Mohave will be the greatest trout-fishing lake in the west within a few years. And he has some authority for his statement. The Nevada DFG feels the same way.

That state's DFG, having few places to stock trout, is dumping tons of rainbows into Mohave. The water remains cold even in the terrific hot months of July and August and the trout merely find another level. There is no dieoff.

Also Nevada's DFG has planted great quantities of shad for forage fish and has found that the reproduction in Mohave is tremendous.

Morse says that the F7 and X4 flatfish have been the outstanding lures with the trollers. Super-Dupers also have had a part in the fish catches. Morse's largest fish has been a 7½-pounder.

His grandson, Bill Ingram, who plays trumpet in the Wilson High School band, has had his share of luck at Cottonwood, taking two weekly jackpots through the summer period. Morse and his wife live in a large trailer at Cottonwood the year 'round.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Boy Scouts of the entire South Bay-Long Beach area will compete against each other next Saturday at the Long Beach Casting Club pool in Recreation to determine the winners who will appear at the Sports, Vacation and Travel Show at Shrine Exposition Hall, Los Angeles.

The three top casters in the Cub, Scout and Explorer divisions will be chosen after the tournament here. The winners each will receive Zebco fishing outfits and will compete again in Boy Scout Council finals on Jan. 26, the closing night of the show.

The Casting Club here is anticipating more adult entries in the same show this year. Women and juniors will have special divisions. Those wishing more information on the show and the tournament should communicate with Earle Thomas or O. T. Rosecrans. Thomas is handling details of the Scouts' competition next Saturday.

Not all sportsmen will be sitting in the TV room watching parades and games on New Year Day. Some of them will be taking part in the hunters' field shoot and the trapshooters' classic, 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Long Beach-Dominguez Gun Club.

This is the third year that Bob Davidson, LBDGC owner, has staged this shoot and it has become very popular.

Hard 1st, Moffitt 2nd in Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Darlene Hard of Los Angeles, continued her domination of women's tennis in the United States when she was named today as the No. 1 player for the fourth straight year.

Despite a somewhat disappointing year in which she again failed to win the Wimbledon crown and was eliminated in the quarter-finals of the U.S. nationals, Miss Hard was considered the best of her sex by the women's ranking committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

• • • •

BILLIE JEAN Moffitt of Long Beach, who seems to perform best overseas, was moved into the No. 2 spot, her highest ranking ever. Billie Jean advanced to the Wimbledon finals this year before losing to Margaret Smith of Australia.

Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., was ranked third and completing the top 10 were Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica, Gwyneth Thomas of Shaker Heights, Ohio; Judy Alvarez of Tampa, Fla.; Carol Hanks of St. Louis, Mo.; Tory Fretz of Harrisburg, Pa.; Mrs. Donno Floyd Fales of Arlington, Va., and Julie Heldman of New York.

Miss Caldwell and Miss Moffitt were ranked No. 1 in women's doubles.

L.B. Girl in Surfing Lead

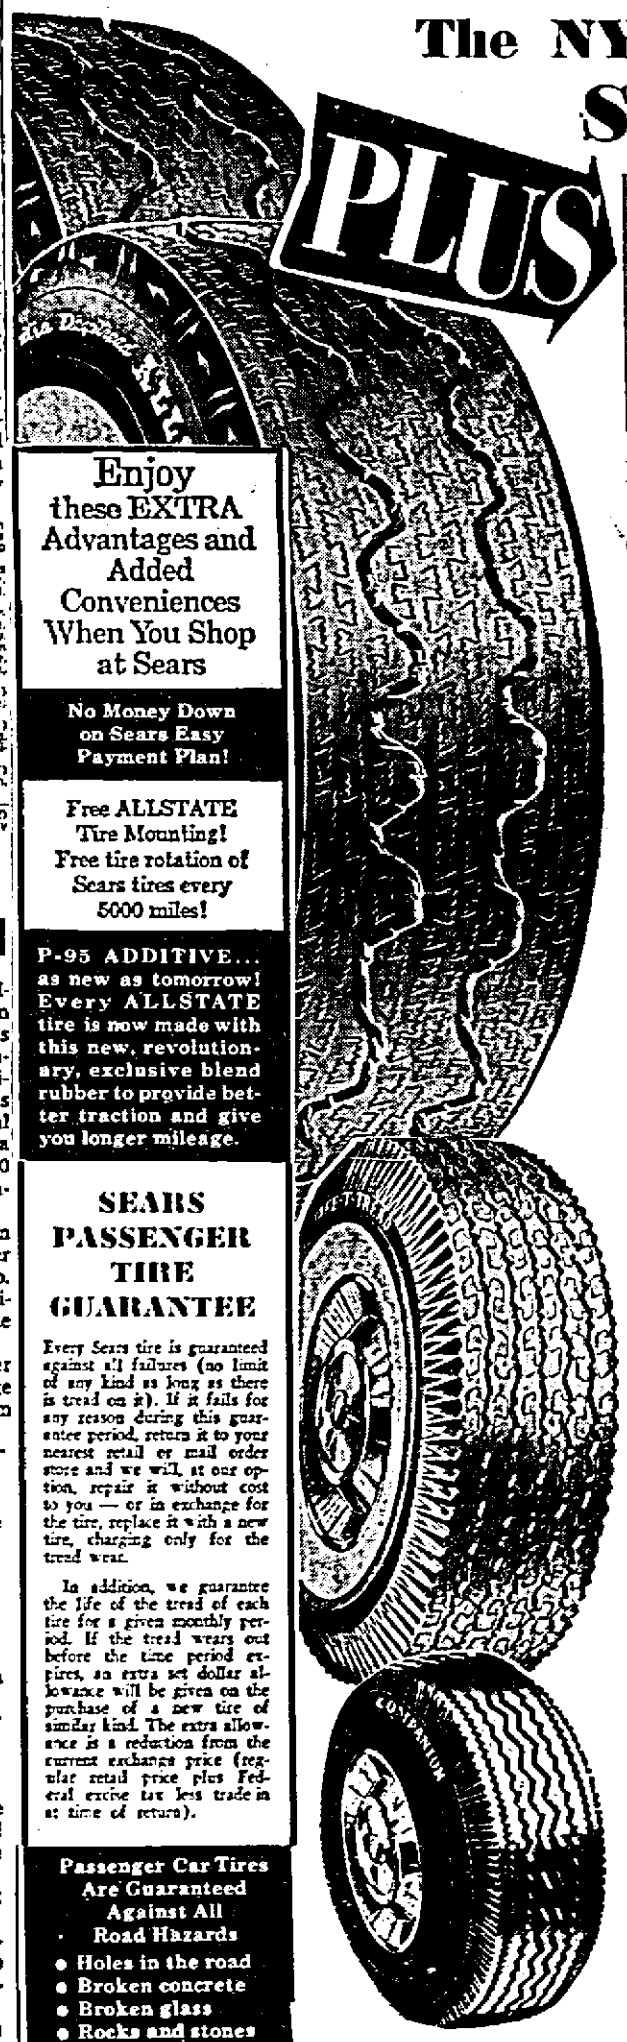

HONOLULU (AP) — Defending champion Nancy Nelson of Long Beach and Hawaii's Anona Naone, the 1961 women's champion, led 12 qualifiers into the senior women's finals of the international surfing championships as a crowd estimated at 5,000 braved rainy weather at Makaha Beach Saturday.

Miss Nelson, 17, lives in Long Beach but is a member of the host Waikiki Surf Club. She was one of seven Californians to qualify for the women's finals.

Others included a mother and daughter team, Marge and Candy Calhoun from Long Beach Surf Club.

SEARS PASSENGER TIRE GUARANTEE

Every Sears tire is guaranteed against all failures (no limit of any kind as long as there is tread on it). If it fails for any reason during this guarantee period, return it to your nearest retail or mail order store and we will, at our option, repair it without cost to you — or in exchange for the tire, replace it with a new tire, charging only for the tread wear.

In addition, we guarantee the life of the tread of each tire for a given monthly period. If the tread wears out before the time period expires, an extra set dollar allowance will be given on the purchase of a new tire of similar kind. The extra allowance is a reduction from the current exchange price (regular retail price plus Federal excise tax less trade in at time of return).

Megaton Wins in Malibu

Hill Rise and Nearco Blue emerged Saturday as early Western Derby contenders by each winning $50,112 divisions of the split California Breeders' Championship Stakes while More Megaton captured the $30,000 Malibu on Santa Anita's triple stakes program.

For Hill Rise and Nearco Blue, both late-developing colts, it was their fourth straight win each and both did the job by margins of around three lengths over a dozen rivals who represented the top juveniles in the West.

But More Megaton had to unleash an explosive charge in the stretch to score a head victory in the Malibu as the favored B. Major finished a well-beaten eighth.

* * * *

ALL THREE races were at the same distance of seven furlongs and Hill Rise and More Megaton won their battles in the identical time of 1:23 flat. Nearco Blue's time was two-fifths of a second slower.

In the first division of the Breeders' Stakes, raced as the sixth race on the program, jockey Don Pierce was forced to come wide off the turn while making his move. But Hill Rise responded quickly and pulled away from Real Good Deal, who finished second while Count Charles was third.

Off his Northern races, Hill Rise was installed the favorite of the crowd of 43,897 fans and he returned $4.40, $2.80 and $2.60. Real Good Deal paid $3.80 and $3.20. Count Charlese paid $5.00 to show.

The Malibu Stakes for 3-year-olds was the next race and More Megaton, a frequently-raced Western sophomore, did not appear to have any part of it in the early stages.

But when the field of 13 came off the turn into the stretch, jockey Ray York found a hole on the rail and the colt quickly moved from fifth to challenge the pace-setting Legation in the final sixteenth. Under a hard drive More Megaton finally got his head out in front at the wire. More Megaton returned $17.40, $7.40 and $5.00 across the board.

* * * *

THE SECOND division of the Breeders Championship looked for a time like it might be a runaway for the only filly in the race, Leisurely Kin. But Nearco Blue caught her in the stretch and with Manuel Ycaza driving the colt hard he came on to win by three lengths.

More Megaton was appearing for the 33rd time this year and it climaxed a big year in which he went from Agua Caliente to California and then achieved his biggest win Saturday.

ORANGE BOWL MEET MONDAY

Pennel Returns to Record Miami Launching Pad--Eyes 17-6 Vault

MIAMI (UPI)—John Pennel comes back to the scene of the highest pole vault in history on Monday night hoping to raise his world's record to a fantastic 17 feet, six inches.

The cloudbuster from Northeast Louisiana State College set the current mark of 17 feet, ¾ inch at the University of Miami track where he will feature an Orange Bowl Invitation track meet by attempting to smash his own stratospheric standard.

The fact that he "almost" cleared 17-6 twice in practice — each time knocking off the bar with his hand after he was all but over—led to expectations that he might break the record under meet conditions.

Two other world champions will be in action as more than 50 athletes compete from Furman, Grambling, Nebraska, Harvard, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, New York University, Houston, Auburn, Florida, Miami and Florida State.

Bob Hayes, holder of the world 100-yard dash mark of 9.1, heads the sprint field while Gary Gubner of NYU, who owns the world shot put mark of 62 feet, five inches, leads the whales into action.

Hayes, from Florida A&M, will square off against a field which includes Dave Styron of Northeast Louisiana State College, world record holder in the 60-yard dash, and Dick Stebbins of Grambling, who has done 9.3 in practice. Hayes also features the entries for the 220-yard dash.

The 440-yard dash pits Nebraska's Big Eight champion, Gill Gebo, against a field which includes Styron. The latter has done 46 flat in practice while Gego has shaded 47 seconds.

Pole vaulter C. K. Yang and miler Tom O'Hara are stars in a field of some 70 athletes competing in the 30th annual Sugar Bowl track meet today.

The weatherman expects temperatures in the high 50s for the eight-event outdoor games.

UCLA--

fered its first defeat the night before by 18 points at the hands of UCLA, broke out of a slow start and defeated Pittsburgh, 95-80, Saturday night. The Wolverines finished third in the tournament standings.

USC, FINISHING in sixth place, did better than expected. The Trojans missed fifth place by the narrowest of margins. They were beaten by NYU, which entered the tournament ranked No. 10 in the nation, by a 70-69 score Saturday afternoon.

The Trojans led all the way against NYU until the final 16 seconds.

To Yale went the dubious distinction of finishing last in the eight-team three-day affair. The Ivy Leaguers were beaten 69-66 Saturday afternoon by West Virginia.

'AUTO' BE EXCITING

Tight action like this will be in store for stock car fans this afternoon when NASCAR stages a 50-lap Grand Prix at Ascot Park.

GRELLE TO DEFEND INDOOR MILE TITLE

Jim Grelle of the Los Angeles Track Club, sixth fastest miler of all-time, will compete in the L. A. Invitational meet in the L. A. Sports Arena, Jan. 18, meet director Herschel Smith said Saturday.

Grelle, 1960 Olympian, has a best career time of 3:56.1. Grelle routed mile record holder Peter Snell in Los Angeles last year on the boards, and he is unbeaten in four Invitationals.

Tickets are now on sale at the L. A. Sports Arena.

OK 'ANITA RACE PACT

Tentative agreement on a new three-year labor contract between the Federation of California Racing Associations and the Building Service Employees International Union was reached Saturday following all-day negotiations.

Clark Garners Another Prix

EAST LONDON, South Africa (UPI) — Jim Clark of Scotland Saturday became the first racing driver to win seven Grand Prix events in a season by winning the South African classic in a V-8 Lotus.

Clark finished the 207-mile, 85-lap race 46 seconds ahead of Dan Gurney of Riverside, Calif., who was at the wheel of a Brabham-Climax. Britain's Graham Hill, the 1962 world champion, took third place in a BRM, another 50 seconds off the pace.

Kelso Top Future for S.A. 'Cap

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (UPI) — Mrs. Richard C. DuPont's Kelso, four-time horse of the year, has been installed the favorite in the Caliente race course future book on the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap, the opening line disclosed today.

As a tribute to the great gelding, odds-maker Tony Alessio installed Kelso at 4-1 although he is currently in Florida and it was doubtful, although possible, that the star would be flown to Santa Anita for the race.

In another surprise, the filly sensation of 1963, Lamb Chop, was listed as second choice in the winter book at odds of 6-1. No filly or mare ever has won the Santa Anita although such great ones as Two Lea and Miss Grillo attempted it.

* * * *

WITH WAGERING going four places, Kelso was listed as 8-5 to place, 4-5 to show and 2-5 for fourth. Lamb Chop was quoted as 2-1 to place, even money to show and 1-2 for fourth.

The erratic but speedy Crimson Satan, who dead-heated for place in the 1963 Santa Anita Handicap, was listed at 15-1 while Olden Times, who was last in that race but second the year before, was quoted at 8-1 as was the speedy Native Diver.

Fourth in the prices came Cyrano and B. Major at 10-1, the line not taking into account Cyrano's track record sprint victory on opening day in the Palos Verdes Handicap nor B. Major's appearance in Saturday's Malibu Stakes.

Stan Mans No Desk for Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan Musial is a vice president without a desk.

"When I need one I borrow it," said the St. Louis Cardinals' most famous veep.

Musial, 43, was named a Cardinal vice president when he retired as an active player at the end of the 1963 season, his 22nd year with the Redbirds. He holds more major league records than any man alive.

"I belong on the field-not in a chair," Musial said during an interview in the Cards' Busch Stadium general office. "I don't like desks, and in this job I don't need them too often. But I like my work."

The Man's new assignment has many facets. He represents the Cardinals at major and minor league meetings, scouts other teams, acts as an agent in quest of talent, and handles some public relations work.

And Musial looks every bit the executive.

Neatly dressed in a gray suit, Musial and Cardinal general manager Bing Devine looked over some scouting reports. Musial signed some papers, then cracked:

"I hope this desk work doesn't drive me to make a comeback next year. But on second thought, I couldn't afford the stamps."

He explained that after his announced retirement he received "about 50,000 letters and telegrams from all over the country. My secretary is working full time through the winter trying to answer the boxes and boxes of mail."

Kickers, Thor II Collide Today

The Long Beach Soccer Club will face Thor II today at noon at Pan-American Park in the first game of a twin bill. The Fullerton Rangers play Thor I at 2:30.

Long Beach tied Hermosa, 3-3, last Sunday and its record to date is five wins, four losses and the tie. The Kickers still are without the services of outside left Tom Deaplane and center forward Vince Roebuck.

LAS VEGAS BARE FACTS

Nudes Big Draw

By DAVID FARBER

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) —Three bare-breasted showgirls descended from the ceiling on small suspended discs.

They didn't know it, but they were pushing a trend that might one day force Las Vegas to compete with Broadway in the show field.

Down on the stage, the curtain rose and dozens more girls — some clad elegantly, some almost invisibly — — threaded through intricate maneuvers amid flashing lights and crashing music.

It was the spectacular and opulent opening of the newest edition of the Stardust Hotel's Lido De Paris French revue.

The three bare show girls revolved slowly on their platforms in a bath of light. Then the discs silently ascended to become part of the ceiling again.

• • • •

ON THE sprawling stage, the size of a basketball court, the show moved massively through its two hours. It was studded by such unexpected touches as:

The startling, whirling flight of a covey of doves from a spotlight booth to the stage.

A tropical island destroyed by fire and a hurricane.

A live white horse and rider, galloping in the basement and reflected to the audience by a huge mirror.

A circus with performing seals and flimsily caged tigers.

An ice duet, and a grand finale featuring costumed and half-costumed girls perched in the backdrop while fireworks sprayed sparks behind them.

The audience was fairly panting when it left.

• • • •

THE STARDUST installed the new show, with a cast of 70, even though the previous edition was drawing 1,000 persons twice nightly — three times on Saturday —every day of the year.

Business was so good, in fact, that the half-clad showgirls are forcing a transformation of the Las Vegas show philosophy.

Other hotels are hinting they may go the spectacle route blazed by the Stardust and the Tropicana. The Thunderbird has already switched to a stripped-down Broadway show theme.

The Dunes, after a half-year flirtation with "Guys and Dolls," is installing a French revue.

The Sahara Hotel is getting ready to enlarge its showroom so it can stage full-size Broadway productions—or originals that may one day challenge the great white way.

The Desert Inn, sister hotel to the Stardust, will shortly enlarge its own showroom and stage so that it can produce Broadway shows.

The epidermis and elegant-costume productions have triumphed over their critics, including the top Catholic authority in the state.

Bishop Robert J. Dwyer issued a pastoral letter condemning the bare-bosom shows in 1961. He blasted them as sinful, and said Catholics shouldn't attend them.

IF THE spectaculars fill up the main showrooms, where will the singers and the comics go? Into the lounges.

Las Vegas is already famous as the place where the lounges feature stars who would headline anywhere else.

AMID FLASHING lights and crashing music, dancers perform in the Stardust Hotel's Lido de Paris French Revue at Las Vegas. Girlie shows are edging out star entertainers.

Sarah Vaughan, Harry James, Billy Eckstine, Ray Anthony, Della Reese, Louis Prima, Lionel Hampton, Billy Daniels.

In the lounges, it's all free — even the fancy hors d'oeuvres the scantily clad cocktail waitresses pass around.

It should come as no shock that the singers, hoofers and comics are on the marquee to lure gamblers. Strip hotel officials are quite frank about that.

"If you don't have a show, you don't have gamblers," says Jack Entratter, producer-president of the Sands Hotel.

Jess Goodman, vice president and general manager of the Riviera, puts it another way:

"It gets the bodies in."

FARCE AT OFF-BROADWAY

Cure for 'Cockeyed' World

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

To fill an interim holiday booking, intrepid Off-Broadway Theater set back the theater 50 years last Friday night. All the way back to the tent show days when the actors looked like disciples of Charles Darwin and the dialogue of dalliance and double-talk was in finest flower.

An engaging group of visiting players on "wilful" leave from Paramount City Recreation Department force me to "tell the cockeyed world" that the three act farce, "Why Wives Worry," by Charles Harrison, sets us forward while purportedly setting us back.

• • • •

FARCE IS A dirty word in our modern theater. And seeing WWW tells us why. It is quite a jolt at our expense to find that what a previous generation honestly called farce we sometimes offer sanctimoniously as serious modern drama. A lot of plays are still being written like this prehistoric "pot-pourri" in which nothing is left to the imagination of the viewer —not even the pictures on the wall or the action, or what is taking place in the minds of the actors. In which everything is narrated, milked, blocked and neatly tidied up to a farce-theewell. The difference is that 50 years ago they did it with "style" plus audible prompter. And kept it unpretentious. And called it farce.

Success of the Paramount Players is due to their ability to recapture the "innocence" and atmosphere of the period. So faithful is the reproduction of the old "style" that Friday night's audience played it "cautious" for the entire first act. By act two they caught on and audience and actors went at each other with laughs. It is that crazy sort of a show—a good cure for our cockeyed world.

• • • •

THE STORY? Oh, that. Well, you see these two guys with the same name of Roy Baker, played well extremely well by Roger Williams II and Marvin Case, got their mails and wives mixed up and decide to share the same apartment — with one wife being sent on a vacation and the other left around to force marital fidelity to live up to its vows. When both wives end up simultaneously in adjoining rooms and the husbands keep making hurried exits and entrances and explanations, worry sets in on the wives and the possibilities of a contrived "slipup" convulse the men.

Reminds you of any recent play in the modern theater? It certainly does.

But there is genuine fun in this farce, because it does not "pretend."

Here are the other performers with whom you should end your old year and start your new year "right": Roberts (Carlos Sanchez), Mrs. Gibbs (Ann Christie), Clarence Gibbs (Frank Buchanan), Jennie (Daveen Doornbos), Minnie (Gloria Rains) and Detective (George Surtees).

Roger William I—do they have royalty in Paramount? —is a slick man with his direction and production.

Marines Called to Fight Rats

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesian marines have been called in to help combat a plague of mice in the east Java port of Surabaja, the Antara News Agency says.

The agency reported that the troops were mobilized as part of the "civic mission" program. Under it military units work on national development projects.

Antara said if the campaign against the Surabaja mice was successful, other units of marines would be deployed for similar missions in other areas of east Java.

Winter Late, Oil Shows Odd Trends

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, (AP)—Winter's late arrival caused some unusual trends in demand for petroleum products.

September-November demand for gasoline was 3.4 per cent higher than the comparable year earlier period but heating oil requirements dropped sharply.

Demand for home or light heating oil dropped 4.3 per cent. Industry or heavy fuel oil requirements were off 8.6 per cent.

Petroleum economic analysts estimate weather during October and November was 27 per cent warmer than normal.

Available inventories of light heating oils, therefore, were abnormally high when the December cold waves began sweeping across the nation.

* * * *

REFINERS and suppliers had 160.2 million barrels on hand on Dec. 13, the latest reporting period on which statistics are available. Inventories a year earlier totaled only 164.5.

Home heating oil inventories dropped only 5.6 million barrels between Oct. 25 and Dec. 13, compared to a 16.3 million decline the same year earlier period.

Frank N. Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said this week total 1963 demand for petroleum products was about 3 per cent above 1962 despite the sharp November-December drop in home heating oil sales.

Ikard said the favorable motoring weather in most sections late in the year helped boost 1963 gasoline demand 4 per cent above 1962, the largest increase for any year since 1955. From 1960 through 1962, gasoline demand had increased only about 2 per cent a year.

* * * *

THE OIL industry's chief spokesman said demand for home heating oils held a 3 per cent gain through the first 10 months of 1963 but the November-December slump in sales probably would cut the 12-month gain to less than one-half of one per cent.

Year-end inventories for all oils—crude and products—were estimated by Ikard at a record 875 million barrels, 39 million above the year earlier level and 34 million above the previous record set at the end of 1957.

The new year-end record included a 12-month gain of 23 million barrels for light heating oils and an 8 million barrel decline for crude.

Kerosene, heavy fuel oil, and gasoline stocks also were up, but their increases were relatively minor compared to home heating oils.

* * * *

THE 243.6 MILLION barrel estimate for year-end crude oil inventories is the lowest since 1948 except for 239.8 million at the end of 1960. The record of 251.8 million was set at the end of 1957.

Meanwhile, producers and refiners produced and processed more crude and gas in 1963 than ever before in history.

Daily U.S. crude production averaged 7,553,000 barrels a day, compared to the previous record of 7,332,000 in 1962. Natural gas output jumped 4.11 per cent to a record 40 billion cubic feet a day.

Refiners processed 8,696,000 barrels of crude a day, a 3.3 per cent gain over the year earlier record average.

* * * *

DOMESTIC refiners now can process 10,407,550 barrels of crude a day. Additions to the 1963 refining capacity day compared to a 1962 expansion program that amounted only to a net gain of 13,174 barrels a day.

The Petroleum Institute estimated 1963 well completions at 43,550, compared to 46,422 last year and 47,018 in 1961.

The Institute's estimate is a bit higher than those made by two trade publications.

World Oil's Jan. 1 edition is to estimate this year's completions at about 43,150. The Oil & Gas Journal had tabulated only 42,314 completions through Dec. 21.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Economy Regains Its Momentum at Year End

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Business is closing out 1963 on a high plane.

It weathered early 1963 predictions that the economy might slow down in the second half of the year.

The Commerce Department reported this week that business activity has regained its momentus after a brief lag in November and seems likely to produce a sizable gain in the final three months of the year.

Here is evidence of the economy's robust health:

The Gross National Product—total of all goods and services—is at an annual rate of $592 billion against $554.9 billino for 1962.

The Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production stands at 126.9, compared with 118.3 last year.

* * * *

AUTOMOBILE SALES, including imports, are estimated at 7.7 million this year, up from 7 million in 1962.

Business spending on new plant and equipment is calculated at $39.1 billion, a gain of 5 per cent over last year.

Steel production of 109 million tons is the highest since 112.5 million tons were turned out in 1957.

Personal income hit a record $472.8 billion, up from $442.1 billion last year.

Housing starts reached a record 1.5 million units.

Consumer spending increased to $373 billion from $355 billion in 1962.

Corporate profits, estimated at $26.8 billion, showed a 9 per cent gain over 1962.

Employment rose to 69.3 million from 67.8 million last year.

Expressions of optimism about the outlook for 1964 were voiced by leading business men.

For example, Frederic C. Donner, chairman of General Motors Corp., said:

"The economy continues to have available increasing resources of capital and labor for further expansion. With sustained business and consumer confidence, all present indications are that in 1964 the economy will use more fully these growing resources."

* * * *

WALTER W. HELLER, chief economic adviser to President Johnson, predicted—dependent on early passage of an $11 billion tax cut—that the Gross National Product will rise to $620 billion next year and that the unemployment rate would drop to less than 5 per cent of the labor force.

Christmas buying apparently zoomed to a new record on a late rush after getting off to a slow start mainly due to the nation's shock over the assassination of President Kennedy. The National Retail Merchants Association said indications were that dollar volume was the highest ever although it probably failed to record the expected 4 per cent again.

The Christmas holiday cut into industrial production.

Automobile production was trimmed to an estimated 131,000 passenger cars, down from 185,144 the previous week but well ahead of the 109,900 of a year ago.

* * * *

GENERAL MOTORS Corp.'s Oldsmobile division reported selling 16,130 new cars in the middle 10 days of December, a record. GM's Chevrolet division and Chrysler Corp. also reported that sales in that period exceeded a year ago.

The Big Three automakers have allocated more than $1 billion for plant expansion and improvement next year. Ford will spend $500 million and Chrysler $200 million. While General Motors hasn't announced figures, it has spent more than $500 million on expansion each year since 1953.

Steel production posted its second straight weekly decline, dropping 1.7 per cent to 2,003,000 tons. Steel executives reported orders are continuing strong enough to push January shipments well above December's.

planning. A splendid development is the adoption of R5 zoning in one area, opening a whole era for high-rise construction.

We highly commend the dedicated and devoted services of the Planning Commission and staff for farsightedness in many of its projects. There are however frequent criticisms of a strong tendency toward keeping Long Beach a bedroom city rather than one balanced between commerce, industry and home development; criticism of some degree of inconsistency in rulings relating to the Building Code and types of building structure.

TRAFFIC AND PARKING: One cannot deal with the moving of traffic solely from the standpoint of political expediency, personal comfort or its effect upon a particular piece of property. This philosophy applies specifically to the crosstown freeways, for ingress and egress from all directions must be provided. It calls for sufficient off-street parking at new structures.

CULTURAL ACTIVITIES: Creation of the Arts Council is a basic step forward. Our prime need is for some better physical plants for concerts, plays, exhibits, etc. These matters are under study.

SOCIAL WELFARE: The community is woefully weak in financial support of volunteer agencies. Governmental welfare agencies seem to do their work very well.

BEACH DEVELOPMENT: Tideland funds are anticipated for the voter-approved West Beach shoreline plan. The plan is good and the work will get a big lift with World's Fair development. Our greatest asset, the central and east beaches also must be developed.

GOVERNMENTAL ACTIVITIES: There is great progress in City Council relationships, thanks in large measure to Mayor Ed Wade's friendly, objective approach. But the understanding is not complete—here and there within a department we find a skeptic so far as the Chamber is concerned.

In contrast to the antics of the municipality to our north, our county Board of Supervisors shows a dignity that reflects great credit to the entire community.

COMMUNICATIONS: Our citizens once talked the town down but now praise it for overcoming the image of a sinking city, for substantially reducing internal community pettiness and bickering, for a completely new attitude and sense of self-confidence.

The Chamber put $16,000 into an International Publicity Department. It accomplished little in tangible results but did establish the need. From this beginning the highly successful news agency, Long Beach Promotion, Inc., has grown.

Agencies aiding in creating a better image: the city's public realtions office, the Convention and Visitors Bureau, Downtown Long Beach Associates, Chamber of Commerce, Independent, Press-Telegram, the neighborhood press.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE: The Chamber has had splendid leadership from its inception. Its program embraces every facet of activity needed by the community. The Chamber had a long period of deficit financing. We turned the corner in 1962. The 1963-64 projected income is $190,000, expenditures $183,000. We are still woefully short of our $225,000 budget goal.

The slow response to adequate support of all cooperative community efforts, including the Chamber, is the result of habit, a point of view, a defeatism, a game of downgrading, a sadistic type of negativism that is difficult to understand.

CONCLUSION: Our needs may make us feel inadequate, our effort futile. But our achievements show what organized effort in community relations can do.

Long Beach has demonstrated great achievement in the past five years. Of course, the next five are the years that count. We have laid a good foundation. We only hope that the vision will grow; that the lessons of these five years will stimulate present leaders and leaders to come to build bigger and higher and better.

There is no reason why Long Beach will not become one of the great cities of the world.

"... that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

—ABRAHAM LINCOLN,
The Gettysburg Address, November 19, 1863.

Great American Shrines Etchings presented with the compliments of Union Federal Savings

Union Federal Savings has selected a special gift for you, actually a series of gifts, since there are four altogether . . . a collection of famous national shrine reproductions in a beautiful color etch process on silver foil, created by nationally renowned watercolorist, Phil Austin.

The first of this educational series, Mount Rushmore, recreates the majestic splendor of one of our nation's greatest creative efforts . . . the carving, from a mountainside, of the likeness of four of our great presidents. This handsome reproduction is yours for the asking when visiting one of our offices January 2 through 10.

In February we will offer a color print of Mount Vernon; in March, Independence Hall and in April to complete your collection, the Jefferson Memorial.

A SUNDAY CAR SIDE CHAT
From Ridings Cadillac Long Beach's only authorized Cadillac dealer

We have a choice selection of the finest "Customer Ready" cars to be found anywhere. Every car in our resale department is clearly described for your shopping convenience. A check list is on the left rear glass showing the equipment and the suggested selling price.

We are closed on Sundays so that our salesmen may be with their families. However, we cordially invite you to browse around our lot and look over our fine used cars. We urge you to compare our cars with others.

YEAR OF RACIAL CRISIS

Demonstrations and Deaths Mark Revolt of Negroes

Some Milestones Achieved, Say Civil Rights Chiefs

By JUNIUS GRIFFIN
Associated Press Writer

The racial revolution of 1963 engendered violence, wracked the conscience of America and exposed racial discrimination as a condition not confined to any geographical area.

The climate was ripe for the Negro revolution, which began as non-violent but soon became a demand of sweeping proportions for payment on a century-old note: the Emancipation Proclamation.

As in all conflicts, some of the major skirmishes occurred in unlikely places—lunch counters, churches, schools, public libraries, construction sites and finally in the courts and the halls of Congress.

How and where did it all start?

• • • •

THE CITY WAS Birmingham and the time was early April. It was intended as a demonstration protesting that the city's Negroes termed unjustifiable segregation patterns

But before the mild day was over, police had broken up the demonstrations with fire hoses and night sticks.

Less than a month later, Negroes of the city had mobilized all their resources and were back in the streets again for a showdown.

Again, the police used fire hoses and night sticks. Hundreds of Negroes were arrested.

• • • •

THE NATION AND THE WORLD took notice of the turbulent prelude to a summer of racial discord later described by Secretary of State Dean Rusk as "the worst domestic crisis since 1865."

The civil rights crisis was responsible for 11 deaths during the year.

William L. Moore, 35, a white postman from Baltimore, was shot dead near Gadsden, Ala., while staging a private "freedom march" to Mississippi, April 23.

Medgar W. Evers, head of the Mississippi chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was assassinated by a sniper as he returned home from an integration meeting June 12.

On Aug. 10, Serina Taylor, 14, a Negro girl, was killed by a wild shotgun blast in Jersey City, N.J.

Sept. 15, four Negro girls were killed in a Birmingham bombing that wrecked the 16th Street Baptist church. They were Denice McNair, 11; Cythia Wesley, Addie Mae Collins and Carol Robertson, all 14.

On the same day, two Negro teen-agers, James Robinson and Virgil Ware, were shot to death in other Birmingham racial incidents.

• • • •

The tragic violence surrounded Negro demands for:

Better jobs and better pay, fair employment opportunities, non-neighborhood school policy, the right to eat at any restaurant or stay in any hotel and to worship in white churches.

When does the Negro expect to achieve these goals?

"My definition of now is yesterday," says Cecil Moore, chairman of the Philadelphia NAACP.

Moore's impatience has been reflected in responsible and irresponsible demonstrations by Negroes in such places as Danville, Va., Savannah, Ga., Albany, Ga., Cambridge, Md., New York City, Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Newark, N. J.

"Miscalculation of the moment of truth which is upon us could plunge New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit and Los Angeles into a crimson carnage unparalleled in the history of the nation," warned the Rev. Gardner Taylor, pastor of Brooklyn's Concord Baptist Church.

C. Summer Stone Jr., editor of the Chicago Defender, one of the two daily Negro newspapers in the nation, says:

"I expect all hell to break loose next spring when the snow thaws. The Negro is merely using the winter to store up his hatreds and frustrations and reflect on the many broken promises of 1963."

• • • •

IN THE MARCH on Washington last August, more than 200,000 people staged what was called by some commentators "an impressive demonstration of Negro unity; a visible expression of interracial brotherhood."

The march was intended to convey to the nation's leaders the necessity for civil rights legislation, jobs, and first-class citizenship for America's 19 million Negroes.

The year 1963 did result in some encouraging milestones. Civil rights leaders cite these:

In Chicago—a City Council bill which, if enforced, opens housing to Negroes anywhere in the city.

Detroit—a massive slum clearance and urban renewal project which will remove Negroes from one of the city's worst slum areas.

Cambridge, Md.—the hiring of a Negro interviewer in the state employment office.

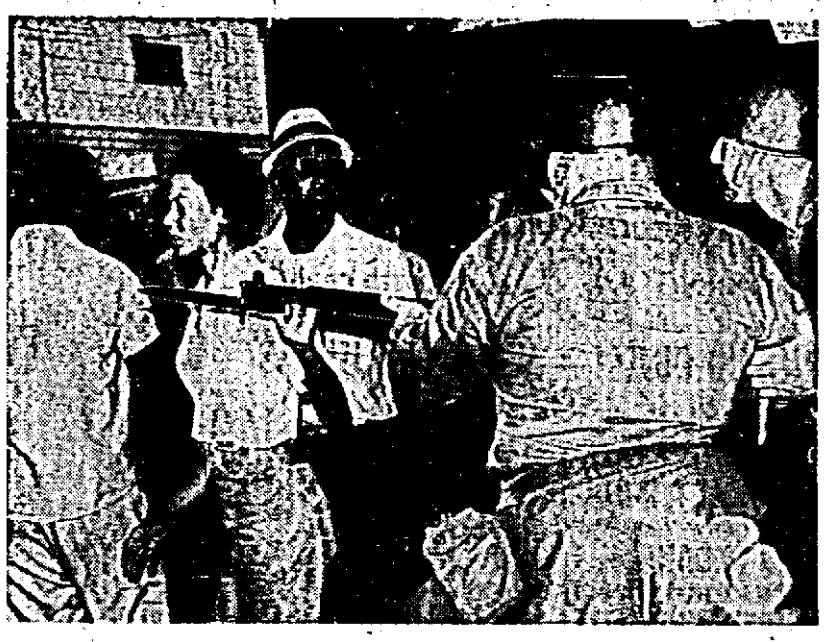

Birmingham—token school integration.

Charleston, S.C.—token school integration and access to some places of public accommodation.

Areas where civil rights leaders say they accomplished nothing include Selma, Ala., Albany, Ga., Danville, Va., and Williamson, N.C.

In contrast, Nashville, Tenn., rates high among some Negro leaders as the city "with the most comprehensive integration achievements."

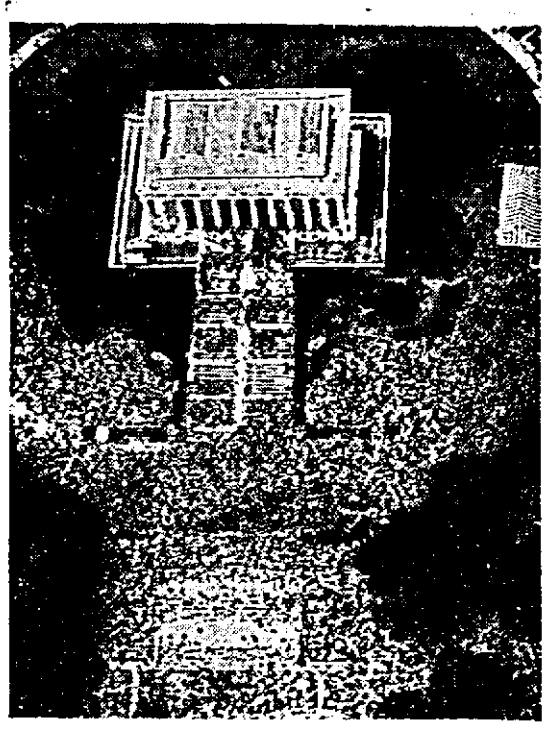

Other cities which drew praise from Negro leaders were Atlanta, Durham, N.C., Miami, Louisville, Ky., and Knoxville, Tenn.

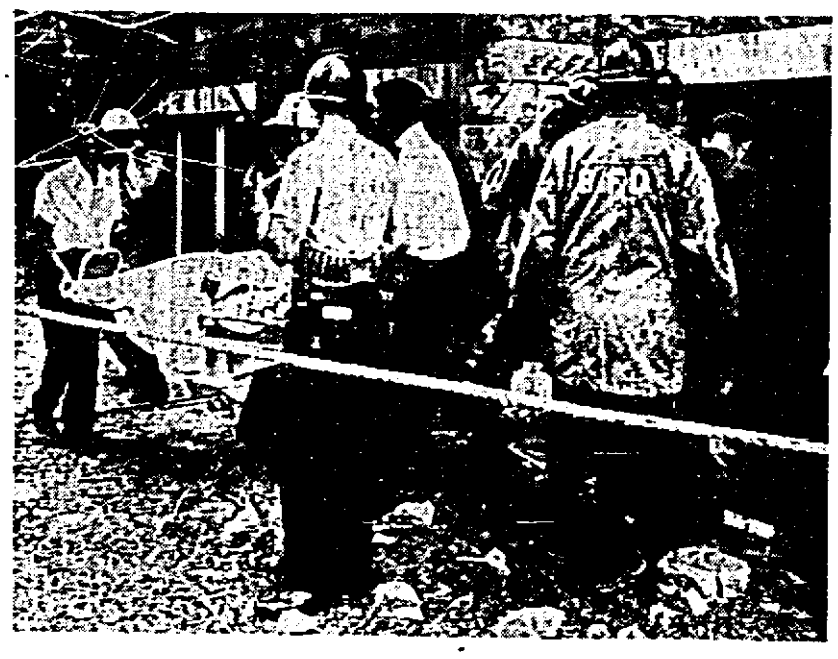

BRUSHING ASIDE a National Guardsman's bayonet, Mrs. Gloria Richardson, head of the Cambridge, Md., Nonviolent Action Committee, moves to try to disperse a crowd of Negroes. She is one of militants among Negroes.

NATIONAL and world attention became focused on Birmingham, Ala., in 1963 as a city of racial violence. In April, police used dogs to break up a Negro demonstration. In May they added fire hoses and tear gas and arrested hundreds. A policeman and a dog grip a Negro, who swings at the dog with a small knife on May 3.

CLIMAX of the Negro revolution of 1963 was the Washington March on August 28. More than 200,000 persons, including thousands of whites, poured into the national capital in a giant, peaceful demonstration and demand for first class citizenship for America's 19 million Negroes. Center of demonstration was the Lincoln Memorial area.

A BOMB HEARD around the world was that which wrecked the 16th Street Baptist Church in Birmingham, Ala., on Sept. 15, 1963. Four 14-year-old Negro girls, there for Sunday School, were killed, several hurt.

A SWEET SIXTEEN. A bevy of 16 lovely debs, all of whom bowed to society for first time Saturday evening, pose in traditional white ball gowns. They are (from left) Linda Marino, Carolyn Joe Peek, Susan Garland, Carolyn Combs, Laurie Kinley, Charlotte Calvert, Cheryl McNulty, Janet Jacobs, Luciann Esposito, Dede Norman, Anne Whittlesey, Ann Bowen, Susan Jennings, Roxanne Hamilton and Devon Beck. The Junior League presentation ball took place in Long Beach Pacific Coast Club with Dr. Arthur H. Buell, master of ceremonies. The event climaxed a series of festive holiday parties for the girls, all college students.

They'll Never Say "We Told You So"

By MARY NETH

What's in store for '64?

It doesn't take a crystal ball to predict that that's a pretty popular question right now.

But, if you're looking for the answer, you may find the crystal ball a bit cloudy.

We did. We thought we'd get everything all straightened out—get world in order and find what to expect during the next 366 days.

We went to the people purported to know: the psychic readers, the palmists, the fortune tellers, the astrologists.

And, what did they say? Well, it seems they're a bit hazy about it all, too. Right now, at least. Maybe they'll know more about it all around this time next year.

Anyway, the gypsies had gone away for the holiday, so we marked them off; headed for the palm and card soothsayers.

Well, believe it or not, they just don't predict. Said one who advertised herself as an "Indian reader with God given powers to help humanity," "I just do little character readings, that's all."

The psychic reader we queried was "too busy" to enlighten us.

Another who "gives advice in love, marriage and business" explained haughtily that she "doesn't go into the future—just deals with the past and present."

Even the spirits seem to be a wee bit uninformed these days.

A Hindu reader from India, one that "helps many—gives full life readings," said he hoped it would be a good year." Well, we do too, and we don't even have a spirit to back it up.

The "famous psychic"—"You tell me nothing—I will tell you ALL," didn't tell us a thing.

"Not interested," was the snappy telephone retort. "Very busy."

And, the mystery lady? She WAS mysterious.

But, finally we struck gold. We called an astrologer. She was quite rushed, asked to call back three times. Then, rather waspishly to be sure, gave out with the info. "A clue to the future will take an awful lot of looking up—consulting all those stars and all, she said. "Why don't you go buy an astrology book at the news stand and do it yourself?"

Well we took her kind advice, and lo and behold, we discovered that things will at "long last be moving in truly new directions."

According to Ambrose Bierce's definition of the future ("The Devil's Dictionary") it's "that period of time in which our affairs prosper, our friends are true and our happiness is assured."

Maybe we'll let it go at that. And in doing so, just hope his definition of misfortune "the kind of fortune that never misses," proves in error.

Of course, if the Panacea Society in England had its way we'd have a happy new year for sure.

The society claims to have a sealed box containing a prophetess's prescription for all the world's ills. Unfortunately 24 bishops must be present before the 122-year-old box can be opened and the society can't talk them into putting in an appearance. Oh my!

Junior League's Debs ...Presented at Ball

Sixteen young women made their debut to society Saturday evening at the 1963 Debutante Ball.

The ball, given by Junior League of Long Beach, took place in Pacific Coast Club with Dr. Arthur H. Buell as master of ceremonies.

Gowned in traditional bouffant evening dresses and carrying white orchid covered fans, the debutantes were escorted into the ballroom by their fathers. An orchestra, seated beneath a decorative gazebo, played the grand march.

Guests were welcomed by Mmes. Donald C. Wallace Jr., league president and Leon Wiltse, ball committee chairman, and husbands.

GARLANDS of balloons hung from the ceiling over tables covered with shocking pink linen. Tables were decorated with tall, sparkling centerpieces composed of white birds amid pink poinsettias and carnations.

The main lounge, the setting for pre-dinner cocktails, was rich in vibrant reds and greens. There a long table, opulently festive in Christmas red, was laden with an elaborate selection of hors d'oeuvres.

As in the past, the ball was coordinated by Tom Ingersoll with music by Joe Moshay's orchestra.

PRESENTEES were Devon Beck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Beck, escorted by Robert M. Newell; Ann Bowen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Bowen, escorted by David Hutchinson; Nancy Brandel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brandel, escorted by Robert Schaeffer; Charlotte Ann Calvert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Calvert, escorted by Michael Dorn; Carolyn Combs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frende Combs, escorted by Ronald Kasper; Luciann Esposito, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leslie Esposito, escorted by Dominic Cavaliere Jr.; Susan Garland, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Guy P. Garland, escorted by John Lungren Jr.

Music, lights, flowers, elegantly dressed guests — and 16 lovely young women. It was the deb's evening. And, after the ball was over? The Frende Combs and Dr. and Mrs. Leslie Esposito were hosts and hostesses at a post-ball breakfast in the Esposito home.

Roxanne Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Montgomery Jr., escorted by Paul Parkhurst; Janet Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jacobs, escorted by William Rolf; Susan Jennings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Jennings, escorted by Dennis Scharer; Laurie Kinley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kinley, escorted by James Young; Linda Marino, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Marino, escorted by Michael Maloney; Cheryl McNulty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McNulty, escorted by William Dunlap; Dede Norman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Norman, escorted by Christopher Bowen; Carolyn Joe Peek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lon E. Peek, escorted by Cadet William Hurley III; Ann Whittlesey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Whittlesey, escorted by Philip Nyborg.

AMONG THE stags were Charles Garland, Peter Jennings, James Jones, Michael Kenney, Richard Learned, Richard Matlock, Michael Mullarky, Lon Peek II, William Polkinghorn Jr., John Robbins, Richard Russell, Daniel Dunlap, William Belding, John Hutchinson, F. L. Andrews, Thomas Merrick, John McGill Jr., Charles Marino, Larry Evans, Midshipman Stephen Brown, William Cheney, John M. Clarke Jr., William Davidson, Leeds Disston, Bruce Drown, Robert Earl, Vincent Esposito and Robert Freiwald.

This is the fourth annual Debutante Ball held by the Junior League.

The league itself was established here in 1931. The original membership (41) raised money by dues and a charity ball at Pacific Coast Club.

ONE OF AN international association of 190 leagues, Long Beach juniors work to foster interest in the social, economic, educational, cultural and civic conditions of the community. Each prospective member is required to complete a training course on volunteer service and on various aspects of her community before active membership is approved.

Continuing volunteer service is a requirement for membership. Each Junior Leaguer works one-half day a week in a League-sponsored project or in an agency in which she is especially interested.

This year's debutantes, all college or university students, have a wide range of talents and interests. Two of the girls plan teaching careers; two are majoring in language; two in liberal arts; two in drama and two in the arts.

One of the debs was an AFS exchange student in Europe and another is making plans for a forthcoming trip to Europe. All have high scholastic ratings and are active in school social activities.

Christmas Wrap-Up, All Tied with Type

Check those checks—in four figures—for CBL good deeds.

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

GOODWILL toward children so they can become healthier, better adjusted men and women is the aim of Children's Benefit League. This year the women—not many in number but long on heart and full of energy—are demonstrating, in the picture above, how they made Christmas time much happier.

Presented earlier this week are checks displayed by, from left, Harriett (Mrs. Van L) Grose, Ione (Mrs. Myrl W.) Hurley and Lois (Mrs. George W.) Reynolds. CBL gave $2000 to the Children's Clinic of Long Beach, $2000 to the Psychiatric Clinic for Children and $1000 to the Epilepsy Clinic. In addition, the women have donated $1500 to individual family cases, covering medical and dental needs.

Main money raisers to make dreams come true for less fortunate people included the formal, grand opening of the Edgewater Inn, co-chairmanned by Eloise (Mrs. Richard) Gripp and Lee (Mrs. L. W.) Clark.

The second annual Decorators Show was chairmanned by Lucille (Mrs. Harold) Gray and the many fund raising bridge parties were whipped together by Alice (Mrs. Robert) Dick.

They'd be the first to say "don't thank me—thank the wonderful women who helped."

CBL is one of many, many women's groups in our city which make life so much better off for so many others. A Happy New Year to them all—and a productive one. We need 'em!

RING BELLS. Mary and Col. Bill Green (USAF-Ret.) came home this week. And I mean HOME for keeps. They are staying with her parents, Dr. Fred and Myrle Clarke.

Bill will be associated with the South Gate Chamber of Commerce where they will live as soon as they can get located. Meaning, like in South Gate somewhere.

They drove out from Moberly, Kansas, with their three children, one dog and all that weather to contend with! It has been about 13 years since they've lived here—about two since they've visited. They had a stint of Europe aboding during Bill's service career, to boot.

BEFORE we get too far away from Christmas compliments I hear about, several are in order for the annual street-to-street caroling for the neighbors in Park Estates.

Wild Waves Say...

The event is spearheaded by Joan and Don Stage and Susie and Norm Meager. The Stages, as usual, had the adults cocktails and buffet party for about 60. Then off they went a-singing, with the children and their friends joining in to the tune of about 130 voices.

After the street singing (they cover several blocks with the joyous songs of Noel) adults and children, too, went to the Meagers for hot cider, hot chocolate and cookies. This nearing, if not THE, 10th year of the caroling. Big help to parents come from Jim and Steve Stage and Kent Meager, hosts' sons.

The Junior Boskings are en route from Honolulu, where he was stationed at Schofield, to Ft. Monmouth, N.J., where he reports Jan. 3 and where it's going to be a lot chillier.

Incidentally, Jack hit a 350-yard drive to the green at Recreation Park Golf Course the other day—a par four hole. And it was on the 13th hole, at that!

MORE CHRISTMAS wrap-ups in fancy packaging. Betty and Jim Milner had a gift-wrapped cocktail buffet at their home last Sunday. Guests, in party spirit, were in hilarious mood, making with loads of sparkly conversation. Among these—Faye and Willis Weber, Jeannie and Ralph Rowzee, Bev and Les Weed, Sharon and Don Wood, Reggie and Sid Levy, Ann and Al Germann and Ronnie Peterson and Dave Crane.

Very next day Betty's parents added to their festive mood by arriving for the holidays. They are Flo and William McBirney of Delta, Colo., and Phoenix, Ariz.

WHEN decorators admittedly "knock themselves out" to do their home for the holidays you can be very sure it's very special. Anne and Wellington Phillips' home is a true example of artistic holiday glory.

They entertained kith and kin at a Christmas Eve supper party which also was in celebration of Wellington's birthday. The 27th they had a cocktail party and today plan a dinner. Finally, they'll entertain (again!) at a New Year's Eve supper, midnight variety.

The home glows; is done in blue and green with white accents.

IN THE holiday mood—but not a holiday party—was Patty and Ned Twining's open house of last Sunday to "warm" their gorgeous new beach play room—right on the ocean front in Seal Beach.

It is Parisian in feeling, with black and white striped awning, black shutters, etc. About 150 friends were bidden to try it on for size. It fit to perfection.

NICEST thing that could possibly have been under, around or near the tree for Cathy and Mike Murphy was baby daughter, Joan, now just a month's worth of loving cuddle at the holidays.

Mrs. Wesley D. Young

Say Vows Here; Will Reside Out-of-State

Tindell—Nadeau

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the afternoon wedding of Nicole Nadeau to Verne H. Tindell at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Parents of the couple are Messrs. and Mmes. Henri Nadeau of Long Beach and Conrad C. Tindell of Bellflower.

The bride wore a formal gown with a lace bodice and full organza skirt. Her sisters, Louise and Michele Nadeau, were her attendants.

Ronald Lewis served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers included David R. Williams and Walter D. McClain.

The new Mrs. Tindell graduated from high school in France and attended Long Beach City College. Her husband was graduated from Bellflower High School, Whittier College and now attends Willamette University Law School in Salem, Ore., where he is a member of Delta Theta Phi.

The young couple will make their home in Salem.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Kuschelbauer of Santa Monica and Mrs. Claude W. Young of Downey, formerly of Long Beach.

A peau de soie sheath appliqued with Chantilly lace was chosen by the bride for her wedding. Mrs. Royal E. Lord was her matron of honor. David Davies served the bridegroom as best man.

Other members of the wedding party included Judy Boehler, Mrs. Kevin Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Young, Stanley Young and Rex Saracino.

The bride attended Santa Monica City College and San Jose State College. Her husband was graduated from Wilson High School, Compton Junior College, San Jose State College and is now working for his master's degree at George Washington University.

Following a New York honeymoon, the couple will reside in Washington, D. C.

The Small Fry Go High Style

GOING PLACES with the young set are these couture styles by Joseph Love. Tiers of red, white and blue (left) are fashioned in sturdy sailcloth treated with fabric fluoridizer to resist stains. Smartly dressed traveling lady (above) wears blue sailcloth dress, belted like the English bobby's uniform. Both are from Love's "My Friend the Policeman" collection. (Available locally.)

. . season's new look is mom-inspired

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
I, P-T Fashion Editor

Small fry are getting big ideas about fashion these days.

Their wardrobes are becoming as complex and contemporary, as fast-moving and furiously fashion-minded as any haute couture creations in the women's field.

Designers are taking an intense interest in what young things think, what kind of lives they lead and, of course, what kind of clothes flatter them most.

ONE SUCH couturier of children's fashions is Robert Love, who has grown up with the firm founded by his father, Joseph Love.

His current collection spans "the looks" for the season—everything from a spanking A-line nautical dress to a cool carousel stripe with a sunburst of pleats . . . from a dropped-waist dream of an organdy dress to the very last word for small femme fatales: a white at-home gown, floor-length and empire waisted with the perfect touch of a long red sash.

(Local merchants report a flurry of holiday sales in long at-home styles for young, young ladies).

THE SEASON'S prevailing look is the skimmy silhouette, with news in the slightly flared A-line, characterized by sharp side pleats or all-around inverted box pleats.

There's the tomboy look, the casual country look, the dropped waistline, the jumper, the empire, the fisherman's shirt and Paris adaptations—just like mom's.

Style features from Paris designs that have found their way into children's wear include the long sleeve with two-button cuff, the sweater look in overblouses, the apron-wrap skirt, the high rise empire touches, the horseshoe neckline and gold buttons.

ALTHOUGH children's designers have injected high fashion into tiny items (a neat trick when you're working with a couple feet of yard goods), they have kept ease-of-care in mind. Dripping popsicles needn't be a catastrophe.

In addition to traditional cottons, a number of orlon blends are seen, particularly in the sheer wool look. Washable wools, suedelike fabrics, knits, corduroys and cotton blends are prominent on the children's scene.

All are as easy to wear and care for as they are to look at.

LBSC Pair Will Wed

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Morgan are announcing engagement of their daughter, Susan Joy, to Sherwin Barry Cotler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Cotler.

Both young persons were graduated from Wilson High School, attended UC, Berkeley, and currently are enrolled at Long Beach State College.

Miss Morgan pledged Delta Phi Epsilon at Berkeley, and is a member of Epsilon Phi at State. Her fiance also attended Long Beach City College where he was president of Alpha Gamma Sigma and Alpha Nu Gamma. He is vice president of Psi Chi, national psychology honorary, at LBSC.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Thinking of Others Increases Happiness

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My daughter worries me to death; she is so restless and unsettled. She is an intelligent, nice-looking girl of 21, but she is the unhappiest person I know.

Since she graduated she has had eight different jobs. She didn't like any of them. She has friends, but no close ones. She belongs to clubs but they don't interest her much. The men she dates don't mean a thing to her.

She broods continually. Her mind is never at rest.

I just don't know what to do with her. I'm a widow, not very well, and with no other children to turn to. Is there any advice you can give me? — WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR WORRIED:

I'm not at all sure I can help you—but I'd very much like to. I'd like to help you and your unhappy daughter, too. It's quite possible, though, that she'd view anything I said rather cynically, isn't it?

Anyway, here goes: I have often noted that the unhappiest people are those who spend all their time trying to make themselves happy. Just as I have often noted that the happiest people are those who spend most of their time doing things for others. Believe me, this is no idle platitude; but an absolute fact you can observe by looking around you.

Therefore, if your daughter could be persuaded to throw herself into some sort of work whereby she would be bending her energies to helping others, she'd indirectly be helping herself far more than she can possibly guess.

Maybe your job is to persuade her to see this — to think more of giving OUT than taking IN. Or, as St. Francis of Assisi so aptly put it, "It is by giving that one receives, it is by self-forgetting that one finds." —M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

After Mom died, Dad and I moved into an apartment. The lady across the hall from us is divorced from her husband and seems to have her claws out for Dad. Dad is a very sweet person who doesn't like to hurt anyone so he is nice to her and that encourages her to run after him.

I can see it all so plainly but Dad can't. I'm an only child, and a rather possessive daughter, I fear. However, I do not like to see a woman so obvious about trying to "get her man." What can I do?—THELMA

DEAR THELMA:

I somehow can't see your managing Dad's life for him. If he wants to be snagged that's up to him, isn't it? And maybe, as a matter of fact, he knows what he wants far better than you do.—M.M.

WHAT HAPPENED?

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Reason, Don't Rationalize

DEAR ABBY: You have no idea how much courage it takes to write this, but I have to tell somebody. I have, probably, one of the best husbands on earth. We've beeen married 23 years and have three children of whom we are very proud. We have a home in the suburbs. My husband is an average wage-earner. We have two cars. We neither smoke nor drink nor spend foolishly. I've always let my husband be the head of the family. He is loving and good, but a strict disciplinarian with the children. He has always been a little on the jealous side, so not wishing to provoke him, I have never gone in for any outside activities. No volunteer work. Not even a P-T.A. meeting without him. I once read that a cake decorating class was starting and I said I'd like to go. He was so violently opposed that I never mentioned it again. The only people we see are his business friends and their wives. I am a friendly person and not unattractive. Now the problem: Last year, while grocery shopping, I became friendly with a widower (neighbor) and I soon looked forward to "running into him" at the store. He asked to buy me coffee, once, then again, and before long it was a standing date. I hate to admit it, but this was the high point of my day. We did nothing wrong, even though I know how much I could care for this charming man if I let myself. I know he feels the same for me. I would never do anything to hurt my family. But I can see how a respectable married woman can "fall in love" with another man. If this could happen to me, it could happen to anyone. I keep asking myself, why?—FIGHTING IT

ABBY

DEAR "FIGHTING IT": Keep fighting it. Couples don't "fall" in love. They walk into it with their eyes wide open. Mutual interest must be cultivated to become love. Then finally all reason is drained away and the rationalizations take over. When a husband first shows signs of unreasonable possessiveness, he should be straightened out—not yielded to. What does it profit a woman to preserve peace if she loses the marriage?

* * * * *

DEAR ABBY: My mother recently bought my husband and me a vase for our wedding anniversary. It cost her $200 and the thing is hideous. It is the wrong shape, color and size for our house. My husband is an interior decorator and he says we can't possibly use it. We can't stash it in the attic because if mother doesn't see it around, she'll be hurt. The rest of our home is furnished in impeccable taste. What can we do? My husband had kiddingly suggested "accidentally" breaking it.—STUCK

DEAR STUCK: Keep the vase out where your mother can see it. If the rest of your home is furnished in "impeccable" taste, one vase won't matter.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO MITZI: If you want a place in the sun, prepare to nurse a few blisters.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

RESOLUTION FOR '64:

Keep Your Husband Happy

Remember the dozens of New Year's resolutions we used to make when we were little? We'd resolve to be neater, kinder, more diligent, thinner — each year we'd resolve anew to be paragons!

And now, a bit disillusioned with our will power and with our good intentions, most of us settle for one or two resolutions, humbly and sincerely made.

Jean Kinkead, women's consultant to The Travelers Insurance Companies, tells us that many of the gals who work for The Travelers have only one big resolution for 1964. These women, whose work brings them close to the shocking evidence that too many husbands die young, have resolved to make special efforts to keep their husbands healthy this year. "It's a big order," says Miss Kinkead, "with no Dr. Spock to reassure and guide us."

* * * *

WE HAVE, however, one big clue. Doctors in general agree that living in a climate of acceptance, affection, and good humor helps all human beings to thrive. One doctor in particular, Dr. Paul Dudley White, General Eisenhower's heart specialist, tells us that if you can add to a man's happiness, you can prolong his life.

Miss Kinkead offers some ideas to help create the happiness-making climate we all want.

1. Welcome him home at night. Resolve that there'll be no more half-hearted greetings while you go right on stirring something on the stove or putting the baby to bed. This is HIS moment. Think for a minute how glad you are that he's come back to you. Since you last saw him he's been through traffic hazards, work problems, a dozen small and large anxieties. And now he's HOME. Tell him how glad you are. He'll never get tired of hearing it.

2. Plan a little while just to be together before the demands of family living engulf you both. Let the children know that this is YOUR time, and that equal time is coming for them in due course. Try to be quiet about the day you've had for a few minutes so that your husband can tell you what's on his mind. Too often we chatty females deprive our men of our valuable services as a listener. Do you know that just telling us how they feel about things helps them let off steam?

* * * *

3. ENCOURAGE him to change into comfortable clothes. Putting on a sports shirt and slacks and a pair of loafers is almost like putting on a holiday mood for most men.

4. Keep meal-times as peaceful as possible. You can eliminate a lot of irritation by serving food that your whole family likes. Maybe this will mean repeating a few things ad infinitum, but what difference does it make as long as it's what everyone likes?

5. Let your children know what a special man their father is. Their respect and affection (like your own) will nourish him.

6. Help him find a balance between rest and relaxation. Regular exercise is good for bot' of you. Bowling, walking, dancing, skating, skiing, or just plain old sitting-up exercises contribute importantly to his and your well-being. Balance fun evenings with your friends with quiet evenings of music, reading and your favorite television shows.

7. Don't PUSH do-it-yourself projects. He's pushed enough during the day.

Miss Kinkead sums things up this way. "Don't fret over your husband, but cherish him. You'll find him cherishing you right back—for many, many bonus years."

Meet Thursday

Degree of Honor Lodge 108 will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in Machinists Hall with Velta Hunt presiding. 1964 officers will practice for installation.

Mrs. Vernon Hammatt

Catholic Vows Said by Couple

St. Cyprian's Catholic Church was setting Saturday morning for the marriage ceremony joining Arletta Leona Myers of Bellflower with Vernon Baxter Hammatt, Long Beach.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Myers, the bride was gowned in a sheath dress of imported lace with flowing detachable train of silk organza and lace. A halo hat of lace held her bouffant tiered veil and she carried a star bouquet of orchids set in white rosebuds.

Preceding her to the flower banked altar were Mrs. Donald Meints, matron of honor, and Kathy Young, Marge McCarthy and Yvonne Hammatt, bridesmaids.

• • • •

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hammatt, 4702 Pearce Ave., asked Robert Bingham to attend as best man. The 200 guests were shown to their places by Richard Jones, Donald Meints, Tom Depuy and Larry Jones.

Following a honeymoon trip to San Francisco, the newlyweds will reside in Fort Monmouth, N. J., where the bridegroom is stationed with the U. S. Army. He is a graduate of Lakewood High School and attended Long Beach City College. His bride, an alumna of Jordan, attended Cerritos College.

Restraint Goes Far

John R. Crawford of New York is one of the finest and most colorful players of all time. Almost anything can and does happen when Johnny is at the table. Unquestionably his false-card in a rubber bridge game at Newport was the most sensational of the year 1963.

South was pretty proud of his restraint in opening with only one club. He had 23 points, but in addition he had better than six old fashioned honor tricks. So once North responded to that one club opening, South was on his way to a slam and would probably have gone all the way to seven had North shown a king in response to South's five no-trump Blackwood call.

Johnny was looking at a lot of cards in defense against six no-trump, but it never occurred to him to double. He did not want to show the location of all those picture cards.

• • • •

WHEN he saw dummy, Johnny was really glad that he hadn't doubled. Obviously, South held all the missing aces and kings and if he could bring those six diamond tricks he would have his slam.

It also looked as if South would bring those six diamond tricks home unless Johnny could create an illusion for him.

That is just what Johnny did. South finessed dummy's queen of diamonds at trick two and Johnny dropped the jack.

South returned to his hand with a club, led a diamond, played dummy's ten and was about to claim a grand slam when Johnny produced the king. Instead of making all the tricks South wound up going down four.

Banks and Boats Beckon

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L-P-T Food Editor

No precision instrument has ever been perfected that could "clock" his modus operandi. He has good "pick-up" too, yet he is not perpetual motion. Today's Chef of the Week, C. Arnholt "Arnie" Smith, is president and chairman of the board of the United States National Bank, and president of the Westgate California Corp. He also owns the San Diego Padres. He has been very careful not to become a personal failure while making a business success.

Probably the biggest secret of his accomplishments is his pride in physical fitness, and his interest in sports of all kinds.

Always fond of water, Smith, at one time owned the Crystal Pier at Pacific Beach, near San Diego, just so he could be close to it. This fondness led him to become a rowing champion. Also, he is now cruising in his fifth cruiser, the Kimika. That's Hawaiian for Smith.

• • • •

DURING HIS rowing days at San Diego Rowing Club, Smith was known as the "silent, placid one." He lived by training rules and kept in excellent condition. He was called a natural oarsman, was never beaten in competition. He won the California senior sculling title by beating Bill Nelson of San Francisco, the man they claimed was "unbeatable." He won 20 trophies in rowing and one in golf for a one-day tournament at Catalina Island. Smith retired from rowing at 23.

He has been known as the "man with the tan" for the past 35 years, which accounts for the color of his banks, including the three located in Long Beach. In fact, his home, and Westgate Park, which he owns, are painted "Smith Brown." It is estimated he spends $100,000 a year on paint.

He has called San Diego home since 1906 when his parents moved there from Walla Walla, Wash. Practically self educated, Smith went to San Diego High, but didn't finish. He has reached the top by working hard and long hours. With a natural business sense as a youngster, he learned most of what he knows about the banking business by attending American Institute of Banking classes.

• • • •

HIS ADULTHOOD mirrors his childhood in other ways, too. He always had to have many things on the fire and, if things slowed down, he'd start something. He read and reads a lot. And he had, and has, that happy faculty for making his enthusiasm become infectious. But, probably his greatest attribute is his ability to make his employes want to match their energy with his. To quote one, "He makes you feel as if you are working with him as an equal."

As chief executive for the U. S. National Bank and the Westgate California Corp., Smith oversees a total operation of more than 1,200 employes and combined resources of more than $292,000,000.

Since its expansion program began in 1950, the U. S. National Bank has grown from a single branch in San Diego to a 28-branch system with offices in five key counties of San Diego, Orange, Riverside, Los Angeles and San Bernardino. In the last five years deposits have risen from $108,000,000 in 1958, to $203,000,000 in 1962.

Smith conducts his varied business interests from a swank, beautifully wall-papered office of the U. S. National Bank. Across the street he watches construction of his new 24 story skyscraper, which eventually will house the bank. He and his associates bought the bank in 1933.

• • • •

SMITH IS A great family man, too. He and Mrs. Smith have a daughter, Carol (Mrs. Harry Shannon), and a son, Arnold Jr. Week-ends usually find them at Westgate Park, pulling for the Padres, in Balboa Stadium rooting for the Chargers, on the ocean in their 67-foot cruiser, or swimming in their pool at home.

A perfectionist, anything he does, he does the best he can. No one is neater.

And . . . when he cooks, well, his recipe had better be for tuna, or he'd be "off limits" at Westgate. This one is for Tuna Curry.

Chef of the Week

C. Arnholt Smith

TUNA CURRY KIMIKA

- 2 7-oz. cans tuna
- 1 quart milk
- 1 package coconut
- 3 cloves garlic, crushed
- 2 medium onions, chopped
- 1 piece green ginger, chopped
- 1 to 2 tblsp. curry powder (to taste)
- 4 tblsp. flour
- 2 tblsp. melted buter
- Salt to taste.

Add coconut to milk and let stand 2 hours; then simmer 30 minutes. Add garlic, onion, ginger, curry powder and flour which has been blended with butter. Cook 30 minutes longer. Strain tuna and add to mixture. Also, more salt if needed. Reheat and serve on mound of steaming rice. Serves 5.

Serve with any five of the following:

- 1 cup chopped, crisp bacon
- 1 cup hard cooked eggs, chopped
- 1 cup roasted peanuts
- 1 cup sweet ginger
- 1 cup grated coconut
- 1 cup chopped onion tops
- 1 cup mango chutney
- 1 cup gherkin pickles
- Lemon or lime quarters

Juilliard Schedules Auditions

Juilliard School of Music, New York, has announced that it will hold auditions for the Naumburg and Lifschey Scholarships for orchestral instruments: violin, viola, cello, string bass, oboe, English horn, bass clarinet, bassoon, French horn, trumpet, trombone, bass trombone and tuba.

On Jan. 6 and 7, Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard Orchestra, and Jorge Mester, a member of the orchestra conducting faculty, will adjudicate the orchestral scholarships. On Feb. 10, Christopher West, director of the Juilliard Opera Theater, with Frederic Waldman, conductor and associate director of the Juilliard Opera Theater, will judge for the Opera Theater scholarships.

• • • •

THOSE ACCEPTED for admittance to Juilliard School of Music as orchestral instrument students will, in addition to their regular training, have opportunity to play with the Juilliard Orchestra, which gives six concerts a year.

Not only does the orchestra play the standard symphonic repertory, but contemporary works and premieres. There are also the advantages of performing on afternoon and evening student recitals, training in the Opera Theater Orchestra, chamber ensembles, etc.

Spring high school graduates, as well as performers on the college and graduate levels, are eligible to participate. Orchestral applicants will be expected to play not only compositions of their own choice, but also to sight-read difficult passages from the standard symphonic repertory.

Complete information concerning these auditions may be obtained from Mr. Edward T. Paul, 1330 N. Vine St., Hollywood.

On Stage—

CHAPEL THEATER, 4144 Pacific Coast Highway, Torrance, "The Moon Is Blue," 8:30 p.m. Fridays through Sundays. Closing Jan. 11.

COMMUNITY PLAYHOUSE, 5021 E. Anaheim St., "Strange Bedfellows," 7:45 p.m. Thursday; 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Closes Jan. 5.

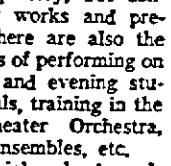

MAGNOLIA THEATER, 2408 Magnolia Ave., "A Shot in the Dark," 8 p.m. Thursday and Sunday; 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday; New Year's Eve performance, 9 p.m.

OFF-BROADWAY THEATER, 211 Lime Ave., "Why Wives Worry," 8:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday, Sunday; "Prince Farfoot," 2:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

'Irma' Auditions

Auditions for singers, dancers and actors for the Off-Broadway Theater production of "Irma La Douce" will be held at 7:30 p.m. today in Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave. Ron Hogue directs.

TWELVE CHURCHES

Religious structures from many parts of the country make up a new exhibit, "Twelve Churches: An Architectural Study in Photographs," which will come to Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., Feb. 2. Circulated by the Smithsonian Institution, it includes churches chosen to demonstrate how an architect can help the clergy bring people into the church complex to use and enjoy its spiritual, educational and recreational resources.

Landscape Show First in '64

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., next Sunday will open its January exhibit, "Landscape Paintings," selected from its own collection.

The show is planned to demonstrate developments in landscape painting in Southern California during the last 10 years.

Such artists as Florence Arnold, Hans Burkhardt, Paul D. Cooper, Frode Dann, Orval Dillingham, Keith Finch, Robert Frame, George James, Gerd and Irene Koch, Roger Kuntz, Douglas McClellan, Dean Spille and Jack Zajac are represented.

The show will hang through Jan. 26.

• • • •

WILTON McCOY, remembered here as an active participant in Long Beach Art Association and Spectrum Club, will have a one-man show of desert and mountain paintings at Desert Art Center Gallery, 444 E. Indian Ave., Palm Springs.

The exhibit will open Jan. 5 with a reception and tea from noon to 5 p.m. next Sunday.

• • • •

TWO DISTINGUISHED artists from the San Francisco area, Robert Risbell and Dr. Raymond Brose, are featured in a show at Desert-Southwest Art Gallery on Highway 111, Palm Desert. The exhibit will continue through Jan. 14.

Rishell won fame as a portrait painter as well as for his landscapes and murals. Saturday he gave a demonstration of landscape painting at the gallery.

Dr. Brose teaches art at Stanford University. Since 1950, he has received 38 awards in regional and national exhibits, including the purchase prize at the Library of Congress fourth annual exhibition of prints.

The Desert-Southwest Art Gallery, formerly the Desert Magazine Art Gallery, is open daily, including Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. There is no admission charge.

New Year's Eve Show on Agenda

A special New Year's Eve performance of "Flower Drum Song" has been scheduled at Melodyland Theater, opposite Disneyland. The colorful Rodgers and Hammerstein stage hit, starring James Shigeta and Elaine Dunn, will then close its holiday run on Sunday evening, Jan. 5.

Next on the Melodyland Theater agenda is the winter play series, consisting of a quartet of hit comedies, also imported from Broadway, each to run two weeks.

• • • •

FIRST of the group is John Patrick's "Teahouse of the August Moon," starring Burgess Meredith, opening Jan. 14. Others will be "Anniversary Waltz," co-starring Howard Duff and Anne Jeffreys, opening Jan. 28; Gisele MacKenzie in "Auntie Mame," opening Feb. 11; and "No Time For Sergeants," starring Jerry Van Dyke, opening Feb. 25.

Tickets for the series are available by mail or at the box office of the theater. Seats also are on sale at Southern California Music Co., Los Angeles; all Mutual Agencies and Wallichs Music Cities.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Charles Munch Is Dyanmic Director

By RACHEL MORTON
L. P-T Music Critic

Charles Munch, who will appear as guest conductor with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra on Jan. 2 and 3 at the Philharmonic Auditorium, Los Angeles, has had a thrilling career. Those of us who heard him conduct the Boston Symphony at the Shrine Auditorium some years ago will never forget this tall, handsome giant with a shock of wavy blonde-grey hair as he conducted the orchestra with dynamic authority and poetic sensitivity.

Charles Munch was born into an environment of nothing but music. All his paternal ancestors were organists. In Strasbourg, where he was born in 1891, his father, besides being an organist, founded a choir and organized a school of music.

• • • •

THE MUSICAL get-togethers in the family of six children on Sunday afternoon were as set a custom as going to church. Often, celebrated musicians were guests in the home and young Munch was thus privileged to meet Arthur Nikisch, Gabriel Pierne, Vincent d'Indy and Edouard Colonne.

Young Charles, like his brothers and sisters, was taught to play the organ and violin and at an early age was playing second violin at the last stand in his father's orchestra. From the age of 14 he was an occasional substitute for his father at the organ. "Before those keyboards and pedals and the palette of stops," he says, "I felt almost like a demigod, holding in my hands the reins that controlled the musical universe.

• • • •

BUT IT WAS as a violinist that he received his diploma at the Strasbourg Conservatory in 1912, and it was as a violinist that he headed for Paris to study under Lucien Capet. Paris became the love of his life. Here he met and married the daughter of a prominent family of Switzerland, Genevieve Maury, a marriage that lasted until her death in 1956.

During World War I, Munch was gassed before Peronne and wounded at Verdun. He returned to Strasbourg, which had become French territory and took out French citizenship papers. He became concert master of the Strasbourg Orchestra and in 1926 he became concert master of the Leipzig Philharmonic, under Wilhelm Furtwangler, where he had occasional chances to conduct.

• • • •

BEING PERSUADED now that conducting was to be his life's work, he returned to Paris. With his wife's encouragement and their pooled resources, he rented a hall in Paris, engaged an orchestra and conducted a concert which was so successful tha this name became famous overnight. He assembled his own orchestra, calling it The Paris Philharmonic, and made a point of playing the works of men then living in Paris, such as Honegger, Roussel and Poulenc.

"I like all music," he says, "no matter from what country or what composer. But I do like to interpret music in which something is happening all the time."

HAPPY NEW YEAR TO MY READERS!

Southern California Art Flowered in 1963

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Art flowered everywhere in our area in 1963. The Los Angeles County Museum brought to us major and definite exhibits, historical and contemporary: the Treasures of Versailles, paintings by Philip Guston, 12 Pop Artists, Masterworks of Mexico, the sculpture of Gaston Lachaise.

Among other brilliant showings, Pasadena offered collections of Robert Motherwell, Nolde, and Duchamp. The contributions of the newly-born Balboa Pavillion Gallery included Morris Graves and the exciting "Artist as Craftsman—Craftsman as Artist."

• • • •

WITHOUT even mentioning the consistently high quality of exhibits at the UCLA galleries, kudos must go to college galleries: the splendid Long Beach City College offerings highlighted by this fall's "Six Painters," the brilliant promise of Orange State College's opening show. Long Beach State College now has a gallery director who brought here, among others, the "34" show of major West Coast sculptors.

The business world is assuming responsibilities in the cultural field. The Rossmoor Shopping Center offered this summer a major juried exhibit of paintings, Buffum's commissioned a painting as its Christmas offering. Sears showed its Vincent Price collection here.

• • • •

LONG BEACH Museum of Art consistently offers the public a wide variety of art forms, including the two "Arts of Southern California" series, the "Second Annual Southern California Exhibition" of 110 juried paintings and sculptures, and circulating exhibitions. Two of these were from the American Federation of Art, "A University Collects: Notre Dame," with 17th and 18th century works from France and Italy, and "A University Collects: Cornell," showing prints by Whistler. The current toy exhibit includes old and new toys from around the world, selected for their historical interest as well as for their art value. Two exhibits this year pointed up the museum's interest in the local art scene—the Jubilee Show and the Long Beach Art Association Annual.

• • • •

THE WORKS shown by private groups to the public reflect a dedication to higher standards: the Villa Riviera Gallery of Long Beach Art Association and the Seal Beach Artists' League. Series of shows are presented at the Pacific Coast Club, at Buffum's and other business establishments as well as in our branch libraries.

Commercial galleries seem to survive best as adjuncts to other businesses. Grace Carnot supports her high caliber collections of local artists by the unique International Gifts, Atelier 7 with a bistro, and Veltman with its frame shop.

LBSC graduates each year several dozen first-rate artists in all media schooled by a faculty whose own works are of wide renown. Both the annual faculty and students shows are exciting events.

• • • •

WHERE IS this flowering leading? (The term "renaissance," meaning re-birth, is hardly applicable to the situation.) Pasadena Art Museum and the County Museum will move into appropriate new homes in the near future. The opportunity for assembling meaningful collections is wide open. Many sincerely-dedicated persons hope that in the New Year our city will take positive steps toward establishing an art center which will be appropriate to the opportunities and future needs of the community.

Ford Grants for Ballet

A $7,756,000 program to strengthen professional ballet in the United States has been announced by the Ford Foundation.

Recipients include performing companies, ballet schools, private teachers and promising students.

A significant part of the new program is designed to improve instruction and performance in local communities. It will be implemented through a $1.5 million grant to the School of American Ballet in New York under direction of George Balanchine. The school also will receive $2,425,000 over the next 10 years to strengthen it as a national ballet training institution.

• • • •

THE NEW York City Ballet will receive $2 million over 10 years for expansion of its repertoire, extension of employment periods for its dancers and stage managers and provision for its dancers to perform with emerging companies in other cities.

Russian Bill Booked for Film Series

The presentation of an early Russian film classic, "Alexander Nevsky," will high light Jewish Community Center's Foreign Film Festival on Saturday.

The public will be able to see the complete version of this film in the original language, with English subtitles. Directed by the renowned Serge Eisenstein, it features an original score by Prokofiev. With magnificent visual imagery, it tells of the defense of Novgorod by Prince Alexander Nevsky against the invading Teutonic hordes during the fierce 13th century Battle of the Ice.

Open to all, the film will start at 8:30 p.m. at the center, 2601 Grand Ave. A short feature on Russian folk dance will also be shown, and coffee and cake are available after the presentation. For further information, call the center.

'Las Posadas' at Padua Hills

"Las Posadas" at Padua Hills Theater, Claremont, is popularly known as the story of Christmas in Old Mexico.

"Las Posadas" is the story of a humble Mexican family faced with a problem at Yuletide. Between the first and third acts of the play is the famous coloquio, Nativity scene recreating the birth of Christ. It is a stirring a dramatic event as presented by the Mexican Players.

"Las Posadas" will run through Jan. 4. It will be followed by "Las Canacuas," comedy set in romantic Michoacan. This play will open a run of seven weeks on Jan. 8.

Padua Hills Theater is located three miles north of Foothill Boulevard, Claremont. Reservations may be made by phone.

Our Cover

A million persons will line the parade route Wednesday in Pasadena, and 90 million others will be watching on television as 19-year-old Nancy Kneeland of San Gabriel and her six princesses roll by on the royal float of the diamond anniversary Tournament of Roses. Nancy, who was selected as queen from 2,600 Pasadena City College coeds, is a business major who plans a career as a retail merchandising buyer. The 5-foot-7, green-eyed brunette collects antique silver and china as a hobby, likes tennis, hunting and sailing, and sings in her church choir. Nancy, whose widowed mother is secretary to a school principal, works part-time in a department store.

The Confusing Game of Football

—Associated Press Wirephoto

Football is confusing enough for its fans, but pity this hapless official trapped helplessly in a pileup of players. Not only disturbed, he almost lost his pants.

By Jerome Hall

IT HAS been concluded, apparently by use of some gigantic adding machine, that 75 million persons will watch the games of football played Wednesday for television and the glory of Alma Mater.

Obviously, that total includes women and children who do not understand what is happening.

But if all those who do not understand the game were subtracted from that 75 million, it would leave only 384 — the head coach and the quarterback of each of the colleges in America. And some of those coaches are on the borderline.

Football, you see, is not a simple game.

Originally it was. The game began in ancient Athens, was banned in the 12th century. Then it just slid along in a limbo until Knute Rockne.

FOOTBALL is a game of specialists now—and so is watching football. There are those who specialize in watching the linemen. They never know who won the game until they read the papers the next day. But somewhere in their youth they heard that the football fan "in the know" watches the line play.

Football is based on confusion. Harland Svare, the Rams coach, recently was asked if he had one wish for a Christmas present, would it be the Chicago Bears' defense or the New York Giants' offense. He picked the Bears' defense, without hesitation. Then he was asked which team he thought would win the National Football League championship game. He picked the Giants.

Then there are statistics. You can't have sports without statistics. Else what would the sports writers write about on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursday? But if you don't understand what "TCB" and "PC" and "LG" means, don't fret. A college coach of considerable academic achievement recently summoned the school's publicity man to admonish him for giving away the team's secrets. He considered the average gain per carry to be classified information.

"All the schools do it," protested the publicist.

But the coach insisted. It was all right to reveal the total yards gained by the backfield men and the number of times they carried the ball, but it was revealing too much to tell their averages.

THERE IS so much confusion that the Encyclopedia Brittanica now has tried to uncomplicate the game. It has a new booklet out, saying "As soon as the center snaps the ball, you suddenly see mayhem. Everyone starts running and in a few seconds the players are piled in a heap."

Now, what could be clearer than that?

Since the encyclopedia has invaded football, the dictionary is next. It will define backfield players as "swivel-hipped slashers," no doubt. And linemen will be "hard-nosed linemen" because there obviously is no such thing as a soft-nosed linemen. Not in Wednesday's bowl games, anyway.

One thing that isn't confusing about football is what the coach says to the referee when a long run is called back.

One other thing that's easy to understand about football. When you're sitting in that crowded stadium and someone squeezes past, spills some soda pop on you and steps on your toe . . . he knows what you're thinking.

A PARADISE FOR NATURE LOVERS ONLY 36 MILES FROM L.B.

Muir's Springs Where Wild Roses Grow

By Vera Williams

NATURALIST John Muir set out in 1877 on an excursion into the San Gabriel Mountains, and eventually made his way up Eaton Creek into Eaton Canyon.

He spent his first night, he wrote, in the company of "a strange, dark-looking man" who lived in a cabin "situated at the foot of the mountains where a small spring oozes out of a bank overgrown with wild rose bushes."

This colorful natural area described by Muir is located in the heart of one of Los Angeles County's most natural and unspoiled parks—Eaton Canyon Park, 1750 N. Altadena Drive, Pasadena, 12 miles from downtown Los Angeles, 36 miles from downtown Long Beach.

OF SPECIAL interest to nature lovers is the 185-acre Fox Ridges section of the park, featuring a new nature study center, a nature trail with chaparral and desert scrub plants, and an outdoor farm-and-wild animal compound. Nearby are a wildlife area of several canyons, a meadow and a dry wash for hiking and studying purposes.

Provided also are a picnic ground with 50 tables and a fire circle, parking facilities and a camp ground with restrooms.

An overnight campside for equestrians is under construction.

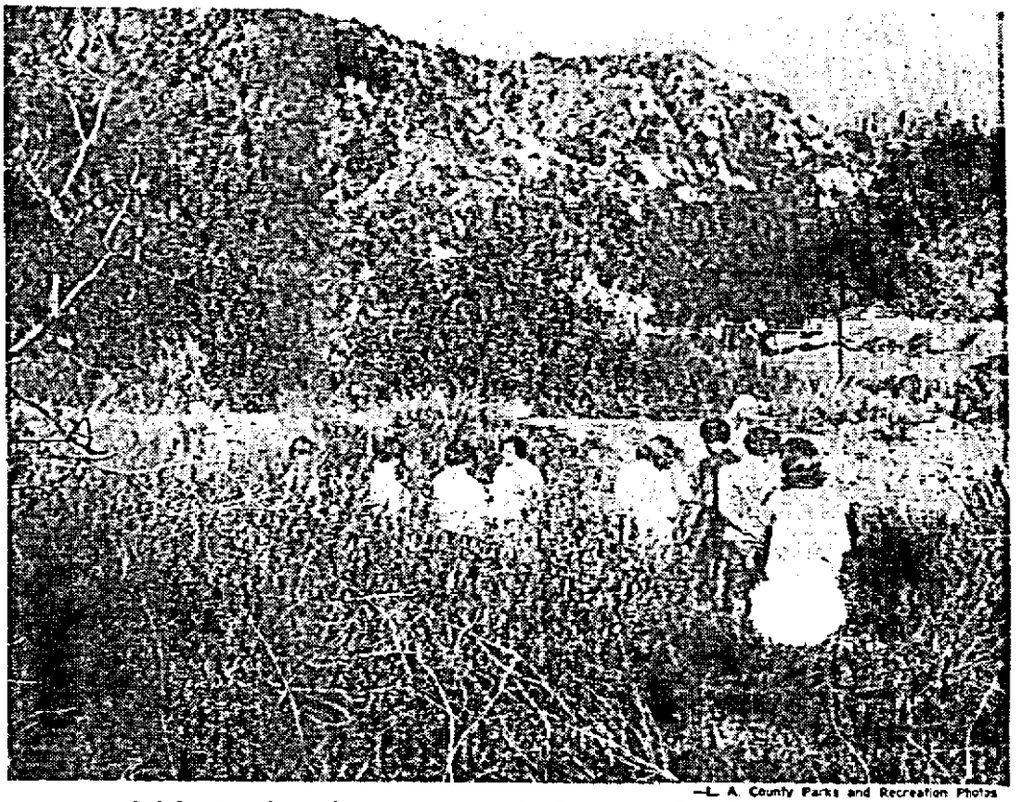

Eaton Canyon, altitude 960 feet, lies entirely in the foothill and chaparral life zone and provides fascinating flora and fauna. Included are 2,705 species of animals (2,500 insects, 25 mammals, 70 birds, 8 lizards, 10 snakes and 7 amphibians); 123 species of plants (70 wild flowers, 44 shrubs, 6 trees, 3 vines) and a vast number of grasses, lichens, ground covers, mosses, ferns, mushrooms and toadstools.

THE NATURE STUDY area's compound of wild and farm animals eventually is to become a "barnyard zoo" where children may feed rabbits, chickens, pheasants, guinea pigs, tortoises and rodents.

A large hawk and an opossum delight children and animal-loving adults. The park regrets that it has lost "Hopper," a tame cottontail who used to hop up out of the brush for visitors to scratch his ears. Lately he has been missing—and some female rabbit, not so tame as Hopper, is suspected.

The Robert McCurdy Nature Study Center, named for a Pasadena civic leader interested in nature study, recently was opened. It includes a Nature Study Building (3,653 square feet) and a 196-seat auditorium (1,792 square feet). The Nature Study Building has a museum-library, two classrooms, preparation room and office. The auditorium has a raised speaker's platform.

The museum-library and display cases facing the enclosed court are reserved for exhibits. Window displays include living snakes and lizards common to Eaton Canyon, live insects, plant legends, common birds and mammals and a habitat exhibit of the great horned owl and dusky-footed wood rat.

Girl Scout guides studying nature trails at Eaton Canyon Park, Pasadena, appear to be wading through dense growth. The girls escort visitors to the 184-acre park.

NATURE recreation programs are coordinated by Senior Nature Recreation Specialist David G. Marqua, who holds a master of science degree in zoology from Long Beach State College. Naturalists on the staff include Robert Crandall, nature photographer known for his work in Walt Disney's "Living Desert" and "Secrets of Life."

Hikes and guided tours, youth and adult classes, guest naturalist lectures and starlight nature programs are provided. Hikes and guided tours are highlighted Saturdays and Sundays, 10-12 noon and 1-3 p. m.

When the county acquired Fox Ridges from Miss Mary Beatrice Fox in 1950 for $50,000, the former owner stipulated that the natural beauty of the park be preserved in its original state. Her family had held title to the property from about the time Muir visited it until it was sold to the county.

IT HAPPENED IN IMPERIAL AND COACHELLA VALLEYS IN 1906

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

When California Almost Drowned

By Jan R. Young

WHEN MAN tinkers with nature, trouble is often the end result. Nowhere is this maxim better illustrated than in the titanic struggle that took place in 1906, a time when it seemed that part of Southern California might very well become a part of the Pacific Ocean, or at least the Gulf of California.

Newspaper headlines trumpeted the impending dangers when the mighty Colorado River left its bed and began filling the Imperial and Coachella Valleys with billions of gallons of water. Where there had been only desert, an inland sea appeared and was growing at an alarming rate. Something had to be done, and immediately. A railroad with faith in the future and men with little other than raw courage accepted the challenge. The battle lines were drawn.

But what was it that pitted man against nature in this epic battle?

IT WAS DURING the 1890s that pioneer land developers saw promise in the desert wastelands of Imperial and Coachella Valleys. But before they could become gardens, water must be had. Accordingly, a canal was dug which diverted water from the Colorado River directly into the Imperial Valley.

With water available, residents flocked to the area. Vision became reality as lush crops were harvested and the valley gave birth to a number of towns, built to serve the farmers and their families. For a time all went well, or so it seemed. But the Colorado, unused to being harnessed, was restless and treacherous. Bland on the surface, the river was secretly dropping sand into the canal. Suddenly, overnight, water to the farmers dropped to a trickle, then stopped altogether. Several miles of the canal were completely blocked with tons of sand and a levee 20 feet high appeared at the entrance!

Farmers were wild with rage, seeing their crops threatened because of water scarcity. They demanded that something be done at once. The promoters seemed to think a short by-pass canal would be easier than to clear four miles of silt. A control gate could be built later, after the emergency was over.

THAT DECISION cost millions and nearly destroyed one of the lushest agricultural areas in the West, if not the world.

The Colorado took to the new channel with a vengeance. More and more water poured into it, until the entire river had changed its course from south to north and its full force was pouring into the Imperial Valley. Now not only the farms were endangered but towns, a railroad, and hundreds of homes. What could be done?

With the full force of the river combined with a series of storms, the 60-foot irrigation ditch had been widened to 120 feet, then 600 feet, and finally a quarter mile. Nearly 20 million gallons of water were pouring into the valley every 24 hours. The full tide poured into the Salton Sink, an immense hole in the sand situated more than 200 feet below sea level. Unless something was done, that Sink would be filled before the river would go back to its bed.

The Southern Pacific Railroad, whose tracks ran across the valleys, accepted the challenge of taming the river. The SP put up $200,000 to aid in the fight. But the initial attempts were hopeless. Aided by the floods, more than four times as much earth as excavated from the Panama Canal was dumped into the cavity. E. H. Harriman, president of the railroad, realized the inherent dangers and issued orders:

Stop the break at any cost!

HE SENT HIS best engineer, Harry T. Cory, to the scene as local engineers showed signs of panic when their levees, dams, and other devices were swept away by the deluge.

While Cory may not have felt inwardly confident, he went ahead with the determination of a charging rhino, building rail spur lines and accommodations for the army of men needed in the struggle. But the Colorado didn't rest, either. The river's nozzle was dug 50 feet deep and was nearly a half mile wide.

Cory's heroic efforts met with defeat and with a million dollars already dumped into the flood tide, the Southern Pacific sought aid from the government. Because Congress wasn't in session, Harriman appealed directly to President Theodore Roosevelt, who personally promised that the government would assume the risk and the expense if the Southern Pacific would continue the fight.

With the promise of unlimited backing, Cory tied up 1,200 miles of main line track so that flatcars, loaded with rock and rubble, could go through. The rock trains, from as far away as 450 miles, began thundering along the rails. In 15 days, 2,057 carloads of rock, 221 of gravel, and 203 of clay were dumped into the raging river. It was a record which still stands unequaled.

HUNDREDS OF MEN were recruited into the fight, including a number of Indians who wove a willow mat 160 feet wide and nearly a half mile long. Engineers planned to use it to slow the cutting impact of the water while thousands of tons of rock were dropped into the aperture. Traditional engineering methods had been swept away with the intensity of the fight. Anything was used, no matter how far-fetched or primitive it seemed to be. This was now a fight for survival.

Cory's men forced a trestle into the torrent three times, but each time the water engulfed it before enough rock could be dropped to support the structure. Ninety-foot timbers were floated away like matches. But suddenly, the accumulated work took hold. And it was on the morning of February 11, 1907, that the river was finally controlled. A trestle was pushed across, railroad men spiking down rails just ahead of the heavily laden rock cars. They were followed by trains carrying immense boulders which were pushed into the water with little else than man's naked courage and strength. Huge searchlights lighted the way for men working night and day.

THE RUBBLE, ROCKS and debris took hold in the mats and timbers. Just as though nothing had happened, the mighty Colorado jabbed through the earth and cut a new channel, again aimed peacefully as before at the Gulf of California.

To insure victory, a network of dikes and canals was constructed to prevent a recurrence of such a disaster. A glistening inland sea, the Salton Sea, 10 miles wide and about 35 miles long, remained to recall the strength of the river that left its bed.

In exchange for the millions spent and the heroic efforts in taming the Colorado and preventing Southern California from being inundated, the government finally paid the costs —22 years after the fight had been won.

This train had to steam into a vast flood in 1906, when an engineering error in Imperial Valley caused mighty Colorado River to leave its bed.

Shoot 'em up days of early California

New Year's Celebrations of Long Ago

Illustration by Richard Wallmeyer

Shocked young man was Harris Newmark, recent arrival in Southern California, at experiences on his first New Year's Eve and rough ways of West.

By Maymie R. Krythe

WHEN EASTERNERS came to California in the early days, they liked to carry on the old holiday customs they had enjoyed on the other side of the continent. And we have an interesting account in Richard Henry Dana's classic, "Two Years Before the Mast," of how he and a few companions—during the 1830s—went ashore New Year's Day when their ship touched harbor of Monterey.

After they had washed the decks and eaten breakfast, they got a bucket of water apiece and "scrubbed up" for the land trip. After dressing in their best sailor outfits, they went ashore in a quarter boat. Since they couldn't find a church service, they went around Monterey, talked with some natives, hired horses and rode to Carmel Mission. They had a dinner there of "beef, eggs, frijoles, tortillas, and some middling wine."

Then they "scoured" the vicinity on "fleet horses," and got back to Monterey soon after the sun had gone down. Some of the sailors had refused to go with Dana and his companions on the ride, "thinking that a sailor has no more business with a horse than a fish has with a balloon."

SO THESE MEN were "moored, stem and stern" in a grog shop, drinking and making a lot of noise. A crowd of Indians and half-breeds was standing around; and Dana said the sailors might have been "stripped and dirked" or taken to the calabozo if they hadn't rescued them. It was difficult to get these men down to the boats and back on their ship. And the next day after this New Year's revel there were many aching heads as the men worked long hours carrying hides to their vessel.

About a decade later, after Dana's adventure at Monterey, another American spent January 1 there. In 1842, Dr. R. T. Maxwell sailed from Norfolk, Va., as assistant surgeon on the 44-gun frigate United States, commanded by Commodore Thomas Ap Catesby Jones, for the Pacific Coast. Later, when his health failed, Dr. Maxwell left the naval service and settled in San Francisco. There he wrote a book, "A Visit to Monterey," and described a New Year's Day with native Californians at this coastal town:

"On the night of the first of January we gave them (the Californians) a ball at Government House. At that time the female population of Monterey had never tasted cake, mince pie, or anything of that sort. The stewards of our mess were set to work making all kinds of delicacies in the shapes of cakes and pies for the supper at the ball. Our wine from Maderia was all expended, so we were obliged to depend upon whisky toddy, which the ladies thought very fine, and indulged in too freely, some of them. . . .

"These people had the most extraordinary customs. They came on board the ship and danced all day, and we would go ashore and dance all night. They would sit down at the table, and every woman would spread her handkerchief on her lap, and whatever we had on the table, they would eat a part of and carry off a part in their handkerchiefs—nuts, figs, everything. Their manners were exceedingly primitive. . . ."

Richard Henry Dana recalled a year-end celebration in the Monterey area.

IN THE EAST, it was an old New Year's custom of long standing to keep "open house" on New Year's Day. Long tables were set with food and drink. Friends rushed about in their carriages, calling on as many other friends as possible, and, of course, indulging in an eating and drinking marathon. During Gold Rush days in Northern California, one woman tells how the holiday was spent there:

"Tomorrow (New Year's Day) the gentlemen make calls on that day, and the ladies keep a table loaded with cake and wine. I suppose three-quarters of the gentlemen in town will get most essentially tight. I shall not make any special preparation, but I have baked some cake, if anybody comes. I do not want to be piggish. . . ."

In October 1853, a young German named Harris Newmark arrived from his native land and settled in Los Angeles. He became a clerk in his brother's store, and later was one of the city's most influential citizens. His book, "Sixty Years in Southern California," gives a very interesting and detailed account of life in the pueblo during the last half of the 19th century and the beginning of the 20th.

ONE CAN IMAGINE how surprised and shocked the young foreigner was when he spent his first New Year's holiday in Southern California where many lawless characters resided and paid little attention to the law.

On New Year's Eve, he was in his brother's store about 8 o'clock when a man "gloriously drunk and out for a good time" came in flourishing a gun. Since he had been celebrating the New Year for some time, he was already "six sheets in the wind." Mr. Newmark knew he was all right when sober, but a terror when drunk.

Therefore, when the intruder saw Newmark was alone, he pointed his gun at him and demanded, "Treat or I shoot." Discretion being the better part of valor, the clerk took him to a nearby saloon. Then, after the man had had his drink, he fired his gun in the air and disappeared in the darkness.

Newmark says that the first New Year's Eve he spent in Los Angeles (1853) was "ushered in with the indiscriminate discharging of pistols and guns." When the town was organized after California entered the Union in 1850, its council tried to pass an ordinance prohibiting the carrying of firearms, except "in defense of self, home or property." However, the councilmen gave up, as they thought it would be impossible to enforce such a measure. So Newmark says that he, too, got the habit, and kept "peppering away" at an adobe wall on Commercial Street in an effort to become proficient with the weapon.

He neglects to state the quality of his marksmanship by the time the next salute to the New Year rolled around.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Its 30-Year Mood Was Spanish: Today's Accent Is Modern

BEFORE: 30 years Spanish.

By Stella George

ABOUT 30 YEARS AGO a handsome, two-story, Spanish-type home was built on the lot located at 340 Quincy Ave. in Belmont Heights. Now, three years after Rafael de Freitos and Carlo Bognanno purchased the house, it has acquired a modern accent, at same time maintaining its graceful Spanish characteristics.

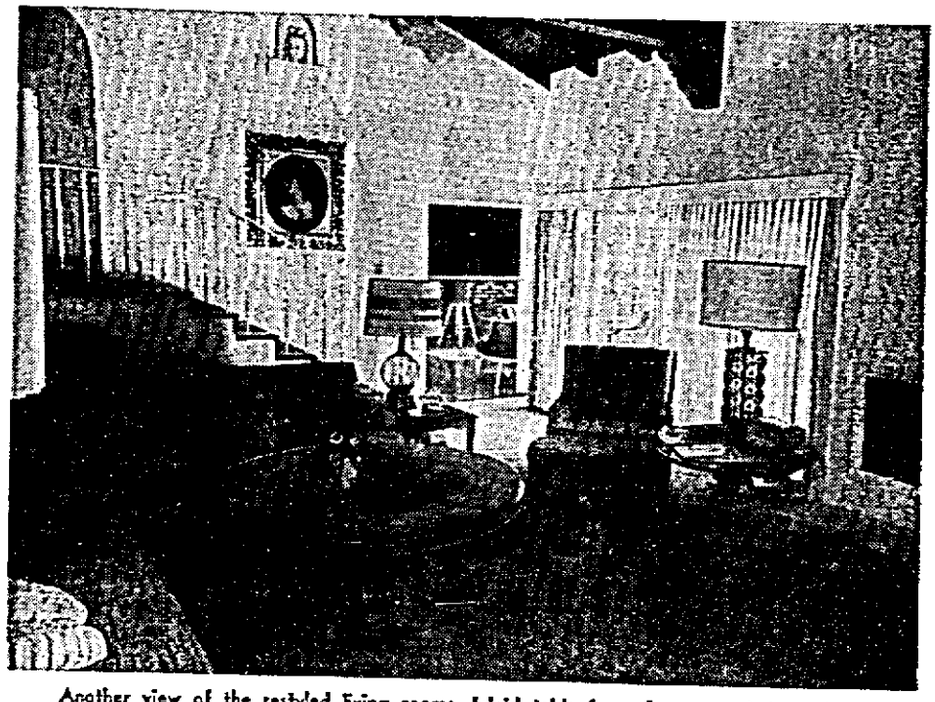

Structural changes included enclosing the patio (visible from the front of the home) adjacent to the family room and living room, and completely remodeling the kitchen-dining-family room area.

The large, beamed-ceiling living room is a step up from the inviting entry. Furnishings were chosen for suitability to surroundings and architectural motif of the home, color, lines, and comfort. A large plate glass window in the front center forms a living picture of the front garden.

WALLS ARE LIGHT in color and the thick, luxurious carpeting is of pumpkin shade. A long, curved, pumpkin-and-gold couch faces a round coffee table. Like so many of the individual pieces, the latter is noteworthy. Once a dining table, its heavy supporting stem was cut off and the table was mounted on its base. (They later transformed the supporting stem into a base for a fruit bowl.) The table is inlaid in beautiful detail.

The original stairway of the home has a distinctive note. Brightly colored mosaic tile runs horizontally across each step.

Modern as 1964 is the new kitchen-family-dining room area. A compact kitchen with every convenience faces the main room, separated by a used brick bar. The round dining (or game) table can be extended; and the overhead hanging lamp can be moved along the ceiling to center light on the table as needed. The room has an "L" to the left of the kitchen where a glass door leads to the patio.

THE UPSTAIRS bathroom received a complete face lifting with a new enclosed shower and unusual tile which has a tweed-with-gold-thread effect. One of the bedrooms is walnut paneled with matching shutters; the other is furnished in light Provincial decor.

The rear patio and garden have a quaint charm. The visitor never knows what to expect around a corner. Ferns and tropical plants are in abundance. There are small private conversation groupings here and there, shaded by trees and tree-size plants. The garden has a skillfully planned informality, a result of the artistic skill and handiwork of the owners.

Visitors remember many things about this distinctive home: the handsome, hand-carved chest in the family room; the paintings and art treasures in the living room, especially the horse above the fireplace; the small patio which, separated only by glass walls, seems to be a part of the family room, bringing the outdoors inside.

Sturdy, with plenty of room for storage, the dough box of Colonial days makes an excellent lamp or end table.

By Bill Meyerriecks

TAKE A Colonial theme, add a slight modern design touch—and you've got a very functional piece of furniture. In early American days the dough box got plenty of use from the pilgrim homemaker. She mixed her dough for the family's bread in it, pressed it into service as a handy kitchen side table, perhaps used it as a cutting board.

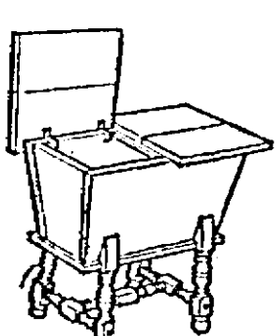

Sketchbook has modernized the traditional dough box as a very attractive lamp or end table. Easy to make, inexpensive in material cost, the dough box is very practical, too. Its hinged tops open to a very roomy storage that can hold many of the items that ordinarily are left about the home.

IT WILL HOLD those Sunday newspaper sections that you finish reading on Tuesday, or those play games that are too big to fit on the bookshelf, last week's mending or any number of things you prefer having out of sight but near at hand.

As an end table, its 23-inch height is right. By using hinges as shown in the plans, you can place a medium sized lamp on the back half, still see and reach into the front by merely lifting the lid. When closed, the 15x26-inch top will hold and serve nicely for just about all the decorative purposes you have in mind.

The Sketchbook plan gives you all parts and material details plus easy-to-follow step by step instructions of assembly. Also full size patterns are given the type of legs you prefer to make for the table. For the real woodworker the full turned legs can be made from the patterns shown. Equally attractive are the more modern tapered legs shown in the photograph. These can be made with a hand saw.

TO ORDER, specify Dough Box Plan S-140 and send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, 12, Calif.

Sketch shows turned legs the woodworking buff can shape on lathe. Note how the top hinges for storage access.

Keep Family Accounts in Order

By Herb Shannon

EVERY household needs a secretary, preferably good-looking as well as efficient. The catch is that the average homeowner has enough trouble meeting the mortgage without hiring a shapely blonde to keep track of the monthly bills. Besides, Mrs. Homeowner probably would invent some unreasonable objection to any such business-like arrangement.

The alternative is an inanimate secretary, something in the furniture line, to keep the family accounts in order, for note-jotting and storage of paper clips, trading-stamp books, overdue bills and the other appurtenances of modern living.

This creates a problem of its own, what with the lack of space for extra furniture pieces in Mr. Average Homeowner's domicile. Where do you squeeze in a desk for occasional use? The answer, of course, is to build it into a bookshelf, where it is out of the way, yet ready for immediate operation.

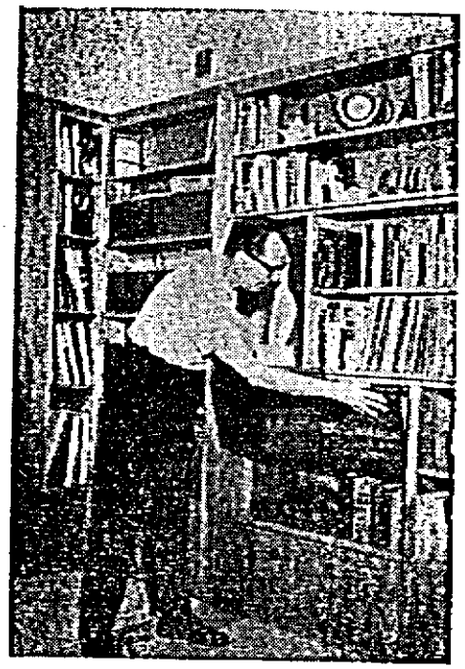

THE SIMPLE and easily made bookshelf desk illustrated here meets these requirements for utility and convenience in an attractive form, in addition to providing a self-contained instant seating facility.

This particular desk also provides the answer to a built-in puzzle: How do you file a 9½-inch business-size envelope in a space less than seven inches deep? The solution is much less complicated than its explanation, but like many of life's little mysteries, it was not immediately fathomed by the builder and author. For this reason and for purposes of suspense, the answer will not be revealed until we have examined some of the more apparent features of the desk.

The assembly is an integral unit, built like an open-front box to fit against a wall along with other bookshelf pieces. Dimensions are optional, depending on those of the surrounding pieces, except for the drop-leaf desk surface. This should be close to standard desk height, about 28 inches from the floor, when opened, and it should extend about 12 inches from the front of the bookcase.

THE DESK surface is hinged flush with the front of the enclosure from the bottom of a shelf inside the unit, and secured when closed by a touch-latch. It is held in the horizontal open position with standard fall-stop brackets on either side.

The desk shelf needs to be sturdy enough to present a good writing surface. In this case, it was made of ¾-inch birch plywood and faced with zebrawood veneer for decorative contrast.

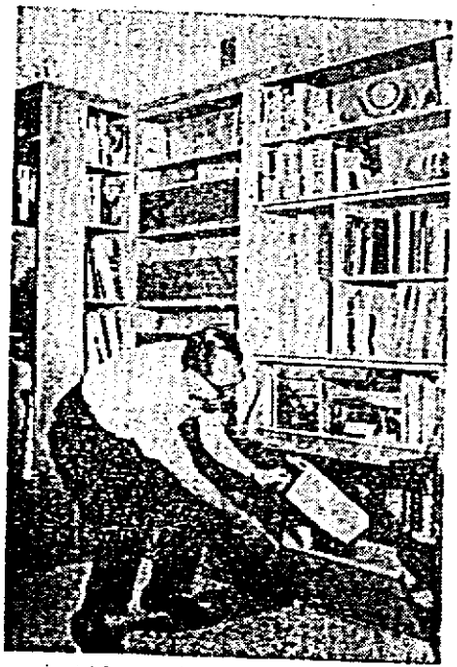

Decorative panel relieves monotony of shelves, opens to serve as desk.

The seating arrangement is simply a storage cabinet at the bottom, containing an inexpensive folding camp stool. The panel concealing this convenience is hinged at floor level and held in place when closed by a magnetic latch.

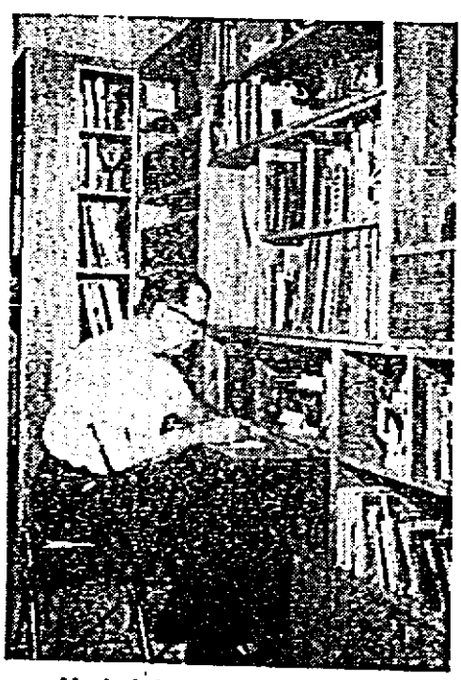

THIS DESIGN leaves an open shelf between the desk and storage enclosures in order to tie into the bookshelf wall motif. It also gives adequate space inside the desk enclosure for installation of drawers and shelves.

Which brings us back to the question posed earlier. After several days of research, experimentation and muttering under the breath, the author found that an envelope measuring 9½ inches long by 4 inches high will fit neatly into a space only five inches deep and 10 inches high, providing the envelope is upended and the pigeonhole is VERTICAL.

This may not seem like much of a scientific discovery at first glance, but neither does Einstein's formula. Both propositions require mental re-orientation.

Enclosure below desk holds instant seating facility—a folding stool.

Handy desk is ready for use any time. Drawers and shelves provide storage.

Old Tires Never Tire

By Frank Jewell

ACCUSTOMED to wastefulness, it is refreshing to Americans to find tireless old tires put to so many uses. They may be seen rolling, bumping, stomping, standing and walking all over the world.

Kids around home have fun rolling tires, rolling in tires and swinging in them on the end of a rope. Young and old in Mexico are grateful to have them to walk upon after they are cut into sandal treads. Old tires in carload and shipload quantities are salvaged for footwear alone as they are replaced by more than 100 million new tires manufactured every year in the U. S.

THOUGH UNSAFE for their original use on motor vehicles, and planes, old tires retain plenty of what it takes for new assignments. Perfected by modern petrochemistry, they retain plenty of elasticity, durability, water-resistance and ability to absorb shock.

No matter that their black and white walls are dull or that the tread pattern has thinned or disappeared: cut into strips they fasten into efficient door mats as commercial products.

Intriguing are the uses to which the whole old tires are put: A town in Texas uses them as bases for removable street traffic signs. The tire fits around a central metal base, stabilizing the sign and facilitating noiseless rolling.

Indians in Arizona reline their wagon brakes with pieces of old tires and even tread their wheels for sandy road traction. An adobe house in New Mexico has made use of old tires to reinforce the walls in interesting pattern arrangements and also to serve as window frames.

TIRES ARE helpful tied into mooring lines for houseboats to provide elasticity for less tension on the ropes and along docks in marinas to protect watercraft from bumping adjacent slips. Some tugboats are festooned with tires which protect them from damaging contact with piers and the ships they are maneuvering.

Old tires make good back stops in garages and strips on door frames save auto finish. They are easily arranged for staggered style, for football running practice and military excercises and are adaptable for other kinds of games.

In fact, old tires never tire, they just wear away.

Portable Doll House

Annette and Mrs. Robert Ray look over Annette's doll house. It's portable and there's very good reason why.

By Roberta Nichols

ELEVEN-year-old Annette Ray's doll house that is being displayed this week at Alamitos Branch Library, 1836 E. 3rd St., is portable and for a very good reason. It can be taken apart, packed, and in no time be on its way to the next Air Force assignment of Annette's father, Staff Sgt. Robert Ray, now in Saigon.

The Rays learned a hard lesson one year in Florida. Always great ones for family projects, they constructed a nine-foot Nativity scene smack in the middle of the living room floor. It took from October to the first of December, and on the day of its completion, Sgt. Ray received orders for immediate transfer. A nine-foot Nativity scene doesn't pack well, so it had to be given away.

WHEN MRS. RAY undertook the building of the doll house as a surprise Christmas present for Annette in 1960, the year Sgt. Ray was in Alaska, she was determined that it would never have to be left behind because of size. So she planned four two-foot-square rooms, each a separate unit, thus making them easily portable. The scale was determined by an 11-inch doll that Annette and her friends favor. To cut down on weight, Mrs. Ray chose aluminum and masonite bolted together. The house is three years old now, has been to Hampton, Va. and back, and has just undergone its first redecoration job.

Once the actual building was completed, the rest was easy and fun. There were shutters made from popsicle sticks, venetian blinds from match stick bamboo, a fireplace of the Ray's favorite all-purpose material, styrofoam. Each brick was individually painted a bright red. Furniture was made and also bought.

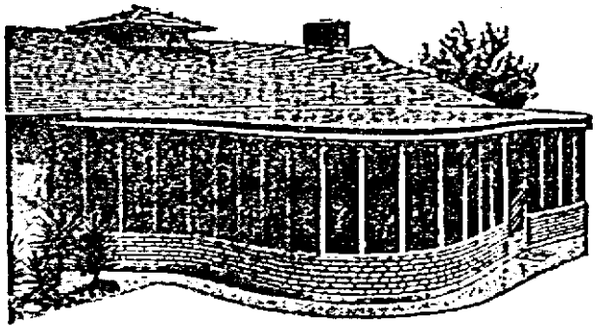

Came summer 1963, and Annette began to eye the doll house critically. It was out-of-date. It had to be redecorated. Like most such projects it became more costly and time-consuming than she had expected it. It ate her allowance and nearly 100 hours of summer vacation. She painted and recovered floors with wood-patterned plastic material. She papered each room with border trim wallpaper.

PLASTIC trellises from the dime store got a luxuriant growth of tiny flowers from old hats. Tops of plastic cigarette packs were filled with styrofoam and planted with more flowers to become window boxes.

Of two TVs, a two-inch set, commercially made, also sharpens pencils. The other is hand-fashioned from styrofoam and has a color picture glued to it. Elegant door knobs throughout the house are known to the playground set as "fried marbles." Curtains and new furniture were installed.

Party Buffet a la Polynesia

All the ingredients for a New Year's buffet in the gay mood of happy Polynesians is spread out here.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine
Home Economics Editor

SET A HAPPY stage in Polynesian mood and bring in an hibachi for a festive New Year's party.

Use the hibachi for tidbits and Polynesian shrimp and rice for the main dish.

Hibachi Tidbits With Barbecue Sauce

1 cup all-purpose barbecue sauce
¼ cup red wine
1 teaspoon soy sauce
Cocktail frankfurters, cut in bite-size pieces
Vienna sausages, cut in bite-size pieces
Drained, canned pineapple chunks
Drained, canned mushroom caps
Luncheon meat, cut in ½-inch cubes
Charcoal briquets

Combine barbecue sauce, wine and soy sauce. Place frankfurters, sausages, luncheon meat and mushrooms in skillet and heat till lightly browned. Place around Hibachi in small dishes (or shells) with bowl of sauce. Guests spear tidbits with wooden skewers, dip in sauce and heat on Hibachi.

Note: To heat charcoal quickly, place on aluminum foil in a pre-heated broiler for about 15 minutes, turning after about 7 minutes. Place charcoal in Hibachi when it is almost white.

Shrimp Polynesian

1¼ pounds cooked, cleaned shrimp or 3 pounds green shrimp in shell
3 tablespoons salad oil
1 can (6 oz.) broiled mushroom crowns
1⅔ cups chicken broth (13½ oz. can)
¼ cup light brown sugar
1 teaspoon powdered ginger
½ teaspoon kitchen bouquet
1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas
1 can (1 lb.) carrots—small, whole, diced or sliced
1 can (1 lb., 4½ oz.) sliced pineapple
½ cup red wine
3 tablespoons cornstarch

Heat oil in skillet, add cooked shrimp medium canned shrimp maybe used and saute for about 2 minutes to heat. Drain liquid from mushrooms, add chicken broth, sugar, ginger and kitchen bouquet. To be shrimp, add peas (thawed enough to be broken apart) carrots, mushrooms (whole or quartered) and pineapple, drained and cut in quarters. Pour liquid into skillet. Cover and bring to a boil, heat until peas are just tender crisp (about 5 minutes). Lower heat. Combine wine and cornstarch and add a little at a time to skillet pushing the food back from the edge of the skillet and stirring until all that section of the liquid thickens. Repeat this in other sections until all the wine-cornstarch mixture has been added. Serve at once with rice. (Serves 8)

Tahiti Salad

2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup sugar
1½ cups boiling water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1½ cups white wine
1 cup mandarin orange sections
Apricot halves
Pineapple rings
Cherries
¼ cup thinly sliced celery
1 grapefruit, sectioned
½ cup green grapes, halved and seeded

Combine gelatin, sugar and salt. Gradually add boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add lemon juice and wine. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Add orange sections, celery, grapefruit and grapes. Place pineapple rings around bottom of ring mold with cherries in center of each ring. Arrange apricot halves around the outer edge. Carefully pour in salad mixture. Chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold on large salad plate with crisp greens, if desired. Serve with Sour Cream Dressing. (Serves 8)

SOUR CREAM DRESSING: Combine 1 cup dairy sour cream, 4 tablespoons mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar and 2 teaspoons vinegar. Mix all ingredients together thoroughly.

Holiday Mincemeat Tart

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup lard or vegetable shortening
5 tablespoons (about) ice water
3 cups (28 oz. jar) prepared mincemeat
1 cup coarsely chopped pecans or walnuts
¼ cup cocktail sherry

Combine flour and salt. With pastry blender cut in shortening until mixture resembles course cornmeal. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of water over mixture at a time, tossing with fork until mixture holds together. Avoid using too much water. Shape pastry into ball. Roll out half of pastry, cut into 12 circles measuring about 3 inches. Fit into tart pans. Combine mincemeat, nuts and sherry. Place a heaping ¼ cup of mixture in each tart. Roll out remaining pastry, cut 12 more circles, cut out star in each circle. Moisten inside rim of each top circle with a little water. Place on top of mincemeat filled tarts. Press edges together firmly with a fork. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes or till lightly browned. (Makes 12)

Note: You can achieve a pretty brown glaze by brushing tarts with light cream before baking. Leftover tarts may be frozen, but better plan on 2 for some of the male guests. Insert a small birthday candle in center of star cut-out and light candles before serving.

Recipe of the Week

WHEN THE HUNTER is home from the forest, this week's $5 prizewinning recipe submitted by J. S. McNeil, 424 Magnolia Ave., Long Beach 12, comes into its own. The recipe:

Leg of Venison

1 leg of venison, 3 to 4 pounds
½ lb. butter
2 oz. bacon stripes
1 cup sour cream
2 tblsp. flour
½ cup water
Salt, pepper

Wipe meat carefully, dry off all skin and break leg joints. Lard the lean sides of the leg with bacon strips and season well with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Melt butter in pan, add meat and cook well on all sides until light brown. Lay a few bacon strips in a roasting pan. Place the venison on them and roast in a 350 degree oven for 1 hour, basting frequently with cream. When the meat is tender, remove to serving platter. Add flour to drippings and cook for 2 minutes. Add water and cook for 5 mintes. Strain and serve with meat. Serves 6.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to: Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

LA REINA RULE
WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is is the genealogy on YULE, YOULLE, YOUELL.—G.T.,T.Y., Long Beach; V.Y., Downey.

G.Y.,T.Y.,V.Y.: YULE and the variations YOULE and YOUELL represent descendants of a child born at Yule-Tide (Christmas time) in old England. The 13th century words Yule and Youle became given-names and later surnames in both spellings. Ancestors recorded in Yorkshire are William Yole in 1335 and Robert Youle, 1379. The Yule shield is silver, decorated with a gold wheat sheaf between three black crescents.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly publish data on VAN LEEUWEN—G.L., Norwalk.

G.L.: VAN LEEUWEN is a Belgian name taken by this family from their home city of Leeuwen or Louvain, near the city of Brussels. This ancient locality was named for its inhabitants, a people called the Levaci, whom the Romans conquered in the first century B.C. The Van Leuvan or Van Leeuwen family crest, granted in 1556 by the rulers of the Belgian Duchy of Brabant, has a red lion placed between two silver ostrich plumes.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on REINDL—F.R., Long Beach.

F.R.: REINDL, when traced to its old German source, is disclosed as a Swiss-German variation of the Gothic warrior name Rein-Hardt meaning "Mighty and powerful one." Rein-Hardt was altered dialectically to Reind and was later augmented with the Swiss nickname suffix "—l" meaning "youthful."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on LOUNSBURY—D.L., J.C., Long Beach.

D.L., J.C.: LOUNSBURY ancestors were from a parish called Londesborough in Yorkshire, England. This town name, originally Lodens-burg, translates as "fortress of the shaggy-haired man." Lodensburg evolved into the surnames Londesburgh, Lonsbrough, Lownsbrough and Lounsbury. The family shield is not available.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of AISSA—F.A., Long Beach.

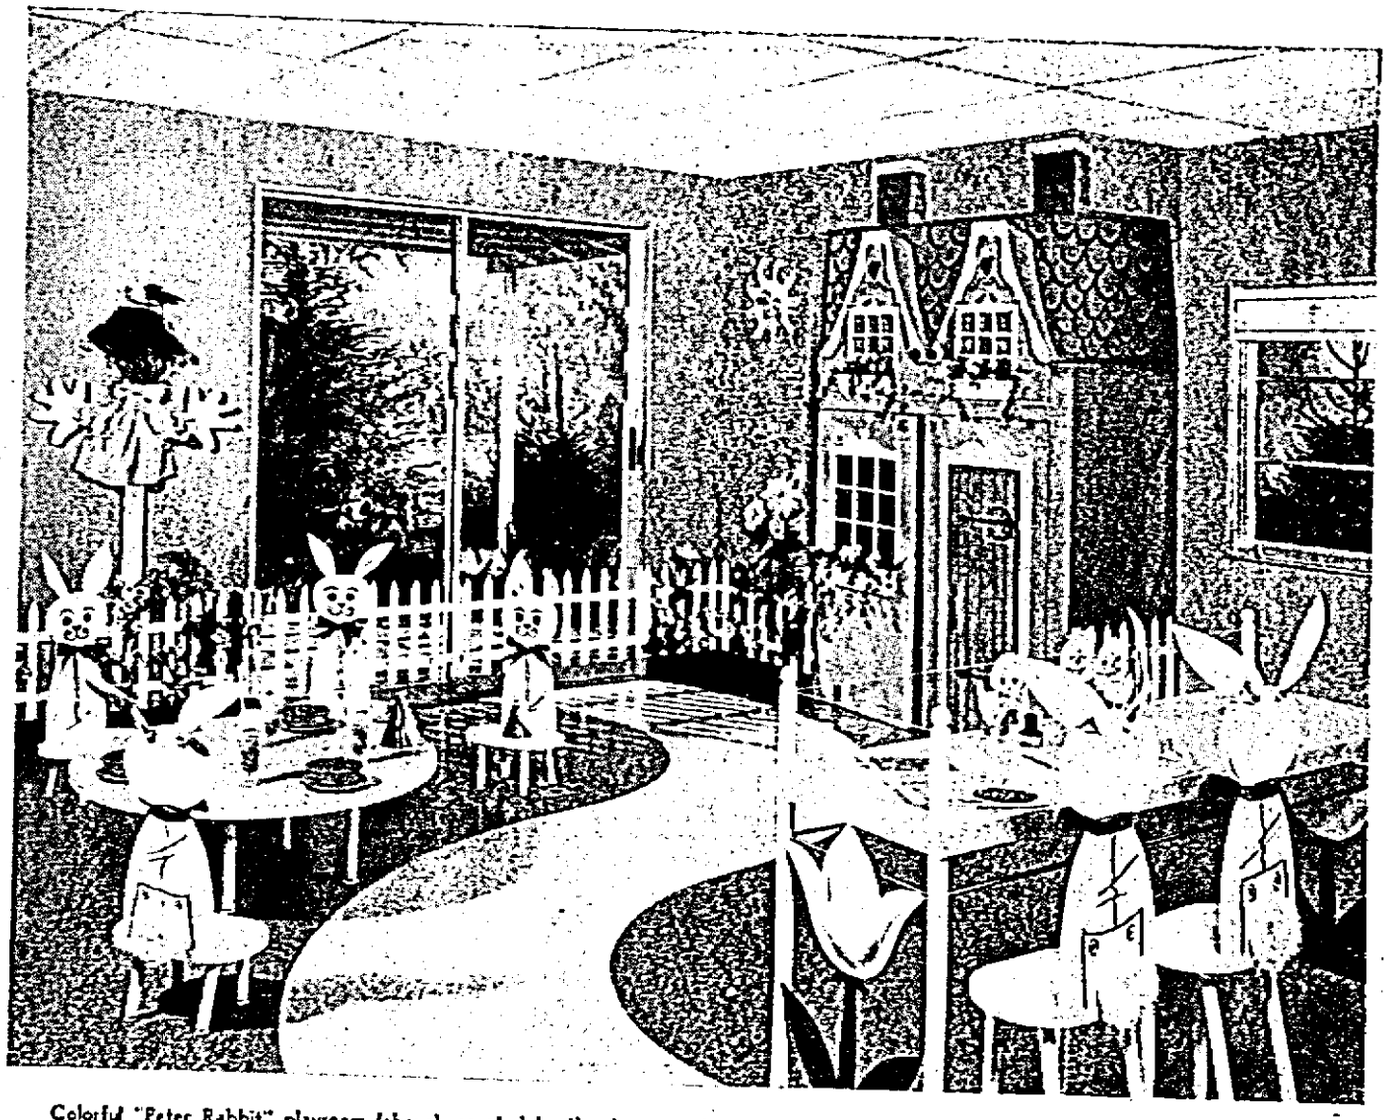

F.A.: AISSA and the variation Assa are Italian surnames. The source was the ancient Roman given-name Aius meaning "the speaker." Aius was used in honor of a pagan Roman deity Aius Loquens, who, tradition records, announced to Roman armies that their enemies, the Gauls of France were attacking them. Aius was altered to Ais, then enlarged to Aissa and Assa, denoting "son of Aius." Aissa may be from the word Assenato for "sensible one," referring to a wise forefather.

DEAR MIS RULE: May we have history on LATHAM—M.B., Long Beach; N.L., Wilmington.

M.B., N.L.: LATHAM was adopted by this lineage from the village called Latham in Yorkshire, England. The Anglo-Saxon source in the 10th century was Hlatha-um, translated as "place of the barns." The Latham shield from Essex is gold, engraved with three silver spheres on a serrated edge blue stripe within a silver and blue border.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background of ALBRIGHT — L.E, Fullerton.

L.E.: ALBRIGHT originated in old England as the warrior-hero name Aethelbryht, meaning "noble and glorious." The most remote forefather was Eusebius Ailbrit of Huntington in 1273.

Colorful "Peter Rabbit" playroom (above), created by the Armstrong Cork Co. Bureau of Interior Design, uses green "Montina Corlon" vinyl floor with a contrasting off-white inset to give the effect of a "winding garden trail." Walls, counters and tables are also covered with durable vinyl, while a suspended acoustical ceiling helps to muffle sounds of exuberant play.

A Separate Playroom

CHILDREN may be the pride of the home, but they can be pretty rough on a house.

Within 15 minutes, kids can have a room looking like the wake of a hurricane. By the time Mother has finished cleaning up the mess, they'll have already started on another room.

Some of this, of course, is to be expected with small children, but it doesn't necessarily mean that a home with youngsters always has to be in a state of disorder. With careful planning and creative utilization of space, it's possible to give children all the freedom they need for normal, healthy development, and at the same time maintain the more formal living areas for adult activities.

The key, according to interior design specialists of the Armstrong Cork Co., is to provide a room somewhere in the house so completely appealing to children that they'll want to spend most of their playtime there out of sheer preference. It could be in the basement, or attic, or in a spare bedroom if one is available—the location doesn't really matter. What is important is that the room be designed and outfitted especially for children's activities—a place where they can do the things they want in their own way.

"A separate playroom," says Margaret Gordon Dana, AID, Supervisor of Interior Design for Armstrong, "can more than justify its cost by saving wear and tear on the rest of the house, and by giving the youngsters the right kind of environment in their critical growing-up years. Gradually, children will grow to appreciate such a room for the freedom it offers, and will take pride and responsibility in seeing that it's kept in good order."

A room project of this type isn't something that can be undertaken hastily, however, Armstrong points out. If it's to do the job, it must be planned carefully, both from an immediate and long-range standpoint. The company offers these 10 suggestions for achieving maximum utility, flexibility and appeal in a children's playroom at minimum cost:

- If possible, select a location with easy access to outdoors. This will allow the youngsters to come and go as they please without tracking dirt through the rest of the house.
- Give the room a thorough safety check. Anything that's likely to produce cuts, burns or shocks should be covered or moved out of reach.
- Look for ways to put existing elements of the room to good use. For example, a large closet or cupboard can be decorated to serve as a playhouse, and also double as a convenient storage place for toys.
- Sound-condition the room with an acoustical ceiling to help muffle noise. Regular acoustical tile can be applied directly to the existing ceiling, or if desired, a mechanically suspended ceiling can be used.
- Choose a floor covering that's designed to stand up under hard wear. Vinyl sheet material is ideal since it not only provides a durable, virtually seamless playing surface, but is also exceptionally easy to maintain. Modern vinyl flooring can be installed practically anywhere today—including most basement areas—thanks to a special "Hydrocord" backing that protects the material from the damaging effects of moisture and alkali in the concrete subfloor.
- Let the youngsters take an active hand in selecting the decorative theme for the room. Show them pictures of various children's rooms, then ask them what they like about the picture. This will supply plenty of ideas and will give the kids a chance to impart some of their own personality into the room.
- Make sure that furniture is flexible enough to "grow" with the children. Detachable legs on chairs and tables, for example, will make it an easy matter to add extra height later on.
- Encourage the children to entertain in the room by providing a place for snacks and lunches. A portable soda bar is an excellent enticement for neighborhood gatherings if the budget allows it.
- "Child-proof" everything in the room that is likely to receive abuse. Here again, your best friend is vinyl. As a wall covering, counter-top or table surfacing, it can take all the scuffing, pounding and spilling that children are able to dish out.
- Keep in mind that the children's playroom will some day have to serve as a teen-age rumpus room or study. Don't make expensive structural changes in the room now unless they can easily be adapted to future needs.

BOOK REVIEWS

Stevenson's Eloquence at U.N.

By Vera Williams

Southland Magazine Book Editor

THERE'S a new collection of Adlai Stevenson's campaign speeches. Campaign speeches not on behalf of Adlai himself, but for the United States and for democracy.

Around Adlai Stevenson's head in the United Nations (he's American ambassador to that organization) have swirled crises so great that at times peace has hung in the balance. There are those who idolize Stevenson, and there are those to whom he is somewhat less than one of the angels. But none can deny that he has put forward the American viewpoint, in the U.N., with great courage and with eloquence.

"LOOKING OUTWARD" (Harper and Row $5) is a selection of Stevenson's speeches before the U.N. during that body's greatest years of crisis. They show that America's viewpoint and freedom's cause have not suffered for lack of a valiant spokesman in the world organization. One address ends with this challenge: "If the Soviet Union really wants to stop nuclear testing we challenge it to join us in signing a test ban treaty." Stevenson said this on October 19, 1961; that challenge was to be hurled like a thunderbolt in many another Stevensonian address before the U. N. until at last, this year, the Soviet Union was forced to sign just such a treaty.

In a review of a book like this it is best to cite some of the brilliancies that fill Stevenson's U. N. speeches. On war, for instance: "First, the victor pays for the destruction of his enemy, then for the reconstruction of his friend."

On the new imperialism: "Chairman Khrushchev has called Western colonialism 'disgraceful, barbarous and savage. "But Soviet imperial rule has not been sweet, gentle and kind . . . More than twelve million persons have escaped since the Second World War from the Soviet Union, Communist China and the areas they control."

Of Eleanor Roosevelt's death: "We are lonelier; someone has gone from one's own life who was like the certainty of refuge; and someone has gone from the world who was like a certainty of honor."

AS A UNITED PRESS correspondent, Allen Drury covere the United States Senate from November 1943 to July 1945—one of the most important eras in American history. He kept a journal of events and the result is "A SENATE JOURNAL, 1943-1945" (McGraw-Hill, $6.95.) It covers the soldier-vote fight, thorough D Day, the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the ascension of Harry Truman, to the United Nations Charter debate and ratification. As such it is American history, recorded by the brilliant author of "Advise and Consent" and "A Shade of Difference."

MANY HISTORIANS have laid upon the shoulders of Douglas Haig, commander-in-chief of the British Expeditionary Force in World War I the burden for the horrors and shocking loss of life in trench warfare. Now, however, Field Marshal Haig has found an eloquent advocate.

John Terraine, young English military analyst, in "ORDEAL OF VICTORY" (Lippincott, $6.95) shows Haig as a soldier who, though not faultless, had courage and foresight—a soldier who was willing and able to engage the enemy on a scale never before experienced, with weapons and methods never before tried.

NO ONE can boast of being well informed or well read today without at least some knowledge of the 29 new nations of Africa. The name of Africa screams out from today's newspaper headlines and is continually in the forefront of television, radio and other news sources.

The intelligent reader is hard put to it to find adequate and reliable information on these very new nations whose history and geography and boundary lines are undergoing continual changes. Latest of the many books on Africa racing off the press is a large, impressive and profusely illustrated volume, "THE NEW NATIONS OF AFRICA" compiled by Ben Wattenberg and Ralph Lee Smith (Hart, $10.).

Illustrated with 30 maps and more than 300 photographs this highly readable, fascinating book is destined to be much in demand by teachers, students, the lay reader and those who are travel conscious.

So up-to-date is "The New Nations of Africa" that events occurring as recently as February 1, 1963 are included.

Each of the 29 countries is dealt with separately clarifying confusion and misconceptions that abound concerning these fledgling nations. No one who picks up this eye-catching volume can put it down without perusing from the colored photographs on the flyleaf to the glossary some 500 pages later. Past history, present problems and future outlook of each country are discussed and illustrated with sharp, smart photographs and biographies and pictures as the leaders of each country are presented.

One for the Railroaders

A freight crewman contemplates the view from the inside track of the old Pacific Electric line from Long Beach and San Pedro to Los Angeles (four tracks through Watts). The illustration appears in the new, quality railroad book, "Backwoods Railroads of the West," by Richard Steinheimer (Kalmbach Publishing Co., Milwaukee, Wis., $20).

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

2 Basics Linked

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Which has the most influence on a child's success in learning—heredity or environment?

ANSWER: Modern psychologists and educators prefer to think of these two factors as interlocking rather than separate influences.

The child's mental traits — are handed down to him by his parents, as are his physical characteristics. The intelligence he inherits defines the limits of his ability to achieve.

His environment, however, shapes his attitude toward life, the degree of his self-reliance, his habits of study. Environment helps or hinders him in the use of the the intelligence he inherited.

Thus, both heredity and environment figure in the child's success, or lack of success, in school.

We see examples all about us, meanwhile, of the ability of a person of intelligence to overcome the disadvantages of poor environment. And phychologists have discovered in recent years that good environment may spur the person of average intelligence to do superior work.

Experts have learned to add "however" to almost everything they say about the effects of heredity and environment.

QUESTION: "Can a student—I'm thinking particularly of a journalism student — learn to observe things and events more accurately and in greater detail?"

ANSWER: Yes. Let him take a leaf from the notebook of the experienced journalist who sizes up the situation beforehand.

The trained reporter learns as much as he can about the forthcoming event and the people who will be involved; when the event begins to unfold, he feels a minimum of confusion. He identifies developemnts correctly, discards the irrelevent, and in general feels familiar with what is taking place.

Having obtained knowledge in advance of the anticipated event, he works with a sense of direction and expectancy. He observes more, understands it better, and retains it longer than does his haphazard competitor who goes to cover the story "cold."

Chaco, the Cave Cat

Chaco, the feline pet of Arizona's Colossal Cave personnel, lies by cave entrance, often goes on tours.

By Betty Hardesty

CHACO, a sleek, black and white cat with a stub of a tail, is a unique feature of Colossal Cave, near Tucson, Ariz. He guards the cave's entrance between guided tours, submitting nonchalantly to attentions by visitors. One of the cave guides, Joe Santa, found the cat abandoned beside the Chaco Canyon Road in the New Mexican desert and took him in.

Chaco squeezes between visitors' feet impatiently as the double-file tour groups start into the cavern. Chaco goes along several times a day. In the semi darkness, his feline form adds special interest to the eerie setting as he jumps over crevices and boulders or stretches out in full view at his master's feet during lecture stops.

The cat's eyes glint green in the electric floodlights, carefully arranged for cave display, although they may close during the first long pause as human eyes adjust while a recorded voice explains the cave's geology.

THE 39-MILE LONG underground passageways were formed by water dissolving calcium carbonate and the fantastic forms which decorate them, grew by dripping and evaporation through thousands of years.

Dry and dormant, Colossal Cave now is a comfortable 72 degrees but no living plants, animals or snakes are found within except bats which hang near the opening. This, the guide explains to calm any fears, forgetting to mention Chaco.

Smoke-blackened rocks show where fires burned and artifacts now on display prove the cave was inhabited by aboriginal Indians for hundreds of years.

OUTLAWS buried stolen gold in the cave and the guide shows how they hung their ropes to swing down 80 feet to the sand-floored, room-like portion of the cave. They hid-out there and some were even buried there.

It was in 1884 that one of the West's most daring robbers escaped from the law through a second outside opening to one of the intricate passageways. At that time, the main entrance was only 2½ feet high, and the sheriff of Pima County decided to wait outside and starve out the four bandits he had trailed from a $62,000 mail robbery.

Although the outlaws escaped the other way, Sheriff Leatherwood and posse later surprised and killed three of them in a tavern, One, Phil Carver, was caught, tried and sentenced. After serving 18 years at Yuma prison, he managed to elude the sheriff again, retrieve his loot and disappear. Four small stage settings depicting scenes of this real Wild West story, are set in rock niches along the tour route.

Because of the three levels in the cave, there are handrails and stairways between stretches of flagstone walks all constructed by the Civilian Conservation Corps after World War I. The 45 minute guided tour follows natural openings except where stairs were blasted in order to reach the sand bottom.

One Sack of Flour: $275,000

By Fred B. Clarke, M.D.

DURING the Civil War, a person was either a Unionist or a Southern Rebel. These conflicting beliefs resulted in many heated discussions, at times leading to violence. Even in places as remote from the actual conflict as was the town of Austin in Nevada Territory, 225 miles from the nearest railroad, there were many violent arguments. Feeling was bitter between the two factions. There was no middle ground.

Austin, situated in narrow, winding Toyibe Canyon at an elevation of 7,400 feet, was a new, raw, roaring mining camp which acquired a population within two years of 10,000 miners, merchants, a few lawyers, doctors, many gamblers, saloon keepers and dancehall girls, coming from all points of the compass. Some came with money, many without; and all were buoyed up by the hope that they would strike it rich.

There was a great deal of antagonism between Ruben Cole Gridley, a merchant and southern sympathizer, and a Dr. Herrick, a loyal northerner.

A BET was made on the outcome of a local election. Under the terms of the bet, if Herrick lost, he was to carry a 50-pound sack of flour from the lower end of the canyon up to Gridley's store (about a mile and a half) and the band was to play "Dixie." If Gridley were the loser, he was to carry the sack from his store down the canyon, and the band was to play "John Brown's Body." The sack of flour was to be donated to the U.S. Sanitary Fund.

Gridley lost!

The morning after the election Herrick and his friends proceeded to the upper end of the winding narrow canyon to Gridley's store to collect the wager. Gridley was ready. He came walking out of his store with the sack of flour on his shoulder. Herrick took the sack of flour and decorated it with American flags and ribbons of many colors. He then gave the order to march. The band preceded the city officials on horseback. Then came Herrick carrying Gridley's hat and cane, then Gridley, and marching by his side was his 10-year-old son carrying a union flag. Then came two men, one with a mop indicating a clean sweep and one with a flag indicating victory.

THIS WAS a gala affair. Thousands of miners were along the narrow road, and many unkind words were directed at Gridley. He put the sack of flour down at the Bank Exchange Saloon and said, "You have a great deal of fun at my expense. Let us see what you will do for the wounded Union Soldier." An auction was held with Thomas Wade as the auctioneer. Gridley made the first bid of $200 and the flour was his. At the close of the auction $5,494 was taken up.

Gridley decided to take the flour to Virginia City, where a big celebration was organized. At the end of the bidding $5,822 was raised. Gridley then went to Silver City, Dayton, and again to Virginia City. The four cities contributed $25,000. Gridley toured the mining towns of Nevada and California and at the end of his trip had collected $175,000.

Elated by his success, he went east and on his return from St. Louis by stage to Austin he had collected $275,000 which he donated to the U.S. Sanitary Fund (before the days of the Red Cross) for the relief of wounded Union soldiers.

OFFICIALS OF Austin decided that the official seal of the city would be a stamp that depicted a sack of flour.

Gridley never returned to his store, the walls of which still stand. He spent all of his own money, never taking a cent from the fund which he created. In 1870, he died in poverty at the age of 41 at Paradise, Calif., and the cause of death was neuralgia of the heart. His last request was that his body be taken by the Masonic Order to Stockton for burial in the rural cemetery.

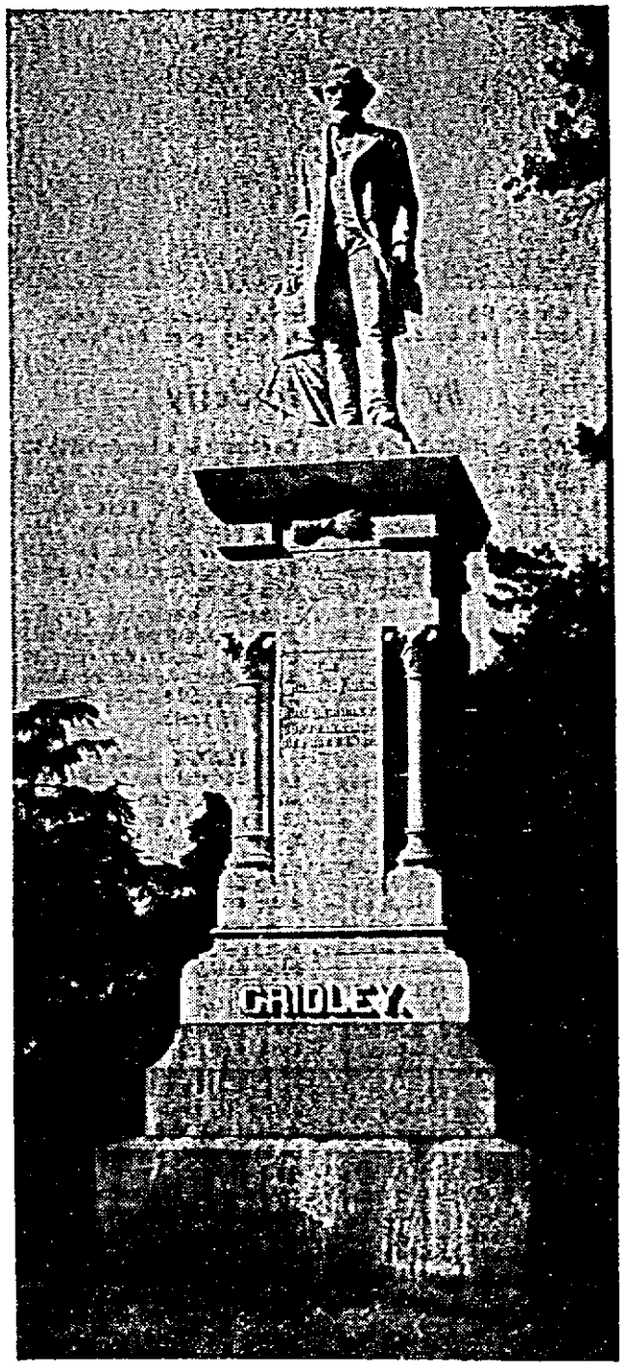

Fifty years later the Grand Army of the Republic and the citizens of Stockton erected a monument of marble, standing on a mound about four feet high. In a circle around the mound are 18 small, plain headstones, each marking the grave of a Union soldier.

On the large base stands the figure of a man, his hand resting on a sack of flour.

On this monument is inscribed:

THE SOLDIER'S FRIEND
RUBEN C. GRIDLEY
Born: January 23, 1829
Died: November 24, 1870

This famous sack of flour remained in the possession of the Gridley family until a few years ago when Gridley's daughter presented it to the Nevada State Historical Museum at Reno, where it is sacked in a goatskin bag and resting in a glass case.

Memorial to Ruben C. Gridley, whose famous sack of flour now rests in Nevada Historical Museum, Reno.

Small, brass iron has the date 1810 and elaborate designs engraved on it. Back opens for hot charcoal.

ANTIQUE

Great-Granny's Iron

By Helen L. Gillum

A SMALL cast-brass "smoothing iron," owned by Mrs. Emma Kittell of 922 Magnolia Ave., speaks mutely of the drudgery of "ironing days" a century and a half ago.

Although it is smaller and lighter in weight than the traditional flatiron or sadiron, it is of the type that had to be heated by hot coals plucked from the kitchen fireplace, or, as Mrs. Kittell's mother told her long ago, sometimes by small metal bolts made especially for that purpose. A sliding door in the back of the iron allowed the coals to be placed inside the hollow brass chamber.

This quaint old kitchen relic once belonged to Mrs. Kittell's great-grandmother. It bears the date 1810, and is thought to be from Denmark or northern Germany, the home of Mrs. Kittell's ancestors. Even in that day, when menial kitchen labor was more or less taken for granted, the maker of the iron took pains to add decorative bits of engraving — perhaps in a humble effort to make more pleasant the long dreary hours of "pressing day."

A HEART-SHAPED medallion with flowers and curlicues is engraved in the top of the iron. The 1810 date is elaborately done, and frilly touches elsewhere might indicate that this small, lightweight iron was also designed to press laces, silks, and other fine fabrics. It is only 5¼ inches in length, three inches wide at the back, and six inches high to the top of the wooden handle, which is a replacement for the original one burned off long ago. The coal compartment is far removed from the heating element in the modern electric iron.

If this method of ironing clothes seems crude and impossible today, let us consider one great-grandmother's "receipt" (that's how she spelled it) for washing clothes "way back when." It is believed to have originated in Kentucky, but it is a jarring reminder that, whether in "Old Kentuck," far away Denmark—or in our own pioneer West — laundering clothes was no cinch. Read this, dear modern housewife, and "count your blessins" the next time you get out your steam iron or plug in your automatic washer! (The spelling is great-grandma's.)

1. bild a fire in back yard to heet kettle of rain water.
2. set tubs so smoke wont blow in eyes if wind is pert.
3. shave one hole cake lie soap in bilin water.
4. sort things, make three piles. 1 pile white. 1 pile cullord. 1 pile work britches and rags.
5. Stur flour in cold water to smooth then thin down with bilin water.
6. rub dirty spots on board, scrub hard, then bile. rub cullord but dont bile — just rench and starch.
7. take white things out of kettle with broom stick handle then rench, blew and starch.
8. spred towels on grass.
9. hang old rags on fence.
10. pore rench water in flower bed.
11. scrub porch with hot soapy water.
12. turn tubs upside down.
13. go put on cleen dress — smooth hair with side combs — brew cup of tee — set and rest and rock a spell and count blessins.

PET PARADE

A Pet's Second Best Friend

By Eleanor A. Price

IF YOU have obtained a new pet for Christmas, keep in mind that, after you, a veterinarian is the pet's best friend. Most are fine people with feelings. In a recent case I know about, a dog had to enter slumberland. When the pet was brought in, tears streamed down the veterinarian's face. He had known the dog, and owner, for a number of years.

A veterinarian works hard to make his little "hospital" as complete as possible. There are a few large veterinarian hospitals (and every veterinarian likes to visit them now and then to get new ideas for his own establishment), but the average veterinarian creates his own place complete with waiting room, consulting room, runs and cages, and up-to-date equipment. Sometimes the building is new; sometimes it is an older place, perhaps a house made over. But whatever, the good veterinarian takes pride in keeping his place clean.

THE VETERINARIAN must continually add to his store of knowledge. In recent years the science of veterinary medicine has grown by leaps. New techniques, new drugs, new this-and-that require him to be up-to-date in pet care. And your pet, along with you, benefits. Discoveries in nutrition and medicine have greatly added to the longevity of most pets. Cats now often live to age 20, and there are many dogs around that are approaching 16 or 17 years. It is said that dogs live about twice as long as they did in 1930. Even your parakeets, canaries, and exotic delicate animals benefit.

A healthy dog delights in a romp. Next to his master, a veterinarian who keeps him well is his best friend.

Some veterinarians strive for very intensive research far beyond private practice of animal welfare. You may never meet most of these people, for their area of service takes them to many places. Some are devoted to the care of livestock that provides much of our food as well as our leather and wool clothing. Others apply themselves to municipal, county, state and federal projects in animal disease control, inspections of various kinds including imported animals, and general public health. Some veterinarians work in space travel programs. Still others are employed by pharmaceutical manufacturers, meat packing houses, horse farms and other activities.

THERE ACTUALLY are not enough veterinarians, so if you have a child who makes good grades in school, is fond of animals, is curious and has a lot of stick-to-it persistence, talk to him about this field of opportunity. (Girls, too.) He will need to attend veterinary college, and he really should work for a time with a practicing veterinarian. Of course he must pass a State Board of Veterinary Examiners test.

World's most exclusive restaurant is this cozy retreat for two that hangs in boughs of a Waikiki banyan tree.

Restaurant for Two

By Dorothy Gale

HIGH in a giant banyan tree above Waikiki's International Market Place, is the world's most exclusive restaurant, just for two!

A favorite with Hawaii honeymooners and anniversary couples alike, the tiny tree-slung thatched hut provides a heady dinner retreat for lovebirds of all ages.

Here, while enjoying baby squab stuffed with curried quail eggs, chilled mangoes, French champagne, Kona coffee and liqueurs, they look out through a leafy green canopy to the beautifully landscaped market place below.

In absolute privacy, too! For the turbaned native bearer of the repast, double locks diners into their retreat, then awaits orders from the Colonel's Plantation Beef Steak & Coffee House nearby.

FORTUNATELY, a telephone is alongside the cushioned couch where tete-a-tete dining goes on, accompanied by Hawaiian records and other discs which couples play for themselves on their private phonograph.

Thus it's easy to call down for another bucket of champagne or whatever comes to mind. The genial native is always ready to scramble up the steps at a moment's notice. But only when summoned by phone.

A prelude to this tree-top feast, served on Hawaiian carved monkeypod and accompanied by hot towels, Oriental style, is a drink in Don's exotic Mandalay Lounge and Beachcomber's Bar below.

Since your host is none other than Don Beach himself, known around the world as Don the Beachcomber, anything you order is inspirational.

WHILE SIPPING same, it is possible to people-watch through bamboo palings facing palm lined Kalakaua Avenue. Here foot traffic includes everything from Hawaiian beachboys and hula dancers to muumuu-clad and aloha-shirted vacationers from around the world. (Don boasts that he is host to both beachcomber and prince, and this is undoubtedly true).

Another diversion is watching passersby stop to chat with the saucy, talking mynah birds Don keeps in cages in front of his popular gathering place.

The mynahs all but rattle off the list of drinks, which includes everything from Don's Pearl (with a gleaming pearl in every fifth potion) to exotic South Seas rum concoctions served in coconuts.

Some come garnished with jungle leaves or pineapple spears. Others with gardenias!

AFTER COCKTAILS the lovebirds then climb (or fly) aloft to their banyan-tree feast that is meanwhile prepared just for them.

Total tab, including pre dinner drinks, complete dinner, champagne, a fragrant pikake lei for the lady, and after dinner liqueurs aloft is $35 for two.

Reservations are available by writing the originator of all these delights, Don Beach himself, at the International Market Place on the beach at Waikiki.

TRAVEL—RESORTS

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

CALCUTTA

"We will be in Honolulu New Year's Eve. What kind of clothes will we need?"

THE Royal Hawaiian will be the dressiest. About two-thirds of the men will wear dinner jackets. Women in evening gowns. But there will be plenty of places around Waikiki where everybody will still be in muumuus and aloha shirts.

Seems to me people giving home parties on this night tend to dress a little more than usual. Coat and tie and cocktail dress kind of party.

Outer islands resorts are generally less dressy. But you might want coat and tie (in case) at Hanalei Plantation House on Kauai; the new Sheraton Maui and at Hana Maui.

". . . dress for New Year's Eve in Mexico City?"

DARK SUIT for men. Cocktail dresses for women—no hats in Mexico.

". . . for New Year's Eve in Jamaica?"

BRITISH colonial. Better gussy up with the dinner jacket. Evening gown for ladies.

"We will spend a few days in Rio de Janeiro and would appreciate advice on where to go, etc."

YOU'LL PROBABLY be staying at one of the hotels along Copacabana Beach—an overrated beach but the better hotels. Couple of good night clubs, one at each end of the beach.

The Brazilian cruzeiro has been up and down but mostly down. So watch the exchange. If it's slipping, don't cash more than enough for each day. Tomorrow could be better. Many money exchanges on the street just back of the beach front hotels. A shopping street with street cars running on it.

Rio is the home of Brazilian gem stones. They cut them and mount them well. Whether they are actually great buys I don't know. But most people who buy them come home happy. Biggest store is H. Stern. Don't call him. He'll call you. He's a hustler.

They serve one fine barbecued meat down there called churrasco. And an excellent place to get this is at Churrasceria Gaucho. Get a piece of each—pork, beef, sausage. And have them bring you the hearts of palm salad on the side.

"We had heard that the service charge of 15 percent on a restaurant bill in France covered the tip. However, the waiter kept hanging around and made it so obvious . . ."

HE WASN'T waiting for a warm handshake. Here's what the French do: You leave the waiter a little in coins — two per cent is enough. The French often just leave whatever small change comes back whether it is one or two percent.

Since old French coinage and new overlap — (100 old francs equals 1 new franc)— be a little cautious which kind of small change you are leaving. Don't leave new francs for old and make him a rich man.

"Where would you buy men's clothes in Rome? A good tailor?"

I'VE NEVER done this as I didn't like the Italian cut. I guess Brioni is the best-known tailor. But what I would do, I would telephone Jean Govoni, the public relations director for TWA, and I'd ask her. I don't think she'd mind if you did the same.

"For a party we are planning: What is the rule in Tahiti for wearing flowers behind the ear?"

BEHIND the right ear, you're taken. Behind the left, you're looking. (What kind of party is this?)

". . . a typical, good English restaurant in London?"

TRY SHEPHERD'S in Shepherd's Market. Pub downstairs. Restaurant upstairs. The little area is like a postcard of a scene from Dickens.

Japan's New Generation Is Going Western

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

TOKYO

A NEW generation is growing up in Japan. It has its own ideas about personal freedom, is staging a sometimes not-so-mild rebellion against strict discipline at home — which has always been the rule — and some of the ancient customs of their forefathers.

In a phrase, the Japanese teen-ager is going Western.

Parents who have always taken their children's obedience for granted are confused and worried about what is happening.

As an example, the kids balk at the old custom of sitting cross-legged at the family table. When reprimanded a daughter might reply with finality, "That is no good. Mama's legs don't look good because she has been sitting on tatami like that."

More and more of the teeners step out when they please, come home when they get good and ready.

THEY CRITICIZE their teachers, and this causes parents added worry. When the parent objects, the child is apt to retort, "The salary teacher gets is too low to keep a decent living standard, and this causes him to demonstrate with placards. Why is it not right to criticize him?"

Observers say this is all due to the American occupation influence which has shown these quick-minded boys and girls how the other half lives.

American influence certainly has had much to do with the younger generation's thirst for a knowledge of the King's English.

To "speak American" is a status symbol with them. Courses in English have spread to many of the schools, and they are paying off.

YOUNGSTERS who can make themselves understood to American tourists get the best jobs in the hotels. They serve as guides, have the best-paying jobs in travel agencies, and hold key jobs in some of the big department stores.

It is obviously the teenagers who are taking the lead in this trend. Boys and girls in their mid-twenties find our language harder to master, and Japanese in their 30s and older are in positions where they seldom contact tourists because they speak practically no English.

If the trend continues, and some observers here think it will snowball, what kind of nation will Japan be a generation from now? Will it result in even closer ties with the United States?

OF COURSE, it is expected that these kids will frequently garble their English. But, for that matter, they sometimes fail to make themselves understood in their own language.

A young Japanese guide tells the story of a boy who asked a friend for advice on whether he should marry the girl with whom he had fallen deeply in love.

"Matsu!" the friend replied.

The guide explained that "matsu" means "wait." It also mean "pine tree."

The eager young man in her story didn't wait. He hustled out and planted a pine tree.

IF THESE KIDS are rude or disobedient at home, they are extremely courteous with visitors. But, then, this is true of all Japanese.

Courtesy and attention to visitors or guests starts with the crew on the Japan Air Lines' sky giants that whisk countless tourists here. It continues in Immigration and Customs at the airport, in the taxicabs, at the hotels and shops — wherever visitors go.

And the way they do it—that smart bow, friendly smile, and apologetic nonsense are convincing proof that they really mean it.

This is one vital lesson Americans could learn from the Japanese.

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

SEVILLE — Carmen's tobacco factory is, of all things, a university today. But still standing is the bullring and its entrance, exactly as depicted forever on the operatic stage. Happily, Seville remains the romantic heart and soul of southern Spain.

Here reside the visual beauty and sophisticated, light-hearted gaiety that the Mediterranean air always brings out when it is within whiffing distance. Among the orange tree-shaded boulevards, sidewalk cafes seem to be the main industry. On Sunday afternoons downtown, whole platoons of families, lovers and predatory bachelors wend their ways from one to the other, sipping sherry and nibbling from little dishes of olives, nuts and potato salad. The palace gardens and exposition buildings of Maria Luisa Park fairly explode with people.

Unlike most Spanish cities, Seville has a river worthy of the name, the Guadalquivir. It is navigable from the Mediterranean to here, and splits the business and residential sections of the city. Bridges criss-cross it and waterfront cafes and promenades line it. Enticed by the fertile bottom land, the ubiquitous Moors found their way here, and established a lovely city whose grace has never been lost.

SEVILLE'S cathedral, like Toledo's, was described to us as the third largest Gothic structure in the world, but we have ceased trying to iron out interurban rivalries. Suffice to say that it is so vast the city fathers who planned it reputedly vowed, "Let us erect such a grand temple that we shall go down to posterity, even for madmen." Its 32 pillars are 15 feet thick and 150 high.

Legends of Columbus are deeply entwined with the cathedral's history. It was long believed that he is buried here, but most authorities now agree that his bones lie in the cathedral of Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic. However, his son Hernan is buried here. The disputed bones of what may or may not have been the admiral lie in a huge coffin supported by four heroic figures.

Before his voyages, Columbus prayed in a chapel in the cathedral before an ancient statue of the virgin known as the Antigua. It is said that all the Western Hemisphere places called Antigua were named after this image.

ADJOINING the cathedral is an incongruous but handsome example of Moorish art known as the Giralda tower, profusely adorned with arches, tiling, stone carving and other examples of opulent baroque Spanish art. Two other Moorish structures, the Tower of Gold and the Tower of Silver adorn the banks of the Guadalquivir.

Seville boasts another of those Moorish palaces all of which are known as the Alcazar, which means, simply, fortress or castle. Not as well known as Granada's Alhambra, it is nonetheless impressive for its sumptuous halls, carved chambers, arches and galleries.

Seville's Holy Week pageants, a non-stop procession of floats, hooded figures with candles, and tableaux, run from Palm Sunday until Good Friday, and are the city's biggest event. A preview of its elaborateness may be had at the Church of Santa Maria Margarena, where two of the 98 floats are kept.

Like all good Spanish cities, Seville has its old quarter, known as Santa Cruz. It is a charming maze of alleys, garden walls, courtyards and squares surrounded by the traditional whitewashed houses with the barred windows and cascades of flowers. In nearby Charity Hospital, Murillo's finest paintings decorate the chapel.

'Flying Ferries'

Several new hydrofoil ferry services are now in daily operation on the Inland Sea and at two major coastal points, reports the Japan National Tourist Association.

The 70-passenger "flying ferries," which skim the surface of the water at high speed, link Kobe with Takamatsu on Shikoku Island in two hours. The one-way fare is $5.95. Similar services link Osaka with Inland Sea ports of Sakate and Tonosho, while a third new hydrofoil route, crossing Ise Bay from Nagoya to the pearl island of Toba, takes three hours and costs $2.72 for the one-way trip.

Do You Know These Faces?

After looking at the following clues, see how many of the above faces you can identify. Give yourself 5 points for each correct answer, and subtract 3 for each face you miss. Then see scoring chart below.

HERE ARE THE CLUES

1. The 26th President of the U. S., he urged the carrying of a "big stick."
2. A mother made famous by her son's artistic skills.
3. Defended New Orleans against the British, is now often confused with another soldier (same last name) nicknamed "Stonewall."
4. Flew a kite, invented bifocals, served U. S. as statesman.
5. Appears on a form of traveling money honored in all countries but not issued by any government.
6. Brilliant southern general whose middle name was Edward.
7. An inventor (middle name, Alva) who had only three months of schooling but came up with a very bright idea.
8. Painted by Leonardo da Vinci, this lady's smile has intrigued people for centuries.
9. This famous general was re-elected U. S. President in 1872, defeating Horace Greeley.

Scoring: To arrive at a total, add one point to your score for each two years it has been since you left school. 5 to 14, Fair; 15 to 24, Good; 25 to 34, Excellent; 35 or more Outstanding.

Answers: 1—Theodore Roosevelt. 2—Whistler's mother. 3—Andrew Jackson. 4—Benjamin Franklin. 5—Man on American Express Travelers Cheques. 6—Robert E. Lee. 7—Thomas Alva Edison. 8—Mona Lisa. 9-Ulysses S. Grant.

The Face of Fortune

By Clay Johnson

DOES YOUR facial expression reveal your character? The ancients believed your features gave you away. A receding hair line indicated intelligence; an even row of teeth meant an orderly nature; hazel eyes forecast evil.

Throughout history, man has attributed definite characteristics to certain features. Unsymmetrical features denoted an interesting nature; the length and quality of beard determined one's trustworthiness. Deep-set eyes indicated an unscrupulous nature.

Thin faces meant danger. "Yon Cassius has a lean and hungry look," said Julius Caesar. Fat faces, meanwhile, meant satisfaction and reliability. Square jaws meant strength while round jaws indicated weakness.

PRETTY OR UGLY, the face has always symbolized something. George Washington's picture, hanging on almost every schoolroom wall, has come to stand for virtue, strength and morality. When we see Abe Lincoln's gaunt dark features and black beard we usually think of honesty and human dignity — how often of the $5 bill?

Some faces have become famous without a name. Most people can identify Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," but how many can tell you who he really was?

Other well-known faces are couched in mystery. For instance, no one knows the identity of the warrior whose face appears on American Express travelers cheques and credit cards. The artist who made the original portrait died while completing it, and went to his grave without identifying his model. Did he copy from the statue of an ancient hero, or did his butcher pose?

THE SAME ARTIST, A. E. Foringer, earlier in his career, painted a famous World War I poster that brought $150,000,000 of contributions to the Red Cross, and made the model for that painting, Miss Agnes Tait, world-celebrated.

The face that launched a thousand ships. Homer, the ancient Greek poet, never described Helen of Troy's individual features, stating only that she was beautiful beyond comparison. Nevertheless, her face has been envisioned throughout history as the height of loveliness.

The woman with the mysterious smile. Critics for generations have been trying to discover what Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa had on her mind as she posed for the artist. Recently a doctor suggested that she was soon to be a mother.

THE TWO-FACED DIETY. The ancient Romans always pictured Janus, the god of beginnings, doorways and entrances, as having two heads. Our month, January, the beginning of the year, comes from his name.

The man of a thousand faces. Because of his fantastic ability in the usage of makeup, Lon Chaney acquired leader of men.

The face that turned men to stone. Greek mythology credits Medusa with the power to turn males to stone upon sight of her snake-capped face.

The face in the misty light. What man can escape sentimental daydreams when he hears the haunting ballad "Laura" and identifies the non-existent heroine with some secret romance in his own life?

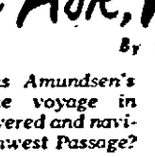

Ol' Stonewall. Upon sight of his stern features no one can doubt the ability of Confederate General Jackson as a magnificent soldier and leader of men.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. What was Amundsen's course on the voyage in which he discovered and navigated the Northwest Passage? —H. B.

A. Captain Roald Amundsen (1872-1928), of Norway, sailed from Christiania (Oslo) in June 1903 in the Gjoa, a sloop of 47 tons, with six companions. His course was through Baffin Bay, Lancaster Sound, Barrow Strait, Peel Sound, Franklin Strait, James Ross Strait, Rae Strait, Simpson Strait, Dease Strait, Coronation Gulf, Dolphin and Union Strait, to King Point on the western side of the Mackenzie River delta which he reached in September 190. The voyage was completed through Bering Strait in the summer of 1906.

Q. Does sap keep circulating upward and downward in a tree, somewhat as blood circulates in an animal? K. U.

A. No. In the process called transpiration, water is absorbed by the roots, pushed into the sapwood, and then pulled up to the leaves. Evaporation from the leaf creates a pull on tiny strands of water in the sapwood and thus causes a movement of water from the roots to the treetop. Only a trifling amount of water is transported from the crown of the tree downward. About half the solar energy that falls on the leaves is used in the process of transportation.

Q. What requirements must be met before a building can be said to be fireproof? I. G.

A. To be classified as fireproof under one widely followed building code, a building must be of noncombustible construction, with all exterior and interior weight-bearing walls made of masonry or reinforced concrete. Exterior walls, columns and wall-supporting girders and trusses must have a fire resistance of four hours; floors and roofs, a three-hour fire resistance rating. A building of this type is itself fireproof, but additional precautions are required for the safety of occupants or contents—such as insulation to confine any fire to its starting place, and fire-resistant partitions and doors for stairways and elevator shafts.

Q. What do the degrees M.C.E. and M.M.E. stand for? L. C.

A. M.C.E., Master of Civil Engineering; M.M.E., Master of Mining Engineering or Master of Mechanical Engineering.

Q. Have girls ever been employed as pages in Congress? E. P.

A. Only one girl has ever served as a page. On the opening day of the 76th Congress— Jan. 3, 1939—the 13-year-old daughter of Rep. Eugene Cox of Georgia was employed as a page and received $4 for her day's work.

Q. When and where was Paul Anka born? What nationality is he? D.J.

A. Paul Anka, famous young singer, was born July 30, 1941, in Ottawa, Canada. The Anka family is of Syrian descent.

Stocks for Spicy Fragrance

By Joe Littlefield

OF ALL THE winter blooming annuals, stocks provide one of the spiciest fragrances and their colors make good contrast when planted near bright orange and yellow calendulas, gay snapdragons, or behind a row of showy pansies.

They don't mind cold weather, but if planted now will be slower to grow than if they had been set out earlier.

Be sure to plant them in a sunny area of the garden, in soil well drained, and away from where a lawn sprinkler might soak them.

MIX SOME organic materials such as pre-moistened peat moss, compost or prepared planter mulch in the holes where young plants are to be set out.

Stocks don't like the soil to be cultivated around them. A thin layer of manure keeps the soil from drying and crusting.

Don't let aphids get started on the tender new foliage. Undetected winter aphids can stunt new growth of stocks and cause them to have inferior flowers.

ONE OF OUR readers sent us a dead pfitzer juniper to find out what had caused the trouble. She had planted 14 junipers, and two died. She wondered if something has been sprayed onto it.

We carefully examined the roots, trunk, and branches of the plant through a strong magnifying glass. The first thing apparent was that the trunk had been two inches deeper in the ground than it should have been. Two small side branches just above the top of the root ball had died some time earlier.

There appeared to be no bores in the trunk, no pest damage on the branches, no nematodes on the roots, and no root damage. We couldn't tell whether something had been sprayed on the foliage that might cause the plant to die.

It is possible in a row of 14 plants to have one become sick or even die because of being planted too loosely, so that the root ball doesn't get enough water.

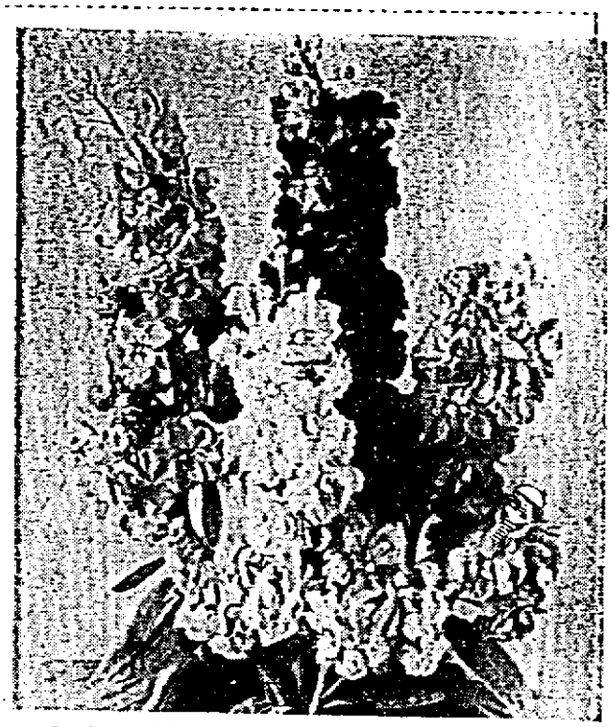

FOR PROPER planting, dig the hole twice the size of ball of plant roots and fill it twice with water. If the plant root ball is dry, dip it in a bucket of water. Carefully pull away excess soil around the trunk to uncover it to the top of the fine roots.

The root ball level should be planted level with the ground. Mix two parts of compost soil or one of the prepared planter mixes with three parts of soil dug from the hole.

Build a ring of soil at the edge of the plant to confine the water, and several months later scrape it away. In its place, make a circular furrow about two inches deep to keep soil from washing in around the trunk of the plant and eventually burying it too deep.

Heavy infestation of spider mites can cause juniper foliage to look "dusty." Later turn yellow color, slowly dry and die. Hose the foliage with a sharp stream of water to discourage pests from setting up housekeeping on them.

Plants with firm foliage can stand oil emulsion spray, which not only kills the pests but the eggs in the colony, too.

Stocks provide a brisk fragrance and good color contrast. They like sunshine and a well-drained soil.

Colorful 'Birds'

Bird-of-Paradise is particularly useful in the Long Beach area because it has landscaping virtues as well as a most exotic flower.

The sword-like leaves give vertical lines that go very well with such things as pampas grass or New Zealand flax. Bird-of-Paradise creates a soaring effect when surrounded by the low, stiff, grassy tufts of blue fescue, or one of the low-growing succulents such as the echeverias.

Bird-of-Paradise earns its name because of the orange and blue flowers, resembling cockatoos, that appear around October or November and continue through March to April. They make excellent, long-lasting cut flowers or continue to show their brilliant feathers in the garden if left alone.

Bird-of-Paradise requires full sun. It likes some manure worked through the soil at the time of planting and should be given a feeding of commercial fertilizer twice a year—spring and about two months later. Ask the expert at a California Association of Nurserymen nursery to suggest the proper plant food. He will have the Bird-of-Paradise plant, too, and can give you suggestions on proper planting companions for your particular location.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week ... by now your fruit trees should have lost their leaves. Clean up the leaves and burn them. Then spray the fruit trees thoroughly with a winter "dormant" spray. Ask your nurseryman.

Roses should be coming onto the market bareroot. Buy only first grade stock—those with at least three sturdy canes and a good heavy root system.

Earwigs and snails and their unshelled friends the slugs are out in force. Pellets scattered in shaded, moist areas is the most effective way to use snail bait.

Many of the camellias are now in bloom. This is the time to pick them. Those carried by your local California Association of Nurserymen member will be in top shape and ready to plant now.

Heather is blooming beautifully and if you want a few sprays for the house, shape up the plant as you cut—but don't take too much. Incidentally, a good time to plant them, too.

Bulbs still can be planted. Tulips and hyacinths should be cooled in the refrigerator (not freezer) for two weeks before planting.

Clean up litter in the garden, particularly any leaves under plants in a shady area where insects could hide and breed.

Clean tools and rub them with a light oil to prevent rust.

Clean your spray equipment completely and carefully.

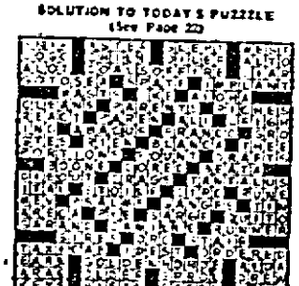

Check your nursery for unusual bulbs, particularly the species tulips, scilla, snowdrops, snowflakes, dwarf iris.

Many evergreen trees serve a double purpose. Good landscaping of trees and shrubs inevitably follows a pattern. When you are planning landscaping for your home, if you will keep in mind the Christmas outdoor decorative scheme and then choose the types of evergreen that will serve the Christmas decorative idea, you will have accomplished beauty the year around. Your local nurseryman can advise you as to which varieties do best in your locality and help you in the selection of the types according to growing habits.

Junipers and podocarpus are not known to host many insects; however, red spider and scale are prevalent in some areas. Preventative spraying should be done regularly on these types in order to keep them clean and robust. This can be done by spraying with a product containing kolthane, 50 per cent malathion is also very effective on soft scale.

Alternate spraying with both sprays should enhance the appearance and growth of any evergreen tree or shrub.

Subjects such as this offer a challenge to the black and white printer but the rewards are very satisfying.

By The Shutterbug

WHERE the subject of black-and-white photography is concerned, much is written and said about such matters as choice of film and developer, proper camera technique, subject matter and composition. All too little is mentioned and practiced on the subject of how to make top-quality prints, a fact that is made apparent by the sadly infrequent appearance of really good black-and-white prints made by home darkroom enthusiasts.

There are many steps along the route to completing a top-quality enlargement, beginning with the photographer's perceptively seeing and composing an interesting subject, and continuing through correct exposure and subsequent processing of the film in order to produce a negative suitable for making a good print. But the final effect can be seriously blunted if the quality of the resulting print doesn't do justice to these preceding steps.

CERTAIN PHASES in the process of making prints should be able to go unmentioned, but are all too often overlooked or disregarded by otherwise earnest monochrome workers. Cleanliness of all equipment and processing utensils is very important; correct preparation (initial mixing, dilution where required) of all processing solutions — developer, stop bath, and fixer—should be carried out strictly according to instructions. A means of correctly and thoroughly washing the prints must be provided. If needed, a hypo eliminator should be employed to assist in this important step.

WITH THE darkroom and equipment tidied up, all processing solutions ready and waiting (at the proper temperature, usually 68 degrees F), and the negative in the enlarger, the next step is to focus the negative image sharply on the printing easel. For maximum sharpness, the grain of the negative should be focused upon. With diffusion-type enlargers, this is not feasible, as the grain pattern is not rendered distinctly, but with the more commonly-used condenser enlargers, this is readily possible. Special optical devices, called focusing magnifiers, are made by a number of manufacturers which enlarge a small portion of the negative image, making precise focus easier to achieve with any enlarger. The enlarging lens should be open to its maximum aperture for focusing, then closed down two stops for making the print exposure.

Assuming a sharply-focused, correctly-timed exposure has been made, the paper is ready to be developed. Quick, complete immersion into the developer is a must if uniform development of the entire sheet of paper is to be obtained; this is most easily accomplished by sliding the paper into the solution, emulsion side up. The developing tray should be gently and constantly rocked during the development period to insure a constant flow of fresh developer across the entire emulsion area. Streaks, light areas, and mottling of the image can occur if this agitation is not correctly carried out.

Time of development should be constant for every print processed; the exact time is given in the paper instruction sheet. This is one of the most important factors in getting a really top-quality print, a print that will have the fullest, richest possible range of tones and optimum contrast. Minimum developing time for any paper is almost always one minute; with some it can be extended to as as long as three minutes for maximum contrast and brilliance. Exposure of the paper should be altered to obtain the desired print density, not developing time.

As in most other phases of photography, experience is the best means to become a good black-and-white printer.

'Quietest Subway'

Tourists who know only American subways will find the Berlin underground, or U-Bahn, a pleasant novelty. The system is immaculately clean and has numerous book and flower stalls. According to the Berlin Tourist Office, the U-Bahn is being extended and made more efficient. Noise, for instance, is kept to a minimum.

At the recent convention of subway specialists in this city, the manager of Toronto's underground system paid Berlin a tribute by calling its subway the world's quietest.

JERRY REYNOLDS
Welcome, 1964!

"ABSOLUTELY marvelous. An unusual combination of flavors."

"Terrific. But how can you do it at that price?"

Satisfied and smiling after a fine meal, patrons at the Melody Cove restaurant, 1960 Santa Fe Ave., often make comments like those to owner Jerry Reynolds and his tall brunette wife, Josephine. The subject of their conversation is often the Cove's unique teriyaki steak dinner, which is $2.25, including a tender top quality steak served with a cup of exotic soy sauce and ginger. When dipped into the sauce, each forkful of tender, juicy steak picks up additional gourmet flavor which is tantalizingly good. The steak is also accompanied by soup of the day, or an excellent large salad, steaming baked potato with cheese sauce, hot toasted garlic bread and coffee.

Closed Sundays, the Melody Cove will be open both New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, serving its interesting menu at no increase in prices. Decorated festively for the holidays with Christmas trees and a six-foot reindeer and sleigh, display, the Cove will give gay hats and noisemakers to all guests for the New Year's party which will start around 10 p.m. On New Year's Day, dinners will be served from 3 p.m. on.

Other entrees featured daily include a fine broiled top sirloin (surprisingly large) for $2.65; sweet broiled lobster tail with drawn butter, $3.65; broiled eastern scallops with smooth tartare sauce, $2.15; steak and lobster combination, $4.25; and unjointed fried chicken, $1.95. The Cove's service, by pleasant waitresses, is always thoughtful and gracious.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Fan Ann Takes Name of 'Hero'

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

The production was "Oklahoma" but one schoolgirl in the audience didn't even look at the stage.

Her eyes were on a handsome man a few rows in front of her.

The man was actor Joel McCrea and the DuBois, Pa., schoolgirl stargazing at him was Ann McCreight.

The experience was more thrilling than would be a trip to Mars.

* * * *

IT WAS a thrilling experience and awesome—a little too overwhelmingly awesome for Ann.

The schoolgirl, a mere mortal, simply couldn't bring herself to ask the famous actor for his autograph. Instead, Ann sent her mother chasing after the star before he reached the theater exit. He graciously signed.

A number of years later mere mortal Ann had the opportunity to become a Powers model.

It was at this time that she decided to adopt a professional name. The name: Ann McCrea.

* * * *

FROM modeling, Ann progressed to acting and currently appears as a regular, Midge Kelsey, in ABC-TV's Thursday night "Donna Reed Show."

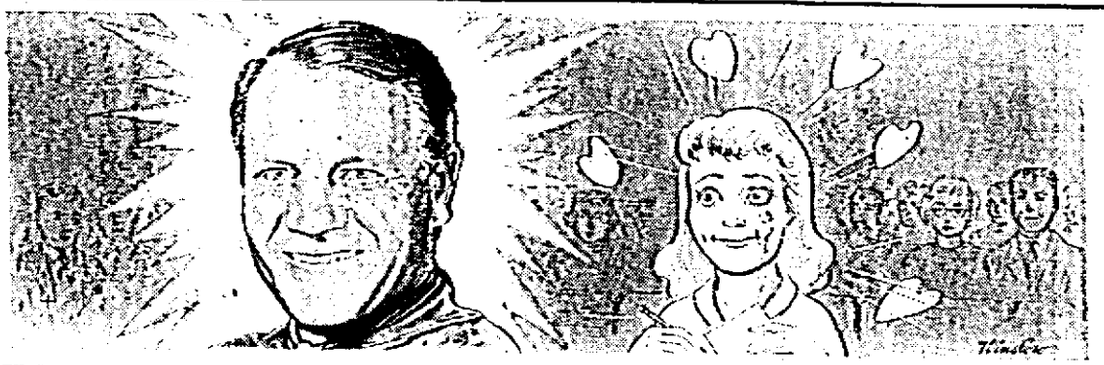

"I have always wanted to do comedy," said Ann, "and they've given me the chance."

Most of Ann's acting chances before have been in what she calls "sexpot" roles, a gambling-hall girl, a gangster's moll, a muderess.

"I'm just not the gambling-hall girl type," said the lovely actress. "I'd rather play a boy than be glamorous."

She reserves for the future, of course, the womanly perogative of changing her mind.

If they were casting a Joel McCrea movie and looking for a leading lady with sex appeal, could be that Ann might make one glamorous exception.

SPORTS SPECTACULAR, 5 p.m., ch. 2, shows the free-fall maneuvers of a U. S. Army parachuting team, in training and demonstrations at Fort Bragg, N. C.

SPECIAL

LADIES OF THE PRESS Madame Nhu, Ralph Bunche, Jackie Robinson, Gov. George Romney, Floyd Patterson, Louis Nizer and John Birch Society founder Robert Welch are among those seen and heard again as they were interviewed during 1963. Clifford Evans moderates, at 10:30 a.m., ch. 9.

SAGA OF WESTERN MAN: 1492—First in the 4-part series bringing to life the people, places and events of turning-point years in modern history, is reprised in color, on ch. 7 at 3 p.m., for youngsters' viewing. Fredric March is the voice of Christopher Columbus in hour documented by historian Louis B. Wright.

LAW & LEE OSWALD—The legal aspects of the Oswald case, not evidence or factual details, but whether he received or would have received all his Constitutional rights under due process of law, is probed at 4 p.m., ch. 2. Dan Rather will moderate, with panelists including former FCC chairman Newton E. Minow, Prof. Paul Freund of the Harvard Law School and two prominent Texas attorneys.

'63 FINAL—Highlights of the year's national, international and sports news will be offered at 6:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4, as the first in a 2-part special is reported by Jack Latham, Cecil Brown and Chick Hearn. Local and state news will be recapped Wed., 7:30 p.m.

PINOCCHIO—First televised production in which the famed fictional puppet actually is played by a puppet (Jerry Mahoney), is repeated at 6:30 p.m., ch. 7. The musical hour stars Paul Winchell and the Bob Baker Marionettes, with midgets doubling for the puppets in long shots. Original hour was June 30.

MAKING OF THE PRESIDENT — 1960 — A 90-minute adaptation of Theodore H. White's Pulitzer Prize-winning book, produced by David L. Wolper and narrated by Martin Gabel, is screened at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7. Rare film of the 7 men who sought the Presidency in 1960 highlights the documentary, put together from 8 million feet of film from 500 sources at an initial budget of $470,000, and scored by Elmer Bernstein. White's script remained unchanged after the assassination of President Kennedy except for the addition of a short prologue.

PROJECTION '64—Frank McGee is moderator as 11 NBC news correspondents gether in New York from their round-the-world posts to review events of 1963 and forecast happenings of 1964 in a color hour at 10 p.m., ch. 4. Taking part are Joseph C. Harsch (London), Bernard Frizell (Paris), Welles Hangen (Bonn), John Rich (Tokyo), James Robinson (Hong Kong), George Clay (Africa), Wilson Hall (South America)

1963: TRANSITION and Tragedy—Howard K. Smith is anchorman for a review of news highlights of 1963 and an analysis of their effect on the course of history in the year ahead at 10 p.m., ch. 7.

ALL SET FOR A ROOTIN'-TOOTIN' Happy New Year are 'The Beverly Hillbillies"—well, most of them. Buddy Ebsen (left), Max Baer and Donna Douglas are in the swing of things. However, Irene (Granny) Ryan and the Clampett bloodhound much prefer their swing of things to be a little less rootin'-tootin'.

Television Movie Tips

SUNDAY

THE HARVEY GIRLS—9 a.m., ch. 11 (also Thursday, 11:30 p.m.). Judy Garland, John Hodiak, Preston Foster, Ray Bolger (1945). Young ladies who go west to become waitresses in a Fred Harvey restaurant form the background for a musical-romance.

DUMBO — 7:30 p.m., In color, ch. 4. The full-length 1941 Walt Disney cartoon of a baby elephant whose huge ears bring laughter until he learns he can fly.

THE COMMAND — 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 9. Guy Madison, John Weldon, James Whitmore (1954). First run. Army medical captain is given command of a cavalry detachment escorting a wagon train through hostile Wyoming territory.

WILSON—11:15 p.m., ch. 2. Alexander Knox, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Thomas Mitchell, Charles Coburn (1944). Powerful story, superbly performed, following our World War I president from Princeton to his futile attempts to make us part of the League of Nations.

MONDAY

KISS ME KATE—7:30 p.m., in color ch. 4. Kathryn Grayson, Howard Keel, Ann Miller, Keenan Wynn, James Whitmore (1953). First run. Musical inspired by Shakespear's "Taming of the Shrew," with 15 Cole Porter songs, a play within a play.

TUESDAY

FARMER'S DAUGHTER—9 p. m., ch. 5. Loretta Young, Joseph Cotten, Ethel Barrymore, Charles Bickford (1947). Fiery Swedish servant girl makes a fight for a congressional seat and soon has everyone rooting for her. The ABC series was based on this Oscar-winning film.

NIGHT OF THE HUNTER —10:30 p. m., ch. 9. Robert Mitchum, Shelley Winters, Lillian Gish (1955). Religious fanatic marries a widow to kill her and get her inheritance. Charles Laughton directed. (Note: Station has booked Mitchum films each week night at this time.)

WEDNESDAY

LITTLE KIDNAPERS—12:30 p. m., ch. 9 (also 12 midnight). Duncan MacRae, Adrienni Corri, Theodore Bikel (1954). Brilliant, moving film of two orphans who hide a baby in the woods as a pet when they can't have a dog.

REBECCA—1 p. m., ch. 5. Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, George Sanders (1940). Brilliant Hitchcock direction of classic thriller about a man dominated by the memory of his first wife.

O. HENRY'S FULL HOUSE —1:45 p. m., ch. 11. Charles Laughton, Richard Widmark, Anne Baxter, Jeanne Crain (1952). John Steinbeck narrates an anthology of five O. Henry classic short stories. Shown without commercial interruption.

SATURDAY

THE LAST COMMAND — 12:30 p.m., ch. 5. Sterling Hayden, Ernest Borgnine Anna Maria Alberghetti, Richard Carlson (1955). Story of Jim Bowie and the historic battle of the Alamo. Historical action, with fine battle scenes.

A WALK IN THE SUN — 1:30 p.m., ch. 7. Dana Andrews, Richard Conte, John Ireland (1945). Realistic, well acted World War II drama of a platoon of Texas Division infantrymen in Italy.

LONELYHEARTS — 8:30 p.m., ch. 9. Montgomery Clift, Robert Ryan, Myrna Loy, Dolores Hart (1958). First run. Dore Schary screenplay of a sensitive young newspaperman assigned to write the "advice to the lovelorn" column and of his sympathy for the tormented people who write in.

DADDY LONG LEGS—9 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Fred Astaire, Leslie Caron, Terry Moore, Thelma Ritter (1955). First run. Musical version of the Jean Webster novel about a middle-aged millionaire who falls in love with his ward, a French orphan girl. Ten Johnny Mercer songs are featured.

LAST TIME I SAW PARIS — 11 p.m., ch. 11. Elizabeth Taylor, Van Johnson, Walter Pidgeon, Donna Reed (1952). F. Scott Fitzgerald story of American repatriates in Paris after World War I.

SEVEN LITTLE FOYS — 11:15 p.m., ch. 2 Bob Hope, George Tobias, Molly Vitale, Angela Clark (1955). First run. Biopic of Eddie Foy, widowed and faced with raising seven children while pursing a show business career.

THE OBJECT IS—Premiere. Dick Clark hosts a new daily game show in which 3 week-long celebrities and 3 daily contestants try to identify personalities from inanimate object clues. Hans Conried, Yvonne Craig and Dwayne Hickman are initial guests at 11:30 a.m., ch. 7.

LET'S MAKE A DEAL — Premiere. Monty Hall hosts another new daily game show, this one replacing "People Will Talk" at 12 noon, ch. 4, in color. Contestants will be offered chances to make swaps for unknown prizes of varying values, and disguised so that a peanut might contain either a nut or a diamond inside its shell.

RECALL — By means of fantasy, recalling the dead from the grave, Paul Coates interviews Mary Todd Lincoln to reveal her as she really was when she lived. Bette Davis portrays Mrs. Lincoln, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 11, with Natalie Schafer and George Macready in vignette roles as her sister and a biographer.

THE UNBELIEVABLE YEAR—Joseph Benti is host for a 90-min. wrap-up of a most eventful 1963, at 9 p.m., ch. 5. Spotlighted are the Kennedy assassination, Baldwin Hills dam disaster, mud slides and heat wave.

RETROSPECT—Highlights of the year in the Southland are reviewed by Baxter Ward at 11 p.m., ch. 7, including the Baldwin Hills tragedy, Sinatra kidnaping, Griffith Park fire, Madame Nhu's visit, segregation demonstrations, World Series, Walter O'Malley's tax problems and all-digit dialing.

Will the President Utilize Television More or Less?

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—What will be the relationship of the new President and his family to television? Will it be as pivotal a device to them as it was to the Kennedys?

One may assume, of course, that President Johnson will employ video as strategically as possible with an election year coming up. One may assume, also, that when a decent period of time has elapsed after President Kennedy's assassination, we will most probably get a number of television portraits of the Johnsons. And it is also possible that the effect of Kennedy being shot while in a public motorcade may result in the new chief executive taking more to video for widespread contact rather than risking dangerous exposure too frequently.

Nevertheless, the differences between the Kennedys and the Johnsons indicate that the new residents of the White House will have a less emphatic relationship with television, as subjects.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. JOHNSON are a highly attractive couple. But it is no secret that President and Mrs. Kennedy were an extraordinarily handsome pair in physical appearance, with the aura of film celebrities. This drew added attention to them, sometimes distasteful attention, but it was a valuable political asset.

Furthermore, while the Johnsons' two lovely daughters are grown, the Kennedy children were the object of added interest and humor in the way that all such youngsters are to the public.

This may well be a blessing to the Johnsons, one that Mrs. Kennedy, who cherishes privacy, might envy. For television, by its nature, is remorseless in its creation of unwilling celebrities.

AS AN INDICATION OF how times have changed, here is a anecdote recalled by the journalist Alistair Cooke in a recent "Show" magazine article: "Once, in Bermuda, a cameraman had the breathtaking audacity to snap Woodrow Wilson's daughter, Jessie, against the President's wish. Wilson sprang at the man and screamed, 'I want to give you the worst thrashing you ever had in your life.'"

Besides in personal matters, there are other differences between Johnson and Kennedy that relate to television use.

Television helped get Kennedy elected, it is generally agreed. It made his first great impression on the nation as a public figure in a presidential race. From then on it was one of his basic weapons.

Johnson, on the other hand, owes little, if any, of his political career to video. He made his reputation as one of the great congressional strategists of the century before he ran with Kennedy. Johnson is known to rely heavily on his powers of private persuasion.

Kennedy's coatless, hatless appearances on television served the image he sought. Johnson's is likely to be more conservative. As for his family, one can only sigh for the less complicated days when, as Cooke records it, Woodrow Wilson told reporters: "I am a public character for the time being, but the ladies of my household are not servants of the government and they are not public characters."

'Making of the President'

THE LATE PRESIDENT J. F. KENNEDY AS HE APPEARED ON CAMPAIGN TRAIL

TV REVIEW

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

In the darkened screening room at ABC-TV, the face of Pulitzer-Prize-winning author Theodore H. White appeared on the television monitor and he said:

"John Fitzgerald Kennedy loved American politics. The story you are about to see tells of one of its greatest clashes. This film was finished shortly before his death.

"We have left it as it was then. . . ."

You will have an opportunity to see that story, "The Making of the President, 1960," at 8:30 p.m. today (Sunday), channel 7.

I advise you not to miss it. I suggest you encourage your children to watch.

I say this regardless of your political affiliations. Both major political parties are extensively covered in the 90-minute documentary.

IF YOU KNEW nothing about political campaigning before, you will feel like you have completed an education afterwards.

It is a fast-paced education with the excitement of a football game although you know who will be the winner.

It is movement, continuity and people, not just speeches. It's a documentary of history.

After watching it, I talked with producer Mel Stuart who worked with author White in adapting the prize-winning book for television.

"We were extremely lucky in getting some of the footage we obtained," said Stuart.

"FOR EXAMPLE, in Chicago we found a cameraman who had made a tape of Kennedy, then a senator, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon as they were preparing for the first of their 'Great Debates.'

"If that kind of preliminary tape is kept—which it usually is not—it generally is erased and used over for something else. The cameraman in Chicago kept his tape the way it was."

Television stations all across the nation provided campaign footage for Stuart and his aides to look at. So did many amateur and professional photographers.

With his assistants, Stuart looked at a million feet of film before editing the total down to 2,000 feet for tonight's documentary.

AFTER THE ASSASSINATION, there was no thought of shelving the 90-minute production.

"We felt its honesty was a tribute," said Stuart.

"Teddy (White) said if the President was alive, it was exactly the way he'd want to see it.

"There are no eulogies, no superlatives."

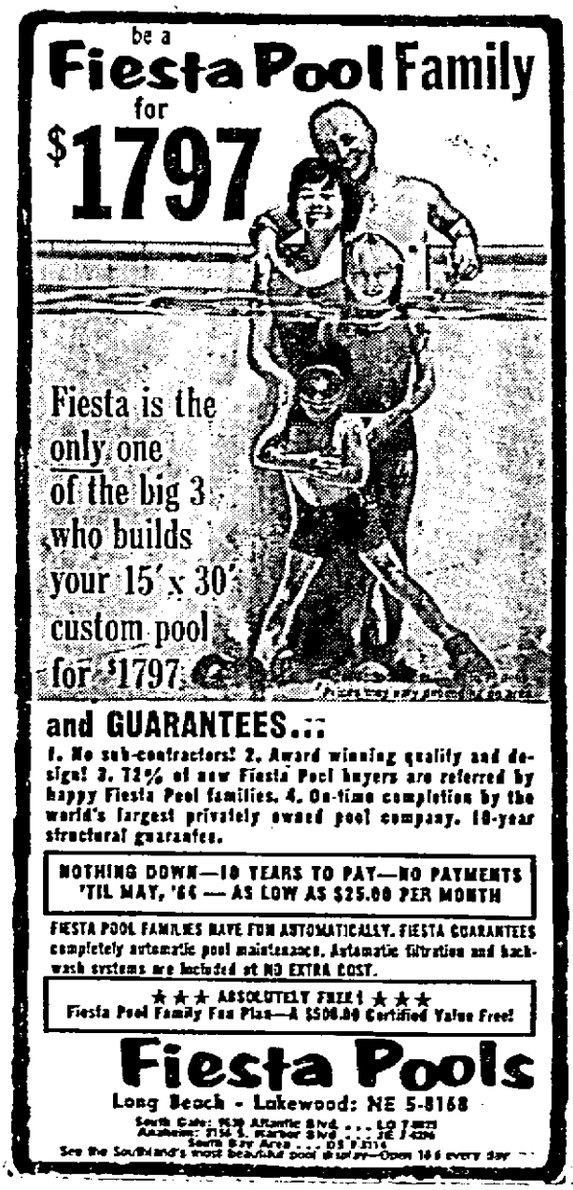

From a personal standpoint, I had attended the screening feeling I would come away with a sense of sadness.

I was wrong.

Watching the life in the man, the vitality, obscured all but fleeting thoughts of his death.

What he wanted to achieve, he had achieved.

An assassin's bullet could not take from him that moment of victory.

SPECIAL

BIG NEWS OF '63—Newsmen Jerry Dunphy, Maury Green, Ralph Story, Charles Neal, Grant Holcomb, Saul Halpert, Paul Udell, John Hart and Robert Simmons evaluate stories which had a major effect on the Southland. Hour special, at 4:30 p.m., ch. 2, puts the emphasis on violence that marked 1963.

JACKIE GLEASON — Art Carney, Gleason's sidekick of many years, is host for a tribute to The Great One's 35 years in show business, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2. Arthur Godfrey, David Susskind, Arnold Palmer, Dina Merrill, Audrey Meadows and billiard championship Willie Mosconi appear in taped or filmed segments from past Gleason shows, and scenes will be shown from his movies "The Hustler" and "Gigot."

HOLLYWOOD PALACE — Premiere. A variety show, in the Sullivan manner, is the newest production for the old El Capitan Theater (and, for 13 weeks, the Jerry Lewis Theatre). Bing Crosby will be the first of a series of weekly hosts (next week, Bob Cummings), with 9 or 10 acts designed to complement the talents of the headliner. Opening hour, at 9:30 p.m., ch. 7, spotlights Bing's own son Gary, plus Bob Newhart, Mickey Rooney, Bobby Van, Nancy Wilson, the acrobatic Hardy Family, musical clowns Les Salvadori, the Andre Tahon Puppets and The Young Puppets and The Young Americans, young choral group who performed on Gypsby's last special.

Guarantee money for college?

How?

With your life insurance . . . and the help your agent is trained to give you!

YOU: That's a pretty big promise. How's it possible?

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE AGENT: You simply use any policies that have cash values—as a way of putting money aside for your children's education.

YOU: And then what?

AGENT: Well, as you know, these cash values in your policies increase, year by year, as you pay your premiums. When college days arrive you can use this money, if you need to, for tuition and other expenses.

YOU: But why do it with life insurance? There are lots of other ways I could save the money.

AGENT: Sure, if you're positive that you'll live to save it. With life insurance you know the full amount will be there—even if you're not.

YOU: I never thought of it that way. The money really is guaranteed, isn't it?

AGENT: Right. That's one of the unique advantages of life insurance.

Q. Joe Valachi, the Cosa Nostra squealer—isn't he a high-grade moron? How could the Justice Department believe anything he told them?—Lou Diamond, Chicago, Ill.

A. Valachi was given an intelligence test by a prison psychiatrist. The test revealed that he has an IQ of 85, which places him within the normal intelligence range. The Justice Department checked his information, found much of it to be valid.

Q. Is it true that Sammy Davis, Jr., owns a $20,000 Rolls-Royce?—Verna Elton, San Francisco, Calif.

A. True.

Q. Does Casey Stengel own the Valley National Bank of Glendale, Calif.? —R. Volney, Phoenix, Ariz.

A. John Lawson, chairman of the bank, is Stengel's brother-in-law. In 1957, when he founded the bank, he gave Stengel the opportunity of buying in. Casey did and is now one of several minority stockholders.

Q. In how many states is marriage between Negroes and whites prohibited by law?—B.T., Little Rock, Ark.

A. In 19 states—Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Delaware, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Wyoming, Oklahoma and West Virginia.

Q. What is the relationship between Fidel Castro and Celia Sanchez? Isn't she his mistress?—R. P. Coronado, Miami, Fla.

A. Celia Sanchez, 36, is a former girl friend of Castro's who fought with him in the jungle, was later made his private secretary. When Castro came to power he gave her a cabinet post. Secretary of the Presidency. She is expected to succeed provisional President Osvaldo Torrado.

Q. Whatever happened to ex-tennis champ Alice Marble?—Carla Monti, Hollywood, Calif.

A. Alice Marble, 50, is director of the Lake Encino Racquet Club outside Los Angeles.

Q. Can anyone tell me how much money Cary Grant is worth?—Lena Harrison, Columbia, S.C.

A. Approximately $15,000,000.

Q. How tall is President Johnson, and what did he do in World War II? — David Watts, Erie, Pa.

A. President Johnson is 6-feet-3. In World War II, Johnson enlisted in the Navy three days after Pearl Harbor. He was commissioned a lieutenant commander and sent to New Zealand and Australia. He served as an observer on bomber missions, was awarded the Silver Star. When President Roosevelt ruled that national legislators might not serve in the armed forces, Johnson returned to the House of Representatives, in mid-1942.

Q. When Happy Murphy divorced Dr. James S. Murphy to marry Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who got custody of the four Murphy children?—T. P., Buffalo, N.Y.

A. Dr. Murphy.

Q. How about the Judy Garland-Glenn Ford romance? True, or is Ford doing it for publicity?—Dan Fredericks, Tarzana, Calif.

A. They're old friends.

Q. Is it true that in his press conferences French President Charles de Gaulle chooses the questions he wishes to answer and brushes aside all others?—B. L. French, Baltimore, Md.

A. Yes, he generally chooses one question, answers it for 30 minutes.

Q. Lindsay Crosby, the 26-year-old son of Bing Crosby —wasn't he recently arrested for being an alcoholic? Why doesn't Bing give him the cure?—T. P., Riverside, Calif.

A. Young Crosby suffered a nervous breakdown 18 months ago, was recently arrested in Palm Springs on suspicion of drunken driving.

Q. Who said: "Who loves not women, wine and song remains a fool his whole life long"?—Nettie Chalmers, Oil City, La.

A. Martin Luther, 1483-1546, leader of the Protestant Reformation in Germany.

Q. Is it true that Queen Elizabeth plans to abdicate the British throne in 6 years when Prince Charles reaches 21? — Henrietta Sher, Newark, N.J.

A. There is some talk that she will abdicate when Prince Charles reaches 30 or 35. The idea is to permit him to reign in the full vigor of his youthful manhood rather than when he's an old man. When Queen Victoria died in 1901, her son Edward VII was 60. He died 9 years later. Queen Elizabeth wants no duplication of that setup.

Q. Is there anything to the Suzanne Pleshette-Troy Donahue thing—or is it one of those studio-manufactured love affairs? — Belinda Church, Des Moines, Iowa.

A. They may wed Jan. 4.

Q. Is Jerry Lewis all washed up in television?—Oliver Hinson, Detroit, Mich.

A. He's too talented to be washed up in any medium.

Q. I've been told that Sen. Barry Goldwater was once denied permission to play golf at a Los Angeles country club because of his ancestry. Supposedly Goldwater said to the club manager, "How about letting me play 9 holes? I'm only half-Jewish." Is this anecdote true?—Sandy Gersch, Tucson, Ariz.

A. The anecdote was first narrated by the senator's brother, Bob, who told it about himself. Later, Bob Goldwater said, "I made the story up. I told it at a PGA meeting. It's not true."

STALIN'S GHOST

How the old tyrant still haunts the Kremlin and influences American-Soviet relations

by JESS GORKIN
EDITOR OF PARADE

Top photo shows Irkutsk, Siberia, square in 1959 dominated by statue of Stalin. Today (bottom) this area has completely changed and the old tyrant's visage has disappeared.

One of Lyndon B. Johnson's first acts as President was to express the hope that the thaw would continue in American-Soviet relations.

What are the chances of the thaw continuing? Will the cold war ice, which began to melt for the first time after the 1955 Geneva Conference, turn to water or reverse once again into a deep freeze?

The man who holds part of the answer to these and other questions about the internal politics of Russia, the outcome of many international events and the peace of the world is a man who has been dead more than 10 years. His name is Josef Stalin.

A full decade after the old dictator's death, his ghost still sulks in the Kremlin shadows. His survivors, peering into the gloom, can almost see the great mustache, the cold suspicious eyes, the sinister sneer.

They laid him to rest alongside Lenin in the purple granite mausoleum which they had built as a pyramid for their pharaohs. They were uneasy at first, as if he might reach out from his tomb and strike them down in a posthumous purge. But, as they gathered courage, they defiled both his memory and his grave. They ripped down his pictures, battered down his statues, uprooted street signs bearing his name—leaving angry scars in every bleak little park and garden, every drab public building. They rewrote their history and their literature to blot out his name. Subscribers to the large Soviet encyclopedia were instructed to delete favorable references with "a pair of scissors or a razor blade."

Obscure Resting Place

Then on Hallowe'en night, 1961, his body was spirited out of the mausoleum and buried in an obscure grave outside the Kremlin Wall. (Though the grave is now marked with a simple slab instead of the customary headstone, it continues to draw curious visitors. See accompanying pictures.)

Only in Stalin's native Georgia can his likeness be found today. There he remains a hero, admired for the qualities that made others hate him.

During my first trip to the Soviet Union in 1955, the Russian people were stumbling out of the Stalin era, shaking off some of the old oppressions, blinking in the sunlight that was beginning to break through. They were friendly but furtive; the fear and distrust hadn't yet disappeared.

He Still Has Admirers

When I visited the Soviet Union a few weeks ago, I spoke to scores of Russians, and found only a handful who admitted they thought kindly of Stalin. This minority view is best voiced by Vladimir Oltarshevsky, director of the Irkutsk Historical Museum: "We still have a great respect for Stalin. He has an important place in our history."

Although most of the Russian people despise the old despot, he still has his secret sympathizers throughout the entire Communist apparatus. But they dare not come out in the open, they lurk at all party levels—from the top policy makers who still believe Stalin's grim ways would be best for Russia, to the petty martinets who loved to administer Stalin's rule of terror. Through them, Stalin's ghost still stalks the land, waiting for the chance to strike.

Nowhere is his presence more ominously felt than in the huge paneled Kremlin office that Nikita Khrushchev now occupies. It was Khrushchev, then number 7 in the Soviet hierarchy, who made the arrangements for Stalin's funeral in 1953. Three years later, it was Khrushchev again who pulled the pedestal out from under Stalin and excoriated him as a brutal, despotic, capricious, sickly and suspicious "criminal murderer." Throughout most of the Communist world, the statues of Stalin came crashing down, and Khrushchev emerged from the rubble as the new supreme ruler, blaming past misdeeds of Communism upon Stalin.

But the ghost of Stalin was to give his successor no rest. The first time Khrushchev turned his back on the Kremlin, in 1957, the Stalinists rose up and tried to depose him. But he hurried home from an eastern European tour and drove them out instead.

Still Khrushchev was not safe; a young, new breed of Stalinists, led by the forbidding Mikhail Suslov, watched and waited. They were more flexible in their tactics, but their aims were the same as those of the ousted Old Bolsheviks. They also sympathized with the Chinese Communist ruler, Mao Tse-tung, who grows ever more frenzied in his determination to foist his doctrines on the Communist world and to bring down the West.

Whispers reached the West that Khrushchev had a showdown with the young Stalinists only last month. He sought to expel Mao from the Communist brotherhood. The Stalinists rallied enough support from world wide Communist leaders to prevent the excommunication. They also attempted to overthrow Khrushchev's economic policies, to impose belt-tightening measures upon the people and to divert more of the nation's resources into military might. Reportedly, they pushed some of their policies upon Khrushchev. But their efforts failed. Instead, it was Suslov who disappeared (though perhaps temporarily) from the Moscow scene.

Will the ghost win in the end? Can the Stalinists overthrow Khrushchev? Here are my conclusions:

1. The experts think Stalin's ghost is fighting a losing battle, will be driven out and eventually retreat to Red China.

2. During the interim, the Stalinists will continue to exert pressure on Khrushchev's policies. But Khrushchev, a master politician, will duck and weave and outbox them. One of Khrushchev's major headaches is the decline in the economy, which has been skidding since 1958.

3. Khrushchev tried to excommunicate Red China from the Communist oligarchy but was overruled by the Stalinists. Some experts believe Khrushchev will reverse tactics and turn the other cheek to his old foe Mao Tse-tung. If Mao accepts the invitation to slap it, Khrushchev will then blame the Chinese for wanting a break.

4. As Russians get more education they become more difficult for the Communists to control. The Kremlin cannot have a technological nation without granting a measure of education and freedom. The police have now been tamed and the crimes of the Stalin era condemned. Yet it can't be said that the average Soviet citizen is free. He still has no freedom to criticize his government, no power over its policies.

5. It should be kept in mind that even though Khrushchev favors peaceful coexistence and a continuing thaw, he is a doctrinaire Communist. As part of his strategy, the U.S. can expect at least one Cold War crisis in the coming months to test President Johnson's mettle.

Turn the page for some random glimpses inside Russia 10 years after Stalin.

Moscow's favorite tourist spot continues to be the mausoleum in Red Square even though Stalin's body has been removed and Lenin's remains are the sole attraction.

Stalin's grave, located between rear of mausoleum and Kremlin Wall, is marked by a simple slab. The 60,000 daily visitors who pass by after viewing Lenin are curious.

HOLIDAY HEADACHE?

If you've never tried Alka-Seltzer® you don't know how speedy relief can be!

When too much holiday cheer brings on holiday headache, bring out the Alka-Seltzer! Unlike pain pills, Alka-Seltzer is already a liquid when you take it. Ready to go to work instantly.

Alka-Seltzer provides the effective pain-reliever, sodium acetylsalicylate, in a completely dissolved solution. In the first ten minutes—when you really need it—the system quickly absorbs more of this Alka-Seltzer pain-reliever.

When you want a modern effective pain-reliever (and a soothing stomach alkalizer) take two Alka-Seltzer tablets.

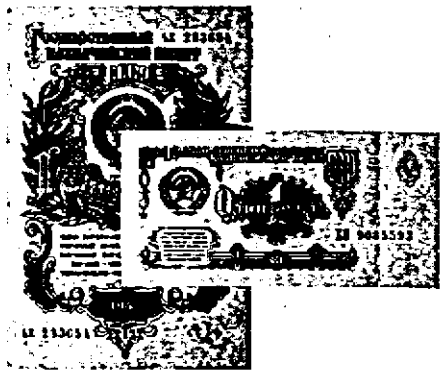

RELIEF IS JUST A SWALLOW AWAY

The Soviet people want peace along with more

Western influence on dress of many Russians is one of the most obvious changes in the Russian scene during the last 10 years. Contrast between the old and the new is shown in these photos. Kremlin criticism of use of cosmetics and Western styles, at one time severe, is now at a minimum.

Today's ruble (r.) is smaller in size, but U.S. dollar is now worth less than 1 ruble instead of 10.

Ironically, I found the people in Siberia more free and less inhibited than in Moscow. Typical of the comments I heard was engineer Vadim Kolonov's: "Some of my Siberian comrades who went back to the West eventually returned here. I have been in Siberia six years and find the people are more independent and friendlier."

THE HAMMER. Russia still is no worker's paradise, but working conditions have improved during the past 10 years. The work week has been reduced from 48 to 41 hours. The labor unions, which under Stalin only spurred workers to further effort, now help guard their safety and health. The unions can even call managers to task for violating work laws.

THE SICKLE. Russia has largely won its battle over malnutrition, but Khrushchev is furious at his farm managers for bungling, waste and ignorance. Though they boosted production by 60 per cent during the first 5 post-Stalin years, they have had trouble merely keeping up with the population increase since 1958. Khrushchev has put the plow to 100 million acres of arid "virgin lands" since 1954, almost one-creature comforts and personal freedom.

third the total U.S. crop land. But there hasn't been enough moisture to support the crops. And there is a desperate shortage of fertilizer. The bleak land has been farmed out, and drought is threatening to turn it into a vast, frightening dust bowl next summer. Russian farmers working their private plots on the side and selling their surplus on the free market have accounted for one-third of the farm output from less than four per cent of the tilled land. Compared to the American farmer, who feeds 25 people, 1 Russian farmer feeds only 4.

EDUCATION. The Russian child goes to school six days a week. Grade by grade his schedule is as follows:

Grade	Number of hours in school	Daily homework in hours
1-3	24	¾
4	27	1
5-6	30	1½
7	32	1½
8	34	2
9-11	36	3

Schools are closed on Sunday, and no homework is assigned for Sunday or Monday.

CARS. Ninety per cent of the vehicles in the Soviet Union are trucks. Few people expect ever to own a car. Rationalized one man: "A man takes more care of a car than of his wife."

SPORTS. All teachers, with an eye on the Olympic Games, try to build children who have a future in sports. Young athletes with potential are hand picked and attend sports schools twice a week. Age 10 or 11 is considered best to start training in gymnastics.

LEISURE LIFE. For entertainment, Russians now can find more stimulating reading than novels about young lovers discussing pig production by the light of the moon, more provocative listening than radio reports of the all-union conference of flyswatter makers, more exciting viewing than movies about dedicated workers on a production belt. Now Russians are even permitted to see American movies. They can attend the circus, watch a ballet, dance the Twist—even listen to the Voice of America.

FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION. The muzzle Stalin fastened on writers, artists and composers is alternately removed and replaced. For the moment, Khrushchev is pushing repression: witness his angry tirade against abstract art, which, he said, could be painted by the tail of a donkey.

HOUSING. Two things the Russian people want most are peace and a new apartment with their own kitchen and bathroom. Khrushchev has tried to speed up housing construction since 1958 but has had trouble keeping up with the urban growth. Urban population has increased 45 per cent during the past decade, passing Russia's rural population for the first time in history in 1960. The quality of construction is poor, and new homes are antiquated almost as soon as they are built.

THE CONSUMERS. The cumbersome Soviet economy suddenly shot upward after Stalin's shackles were broken until it had looked, indeed, as if Khrushchev's boast that Russia would overtake the U.S. by 1970 might come true. Booming factories filled Soviet shelves with 60 per cent more than had been available to consumers under Stalin. Then the economy suddenly slackened in 1957, and industrial production actually declined. To make matters worse for the consumers, Khrushchev put bullets ahead of butter in 1961 and increased defense outlays by a staggering 50 per cent.

THE OBSTACLES. The main hindrances to Soviet growth are too many Commissars, constantly changing directives, lack of incentives, indifference and inefficiency. In short, the Communist system is holding Russia back.

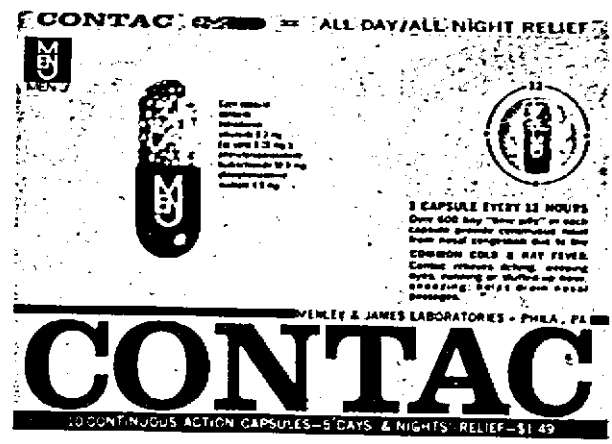

New housing has top priority, but construction is faulty. Prefabs were recently introduced.

Siberian collective farmer Vladimir Gvosdik's family prefers Siberia over their native Ukraine.

KAZAN & HIS REBELS

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

LAST week, Elia Kazan's latest film, America, America, opened on Broadway.

At 54, Kazan (real name—Kazanjoglous) is recognized as one of the world's most talented stage and film directors. An educational product of Williams College and the Yale University Drama School, Kazan has directed such memorable film fare as Streetcar Named Desire, Gentleman's Agreement, Panic in the Streets, East of Eden, On the Waterfront, Baby Doll, Splendor in the Grass and many others.

Certainly he is one of the great figures in contemporary American theater and motion pictures.

Small and restless, intense and vital, "Gadge" Kazan belongs to the school of naturalistic directors. It was he who first zoomed to stardom Marlon Brando via Streetcar, the late James Dean via East of Eden, Warren Beatty via Splendor in the Grass and now possibly Stathis Giallelis (pronounced Yallelis) via America, America.

All four of these actors are or were rebels of society, nonconformists, T-shirt or method actors, strong minded individuals, seemingly contemptuous of normal behavior.

Marlon Brando, of course, lives each day as if it were his last. A frustrated writer, he divides his time between Tahiti and Hollywood, not too proud that he earns his living as a motion picture star. No one but he knows for sure to whom he's currently married or how many children he has—best guess is two, one by Anna Kashfi and one by Movita. He is seemingly a rebel without a cause, a millionaire approaching 40 who once had within him the ability and power to become one of the greatest actors of his time but who sold out to Hollywood and, according to friends, doesn't particularly like what he sees in the mirror.

Jimmy Dean was a reckless, cultureless, physically dirty young actor, rude, disrespectful, snarling, a chip-on-the-shoulder rebel, notoriously selfish and taciturn, who fought with all his directors but was nevertheless an immensely talented actor. He rode motorcycles at breakneck speed, disregarded the law and the advice of elders, killed himself in a meaningless car accident, defiant to the last.

A LOSING BATTLE

Warren Beatty, young brother of actress Shirley MacLaine, brought up by respectable parents in Virginia, is bad-mannered, foul-mouthed, argumentative, spoiled, arrogant. His conduct on the location of Lilith, a picture he recently completed with director Robert Rossen, was so incredibly adolescent that at the start of the film Rossen wanted badly to throw him out if only he could have found a proper replacement. Of Beatty, his sister Shirley says, "I've tried to tell him that people must have manners in order to communicate with each other on a level of decency, but so far it's been a losing battle."

Stathis Giallelis, another Kazan discovery, is a 22-year-old Greek who had never faced a camera before Kazan found him in Athens 2 years ago. Giallelis' idea of formal wear is a T-shirt, but he is filled with such buoyant, boyish self-importance that when you ask him, as I recently did, "What do you think of Elia Kazan?" he quickly answers: "He is the best man who ever directed me." America, America is Giallelis' first and only motion picture.

Marlon Brando (l.), zoomed to fame in A Streetcar Named Desire, James Dean in East of Eden. Both were Kazan protégés, both nonconformists.

Where does Elia Kazan find these fellows? Does he specialize in rebels? Does he have some strange affinity for nonconformists? Does he see these youngsters as members of the out-group, the nonbelongers—as he himself was, first at Williams, where he washed dishes in a fraternity house, and then at Yale, where he was considered a poor actor?

A few weeks ago, while he was rehearsing Arthur Miller's new play, After the Fall, which opens in New York on January 23, I asked Kazan a few of those questions.

'THEY SAY DEAN IS MY FAULT'

"I don't know why these particular actors should be identified with me," he answered. "After all, I've worked with other actors. Take Karl Malden. I've worked with him seven or eight times, whereas I worked with Jimmy Dean only once. Yet they keep saying Jimmy Dean is my fault.

"The truth is," he went on, "that I never liked Dean. He was crude, dirty, unco-operative, snide, very bad mannered."

I interrupted and said, "Aren't they all bad mannered—Brando, Beatty, Giallelis?"

Kazan thought a moment. "I guess," he said, "they're taking out some personal grudge on the whole world, something of that kind. They feel cornered and bedeviled, but frankly, I'm not interested in that sort of bedevilment any more."

In show business circles there's a theory that Kazan can take a young actor, evoke from him a tremendous performance, then turn him over to Hollywood, where he becomes negativistic, unco-operative and willful. Kazan does not like Hollywood. He films his pictures away from Hollywood, and many people believe he projects his antagonism toward the film world into these young actors. I asked the director if he would comment on that.

"I don't have much antagonism," he said. "I used to when I was a kid in my early twenties, but I don't any more. Why should I? I do what I want, when I want. I enjoy life. But these actors you mention. I don't know why they're antagonistic or surly or unco-operative.

"The whole life out there in Hollywood is boring—the agencies, the publicity, the hangers-on—I'd revolt against it, too. The only thing I always wondered is why the hell they stay."

"Because," I answered, "money provides status and creature comforts, and there is a certain pleasure of self-abnegation in Hollywood prostitution. If there weren't, Marlon Brando would be with you now working in this new play."

Kazan agreed that I might be right. "You know," he said, "I think Marlon's a wonderful person. He's a very smart man, very babyish on one side, but on the whole a very decent man, tolerant, understanding, interesting, humorous. In Hollywood he's his own boss. Here in New York, the most we could pay him would be a thousand a week. I guess he can't afford us."

I asked Kazan if he might reveal the secret formula by which he obtains such overwhelming co-operation from actors who subsequently refuse to accord the same to other directors.

"Well," he said simply, "at the start of a play or a film, I figure I'm going to be with these guys for a long time, so I try to set up standards and values that I believe in and I hope they'll believe in so we'll be able to work well together."

Stathis Giallelis (l.), latest Kazan rebel, stars in America, America. Warren Beatty rose to stardom via Splendor in the Grass.

GEORGE MASTERS OF HOLLYWOOD SHOWS HIS NEW SMOOTH, NATURAL COIFFURE—THE UPDATED CLASSIC

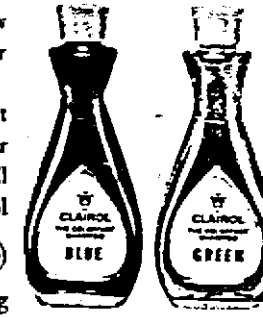

This world-famous hairdresser tells why you should use a special colorfast shampoo if you color or lighten your hair

"The look is casual, but the care we give to hair and its color is anything but casual," explains George Masters, whose exuberant approach to hairstyling attracts a star-studded clientele, from Beverly Hills and throughout the country.

"Naturally, when I arrive at the most becoming hair color for a woman—a soft, lovely shade that does wonderful things for her looks—I want it to stay that way. I certainly don't want to see the color changed by the shampoo."

Asked how he handles this important shampoo problem, Mr. Masters told us, "Once it seemed a lost cause. But it's easy now that Clairol has developed this special shampoo that really cares for haircoloring. Because it's colorfast, it doesn't change hair color."

Very different from other leading shampoos, new colorfast shampoo by Clairol was specifically created for women who color or lighten their hair. In two unique formulas: Clairol Blue for all light delicate blonde shades of lightened and toned hair. Clairol Green for all red, brown and black shades of tints and lasting rinses. So you see, however you color your hair, one of these two is exactly right for you! Used by leading beauty salons everywhere. Now available at fine cosmetic counters.

Old-time calendars come back

by ROSALIND MASSOW

What ever happened to those sweetly sentimental calendars of yesteryear? You know, the ones that depicted doting mothers and fathers and very fancy ladies done up in big hats and feathered boas?

Well, they're coming out of their dusty hiding places in the attic to become wall decorations. Decorator interest in Edwardian furniture and anything old-fashioned has put a premium on originals of the cloyingly sweet variety of calendar art reproduced on this page and on today's cover. But ladies who haunt the antique shops may be lucky enough to get their hands on one of these flowery, marvelously corny creations of the early 1900s.

However, even the 1964 calendars—there'll be about 500 to 600 million distributed—will have a touch of the turn of the century about them. They'll have more warmth, grace, sentiment and ornamentation than they had in the past decade. Says Stan Shaw, art director of Shaw-Barton, one of the country's largest calendar manufacturers, "You're going to see a lot of calendars which feature woodcuts and other traditional art forms."

The average household will have two to three calendars, Shaw says, and at least one will be decorative. He sees the present trend as a reaction from art that's impossible to understand. "People want to look at something that rings a familiar bell, instead of the abstract use-your-own-imagination kind of design," Shaw explains.

Calendar art has always reflected the mood and needs of the time. At the turn of the century and for 20 years after, rococo treatment of home-and-Mother subjects was in vogue. Pictures were bordered with pansies and curlecues. People liked them so much they kept them as decorations long after the calendars themselves were obsolete.

The Roaring 20s, with its flappers and its air of abandon, launched the pin-up, first of the girlie calendars. During the Depression, calendars were simple and austere; during the war years, patriotic. From 1950 to 1960, calendar formats were severe and somewhat abstract. Now we're returning to sweetness and light. But no matter what kind of calendar you get for 1964, chances are that it will so beguile the eye, you won't even mind the passage of time.

New Products: Best of 1963

by Peter Dryden

Here, judged by reader inquiries, are the 10 most popular new products reported by Parade of Progress in 1963 — and another chance to get any you missed.

Spray your oven clean: A new aerosol preparation produces a white foam that lets you clean an oven in 10 minutes—and without need for rubber gloves. Almost as bland as water, it can't burn skin, injure fabrics, metals or floor coverings. 16 oz.: $1.50. Oven-Joy, Dept. PP, 14934 Telegraph Rd., Detroit 39, Mich.

Convenience under the sink: Now comes a waste can with 15-qt. capacity, largest ever, that fits into an undersink or counter cabinet, attaching to inside of door. Its lid pops up when you press a button and there's also a built-in odor-killing defumer. 10¾" wide, 8½" deep, 15" high. White or yellow enamel: $7.98; stainless steel: $10.98. ($1 more in Western states.) Beautyware, Dept. PP, 225 42 St., Brooklyn 32, N. Y.

Fold-away summer room: You can set up a new screen-walled room quickly and easily in your back yard for family picnics, parties, cookouts, children's play in bad weather. And it folds up compactly for winter storage. It has Fiberglas screening, rustproof aluminum framing—and even the largest size, 12'3" x 12'3", weighs only 130 lb. Other sizes from 9' x 9'. Details: Pennant Div., Novo Industrial, Dept. PP, 9705 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago 28, Ill.

Compact camper: Hitched to your car, a new camper is only 6'8" long and 5' wide when closed—yet opens to 10' width to provide sleeping space for a family of 4 or 5. It also has built-in kitchen with 35-lb. capacity icebox, water pump, 5-gal. water tank, steel sink, space for camp stove. Details: Right Products, Dept. PP, 213 Dunn St., Cincinnati 15, O.

Carpet mats: New for your car, they're made of rayon viscose carpeting, have rubber backs that anchor them—and let air circulate underneath to avoid moisture accumulation, mildew. 16" x 18" Black-white, beige, or green tweed. $1.29 plus postage. Crown Rubber, Dept. PP, 1615 Croghan St., Fremont, O.

Walkie-talkie from a kit: You can put a new 2-way transistorized radio together from a kit in a few hours. Powered by a miniature 9-volt battery, it provides on-the-move communication at ranges up to ¾ mile (more over open country or water), has many applications—from calling Junior home to across-the-street talk with neighbors, and use in boating, fishing, golfing. 5 11/32" x 2⅜" x 1¾". $9.95. Allied Radio, Dept. PP, 100 N. Western, Chicago 80, Ill.

For your blacktop driveway: Brush or roll on a new paint and it not only adds attractive color but also increases driveway life. Made with aluminum, it seals the surface, keeps it cooler, helps prevent cracking, crumbling. In grass green, coral red, beige gray or raven black—all fadeproof. $6.85 a gal. (good for 75-100 sq. ft.). Al-Chroma, Dept. PP, Stevens Point, Wis.

Cold protection: Inhaling cold air bothers many people with asthma, bronchitis, other medical problems. Now a knitted mask fits over nose and mouth—and preheats air. Designed by a physician, it has a heating element energized by a small, rechargeable battery. Details: Carmen Commodities, Dept. PP, 2900 W. Peterson, Chicago 45, Ill.

Versatile intercom: This one can operate from house current or a little 9-volt battery. It can go on table or wall, in home or office, works instantly without warm-up, has a special switch that shuts it off automatically when not in use to avoid current consumption or battery drain. Gray, tan, ivory or blue. 2-station system: $34.95; 5 stations: $98.08. Details: Beta Instruments, Dept. PP, 2205 Butler, Dallas 35, Tex.

Emergency heat and light: Everything you need for heat, light and cooking in case of power failure now comes in a compact kit that can also go along on your camping trips and picnics, taking little room in the car trunk. It includes a portable stove (with windshield) that also serves for heating; a camplight with illumination equal to a 125-watt bulb; 4 propane fuel tanks to provide for 42 hot meals and 50 hours of light. $29.95. Details: Turner Corp., Dept. PP, Sycamore, Ill.

A Hearty Welcome for 1964

BY BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

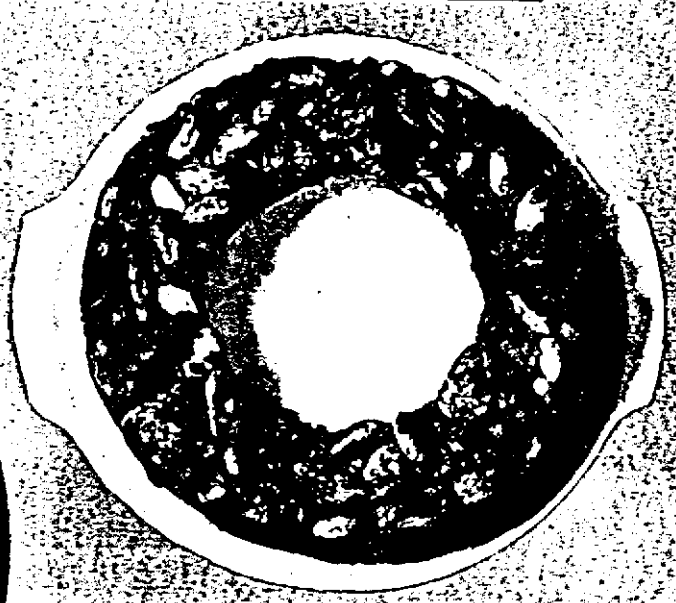

Usher in the New Year with Open House hospitality. Set the stage with holiday decorations, the soft glow of candlelight, and perhaps a crackling wood fire on the hearth. Serve a punch that is different, fragrant with fruit, spices and the added tang of beer. Cut the fruitcake wreath in thin, thin slices to serve with the punch.

New Year's Eve Punch

- 3 medium apples
- 4 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon each ginger and nutmeg
- 6 cups orange juice
- 2 quarts cranberry juice
- 2 bottles or cans (12 oz. each) beer or ale
- 3 tablespoons raisins
- 4 thick slices oranges
- Whole cloves

Core apples; slice into thin wedges; sprinkle with brown sugar. Place in baking pan; cover bottom of pan with ½ inch water. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes or until tender. Combine sugar and spices in 8-quart kettle. Add all but last two remaining ingredients. Heat (do not boil) 15 minutes. To serve, pour mixture into heatproof punch bowl; add apple wedges. If desired, garnish as illustrated with 4 orange slices decorated with whole cloves forming the numerals of the New Year. Makes 3½ quarts.

Fruitcake Wreath

- 3 cups shelled Brazil nuts (2 lb. unshelled, 1 lb. shelled)
- 1 lb. pitted dates
- 1 cup (8-oz. jar) drained maraschino cherries
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Put whole Brazil nuts, dates and cherries into large bowl. Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt over nuts and fruit; mix with hands until nuts and fruit are coated. Beat eggs until foamy; add vanilla. Stir into nut-fruit mixture until well mixed. Spoon into greased and foil-lined 6-cup ring mold. Grease foil. Bake at 300° for 1 hour, 30 minutes. Cool before slicing. FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN dad helps deliver the baby

by NEAL ASHBY

DENVER, COLO.

Just 30 minutes after giving birth to a baby daughter at Porter Memorial Hospital here, Janice French walked out of the delivery room with the infant in her arms and her husband at her side. She looked tired, but radiant. So did he. For almost literally they had delivered their baby together.

In the labor room, Lynn French, 21, had whispered "words of love" to divert the mind of his 20-year-old mate from labor contractions and tension. He had rubbed her back, helped make her comfortable.

In the delivery room, he sat at the head of the table on which his wife lay. As she strained in heavy labor, he leaned against the pillow behind her upraised back to afford her more leverage. He patted the perspiration from her forehead. They strained together, and 6-pound, 13½-ounce Martha, the Frenches' first child, entered the world.

The photos of the Frenches on these pages illustrate the new dimension being given to natural childbirth, itself relatively new in this country, at Porter Memorial. It is the development of Drs. Robert A. Bradley and Max D. Bartlett.

Dr. Bradley, veteran of 7,000 natural, anesthetic-less childbirths, had felt repelled by the "pain and anguish often attending the birth of a human baby. In many instances the mother-to-be was not prepared for childbirth mentally or physically. She was a frightened individual, a 'medicated maniac.'"

REPLACES FEAR WITH SELF-CONFIDENCE

Working with Dr. Bartlett, he initiated an "Obstetrical Therapy Training Course" for husbands and wives. It consists of five one-hour demonstrations to coach them in the anatomy of childbirth and in emotional training to replace fear with intelligent self-confidence. For the mother-to-be only, there are six exercise classes to strengthen back and pelvic muscles.

When it's time to go to Porter Memorial, husband, wife and obstetrician form an "OB team." Working behind his laboring wife in the delivery room, the husband sits on the "Daddy Stool," in the position the anesthetist ordinarily would take. With experience, the doctors discovered that even more beneficial than the father's presence was his participation. Like the doctor, the father is in surgical garb.

Drs. Bradley and Bartlett allow their mothers to walk from the delivery room if they wish—also a change from conventional procedure. Janice French did admirably. Soon after giving birth she was on the phone telling her mother excitedly, "I didn't have any anesthetic, or anything. The baby was born only a half hour ago, honest!"

Dr. Robert A. Bradley visits the Frenches in labor room at Denver's Porter Memorial Hospital. He's not needed yet.

As wife relaxes before natural childbirth, Lynn French places hand on her abdomen to help her regulate breathing.

As Janice undergoes the stress of advanced labor, Lynn helps her to gain leverage by pushing against the pillow at her back. He is seated on "Daddy Stool" at head of delivery table.

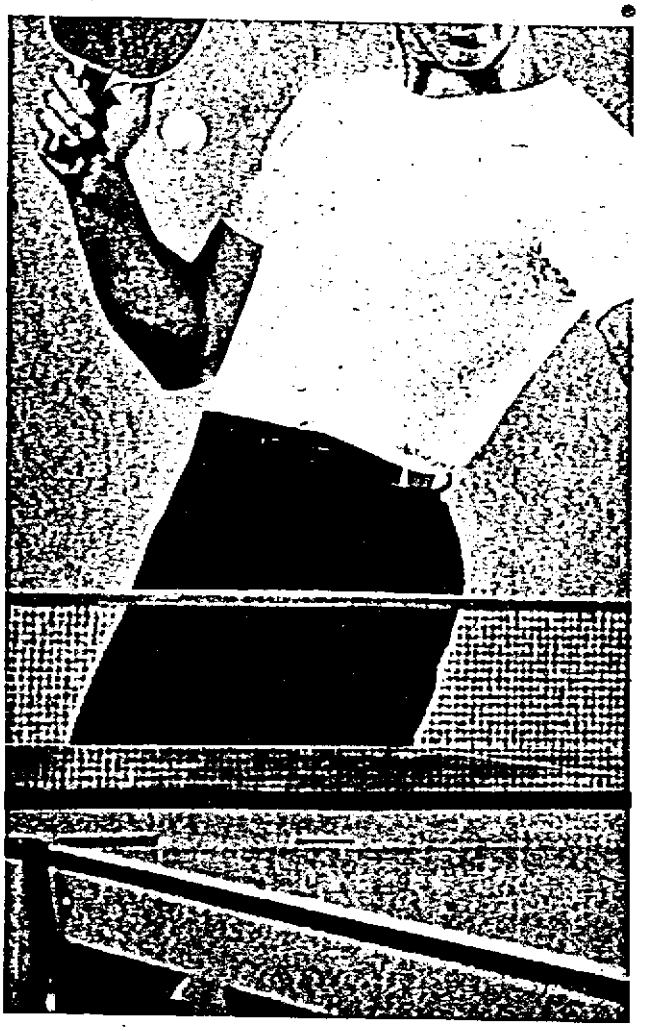

Just after the glorious moment of birth, Janice French drops back on her pillow, closes her eyes—and gets a loving hug from her husband, who is attired in surgeon's gown and mask.

Delivery over for both of them, the Frenches admire their baby daughter, whom they named Martha. A few minutes later, Janice was giving her mother the news on long distance phone.

my favorite jokes

by billy falbo

EDITOR'S NOTE: Comedian Billy Falbo, born in Chicago 35 years ago, is a former prize fighter who entered show business after his discharge from the army. A former singer with the Stan Kenton band, Billy discovered his bent for comedy when he was asked one night to replace a comedian who had fallen ill. That was 15 years ago, and Billy has been singing and telling jokes ever since, in such top night spots as the Sahara in Las Vegas, the Deauville in Miami Beach, The Playboy Club in Chicago, the Tidelands in Houston. One of the few comics who is still single, Billy makes his home in Melrose Park, Ill. He also owns a ranch in Hinsdale where he races quarter horses. He says he finds these much easier to run than any possible wife. Herewith some of his favorite jokes.

I have an uncle who wants to go on television. It's the only way he can get into 200 bars at the same time!

Speaking of TV, some of those old quiz shows got a lot of people into trouble, but they have a new kind of quiz now. You're given the question and answer, but you have to guess who sent it in.

Actually, these quiz contests are getting a little ridiculous. I know a 10-year-old kid who had to get married just because he won a honeymoon vacation for two in Hawaii.

I've done my show in Florida many times, and I love it down there. Where else can you open a window and let all that good fresh virus in?

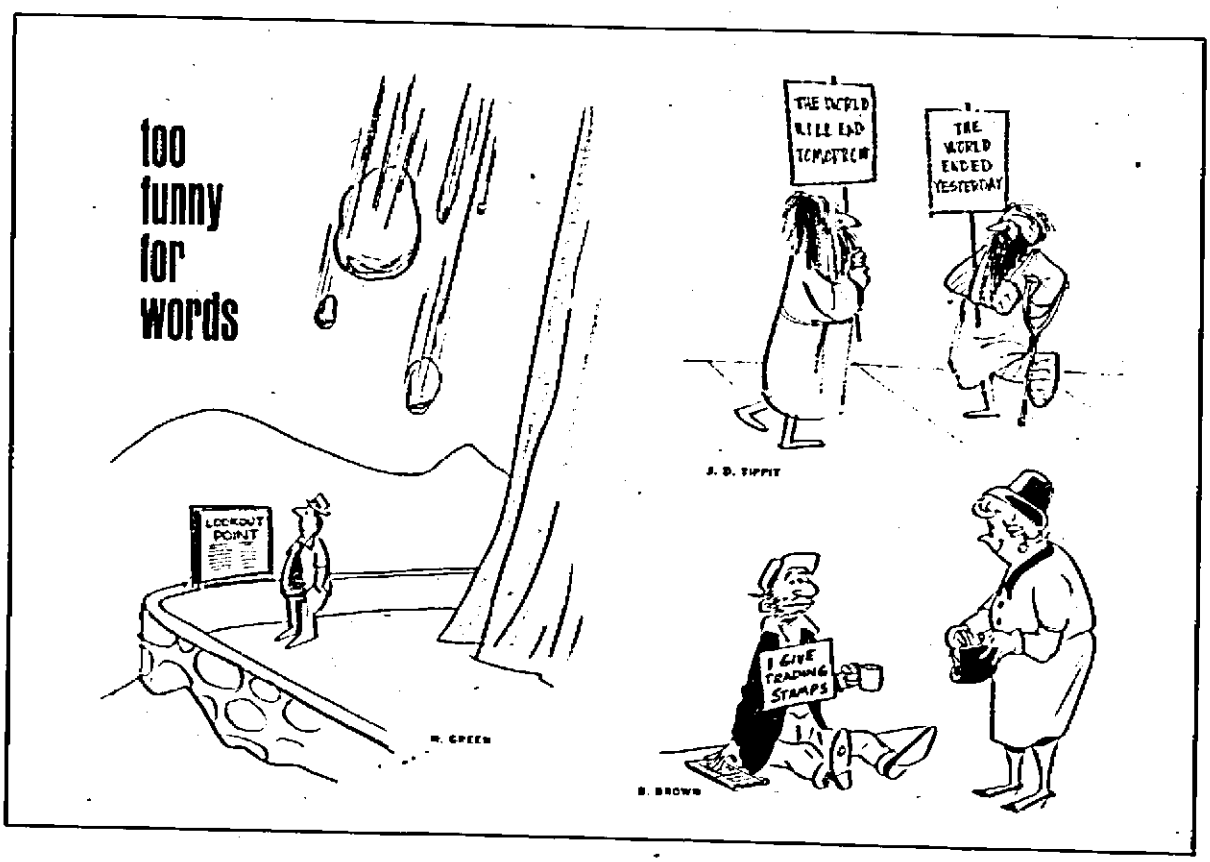

My neighbor, a confirmed gambler, came home very discouraged after a bad day at the track last week. His wife learned he had lost a lot of money and was very upset with him. "I can't understand why you never have any luck at racing," she nagged, "when you always win at cards."

"It's simple," he replied. "They won't let me shuffle the horses!"

Do you know why wives are like umpires? They not only have the last word, but they never think you're safe when you're out.

It's amazing what a good architect can do these days. Why, he can make your old house look a hundred per cent better just by talking about the cost of building you a new one!

An awful lot of American tourists will be going to Europe next year. They're not going for the scenery—they just want to be near their money.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

MAKE MARIJUANA LEGAL. Lancet, the journal of the British medical profession, says it may be a good idea to make marijuana legal. The magazine claims the drug is not addictive although it was placed on the British list of dangerous drugs in 1951. The article suggests taxing the production of reefer cigarettes and points out that while alcohol is used in the Western countries as an accepted liquor for the release of aggression, marijuana is recognized in the East as a producer of valued passiveness.

TO FIGHT CANCER. General de Gaulle is willing to give .5% of France's military budget to an international fund to fight cancer. The idea was suggested by Louis Armand, a French businessman who has written to the heads of government in Soviet Russia, Great Britain and the United States, asking for a similar pledge.

DRIVE-IN CHURCH. At Escondido, Calif., $420,000 is being spent on the construction of a new drive-in church which people can attend while in their cars. Plans call for a clergyman to conduct services from a glass tower over loudspeakers hidden in shrubs. Name of the church will be the Escondido Reformed Drive-In Church.

ELBOW GREASE. The do-it-yourself movement has spread to car washing, particularly in the Southwest. For 25¢ motorists can now drive into car wash booths, have their cars cleaned by high-pressure jets of water and detergent. Wiping cloths and vacuum cleaners are available for another two bits.

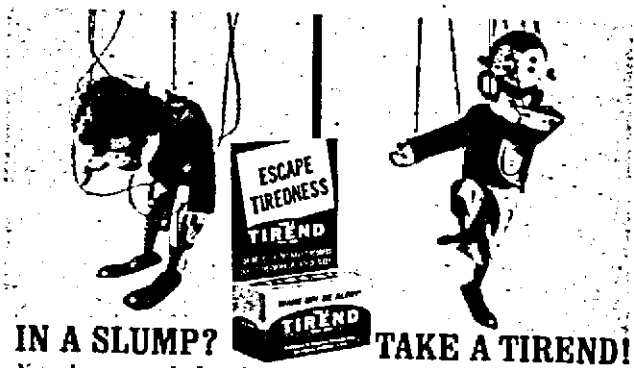

FALCONRY USE. Sea gulls are a constant threat to jet planes taking off from West Coast airports. To keep these gulls from being swallowed by jet intakes, safety experts are in the process of training falcons to rid the airfields of gulls.

TROUBLE FOR KRUPP. Krupp of Essen, the West German industrial giant whose steel and munitions plants made possible much of Adolf Hitler's war, has run into considerable financial trouble. The entire Krupp empire has been compelled to rely on short-term financing--6- to 12-month loans-- and is encountering a great deal of difficulty in obtaining the long-term loans it badly needs.

FACT-OF-FOOT. Nylon was introduced into the U.S. 25 years ago. In 1938 all the available nylon went into women's hose. Today hosiery uses only 45 million pounds of nylon while tires use 210 million, carpets 100 million, dress fabrics 75 million pounds.

GERMAN MEASLES. Expose your teenage daughter to German measles long before she gets married. That's the advice of Dr. Virginia Apgar, director of the Division of Congenital Malformations for the National Foundation March of Dimes. Says Dr. Apgar: "We have made a great deal of progress in 1963 in the study of virus infections and their effect during pregnancy. The virus which causes German measles--rubella--has been discovered. Vaccine research is under way, and specific laboratory tests can be performed to determine whether or not the future mother has actually had rubella." If your daughter hasn't had the disease, the doctor believes she should be exposed to it in order to obtain immunity. "If a mother-to-be contracts German measles in her first month of pregnancy, she has a 50% chance of giving birth to a baby who is abnormal or born dead. If she gets the disease in the second month of pregnancy the chances are reduced to 25%. In her third month they are 15%." Dr. Apgar is the originator of the Apgar Score, a clinical evaluation made within a minute after birth to determine if there is any brain damage to the infant.

IN A SLUMP? TAKE A TIREND!

Yes, whenever you're in a slump—whenever you're tired from over-work or lack of sleep—take a Tirend. Tirend really does give you a lift. And Tirend is so handy. Keep them with you always. Then, when temporary tiredness strikes, fight back. With Tirend. Remember, when you're in a slump, there's no reason to feel "logy"... just take a Tirend. They work!

TIREND MIGHT SAVE YOUR DAY TODAY

Now! False Teeth Fit Beautifully!

Amazing dental discovery, 'Cushion Grip'® — ends sore spots — refits loose dentures to hold snug as a dentist's mold! Tasteless! Nothing to mix! One application lasts months!

After years of research, modern science has developed a remarkable new way to make false teeth fit beautifully — stop looseness, slipping, clicking, relieve sore spots — without messy, old-fashioned pastes, powders and pads! It's Cushion Grip — amazing new soft, pliable plastic that holds false teeth snug as a dentist's mold, through soothing suction — makes loose dentures fit properly again. Result is, you can talk, laugh, eat anything without discomfort or embarrassment!

Cushion Grip is easy to use — nothing to mix or measure! Simply squeeze out of tube onto dentures, then insert false teeth into mouth and bite down. Instantly, Cushion Grip molds to contours of mouth and gums — provides beautiful fit — holds dentures firmly in place with suction. Looseness, slipping, clicking disappear. Sore spots are quickly relieved. One application lasts for months, despite nightly cleaning, yet Cushion Grip is easily removed when desired. What's more, Cushion Grip actually re-fits, relines worn dentures, lets you save over $100 on costly relining work. Get new tasteless, odorless Cushion Grip today.

YES! HERE IS THE BEST OFFER WE'VE EVER MADE ... an offer that enables you to get ANY SIX of the exciting records shown on this page — FREE!

Simply write in the numbers of the SIX records you wish to receive FREE on the attached postage-paid card. Then choose another record as your first selection, for which you will be billed only $3.98 (regular high-fidelity) or $4.98 (stereo). In short, you will actually receive seven records for the price of one!

Be sure to indicate whether you want your seven records (and all future selections) in regular high-fidelity or stereo. Also indicate the type of music in which you are mainly interested: Classical; Listening and Dancing: Broadway, Movies, Television and Musical Comedies; Country and Western; Teen Hits; Jazz.

HOW THE CLUB OPERATES: Each month the Club's staff of music experts selects outstanding records from every field of music. These selections are fully described in the Club's entertaining music Magazine, which you receive free each month.

You may accept the monthly selection for the field of music in which you are mainly interested, or take any of the wide variety of other records offered, or take NO record in any particular month.

Your only membership obligation is to purchase six more selections from the more than 400 records to be offered in the Club Magazine during the coming 12 months ... and you may discontinue membership at any time thereafter. If you continue, you need buy only four records a year to remain a member in good standing.

FREE RECORDS GIVEN REGULARLY. If you do wish to continue as a member after fulfilling your enrollment agreement, you will receive — FREE — a record of your choice for every two additional selections you buy.

The records you want are mailed and billed to you at the regular Club price of $3.98 (Classical $4.98; occasional Original Cast recordings and special albums somewhat higher), plus a small mailing and handling charge. Stereo records are $1.00 more.

NOTE: Stereo records must be played only on a stereo record player. ● Records marked with a star (*) have been electronically re-channeled for stereo.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA—SUNDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1963

Little Orphan Annie

"MEMORY IS THE TREASURY AND GUARDIAN OF ALL THINGS."—CICERO—ANNIE'S MEMORY IS MORE LIKE A BANK VAULET WITH A JAMMED COMBINATION!

YOU MEAN, AS EASILY AS THAT, SHE'S COMPLETELY HYPNOTIZED!

SH-H—LOT CAN HAPPEN IN JUST ONE YEAR, ALL RIGHT, EH, ANNIE?

LEAPIN' LIZARDS! I'LL SAY SO! WHY, A YEAR AGO, WE WERE LIVIN' WITH DOÑA ISABEL, IN THAT BIG OLD HACIENDA, AN' WORRYIN' 'BOUT THAT NASTY, MAYOR ASCO!

REMEMBER—JOSE AND DOC; YI WHEE AND SAM SENECA?

OH, SURE! AND ALL TH' OLD TUNNELS! WE HAD SOME WILD TIMES! 'MEMBER WHEN WE FOUND OIL DOWN BELOW? GEE! THAT'S WHEN I FIGGERED EVER'THING WAS HUNKY-DORY, AND GOT CARELESS!

OH, THAT DAY, LATE IN MARCH, WHEN YOU AND SANDY TOOK A WALK, EH?

YEAH! AN' WHAT A WALK! WHEN SANDY AN' I WOKE UP DAYS LATER, WE WERE IN A COUPLE O' SACKS, IN A LOCKED BOXCAR, CROSSIN' TH' DESERT! IF THOSE CATS, CLOEY AN' JOEY, HADN'T FOUND US ON THAT SIDING!

AN' TH' WAY KATE AND WONDERFUL OLD GRANDMOTHER PRIMROSE WORKED TO SAVE OUR LIVES FROM THE FEVER! THEN PRIMROSE'S GON, HAIRY WOLF, CAME HOME!

"HAIRY WOLF"? MAJOR HAIRY WOLF?

SURE! OH, THAT'S RIGHT! HA-HA! YOU WEREN'T THERE, AND I JUST HAVEN'T GOT 'ROUND TO TELLIN' YOU ALL 'BOUT LAST SUMMER TILL NOW! WELL, Y'SEE, FIRST THERE WAS THIS——

AND FOR AN HOUR ANNIE REPORTS ON AUNT AGATHA, THE FABULOUSLY VALUABLE NEW MINERAL DISCOVERY AND HAIRY WOLF'S BATTLES TO HOLD IT; FINALLY——

—I'D JUST GONE BACK TO TELL SANDY WE'D LAND IN TEN MINUTES WHEN—IT—IT WAS LIKE THE END OF THE WORLD!

FOR ALL BUT YOU TWO, IT WAS!

THAT'S CRAZY! MINUTE AGO, WHEN WE SAT DOWN IT WAS DAYLIGHT; ALL AT ONCE IT'S NIGHT! AND THE CLOCK! IT'S JUST GAINED NEARLY TWO HOURS!

AS THE INDIAN, HAIRY WOLF, MIGHT SAY——

"INDIAN"? "HAIRY WOLF"? MUSTA' BEEN ON THAT NEW WESTERN LAST NIGHT; 'FRAID I MISSED THAT ONE!

CAN'T WATCH THEM ALL! WELL, I MUST GO AND WRITE SOME LETTERS!

W-W-WAS ALL SHE TOLD POSSIBLE? THOSE PEOPLE SHE MENTIONED!

POSSIBLE? IT WAS GOSPEL TRUTH, LIL! A LOT SHE TOLD MADE HEADLINES AT THE TIME! POOR ANNIE!

AT LEAST NOW WE KNOW, AND DEEP IN HER MIND SHE TOO KNOWS THE PAST!

YES, BUT HOW DEEP, LIL? HOW DEEP?

HELLO, STUPID

OH, THAT'S A CUTE NAME—I LIKE IT

WHAT A DOPEY HAT

YES—ISN'T IT AWFUL?

I SAW YOU SKATING YESTERDAY—BOY, ARE YOU CLUMSY

I SURE AM

WHY DO YOU WEAR THOSE CORNY MITTENS?

I GUESS I'M JUST A DRIP

YOU'RE GETTING TOO FAT LATELY AND YOU WALK LIKE A DUCK

YES, I'VE NOTICED THAT

JUST AS WE HUMANS MAINTAIN WELL-EQUIPPED ARMIES TO DEFEND OUR COUNTRY...

TERMITE COLONIES ALSO HAVE A SOLDIER CASTE TO GUARD THEIR HIDDEN TUNNELS AGAINST ENEMIES

THESE "MINUTEMEN" OF THE SUBTERRANEAN WORLD HAVE HUGE HEADS EITHER ARMED WITH POWERFUL HOOKED JAWS OR TAPERED INTO POINTED SNOUTS

WHEN RAIDING ANTS ATTACK, THE WARRIORS RUSH TO THE PLACE OF ENTRY TO MEET THE INVADERS...

THE SOLDIERS WITH HOOKED PINCERS ENGAGE IN HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING, WHILE THE OTHERS USE A MORE EFFECTIVE METHOD

FROM THEIR SNOUTS THEY FIRE A JET OF STICKY REPELLENT THAT EITHER DRIVES AWAY THEIR ENEMIES...

OR, IF THE FLUID HITS THE ANTS DIRECTLY, CAUSES THEM TO WRITHE IN APPARENT AGONY UNTIL THE TOXIC SUBSTANCE ENDS THEIR STRUGGLES

ALL SET FOR THE WILLSONS' PARTY, DEAR?

I STILL HALF EXPECT THEM TO CALL IT OFF!

CLAIRE SAID THEY WERE GOING TO HAVE THIS PARTY BEFORE THEY MOVED, NO MATTER WHAT!

GUESS THEY WERE RIGHT TO PUT IT OFF WHEN THEIR SON CUT A TREE DOWN ACROSS THEIR DRIVEWAY!

WHAT A MESS THAT WAS!

AND THE TIME THEY POSTPONED THE PARTY BECAUSE WILL'S ELECTRIC TOOTHBRUSH SHORTED AND TURNED OFF ALL THE LIGHTS IN TOWN!

HOW ABOUT WHEN THEY HAD THEIR YARD SPRAYED FOR MOSQUITOES AND THE FOG DIDN'T LIFT FOR TWO DAYS!?

OH, I'M SURE NOTHING WILL HAPPEN THIS TIME! CLAIRE IS DETERMINED!..

HERE'S THEIR STREET! SAY... WHY ARE THOSE KIDS RUNNING?... YOU DON'T SUPPOSE...??

THE MOVERS CAME TODAY... BUT I JUST COULDN'T FACE CALLING OFF THE PARTY AGAIN!!

THE DOCTOR WON'T BE GOING BACK WITH US EITHER, COLONEL?

THE SITUATION NOW IN INDIAN HANDS, DAN FLAGG AND HOPE SOMERSET SAY GOODBYE TO COLONEL DOSHI AND HIS FIANCÉE.

NO, I WILL STAY UNTIL ALL THE WOUNDED ARE TREATED. THANKS TO YOUR PLAN, MAJOR FLAGG, OUR CASUALTIES HAVE BEEN FEWER.

NO BATTLEFIELD IS EVER PLEASANT, BUT THIS...THIS SEEMS BEYOND ENDURANCE! HOW THESE SOLDERS DIG IN AT 17,500 FEET WITHOUT PHYSICAL DETERIORATION IS UNBELIEVABLE!

I BELIEVE YOU CALL THEIR TYPE GUNG-HO, RIGHT, MARINE?

WELL, DAN...I HAVE MY STORY AND YOU HAVE AN EYE-WITNESS REPORT FOR YOUR GOVERNMENT. WHY SO GLUM?

NOW THAT THE EXCITEMENT HAS CEASED I CAN'T HELP BUT BE CONCERNED AS TO HOW MR. DODGE IS DOING.

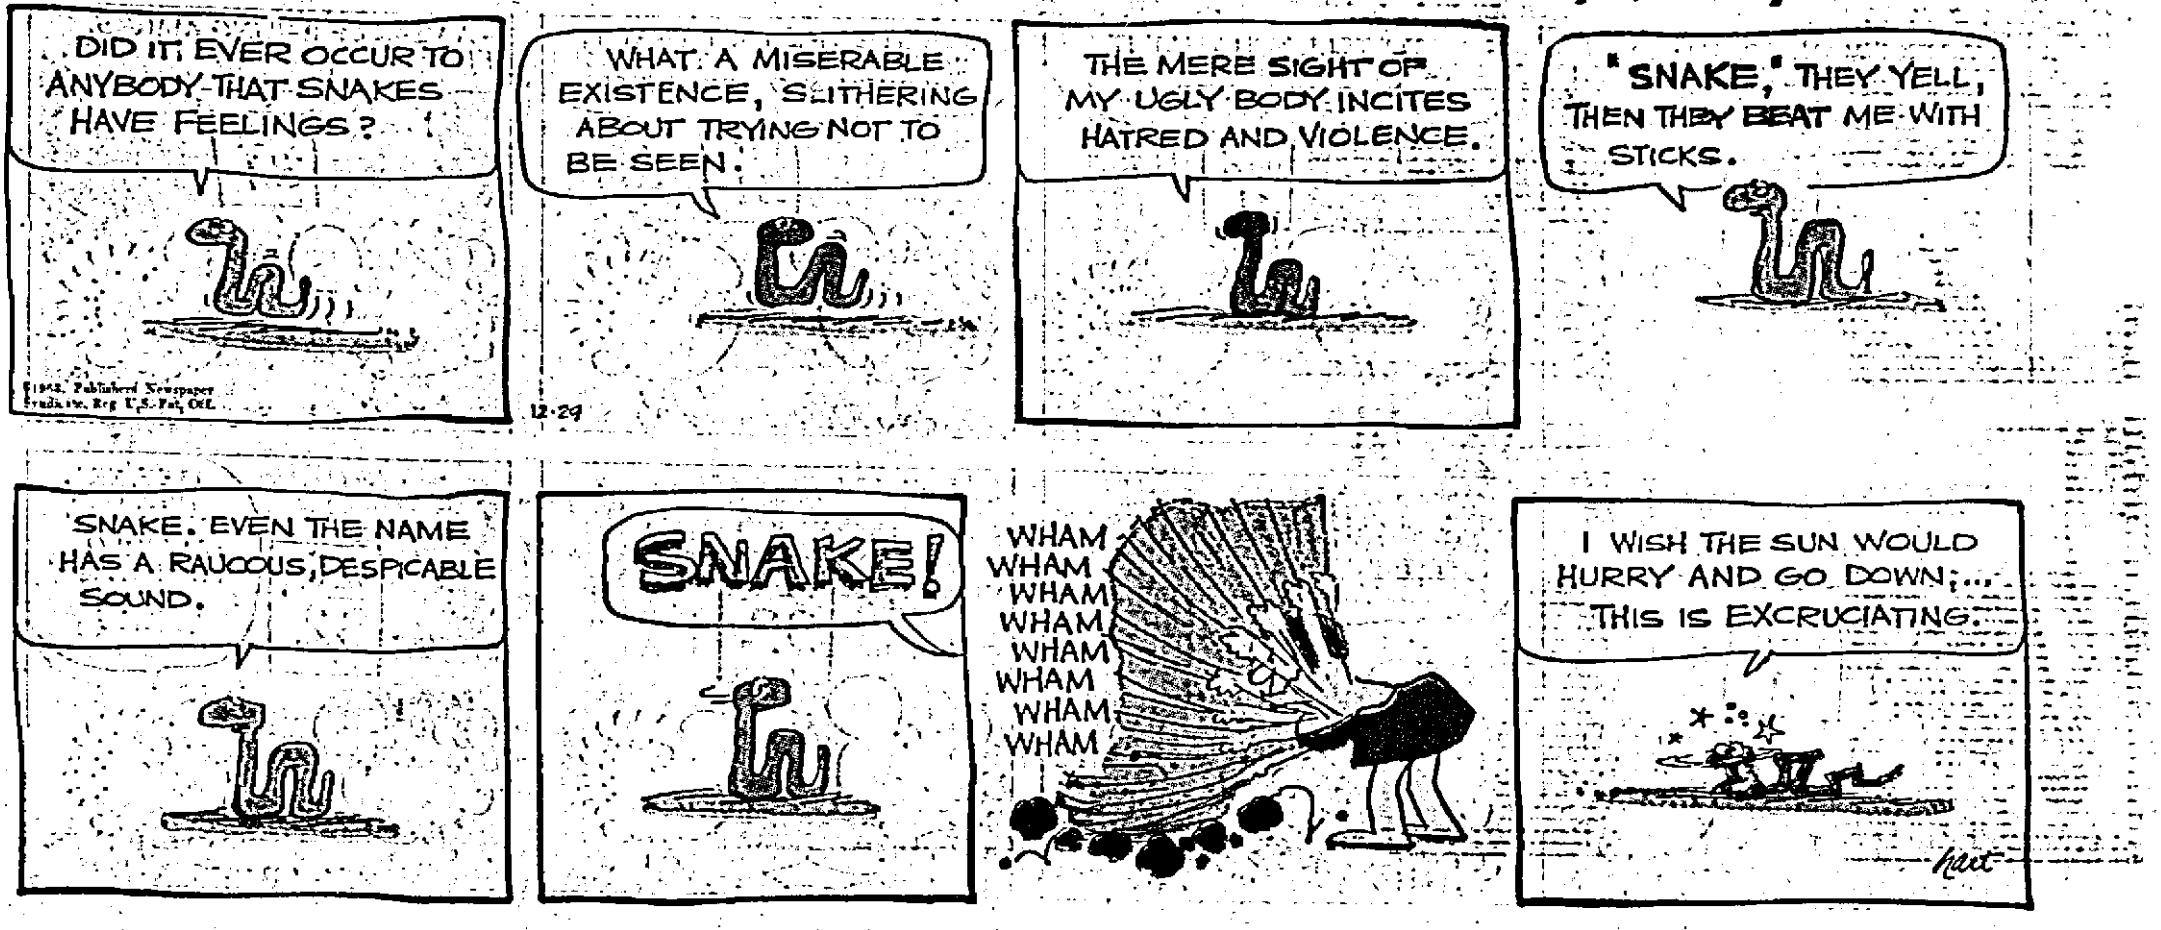

AFTER RUNNING A GANTLET OF CLOUDS AND HUGE PEAKS, THE CHOPPER SPIRALS DOWN TO A RUNWAY NEAR LEH...

AND AT THE AIRSTRIP FLAGG IS TOLD THAT MR. DODGE HAS BEEN TRANSPORTED TO NEW DELHI WHERE HE IS RECUPERATING FROM HIS BOUT WITH ALTITUDE SICKNESS... DAN FLAGG, HOPE SOMERSET AND INDIAN OFFICIALS BOARD A WAITING C-130 FOR NEW DELHI.

Disability Payments

When you get hurt and can't work!

ACCIDENT INSURANCE

Only 50¢ A MONTH

Independent Press-Telegram

Provided as a Reader Service of

HERE IS WHAT YOU CAN COLLECT
In accordance with policy terms

MINOR ACCIDENTS	When there is no disability, policy covers your doctor bill expense up to $10.00 (limit $2.00 per visit); plus X-ray expense up to $10.00.
DISABLING ACCIDENTS Include HOSPITAL EXPENSE	For most accidents at home, at work, at play, etc. Disability Benefits up to $120.00 at $30.00 per month; X-ray expenses up to $10.00; Ambulance expenses up to $10.00; PLUS Hospital Benefits to $100.00 at $5.00 per day. Maximum total $440.00. For Auto and Pedestrian Accidents; maximum total increased to $620.00; for other Specified Travel Accidents, maximum $920.00.
FATAL ACCIDENTS	$500.00 for most accidents at home, at work, at play, etc. $1,000.00 for Auto, Pedestrian, certain specified Travel accidents. Up to $10,000.00 for other specified Travel accidents.
MONTHLY INCREASE	Important Death Benefits increase 1% each month you are insured—up to 50% maximum.
ELIGIBILITY	Issued to men, women and children between ages 1 and 70—except those who have lost both hands or feet or sight of both eyes.
LIMITATIONS	Benefits reduced one half after 65th Birthday. No reduction in benefits first year.
EXCEPTIONS	Benefits paid in accordance with terms of policy form HM 7624 UA which is renewable at option of Company. Does not cover accidents in a mine; in railroad yard or train except as fare paying passenger; warfare; auto races; expense items paid under Compensation insurance.

It costs a whale of a lot to be laid up by an accident—any kind of accident. When the family bread-winner is hurt and can't work, his income is usually reduced or stopped entirely. Result? The family savings are drained so much that it may take years to recover from the high accident costs.

Bills for medical treatments, X-rays, hospital rooms, wheel chairs and a dozen other unexpected expenses, take a big chunk out of anyone's hard-earned savings.

This insurance is designed to help you solve the Accident Expense Problem. You may find it hard to believe [illegible] this policy—at a cost of little more than a penny a day does pay the benefits shown below, for accidents at work, at home, in your automobile, on the street, and even at play.

Hundreds of claims are paid every week to men and women, like yourself, who never expected to be hurt. But they realized that, since one American in every 12 gets hurt each year, they just couldn't afford to be without this low-cost protection.

Take advantage of this great Reader Service—the personal accident insurance that brings you cash when you need it most! Send in your application today!
